Sqdn. Ldr. John Potter of London is working on another, lighter version of the Jupiter, which he hopes will be able to compete for the $120,000 Kremer prize. He talked about his hobby during a recent aeronautical conference here.

The prize, offered by a British businessman, will go to the first man-propelled airplane to fly over a special mile-long, figure-8 track.

"A lot of people have tried this thing, but it has always been a one-shot deal. I hope maybe I can work up to it, but I haven't got my hopes up too high because that could only lead to disappointment," he said philosophically.

Mr. Potter became interested in the idea of man flying under his own power about five years ago and started looking around for a cheap, half-built airplane of this type.

Some friends put him in touch with Chris Roper who had been wiped out on a man-powered airplane since 1960. Roper's prototype plane had been partially destroyed by a fire in 1969 and he had given up in discouragement.

He sold it for the cost of materials to Potter, who began to modify it in his spare time in 1970. By late 1971, at a cost of $800, he had it ready to fly.

"Our maiden voyage was totally unplanned," the blonde, tanned flyer explained. "I was pedalling it down the runway to get used to it and suddenly I knew it would fly so I pedalled hard enough to make it take off."

"There I was, 20 feet up in the air, no instruments, unable to see a thing because my windshield was fogged up, but loving every minute of it."

A few seconds after he landed, Potter said, an irate air controller began to yell at him.

"He asked me why I had taken off without clearance from the tower and then had the nerve to land without clearance 20 seconds later. I told him I'd had power failure," he said with a grin.

The plane is propelled by pedalling which turns a propeller and moves a bicycle wheel. It is steered by a bicycle-like steering wheel. Mr. Potter trains by riding up steep hills on his bicycle.

Before he begins to pedal the 140-pound plane, he works up a sweat from exercise.

"If I went into it cold, I'd pull the muscles in my legs in shortorder," he explained.

The plane seldom flies more than 10 feetabove the ground and averages 30 miles an hour. It's made of balsa, spruce, a very light but tough plastic and glue.

Queen Elizabeth inspected the Jupiter during a tour of the Benson Air Base, outside London.

Brazilian Caviar Excellent

FORTALEZA, Brazil (Reuter) — Brazilian experts are developing caviar fro mflying fish and claim that it is every bit as good as the best traditional caviar made from Caspian Sea sturgeon.

What is more, the tropical flying fish have an important advantage over the less acrobatic sturgeon in that they can provide an inexhaustive supply of caviar, because you do not have to kill them to obtain their eggs.

The flying fish, capable of flights of up to 100 yards, simply expel their eggs into the water when netted, and can thus be thrown back again unharmed.

Professor Meiquiades Plato Paiva, head of the marine science laboratory at the Federal University of Ceara in this northeastern Brazilian city, told Reuters the eggs of the flying fish are the same golden yellow color as those of first-class sturgeon. Those of second-class sturgeon are ash grey, he said.

The only difference between the flying fish caviar and first-class sturgeon is that the eggs of the former are smaller.

The professor said he and his team of research scientists hit upon the new form of caviar by chance while trying to find ways of industrializing flying fish, as part of government plans to develop the fish industry in northeastern Brazil.

The fish swim in huge schools in equatorial waters off Brazil and the best season for the eggs is from May to July, although the fish produce them throughout the year.

Although the fish are only about 10 inches long and weigh about five ounces, they fly in such large numbers that making caviar from them becomes an economically viable project, Prof. Paiva said.

Two hundred pounds of fresh flying fish eggs produce from 114 to 123 pounds of caviar after processing, which includes several series of washing and cleaning with fresh water, salting and careful pressing.

Jimmy Wynn – Dodger Power . . .

MILWAUKEE (AP) — National League players may fight among themselves during the regular season but there's nothing like the sight of American League uniforms to get them together once each summer.

"These guys battle each other tooth and nail during the season," manager Walter Alston said, "but at an all-star game, it's great to see the enthusiasm and cheering. I'm proud of them all."

Alston's National League squad beat the American League 6-3 Tuesday night in the 44th mid-season game. It was the National's 12th win in the last 13 games.

Alvin Dark, the American League manager from Oakland who saw his club rally from a 5-0 deficit and tie the score—only to give up three runs in the ninth inning—said: "Wait 'til next year."

Bill Madlock, Chicago Cubs' third baseman, and Jon Matlack of New York Mets, who pitched the seventh and eighth innings, were named co-winners of the Commissioners Trophy, the most valuable player award.

Madlock, the National League's leading batter making his first all-star appearance in a reserve role, singled past third baseman Graig Nettles for two runs, breaking the 3-3 tie.

Since both Madlock and Matlack have sound-alike names, each thought he had been voted the award.

Matlack, who gained the victory and allowed only one hit, striking out four, said: "Some guy grabbed both of us and told us we had both won.

"Fantastic! ... was awestruck."

Matlack was warming up in the bullpen when Boston's Carl Yastrzemski cracked the first pitch off right-hander Tom Seaver of the Mets for a three-run homer to tie the score in the sixth inning.

"I had a sinking feeling when the ball dropped only 15 to 20 feet from the left-hander," said, "I knew we were in trouble."

Meanwhile, Madlock, dealt to the Cubs from Texas in October, 1973, in the Ferguson Jenkins trade, called his appearance and performance the highest thrill of my career.

"I couldn't believe the way the guys on our bench were going. The American League players looked like they were sitting on their bench waiting to get beat.

In addition to Dark, there were seven members of the world champion Oakland A's on the American League team. Most of them didn't help the cause.

In the crucial ninth, left fielder Claudell Washington dropped Reggie Smith's leadoff liner after a long run, Smith was credited with a single. Then Al Oliver of Pittsburgh doubled to the left field wall on a ball Washington seemingly could have caught but misjudged.

New York Yankees' Catfish Hunter, the American League pitcher and eventual loser, then was replaced by Rich Gossage of Chicago White Sox.

Gossage started out by hitting Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt on a pitch, setting up Madlock's game-winning hit.

Cincinnati's Pete Rose followed with a sacrifice fly to left, scoring Bowa with the tie-up run.

The National League had opened the scoring in the second inning off Oakland's Vida Blue with successive home runs by Steve Garvey and Jimmy Wynn of Los Angeles Dodgers.

It was only the third time back-to-back homers were hit in all-star competition.

They made it 3-0 in the third against Kansas City's Steve Busby when Lou Brock of St. Louis and Cincinnati's Johnny Bench did the things they do best.

Brock, the all-time base-stealing king, singled and unsettled Busby into committing a balk. Then he stole third and home, followed with a run-scoring single down the left field line.

Oakland players also were the fall guys on two plays which killed American Leaguers. They picked Bert Campaneris off first base one out in the seventh after Washington had singled. Matlack picked him off base.

Reggie Jackson, Oakland's outgoing right fielder, managed only an infield single and twice took called third strikes.

For Yastrzemski, the homer was his first in 25 all-star at bats. It came with one out following a single by Oakland's Joe Rudi and a walk to Gene Tenace and extended the crown of $1,40—the largest ever as Milwaukee County Executive including State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who rooted for the American League.

Another key matter on the agenda is the appointment of a leading Kuhn's counsel. His seven-year term expires Aug. 12, 1978.

Kuhn needs approval of nine of the 12 club owners in each league to stay on the job, which pays $150,000. Deputy Commissioner from Finley, he was expected to get the unanimous vote not the pay increase he wants.

Kuhn's executive committee sessions between the owners and players association will begin later this month, the owners' labor relations committee is to report on the new basic agreement. The current pact, which encompasses all major leaguers, expires Dec. 31, while the bonded arbitrament ends March 21, 1978.

Marvin Miller, executive director of the Players Association, met with player representatives here Monday and said the new agreement is included revision in the free agent draft and reserve clause and a substantial increase in the player's pension fund. He will reveal details of the proposals.

A Move Could Be Made to Seattle

Toronto Renews Bid for Franchise

MILWAUKEE (AP) — With ham, who took his New York baseball's recently formed would be in the red.

all-star game festivities concluded, major league officials turned their attention today to key issues facing baseball, one of which is what to do about the San Francisco Bay area situation.

When Walter O'Malley took his Dodgers from Brooklyn to Los Angeles after the 1957 season, he left behind Horace Stoneham and got richer. Stoneham, who took his New York Giants to San Francisco, got poorer.

The Giants are deep in debt and attendance at Candlestick Park is dwindling. On the other side of the bay is Charles O. Finley and Oakland A's, who have won three successive world championships without attracting many paying customers. Finley has said that without post-season money, he, too, would be in the red.

Baseball's recently formed franchise committee met last week on the problem and were to give a report on their findings at today's summer meeting of club owners.

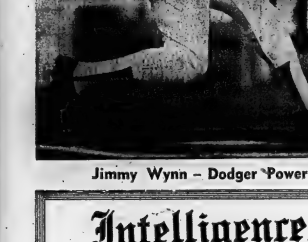
Almost likely that one of the clubs would be moved, most likely to Seattle.

Other cities interested in a club are Toronto, Washington and Denver. Their best chance to land a franchise appeared to be a series of big cities because expansion is not imminent.

Three groups seeking a franchise for Denver are at the meetings, along with a group of Toronto businessmen and baseball tenant for refurbished Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

The Toronto groups include a delegation representing Labatt's Ontario Breweries Ltd., and two groups known as the Toronto Baseball Co. Ltd., one of them including several directors of Maple Leaf Gardens and the other headed by Toronto construction executive Syd Cooper.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said owners would seek a resolution of the San Francisco problem at today's meetings, but Finley responded that nothing would be settled that quickly.



Dave Forbes Trial

Pressure Was On Says Don Cherry

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Boston Bruins' hockey coach Don Cherry has testified that his players in the dressing room before the game: "If you don't get going, you're all going to be gone" to the minor leagues.

Cherry said his players were not aggressive enough last season and expressed the view that "hard body checking wins hockey games."

"It always has been my philosophy to win at at all costs," Cherry said.

The Boston coach briefly related a suggestion by Forbes that his "win at all costs" philosophy motivated his players to injure competing players.

The coach said Forbes made "a very distraught young man" and had tears in his eyes when he came to the Boston bench following the scrap with Bush.

He said, 'What have I done? What have I done?' I put my arms around him and I said, 'Let's take it easy and go to the dressing room.'"

After reaching the dressing room, Cherry said all Forbes wanted to do was go to see Henry.

Still, presided Clarence Campbell was the last of about 25 witnesses called by the prosecution. He was questioned about a league disciplinary hearing he conducted last Jan. 14, which resulted in a 10-day suspension without pay for Forbes.

Asked to describe Forbes' mood during the league hearing, Campbell said: "He was not necessarily penitent, but he was contrite during the whole proceeding.

"He was completely and absolutely truthful was my first impression."

In response to a prosecution question, the NHL official said: "There's a tradition in the game when you fight you drop your ale"

The prosecution also called Dr. Larson said it was "possible" that the cut above the right eye which required 20 stitches to close, and the fracture of a bone around the eye were caused by different blows.

Als Planning New Wrinkles

MONTREAL (CP) — As head coach of the defending Grey Cup champions, Marv Levy says he is sure that much will be expected of his Montreal Alouettes this season in the Canadian Football League.

Montreal boasts what was generally conceded to be the strongest defence in the league last season. But with his 1974 defensive unit returning almost intact, coach Levy has set his sights for 1975 on building what he hopes will emerge as "an explosive offensive unit."

"Last year our No. 1 priority was to build a strong defence," Levy said. "This year we want to maintain the level we reached and, if possible, improve on it."

Despite the fact the Alouettes scored a league-high 38 touchdowns last season, the club allowed fewer touchdowns — despite being hauled out many times by the defensive unit.

Of the 38 touchdowns the Als scored, 11 were produced by the always-dangerous Johnny Rodgers, five by Canadian fullback Peter Dalla Riva, and three by fullback Steve Fotiagalli—the only man in the Eastern Football Conference to rush for more than 1,000 yards.

While Levy credits Rodgers' potential scoring threat everytime the former Heisman Trophy winner gets his hands on the ball, he says his club must develop "the big play potential" it lacked in other seasons.

Levy indicated he will be less conservative in his approach to offence this season than in his first two years in the CFL.

"We will tend to utilize the long bomb early and if it doesn't work, at least we will loosen up the defence," Levy said.

MARV LEVY

It was with this thought in mind that the Als picked up free agent Ottawa Rough Riders speedster Hugh Oldham, when the latter was released by Ottawa last week.

Also in the Als front four from last season—Gordie Judges, Jay Cristobaro, Glen Weir and Junior Ah You—returns intact and appears assured of its job, what has been described as the best linebacking corps in the league could see a new face.

Gerry Zepic, Carl Crennel, Wally Boone and Mike Widger have shown well in the strife to it-going, although Crennel has received strong competition from newcomer Gerry Argyris at centre spot.

The secondary appeared the same until Dickie Harris suffered a dislocated shoulder in insurance in case Harris can't start alongside Phil Odle when the Als traded running back Wayne Smith to Hamilton Tiger-Cats for Columbia Lions Monday in exchange for defensive halfback Lester Hayes.

Playing-coach Gene Gaines, Mark Duda, Bobby Simpson and Art Edgson will make up the remainder of the defensive backfield.

The offensive line, with Canadian Ray Waitrin taking over from George Dixon, Bob Pascuzzo at centre, along with returnees Dave Cutler, Gerry Braggins and Barry Randall.

Levy has pleased a task of carrying all three experienced quarterbacks into the opening game of the season.

Sonny Wade, currently sidelined with a neck injury, and Jimmy Jones are holdovers from last year's club, Ron Lancaster, Dave Lewis, who played with Ottawa before coming to the NFL several seasons ago, has been added.

In addition to his quarterback duties, Lewis is available for duty as a running back and punter.

The battle for the place-kicking job remains between incumbent Don Sweet of Vancouver and newcomer John Archibald, released earlier by Toronto Argonauts. Sweet set a league record last season when he kicked four field goals in Montreal's 38-7 Grey Cup victory over Edmonton Eskimos.

NHL President Testifies

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — The prosecution rested its case Tuesday in the aggravated assault trial of Boston Bruins player Dave Forbes after calling National Hockey League President Clarence Campbell as a witness.

Forbes, 26, is charged with aggravated assault with a dangerous weapon—his hockey stick—against Henry Boucha of Minnesota North Stars during an NHL game Jan. 4 at Bloomington, Minn.

Conviction carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Campbell, president of the NHL since 1946, was questioned by prosecutor Gary Flakne concerning a league disciplinary hearing conducted Jan. 14 by Campbell. Forbes received a 10-day suspension without pay at that time.

Campbell testified that Forbes told the league hearing "he went to Boucha's eye were caused by my stick." He said Forbes "did not testify under oath at the hearing and no transcript was made of the meeting—only Campbell's personal notes."

The NHL president said Forbes told the league hearing he did not realize that Boucha was hurt when he fell to the ice after the first blow.

Campbell said the league hearing also reviewed events leading up to the attack, which occurred after both had left the penalty box.

Feelings between the two began running high earlier in the game when "Forbes was of the opinion that Boucha had ridden him pretty high with a stick, more than was necessary," Campbell said.

He said Forbes later rode Boucha into the boards "pretty high and elbowed him," and a fist fight ensued. The two players were sent to the penalty box as a result of that fight and said.

Campbell said Forbes told the league hearing "he was thinking of ways to get back" at Boucha while in the penalty box. However, the league official said, Forbes told him he "intended to punch him (Boucha) with my fist."

After his testimony at the trial, Campbell said Easterners a guilty verdict "would pose some questions for us and anybody in professional sports."

The penalty was in conformity with the standards we have established over the years," Campbell said. "Society for a long time has accepted the league dealing with its own disciplinary matters."

He said the Boucha incident, has prompted no changes in NHL rules governing fights. "We consider the rule book adequate for all purposes."

Campbell said a guilty verdict would be "construed as an inadequacy on our part in our disciplinary system."

At Cost of Draft Choice

Toros Get Okay from WHA To Keep 18-year-old Star

TORONTO (CP) — The World series was given a three-year Hockey Association announced Tuesday it is allowing Toronto Toros to keep right winger Mark Napier but at the expense of a first-round amateur draft choice next year and loss of a player in 1977.

Napier, a star with Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A each of the two previous seasons, is the property of the Toros but was the subject of a dispute between the club and the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

The Canadiens claimed Napier signed a contract with them when he was 16 years old.

In addition, the Toros have been formally censured by the league for their action and we have advised the WHA procedures for non-drafted Juniors," said Hatskin, who added that the Napier contract will have to be approved.

Hatskin said the Toros broke WHA internal policy but not the rules by signing the 18-year-old Napier.

"I still do not personally approve of the Toros' action but Mr.. Naplet's lawyers have proven to me that their client's contract is valo and binding. The league must live by its own rules and financial jeopardy if we tried to negate it."

A Toros spokesman described the WHA action, as "unfair but fair." He added he had no choice but to accept the league's ruling. "We hope the court will prove worth while."

Napier, also one of the finest junior prospects in years, Napier said he is happy that the matter has been resolved, "especially since I believe there is no longer a grey challenge to me in junior hockey."

In two years with the Marlboros, the 183-pound forward scored 117 regular-season goals and added 110 assists. He was an important factor in their Memorial Cup victory this spring.

Saints' President

We Can't Afford Not to Sign Orr

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Wayne Belisle of Minnesota Fighting Saints says his club and World Hockey Association "can't afford not to sign superstar defenceman Bobby Orr."

Belisle was replying to Tuesday's report in the St. Paul Pioneer Press that the Saints were offering Orr $6.5 million over five years to jump from Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League.

Under how the Saints, pictured with financial problems since they joined the WHA four years ago, can afford that kind of contract offer, Belisle responded:

"How can we afford not to do it? Bobby Orr is the best player in hockey. He will fill our building every night for five years."

Both Belisle and Bill Watters, an associate of Orr's lawyer, Alan Eagleson, confirmed that the WHA was offering a multi-million-dollar contract for Orr's services. But neither would be specific about the amount involved.

The pact, reported the largest in hockey history, is said to include a $1-million cash payment. The Saints would pay Orr approximately 40 per cent of the contract figure, with the WHA picking up the remainder.

White Eagles' Players Free Agents

TORONTO (CP) — Players of a Toronto soccer team that was suspended for the balance of its season as a result of a near-riot at an international game Sunday are free agents, Joe Piccinni, president of the Canada Soccer League, said Tuesday.

Serbian White Eagles were ousted from the National Soccer League after the game Monday following a disturbance at the Canadian National Exhibition stadium.

"Only the club was suspended," Mr. Piccinnisi said. "The players can move to any team they wish but don't forget they have a contract with White Eagles who, despite the suspension, own their certificates."

He said that a team wanting any White Eagles' players would have to compensate the White Eagles for bringing them to Canada.

The Congress of North-Central American and Carribean Soccer Federation game between the White Eagles and Mexico was abandoned with 23 minutes to play after about 100 fans invaded the field Sunday.

The First Time Around, Macs Give It Good Shot

As long as a team has a reasonable chance of winning, it will be a success at the box office.

That means the team can't afford to be a pushover for any of the teams in its grouping, or the jig is up.

A winning team is no guarantee of support at the gate. That is, fans in many centres get as tierd of seeing their team win regularly as others do when their favorites are clobbered each time out.

Just be consistent. And things should work out.

I think Belleville McDonald's entry in the Ontario Football League is to be congratulated for supplying first-rate entertainment at Alemite Park this season.

In the city's first shot at fastball's major league, the management, coaches and players have done themselves proud.

No one had any right to expect Macs would walk into the league and look a solid, first time around. These are big notch teams with plenty of experience in the premier league behind them.

The opposition was expected to be top calibre. And it has been just that.

But with the odd exception, Macs have been right in there in league games thus far. Certainly the opposition squads are not chalking up two points before they take the field against our guys.

To me, that's saying plenty for McDonald's. It's quite an accomplishment in the team's first season.

Macs have shown the nucleus for a pennant contender is there. I don't believe city and district fans are demanding the ultimate in success overnight.

In the not too distant future, a championship could well be within reach. The London Free Press seems to be of the opinion it could happen here as early as the 1976 season.

That might be pushing it a little but it's a fact, we're not that far behind any of them . . . except in the standings.

One statistic the standings don't show, is the number of games Macs have lost when the decision could have gone the other way with a break or two.

Well done McDonald's.

Keep banging in there.

SLICES — McDonald's Family Restaurant in Oshawa sponsors the women's team that captured the championship in the tournament here, 27-20-2. T. Laverean of the Oshawa establishment received the following letter from team assistant captain Bonnie Jaskowski.

"We were all quite proud of our first place standings in the Belleville Tournament . . . after we took the tournament championship, all of us went to McDonald's in Belleville and they rewarded us with a Big Mac, fries and a milkshake each.

"Our team appreciated their hospitality very much."

Says Laverean:

"Mr. Saxby (Bob, of McDonald's in Belleville) contributes freely to sports in your area.

"I felt this recognition in the press might be a kind gesture for a man who gives to the community."

Consider it done, Mr. Laverean.

Most recent standings released by the Premier Soccer League have our Belleville Olympics in a tie with Kingston Portuguese and Toronto Ferma at the four-point level, two back of co-leaders Kingston Italo-Canadians and Peterborough Vi-Mar. Quinte Helenic has two points.

Vi-Mar, Ferma and Helienic had all played five games, Portugese and Olympics four each, and Italo-Canadians, three.

Italo has outscored the opposition 15-4 in winning its first three starts.

Dick Bird and his crew are popping the buttons off their shirts these days as their chests swell with pride. And rightly so.

Skipper Bird with crew members Colin Sayers and Chris Couture, the only Bay of Quinte Yacht Club entry in the Eastern Yachting Yachting Classic held in late last week, took the Parcell Cup for their first place finish in the long distance race, completing the course in an exhausting 13 hours.

Held from Chaumont, New York's Crescent Yacht Club, the event attracted some 35 entries from the Eastern Yachting Circuit which is an organization of Canadian and American Clubs on the eastern end of Lake Ontario.

Bird and crew also guided Mal Tal's Viking 28, to second place in the course racing event.

Tony's 2-run Ninth Sinks Macs

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

OSHAWA — The Belleville McDonald's may be on their way to a new Ontario Fastball League record. Unfortunately, it is not one tony wish to brag about, and they definitely would prefer not to break it.

The record would be, most losses in a season by one run. So far the Macs have lost 19 such heartbreakers.

Tuesday night here was one of those games, with the Macs losing to the Oshawa Tony's 3-1.

What made it hurt even more was that the Belleville squad had a 1-0 lead going into the bottom of the ninth inning.

Even worse than that was the fact they loaded the bases in the ninth and couldn't capitalize with an insurance run.

Starter Jim Chase came up with another good outing for the McDonald's striking out seven batters, walking just one, and giving up nine base hits.

Oshawa starter Wayne Colpitts was also pitching as well against Belleville, as Barry Timbers had to relieve him in the eighth to get him out of trouble.

The Belleville run was scored in the top of the eighth when Wayne McTaggart singled and went over to third on Frank Robinson's bunt single. He scored when Jimmy Chase came up with a base hit, his third in six at bats.

Chase proceeded to hold the Oshawa team until the bottom of the ninth when he hit Brian Myers with a pitch. Things began to go wrong from there, as Daryl Hodgin pounded a double to move Myers to third. Roy Graham pounded another double and the game was over as two runs scorred.

Belleville batters got on base, but couldn't be driven in, as the Macs left eight men on base.

Tops at the plate was Larry Marcey, with a couple of singles, and Wayne McTaggart who duplicated that feat.

Other singles came from Steve Lisy, Terry Meagher, Peter Harrison, Robinson and Chase.

Chase has been particularly hot at the bat, with two singles in London and one in Oshawa to give him a 3 for record in his last two games.

The next game is Wednesday July 23 at Alemite Park, against the Toronto Waxman Globals.

The Macs will 'probably be out in full force for that game, and it should be interesting.

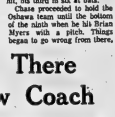
Potential There Says New Coach



DON GAVEY

After several weeks of waiting, the Belleville McDonalds have announced a new base coach to assist Harold Reid with the management of the team.

The new man is Don Gavey, a name familiar to many softball fans because of his involvement with the Quinte Umpires Association.

Gavey is the president of that association, and has umpired for over 25 years.

He is no stranger to the playing end of the game either, as he was a member of the Tilsonburg team in the old Memorial League, the forrunner of the Ontario Fastball League. Gavey played first base and right field in the mid-fifties for both that squad and an OASA finalist squad from the same town.

In 1961 he played for the Quebec Provincial All Star Team, and helped coach a team there.

He also coached two baseball teams, a Juvenile team and a Junior "B" squad.

Gavey said that the Macs are "just short of being real contenders" when asked what he thought of the club's prospects.

"What, I really want to do is help Harold in the running of the team, and give him more time in his job as manager."

Gavey will join the club next Wednesday when Toronto is here.

JOHN O'NEILL

Takes Over The Reins

A man who has established himself as one of the top performers with Belleville Olympics of the Eastern Ontario Premier Soccer League and Bay of Quinte Soccer Association, John O'neill has taken over the club's coaching reins.

No stranger to coaching, O'neill guided Olympics' Juniors in 1974 and the past two seasons has coached the Eastern Ontario All Star squad. He succeeds Manuel Montes, who was forced to resign the post because of work commitments.

Shortly after accepting the position, O'neill signed goalkeeper Dale Rose as a backup to regular Gary Donovan.

Olympics' next Bay of Quinte Association start is Thursday when they take on Quinte Helenic at Sir James Whitney School.

SEEK SUPREMACY

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union-Japanese battle for international supremacy in women's volleyball will be on the highlight of a four-team tournament that begins in Montreal Thursday. The Canadian and U.S. national teams will also be in the tournament. The Soviets won the gold medal in the 1972 Olympics by defeating the Japanese team. But Japan moved to the top of international rankings by beating the Soviets in major world championships in 1973 and 1974.

Broadloom Finishes On a Winning Note

Although the club officials don't know they all is the standings, it is a fact, Belleville Broadloom has completed its Eastern Ontario Baseball Association (EOBA) peewee regular schedule and has received it classification for playoff purposes.

The EOBA uses a rating system to classify teams for playoff competition. But no official word has been received concerning the placing of the teams in the league during the regular schedule.

Broadloom finished up on a winning note, Tuesday, handing Shannonville's Concrete a 9-3 setback behind the pitching of Tony Parks who went the distance on a six-hitter. He struck out seven and walked four.

Mike Blakely took the loss, allowing eight hits while fanning five and walking three.

Dave Mortensen tripled for the winners. Checking in with two singles each were Matt Willey, Brian Cronkright, and Glenn McQuaid. Big hitter for Thurlow was Boyd Sullivan who tripled and singled.

The Broadloom squad will meet Trenton in one playoff series while Peterborough and Lindsay book up in another. The winner of the Trenton-Belleville set gets a bye to the groop final.

Whitby meets the winner of the Peterbrough-Lindsay set. It wasn't Thurlow's night in EOBA action, Tuesday. Chisholm's of Roslin Bantams took it on the chin in Kingston, losing to the hometown Lions 9-3.

Mark McGee and Ian Stalker shared the winners pitching. Rick Woodward went the distance for Thurlow.

Beef and Egg Quotas Linked

WASHINGTON (CP) — High Canadian and United States negotiators are scheduled to meet here Friday, for the first time linking the issue of beef quotas with Canada's recently imposed quotas on eggs.

It was learned Tuesday that U.S. negotiators involved in a series of talks with Canadian counterparts on the beef restrictions cabled Ottawa to request that the question of eggs be made part of the Friday talks.

It was not immediately known who will represent Canada.

Almost a year ago, Canada imposed a one-year quota on foreign cattle.

Ford retaliated to the Canadian quotas by proclaiming a far-reaching quotas against Canada and covering pork and pork products as well as beef.

Earlier this month, Ottawa imposed quotas on egg shipments from the U.S., touching off demands within the U.S. that further severe retaliation be invoked in that area.

Bread, Milk Purchases Not Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — Faced with steadily increasing bread and fluid milk prices, most consumers have reduced purchases in other foods rather than cut consumption of those two items, two researchers say.

In a report prepared for the Food Prices Review Board and released Tuesday, writers Bruno Spencer and Christine Fleyer of McMaster University conclude that because of higher bread and milk prices "Canadians must spend less on other foods."

The research showed this to be the case regardless of the level of family income.

"An average four-person family spent about the same for bread and milk whether that family had an income in the $5,000-to-$9,999 range or in the $10,000-to-$14,999 range," the report says.

But, the authors add, the financial impact of the higher prices hit hardest at low-income earners and those on fixed incomes.

"A consequence of this is, of course, that the relative share of income spent on bread and milk is greater the lower the family income."

Using Statistics Canada data, the report shows that between January 1972 and April 1975, the price of bread rose by an average of 51 per cent and the price of fluid milk increased by 34 per cent.

New Democrat Attacks Car Purchase Rebates

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's cash rebate of the five-per-cent sales tax on new car sales might cost the government $5,000 for each additional new car produced in the province, Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa Centre) said Tuesday.

He told the legislature the $24 million mini-budget measure announced July 7 is expected to increase sales by about 14,200 cars, according to Ford of Canada forecasts.

Of these, only about 35 per cent, or 5,000 additional cars, will be produced in Ontario as a result of the sales tax rebate on cars, he said.

The NDP member, who urged Treasurer Darcy McKeough to put the government's forecast on record, later admitted the $5,000 figure was an over-simplification but added that taxpayers would derive little benefit from the program they are.

While challenging the NDP charge that the measure would not stimulate the Ontario auto industry, Mr. McKeough refused to make public "at the moment" the government's estimate of the impact of the program.

Trains Said Best Way To Move Passengers

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand has been told by a rail union that his new national transport policy is "a farce."

Leo Breen, a top United Transportation Union official, said in a letter released Tuesday the policy announced by Mr. Marchand June 18 is "a new grouping of words stating, if anything, a weaker version of the present National Transportation Act.

"It not only seriously curtails rail passenger service, it will kill it, thereby denying present job opportunities in this field and continuing wasteful use of energy resources."

Mr. Marchand indicated in his policy statement that rail passenger service should eventually aim to pay its way in developed areas of the country. He said a demonstration passenger service using improved equipment will be launched soon somewhere in the transport corridor between Quebec City and Windsor, Ont.

The federal government handed out $135 million in subsidies for uneconomic passenger service last year.

The policy statement also said train service should be streamlined with joint use of tracks by the two national railways.

Transport department officials have indicated transcontinental service might be reduced and passenger service the transport system was in a operated principally in densely mess last year.
populated areas.

Mr. Breen said trains are the most efficient users of fuel.

Rail unions had expected a revival of passenger service later Mr. Marchand declared.

Mr. Breen said the transport minister cannot be entirely blamed for the new policy as he was advised by such people as John Baldwin, whom he indicated favors the airlines.

How to brew tea in your refrigerator.

It's a cold fact. Tetley flavour through tea-bags work so well, you don't even have to boil water. That's because Tetley teabags have holes to continually let water move in and out. This constant distribution of flavour means that you can make rich, refreshing iced tea, even in cold water. And you can make it for less than nine cents a pitcher. That's a lot less expensive than iced tea mix. And lots better.

Here's how. Use 4 Tetley teabags for every quart of cold water, (or 1 teabag for every 8 oz). After dropping the teabags in a pitcher of water, simply keep the pitcher covered inside your refrigerator overnight. What you end up with is iced tea with a flavour your whole family will appreciate. Tea this good, you just can't make in an instant.

NEW YORK (AP) — Paramount Pictures said Wednesday it has agreed to sell the television rights for 42 of its movies, including Chinatown, The Great Gatsby and a nine-hour combined version of Godfather Parts I and II, for about $76 million.

Paramount, a subsidiary of Gulf Western Industries Inc., said it will receive about $15 million from RCA Corp.'s NBC network for The Godfather and Godfather Part II. ABC and CBS will pay Paramount about $61 million for 40 other movies, Paramount said. The final details of the agreements are still being worked out, the movie studio added.

Other movies include Serpico, Death Wish, Paper Moon, Catch 22, Lady Sings and the Blues and Save the Tiger.

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Evel Knievel has graduated in stages from a hospital bed to reliance on just one crutch since he crashed while attempting to jump 13 buses in London's Wembley Stadium on May 26.

Knievel says he will return to London to complete the jump on an undetermined future date. He said doctors calculate he is three weeks ahead of schedule in recovering from the broken pelvis, crushed vertebrae and other injuries he received in his first European appearance.

Knievel said immediately after the crash before about 70,000 onlookers he would never jump again. But the much-battered stuntman retracted the statement the next day.

He said in Butte on Friday he will give up his aerial motorcycle stunts if he fails on his second attempt to jump the English buses.

The width of the buses was a cause of his shattering fall, Knievel said.

"I didn't have the speed. Those buses are 4½ feet wide, and in this country a truck is only eight feet wide."

Knievel said his problem during the recovery of the distance gave him a premonition of failure because he had failed to bring proper gearing for his motorcycle to clear the distance.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — Frank Sinatra sprang to the defence of would-be singing star Telly Savalas on Sunday.

In a letter to The Times, the veteran singing star criticized an unfavorable review of a concert by the bald television actor written by The Times' rock music critic as "smug and unfair."

Sinatra, in his letter, admitted Savalas, star of the television series Kojak, was not the greatest singer in the world, "for which I am personally grateful."

"But that is notthepoint."

"But that is not the point," said Sinatra who described the actor as "one of the truly refreshing personalities of our time."

"Telly is giving the people what they want . . . himself! He is an absolute delight and the crowd loves him."

DECISION

Ottawa, July 4, 1975.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decision effective July 4, 1975.

Decision CRTC 75-250
AM AND FM LICENCE RENEWALS

In its Public Announcement published today, the Commission indicated that the FM implementation hearings would commence in December 1975 and would be held regionally wherever possible.

The Commission has decided to consider the renewal of AM broadcasting licences expiring in the early part of 1976 at the same time as it hears applications for the issue, amendment or renewal of licences for FM broadcasting stations, most of these licences expire on March 31, 1976.

The Commission considers that the period between December 1975, when the hearings commence, and March 31, 1976 does not provide sufficient time to consider both AM and FM broadcasting licence applications.

The Commission, therefore, issues a renewal licence expiring September 30, 1976 for the following FM broadcasting station:

FM
'CJBQ-FM Belleville - Quinte Broadcasting Company Ltd.
These licences are issued on the basis of the presently approved application and subject to the same conditions.

Guy Lefebvre
Director-General of Licensing.

For Thursday, July 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A better life is ahead for you and your family. That major deal you've been working on for a long time finally bears fruit.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Get on the phone to that service man or straighten out the mix-up with the store. The odds favor you in tying up loose ends.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can make up for the time lost yesterday. You're extra-efficient at working today. What's more, the payoff is high.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A lighthearted summer day that you'll equally share with the family and children, or socializing with closest friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Play any hunches you have today about things concerning your home. It could be a plan for redecorating or planting.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be doing something with friends today. Travelling, having them drop in or just eating them would all be happy choices.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) A "want" you're entitled to will come your way today in some form. Look for a raise or remembrance for a favor.

What appears to be luck is often but the result of much of doing all the right things will bring you something long-desired.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your instincts are super-astute today. You could probably win on the horses or at poker.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Call that friend with whom you had the mix-up agreement recently. The day's perfect for clearing the air, getting a fresh start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This is the day to talk to the boss about what you'd do if you got that new job that's opened up. He'll be receptive to your ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Take the children to the amusement park today. You'll have as much fun as they will, just watching their youthful exuberance.

To Your Good Health

Proper Diets for Bowel Disorders

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: A friend of mine had colitis a few years ago and advised me to take cornmeal, spinach and prune juice, while another friend advised me not to eat any coarse, bulky food. Could you specify on the diet?—E.B.B.

Colitis is a rather general term applied to a variety of bowel disorders. For example, there may be an irritable colon found in tense individuals and also in those who abuse laxatives. There is an allergic colitis caused by a sensitivity to certain foods. A more serious type is ulcerative colitis, which is featured by ulceration and often bleeding in the bowel.

Hence, the type of colitis you have should be defined first. In general, roughage in the diet should be maintained. Raw fruits, foods with hard seeds such as corn, and some raw fruits and vegetables are also to be avoided, although some colitis patients can tolerate cooked fruits and vegetables. Nuts are also taboo.

Meats, fish and fowl have a low residue and are essential for protein needs in such diets, as are dairy products, unless an allergy is traceable to milk. Since there is a greater dependence on cooked food, a vitamin supplement is usually recommended. Fruit juice helps, if it can be tolerated.

Don't rely too heavily on your friends' advice. The prune juice is fine, but it could be too laxative for your condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write on how to read a fever thermometer. I'm 67, and as I shun phase out their existing practices in favor of modern ones.

Newly-appointed Health Minister Robert Wells says it's too early to say what action will be taken to encourage medical graduates to serve in isolated areas of Newfoundland as is required under the terms of government bursary loans.

The loans range up to $10,000 to help cover four years of study.

In exchange for the loans, the students agree to practise in the province for a specific period of time after graduation.

First assignments are supposed to be at the discretion of government's choosing (5- let the length of time during which the bursary was granted.

So far, Mr. Roberts says his department is considering how to deal with defaulters.

"They have a moral and legal obligation to return to the island and take up practice," Mr. Wells says.

At present, about 80 persons are involved in the bursary program. Students in doctors serving their final year of commitment.

The first reported last year that of 33 students then under the bursary program, "eight had refused to honor their commitment."

At that time he suggested that doctors who did not honor their commitments should have their licences to practise suspended.

A curtailment of the program was being considered because of the number of defaulters, he said.

Newfies May Get English Dentists

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — English dentists may soon begin up practice in some of the isolated fishing communities along Newfoundland's coast.

A spokesman for the provincial health department says that during former health minister Dr. A. T. Rowe's recruitment tour of England, seven dentists agreed to come to the island "to take a look."

"At present the seven dentists have no firm commitment other than their initial visit," the spokesman says.

Newfoundland has agreed to pay all but $100 of the dentists' fares from England but this would be refunded to any dentist, who decided to stay and set up practice. And it would also assist in the purchase of equipment required for their work.

says the dentists are "urgently needed for under-serviced areas" such as Port-aux-Basques in the southwest and Port aux Basques in the southwest. Such areas would be given preference in allocating the dentists.

In years gone by doctors and nurses recruited in England, Ireland, Russia and other countries have served in isolated areas of Newfoundland, while many of the professionals have settled in St. John's, Corner Brook or Grand Falls, three of the island's major centres where working and living conditions are easier.

One or two of the British dentists are expected some time this summer but others may not arrive until early 1976. After visiting the province, they are expected to return home to times I feel as though I have a fever. If I take my temperature in the morning, leaving it in my mouth three or four minutes, I get a reading of a little over 98. But in the afternoon, around 4 or 4 p.m., I get a reading past the 99 mark.

Does this mean that it should be checked? My blood pressure is 140 over 80.—Mrs. M. S.

The reading differences are not unusual, especially in a person who is active. At night, when sleeping, the body's metabolic processes slow down, and this can account for a lowered temperature reading upon arising in the morning.

As the day wears on, and you become tired and engage in various activities, the metabolic rate necessarily increases. Thus the reading you get in the day can be, and usually is, somewhat higher.

Your blood pressure is within normal limits for your age.

Incidentally, before using a thermometer, the mercury level should be shaken down to below the normal (98.6) level, which is where the mercury pools.

Dr. Dr. Thosteson: You refer to "old wives' tales." I am an old wife and I resent that old phrase. Couldn't you emit it in the future? They were probably started by old men or "old husbands" anyway.—Mrs. B.

I apologize to any "old wives" (even young ones) who may have been offended by this lapse. This phrase entered the language to define diagnoses of various ailments based on superstition or faulty information.

I don't use it again.

Opening lead — 7 ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

West thought a long time about his opening lead. He finally came to the conclusion that someone could ruff a heart lead, but that East's double had to be based on one of the black suits. If he held the club ace he would keep; if he held the ace of spades, it might be important to lead to it right away.

Therefore, West opened the spade. East did hold the ace, but unfortunately it turned out that dummy was void of spades. South ruffed his third round for the grand slam.

North's bidding has been both brilliant and successful. He could have jumped directly to diamonds, but he wanted to buy the hand there so he bid just five. Then when West went with six hearts, North felt he had to save at seven diamonds.

East had no idea that there was any danger of South making seven diamonds and he was not interested in seven hearts. He passed the seven in high spirits.

West really should not have doubled. If he had passed the chances are that West would have bid seven hearts on the theory that it just might make.

North might well have opened a club and the heart grand slam would have come in.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Indiana sent us today's hand with the question: "How should it have been bid and played?" We discussed it some in the article, but the answer to the question is that no one knows. Good bidding is based on the study of thousands and thousands of hands. Frost hands occur so seldom that everyone has to guess when bidding them.

Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column. The writers will receive copies of the JACOBY ACCORDING TO JACOBY.

Psychic Sets Off Ticks

VICTORIA, B.C. (CP) — Gwen Cash, a local writer, and seven Tri Celtet, an Israeli psychic and nightclub magician, better known for his spoon bending. Recently, when Mr. Geller appeared on a Vancouver television show, Mrs. Cash took an old watch that was left to her 20 years ago by an aunt and, as instructed by the psychic, rubbed the back of it with her fingers. The watch, which had never run since she received it, began to tick and has been running since.

Balloons at Site

PICKERING, Ont. (CP) — The People or Planes group operating the airport gives years protesting the proposed new airport instead a barrage balloons on the site of the airport. It intends to launch more balloons to prevent aircraft from using runways.

Corbin Strike Continues

Them Arabs Ain't Got It in 'Em Yankee View of Oil Prospects

WASHINGTON (CP) — A fat gas station operator, his grease - stained undershirt soaked from the boiling summer heat and a thick, dead cigar stub hanging from his teeth, swore loudly and aimed a vicious kick at the tire of a small foreign car.

"Been working on this useless horseless carriage since morning," he complained as the nose sun receded on his balding head, "and the damn thing's still dead as a doornail.

"Trouble with people around here," he continued in philosophical tones which seem reserved for garrulous American mechanics and taxi drivers, "is that they've been convinced we're headed for another big jump in oil and gas prices so they go on buying those Mickey Mouse cars.

"Well let me tell you, them Arabs ain't got it in 'em. You may see gas go up a few more cents this fall but that's the end of it."

CLOSE TO TRUTH

Oddly enough, his earthy approach to one of the world's most complex economic issues may be as close to the truth as any. And "them Arabs" and a growing number of economists here seem to share a corresponding view.

There now seems little doubt that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) will carry out its promise to raise oil prices after Sept. 30 when the current freeze ends.

But a significant number of economists have concluded the increase will not be as large as many had feared. The biggest jump, perhaps $2 a barrel, is expected to come in the current $10.46 a barrel charged for Saudi Arabian crude oil, the benchmark for the OPEC pricing mechanism.

However, the prices of some top-quality crudes, particularly from Indonesia, which already command the highest prices, will not likely change at all and may even be reduced, experts say.

The over-all effect for Western consumers, they predict, will not be more than one cent to five cents a gallon for petroleum products.

What has been happening behind the scenes is extraordinarily difficult to unravel and even The most seasoned economists studying the murky world of oil production acknowledge that part of what they say is guesswork.

Most experts decline to be quoted directly on the subject but a synopsis of their views drawn from interviews and from other published accounts would at least a partial explanation.

Basically, it appears that the world recession and inflation, caused partly by the high price of petroleum, have led to major problems for producers as well as consumers. That is itself is not new but what now is emerging is the scope and some of the implications of those difficulties.

The recession and energy-saving measures have brought about a drop in demand for oil and this in turn has led to cuts in production. Demand for petroleum in the West at present is about 46.5 million barrels a day, compared with 47.8 million barrels in 1973.

Production, too, has dropped by about 15 per cent this year, as oil companies, anticipating possible future declines in price, have been drawing down their ample inventories. Production now is running at roughly only 42 million barrels a day compared with 47.5 million barrels last year.

The OPEC states, which have control of the major share of world oil markets, have taken the brunt of the production cuts since countries that are outside the cartel and are both big consumers and big producers—like Canada and the U.S.—use their domestic oil first.

Thus, the OPEC countries have been left with an excess productive capacity of about 10 million barrels a day and face the worrying prospect that many traditional consumers are well on the way to developing new sources of energy.

The more well-off OPEC countries, such as Venezuela, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, probably are not yet feeling the pinch too much, experts say. But North African producers, particularly Libya, seem to be taking a hammering.

Libyan oil, which is considered to be of high quality because of its low sulphur content, now is being produced at just over a million barrels a day compared with 3.7 million barrels several years ago.

CUTS PRICES

Libya recently cut its prices by 30 cents a barrel to $11 and Algeria, another high-quality producer, is considering chopping its prices by up to 25 cents to remain competitive.

Nigeria's high-quality crude production has plummeted to 1.5 million barrels a day from 2.4 million only seven months ago and it, too, has hinted that it may have to decrease its $11.60-a-barrel price.

Lure of Amazon River Still Mystery to Many

MANAUS, Brazil (CP) — This city sits in the jungle of the Amazon about 1,000 miles upriver from the Atlantic. It's only 1,786 miles by air from Rio de Janeiro—about 4½ hours away.

So what visitor wouldn't find time, even if too short, to have a look at the mighty Amazon, the biggest and longest river in the world, flowing through the largest river basin? Many of its tributaries are longer than some of the world's great rivers and an island in its estuary is larger than Switzerland.

The lure of the Amazon is strong—stirred by books about evil rubber millionaires; National Geographic articles of elusive Indians with poison arrows and blow guns; stories of adventurers poling dugout canoes under trailing vines with boa constrictors, jaguars, puma and occlot ready to strike; electric eels, piranhas and alligators lying in wait below, and all around in the notorious green hell of the Amazon, mosquitoes and chiggers!

So better a quick look than none at all.

Manaus is the capital of the state of Amazonas and with 250,000 people is the largest city. It has a sinister history centring on rubber tycoons who threw diamonds at opera singers and cruelly treated their own workers.

Although it is 60 years since the rubber boom collapsed and the millionaires departed, trade along the river has been busy enough to keep Manaus alive.

Some writers have implied that the city is being devoured by the jungle, but if anything, the city is pushing asphalt into the jungle and the handsome colonial stone buildings with red tile roofs, wrought iron balconies and Portuguese tiles remain.

The city became a free port in 1967 to encourage other Brasilians to go to Manaus and citizens are proud of the large, duty-free office headquarters. A few skyscrapers have gone up and the city boasts four television stations.

A luxury hotel is being built on the river in colonial style around a courtyard with such modern amenities as a casino, night club, swimming pools, tennis courts, marina, beauty parlor, shops and sauna, and including such Brasilian touches as an aviary of exotic birds and orchid gardens.

So Manaus isn't really being smothered by the jungle at all. Recently, city officials, pleased over the visit of a large group of conventioneers, presented each arrival with a lei—made of shells or fish scales and a warm letter of welcome: "After your short stay among our people, breathing with joy the exuberant and pure Amazonic oxygen, let your fellow-countrymen know about the magnificent experience of having lived in the Amazon. Don't also forget telling them we are here with our hearts and arms opened, to make them sense all the marvellicence of the Green Paradise."

On the road from the airport almond trees spread like huge parasols. Boys play soccer, teen-agers ride motorcycles, women and girls fix sidewalks with shovels and wheelbarrows, and through the heavy traffic the big bus weaves at top speed.

Despite some reports, the famous Manaus opera house, Teatro Amazonas, isn't being covered by jungle either. It has a large plaza paved in wavy mosaic, across from an imposing church which is packed for mass.

Curving staircases lead up to the three-storey colonnaded theatre which has just emerged from another refurbishing. It is resplendent with red velvet drapes and upholstered chairs, red damask walls, crystal and brass chandeliers, nimbus scenes on the ceiling and three curved balconies with gilded railings.

But the Amazon is the reason for Manaus being here, even though the city is actually above the great river on the mosquito-free River Negro, which itself is more than 1,000 miles long and in some places stretches 20 miles wide. A floating dock adjusts to the 25-foot flood rise and drop of the river.

When the blue black Negro meets the muddy brown Amazon, the two rivers flow side by side for about seven miles, their colors showing all the way.

Filled with excitement, boat passengers take pictures, point out the occasional boiling on shore and the pink porpoises in the water. Later, they relax in the cool, breezy air (not hot and humid as expected).

Stored Heat in Oceans Could Produce Power

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Temperature differences in ocean water could spin the turbines of pumping power stations to help meet North America's energy needs, a research company says.

It's a "something-for-nothing" idea, since the energy is already there: heat from the sun held in the oceans' waters.

By the year 2000, said Art Griffin of TRW Systems Inc., ocean energy could provide some six per cent of the continent's total need. And the process could also be used to make ammonia, an important component of fertilizer which is getting increasingly scarcer.

The idea is nearly a century old, but not until recently did it seem possible to extract ocean power at a cost comparable to conventional generating methods, says Griffin.

Now, the concept is being studied by three teams of researchers: the TRW-led team; one at University of Massachusetts and one at Carnegi Mellon University.

Their proposals will be considered by the Energy Research Development Administration, which is looking for alternative sources of energy such as solar, geothermal and ocean power.

Then perhaps the go-ahead will be given to build a test project.

As TRW conceives them, the power stations would be 17-story concrete cylinders, wide as a football field, floating with more than half their height underwater.

Pumps would take in surface water, which might be as warm as 80 degrees in semi-tropical areas, as well as colder water from 4,000 feet or so below the surface.

The latter, as much as 45 degrees colder than at the surface, would be pumped up through a large plastic tube like a giant drinking straw.

The hot and cold water would be used to alternately heat and cool ammonia circulated continuously through a system of pipes.

As it was heated and compressed, the ammonia, like steam, would spin turbine wheels to generate power. Then it would be cooled and condensed back into a liquid, ready for another cycle of power production.

"The fuel is free," said Griffin. "All you pay for is the equipment. That would be expensive at first; it would cost about $210 million to build a prototype station to churn out 100 megawatts.

But once in production, he said, the expense could likely be brought down to about $1,000 per megawatt, which "compares very favorably with conventional plants," he said.

One factor in placing the plants is that they must be located where the temperature difference—or vertical temperature gradient, as it is known to scientists — is at least 39 degrees.

Some places under consideration are the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean and off the southwest coast of Mexico.

"The process of making ammonia requires energy," says Griffin. "So if we use the stations to make ammonia—which can be shipped by boat to land—we would save other forms of energy that would be used in making ammonia."

The ammonia would be created in tandem with electrical production. Nitrogen from the air would be combined with hydrogen obtained through electrolysis of the sea water.

Scientists foresee little if any effect on the environment from the stations. In fact, by pumping nutrient-rich water up from the depths, the plants might improve the fishery situation in their vicinity.

TRW says there are technical problems that must be overcome before such a plant could be built and put in place. One, for instance, is finding a method of keeping the structure where it is supposed to be.

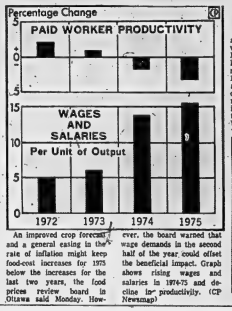
Enough chain to anchor the plant in 2,000 feet of water would weigh 52 million pounds. But TRW has another idea: the warm and cold water is expelled back into the ocean after it is used. If these water exhausts were directed in just the right way, they would act like steering rockets on spacecraft to keep the platform in place.

Man of Action

CHELMSFORD, England (CP) — Commuter Francis Dodgen thought was fined £250 and costs for jumping on the tracks and flagging down an express train with his umbrella. His lawyer said Dodgson, 34, had taken an "instinctive action" because of frustration over delays, cancellations and rail strikes.

Recycle Treads

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is studying the feasibility of equipping all federal vehicles with retreads as a way to recycle natural resources, reports the Tire Retread Information Bureau. Last year, 200 million tire casings were discarded—enough to encircle the earth four times at the Equator.



An improved crop forecast and a general easing in the rate of inflation might keep food-cost increases for 1975 below the increases for the last two years, the food prices review board in Ottawa said Monday. However, the board warned that wage demands in the second half of the year could offset the beneficial impact. Graph shows rising wages and salaries in 1974-75 and decline in productivity. (CP Newsmap)

Flower Power

LONDON (CP) — A fine for an offence almost 800 years ago was paid recently when Sir Murray Fox, Lord Mayor of London, was presented with a rose. The tradition started in 1281, when a family built an unauthorized footbridge and was ordered to pay a fine of a red rose once a year from the family garden—forever. The tradition was revived after the First World War.

Man Hunted In Crib Stabbing

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Police are looking for a man who stabbed and killed a 7½-month-old child in its crib Tuesday.

CP News Roundup

Three Die From Blows

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Robert Abel, 35, of Chatham was in critical condition in hospital early today after police found his wife and two children bludgeoned to death in bed Tuesday morning.

Police said the man, a factory worker, apparently took an overdose of sleeping pills.

The bodies of Diana Abel, 32, and their two children Dawn, 4, and John, 3, were found in the couple's frame house by police who responded to an anonymous telephone call. Police believe they died during the night.

Mr. Abel was found unconscious about five hours later at the home of a relative.

OTTAWA (CP) — George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings), who lorded it last month, was presented Tuesday in the Commons with a membership card by Health Minister Marc Lalonde, who had promised to follow up on Mr. Hees' application for old age security. Niagara regional police said Judy Irwin, 29, told them a stranger entered her north-end home about 2 p.m. under the pretext of wanting to use the telephone.

She said the man locked himself in the house with the child and attacked him with a knife while he slept in his crib. The man then fled on foot.

Insp. William Murdoch of the regional police criminal investigation bureau said Mrs. Irwin apparently ran next door and called police after the man locked himself in. She described the attacker as 25 to 30 years old, five feet nine inches tall, of medium build with dark, curly hair.

Jason Ross Irwin was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital and Mrs. Irwin was under sedation in hospital.

Insp. Murdoch said the weapon, believed to be a kitchen knife, had not been found.

Woman Goes to Jail Over English Summons

TORONTO (CP) — A Sudbury woman has spent five days in jail to protest unilingual parking tickets, Brad Germa (NDP—Sudbury) told the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Germa said Lise Peloquin, 21, chose the five-day jail sentence last Friday rather than pay the $5 fine for the ticket and court summons issued in English.

Mr. Germa told Attorney-General John Clement that Sudbury jails would be jammed if many of the 35 per cent of French-speaking residents of that city chose such actions.

Mr. Clement said that although he was not aware of the particular case, he was aware of the concern of French-speaking residents of the province.

"It is not any lethargy on the part of the ministry," he said.

"It's very difficult in some instances because of technical reasons to draft bilingual summonses and that is the reason that we haven't amplified that particular program," he said.

Miss Peloquin said in Sudbury on Tuesday that the sentencing judge offered to translate the ticket but she refused.

"I told the judge I understand English perfectly, but I demanded my rights as a French-Canadian," she said.

On Friday, the first day of Miss Peloquin's sentence, a picket line of about 100 persons outside the jail protested the sentence.

In response, city council placed a resolution on its agenda to extend its bilingual services.

Ald. Ricardo de la Riva said that as many as 15 per cent of residents speak little or no English.

"Because of this, when they have to approach the various levels of government, they feel lost," he said.

Miss Peloquin said she is glad she served the term and is confident her action will produce more government services in both official languages.

Warning Given

GENEVA (Reuter) — Canada warned the 31-country disarmament conference here Tuesday that peaceful nuclear explosions might become a cover for obtaining information of military use.

Gas Debate Suspended

OTTAWA (CP) — Speaker James Jerome suspended debate on the new 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax Tuesday after party House leaders were unable to remove a technical roadblock.

He ordered the bill withdrawn for reprinting because of opposition complaints that it differs with a ways and means motion. Under parliamentary rules, precede all tax bills. Reprinting scrapped a full debating day planned for the bill Tuesday, but government sources said the revised bill would be ready for debate today.

Allocate Supplies

Gas Export Cut Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Rapidly dwindling natural gas supplies require the government to reduce exports to U.S. markets and to restrain domestic consumption until new frontier supplies are available, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

The federal policy statement, issued with a National Energy Board report predicting widespread gas shortages as early as this winter, brought a quick response from the U.S. state department. An official said the state department considers the proposed cutbacks "a very serious matter."

Still unclear is how soon and by how much exports will be trimmed. That is to be the subject of discussions with the U.S. and with western producer provinces, Mr. Macdonald said.

The United States now takes about one trillion cubic feet a year of natural gas from Canada, about 45 per cent of total domestic production. The NEB report estimates total Canadian reserves at about 40.8 trillion cubic feet.

Mr. Macdonald also said the government wants the provinces to limit their growing natural gas demands and will introduce legislation to give the NEB the power to allocate gas supplies among the provinces.

The intention of domestic conservation measures is ill encourage wasteful use of natural gas "so as to enable our obligations to existing U.S. customers to be met to the greatest extent possible," Mr. Macdonald told the Commons.

Mr. Macdonald told the Commons U.S. buyers likely would suffer more than domestic users because of export cutbacks. He emphasized the export reduction to U.S. markets will not be uniform and will depend upon availability of alternate energy supplies.

He said that domestic conservation efforts are more likely to affect industrial users capable of switching to such other energy sources as coal. There are no plans to limit household users who rely on natural gas.

But Ottawa may ask the provinces to crack down on natural gas distribution companies negotiating contracts for new household uses, he indicated.

Asked why the government could not deal with impending gas shortages by eliminating exports to the U.S. markets, as is being done with crude oil, Mr. Macdonald said some U.S. markets are dependent on Canadian supplies. Crude oil exports to the United States are scheduled to end in the early 1980s.

Unlike crude oil, many natural gas exports are under long-term contracts approved by the NEB. Some of the contracts are for up to 20 years and they have committed about 14 trillion cubic feet of gas.

Russia Buys Canadian Grain

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian wheat board announced today the sale of two million long tons of wheat, approximately 73 million bushels, to the Soviet Union with shipments starting in the fall.

The announcement follows widespread speculation that the Soviet Union was seeking substantial purchases from Canada and the United States.

The board said the contract is mainly for No. 1 and No. 2 Canada Western red spring wheat. No dollar value was placed on the purchase but export prices Wednesday for the two grades ranged between about $4.75 and $4.90 a bushel, depending on protein content.

Oil Subsidy May Be Cut

OTTAWA (CP) — The government might cut subsidy payments for imported crude oil in Eastern Canada if companies raise petroleum prices beyond limits proposed by Prices and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday.

He was responding in the Commons to questions from Cyril Keeper (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) who asked for details on how the limits will be placed.

Mr. Macdonald said department officials and members of the federal energy supplies allocation board will monitor price increases by all oil companies.

"If increases are unwarranted, they will be expected to make good" to customers or "run the risk of getting reduced subsidy payments, he said.

A price boost of about five cents a gallon for gasoline and heating oil is expected by mid-August as a result of a $1.50 a barrel increase in a barrel in the price of domestic crude oil.

Imported crude oil, used in parts of eastern Ontario and in the five eastern provinces, sells for about $12 a barrel. The government pays oil companies a subsidy to keep the price for consumers roughly equal in all areas of the country.

Mr. Symes, asking why the increase expected in mid-1st quarter could not be delayed longer, was told that stocks on hand when the subsidized price of crude was raised July 1 are expected to run out, on average, about mid-August.

Mr. Symes said the period—45 days—is only half as long as the period suggested in similar price restrictions introduced by the Ontario government.

Mr. Macdonald told the companies operating in Ontario may have less larger stocks. But the federal government had to look at the national picture.

Boy Says Parents Kidnappers

TORONTO (CP) — The parents of a 13-year-old boy have been charged with assaulting and forcibly confining their son in an attempt to take him from his legal guardian, the Catholic Children's Aid Society, police said Wednesday.

Police said the boy was taken from a shelter about 30 miles north of Kitchener, chained and forced to make a tape recording denouncing the society and saying he wanted to go back to his natural parents.

Police said the boy was later driven to a relative's home in Woodstock where he escaped and called police who rescued him.

The boy was taken back to the society after being treated at a Toronto hospital.

Charged are Leslie Nemeth, 49, and Ella Nemeth, 53, both of Toronto.

PLO to Be 'Uncomfortable'

Jews Threaten Violent Reaction

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for Toronto's Jewish Defence League says violence may result if the federal government permits Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) delegates to attend a United Nations crime congress this September.

"We will make them (the PLO delegates) very uncomfortable if they do come," said Albert Applebaum, league chairman. "They may not make it back home depending on who specifically it is that comes."

Mr. Applebaum, a pharmacist, said the league's response to the congress would depend on the PLO representative who was.

"If (PLO Chairman Yasser) Arafat came, I wouldn't be afraid to go up and shoot him, even if it were to mean 20 years in prison," he said.

Meanwhile, Sidney Harris, national president of the Canadian Jewish Congress, says members of Toronto's Jewish community are planning "quiet" action and demonstrations if the PLO is allowed to attend the congress.

And the Canadians Against PLO Terror (CAPLOT) group says it will try to persuade the federal government to rule against PLO representation.

CAPLOT, formed last May by members of Toronto's Jewish community, said that if legal means do not overturn a ruling inviting the PLO, it will hold demonstrations "to indicate . . . that Canadians . . . will not abide the presence of those butchers upon our soil."

The federal government may decide this week if the PLO will be admitted. The PLO itself has not yet accepted the invitation now required for accreditation for the conference.

But David Sadowski, CAPLOT director, says Canada and not the UN must have the right to say who will enter Canada.

Ambulance Service Here Might Be Cut In Half

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's four-chiefe ambulance service will eventually be cut in half if provincial government recommendations are carried out, says ambulance operator Les Steele.

Mr. Steele operator of City Ambulance, said during an interview Wednesday, "the province intends cutting two men and one vehicle off Belleville's service by the end of September.

"The long range plan includes reducing the number of vehicles in two," he said.

This week the owners of City Ambulance and Lakeside Ambulance met with ministry of health officials to discuss findings of a study taken of the Belleville service in recent months over which recommends cutting back on staff and vehicles by the end of September. The province contends ambulance service here is costing $100,000 too much.

Les Steele of City Ambulance stated in a written release:

"The preliminary report states that in Belleville, ambulance service is costing $110,000 more than ambulance service in comparable areas.

"The excess cost is due primarily to the fact that more vehicles are being staffed for more hours than necessary," Mr. Steele states. "I've been telling them for approximately five years that costs could be reduced."

While Mr. Steele said he agreed with the report and the need to cut costs, LaSalle Ambulance Stu Meeks said: "I wasn't happy with what I saw." In the study, but, "they have some sound arguments in some of the things they're saying."

A final draft of the document will not be made public until each operator has submitted written comments to the province.

Both men said costs could be reduced, particularly by making the ambulance radio dispatch system more effective.

To reduce vehicles and staff and still provide service is going to require a great deal of coordination among the hospital and medical staffs and the dispatch centre, said Mr. Steele.

Apollo Joins Soyuz

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo and Soyuz spaceships linked up in space today in the first meeting of United States astronauts and Soviet Cosmonauts high above the globe.

The two ships came together 140 miles above the earth over Europe, climaxing two days of orbital pursuit during which astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton guided Apollo at the booster craft.

"We'll hug them like friendly bears," Soyuz commander Alexei Leonov said before the astronauts and cosmonauts embarked Tuesday on the first international mission of space detente.

About three hours after docking, Leonov and Stafford, the two commanders, scheduled the long-awaited exchange in space" in a connecting tunnel between the two craft.

It will be a symbolic moment for these two space veterans who have become friends during two years of training.

They'll exchange greetings and their country's flags and Leonov is to present Stafford with a United Nations flag to carry back to earth. Stafford and Slayton then move into the Soyuz for the first of four crew transfers planned in the two days of linkup.

The cosmonauts had decorated their cabin with welcome messages for their U.S. visitors. During the morning of the Apollo astronauts steered their ship through the course corrections as they gradually and smoothly moved in on the Soyuz.

When the spacemen awakened today they were more than 500 miles apart, but the Apollo rendezvous closed the gap between the U.S. spacecraft and Soyuz.

Nearly four hours before the scheduled latching, the astronauts spotted the Soyuz as a speck in the sky and established radio contact with the Soviet spacemen.

"Hello, Apollo," cosmonaut Valeri Kubasov said as the spacemen entered communications range for the first time 300 miles apart.

Kubasov spoke in English and received this reply in Russian from astronauts Thomas Stafford.

"Good morning, Valeri," said Soyuz commander, Alexei Leonov, added a "Good morning, Tom" as he got his gun a series of radio checks.

Mission control astronaut Vance Brand reported the first sighting of the Soyuz.

"It's just a speck right now," he said. "It's hard to distinguish from a star."

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Donald Slayton and Brand were guiding their craft to a rendezvous with Soyuz at 12:15 p.m. EDT 140 miles above West Germany.

The cosmonauts planned a friendly welcome Stafford and Slayton, set to visit the Soyuz this afternoon after docking.

"We'll hug them like friendly bears," Leonov said before the astronauts and cosmonauts met on this first international mission of space detente.

Leonov's "bear hug" comes about three hours after the linkup when he and the U.S. commander, Stafford, meet in a connecting tunnel between the spaceships and Stafford and Slayton then move into Soyuz.

They are to exchange their country flags and Leonov is to present Stafford with a United Nations flag to carry back to earth.

Three more crew exchanges are planned Friday, with Brand, Slayton and Valeri Kubasov the other Soviet crew member, each having at least one chance to visit the other country's ship. Stafford and Leonov also will make another trip through the connecting tunnel that day.

They will conduct joint medical testing, experiments in scientific experiments, share meals and exchange personal gifts before holding a televised news conference Friday.

This Is the Law

Margaret McLaren, of Belleville receives legal advice from Ken Clarke, director of the Queen's Belleville Legal Aid, a student run Opportunity for Youth program. The project was instituted to offer advice to people who might not be able to afford or who did not need the full services of a lawyer. The program operates out of the United Community Services building at 240 William Street.

Legal Advice Clinic Is Busy

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

What do you do if you've been charged by the police with careless driving and can't afford a lawyer, or perhaps you were found drinking a bottle of wine in a public park and need legal advice?

Bellevillians in such predicaments seem to know the answer in record number.

The Queen's Belleville Legal Aid (QBLA) clinic, a group of law students from Kingston, has already handled over 360 cases at Albert 240 William St. office, exceeding last summer's total of 297 inquiries.

"People who must plead a case involving traffic or liquor law violations have been coming to the clinic rather than best to handle their presentation," says Ken Clarke, student director of the project.

"A few students we are not entitled to argue most major cases, but still offer advice," he said." But we are allowed to represent clients in Family Court and for most traffic and liquor act violations."

"Sometimes a landlord will abuse provincial housing regulations and try to evict tenants without proper notification or reason. We've received letters from the Landlord and Tenants Act and many people don't have the resources to fight them," said Mr. Clarke, "We represent them in court.

"People can come to the clinic for advice about family law, workman's compensation, insurance transaction real estate and unemployment insurance, he said, and if we can't deal with the problem we will tell the person how to best pursue the solution."

The dramatic increase in business is partially the result of an extensive publicity campaign, said the director.

The six students operate the clinic year-round, commuting from Kingston during the school year.

"The winter schedule is part of the agreement made when we received the Opportunities for Youth Grant," said Mr. Clarke.

The students are paid low wages compared to the salaries or pay for other summer jobs they might have obtained.

"We certainly don't do it for the money," Mr. Clarke said. "We did it for the invaluable experience we get by daily application of the legal principles we have learned and for the chance to help people who might not be able to afford or might not need the full services of a lawyer."

'Mudhole' Remains

A request from a resident for improvement to part of Stanley Park adjoining his residence was turned down this week by parks and recreation authorities.

D. J. Veale, 17 Forest Hill Cresc., said the previous owner of his house had extended fill over the property onto the park area to a small creek, which has now developed into a mudhole.

He suggested it be the city could improve the section he would maintain the edging his residence since it would "certainly enhance the park area . . .

If the city wasn't agreeable to any action, Mr. Veale requested approval to carry out improvements to enhance the area himself.

However, a staff report to the parks board and recreation committee recommended said it would be undesirable to have any more fill in the area and the natural condition of the park be retained "if at all possible".

The board and committee denied Mr. Veale's request.

Datsun B-210 Hatchback

WE PUT A LITTLE "Z" SPIRIT INTO EVERY CAR WE BUILD.

Take the Datsun B210, for instance. Like all Datsuns it's got spirit you can feel. Spirit that starts with driving pleasure and smart styling and carries right on through to the low sticker price and high gas mileage.

The same engineering expertise that built the Datsun "Z" goes into every B210 we make. It's there in the snug, reclining bucket seats, and functional dash. And you can feel it in the sure-footed stopping of the power-assisted front disc brakes, and the smooth performance of the B210's synchromesh four-on-the floor or optional 3-speed automatic.

But best of all, the B210 has the Datsun spirit of economy, the typically high gas mileage of all Datsuns. In fact, no other car in Canada gets better gas mileage than a B210. It's proved in U.S. EPA tests, and you can prove it for yourself on the open road.

So feel the Datsun Spirit. Test-drive a B210 at your Datsun dealers' today.

THE DATSUN SPIRIT... FEEL IT.

Trenton Police Keep Watch On Vandal-prone Areas

TRENTON — Trenton police are adopting a "wait and see" attitude and are making no predictions on the affect a $200 cash reward will have on the rash of vandalism in Trenton.

Police Chief David Saunders said it was too early to say what if any affect the reward will have.

He was asked Wednesday to comment on the effectiveness of a policy set Monday by insurance agent Doug Whitley. Mr. Whitley will in future establish a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of vandals in Trenton. Monday, he set a $100 reward.

The pot was sweetened Tuesday by the addition of another $100 by Canadian Tire Corp. franchise holder Bill Adams.

Chief Saunders said the reward is helpful in that it focuses public attention on a problem he said has been increasing across Ontario.

Trenton vandalism statistics were unavailable.

Whether the reward will draw public involvement is yet unknown. He said such tactics have been used in the past, but are, all the same, unpredictable.

As an example, he cited the $100 reward established by Trenton Cold Storage Ltd. several years ago. Company owners hoped to end the theft of flags they fly on the roof of the plant. No information was received and the reward went unclaimed.

Chief Saunders said his department has been "keeping their eyes open" for vandals, cruisers now in the midst of patrols will be mounted to combat the increase in damages.

Revelation of department intentions, said the chief, would be counterproductive and wouldn't indeed "good sense". His officers now keep a more careful eye on areas in Trenton that are labelled "special attention areas".

He would not reveal what those areas are.

A police spokesman said the incidence of vandalism is higher in the north end of Trenton and around schools. Developers, "It's not any worse there than anywhere else," he said.

An estimate by a downtown businessman that vandals caused $300 damage daily, he termed exaggerated, saying damage would run to about $300 for windows smashed on weekends, when the majority of cases are reported.

No one area in Trenton remains a consistent target for vandals, he said. "You get this everywhere." Windows are the favored targets, followed by automobiles.

"I can't see anyone but kids doing it," he said. Depending on the place and the time of day, the age of vandals range: from seven to 18 or 19.

Chatson New Deputy Chief

TRENTON — Sgt. Herbert Chatson, a 19-year veteran with the Trenton police force will assume new duties as the deputy-chief of police Aug. 1 in a two-man shuffle of department personnel.

His promotion was announced along with that of Constable George French by the Trenton police commission Wednesday. Constable French has been promoted to the rank of sergeant.

Sgt. Chatson moves into his new post to replace Deputy Chief R.J. Rutherford who is retiring after a 30-year stint with the department.

A full sergeant since 1972, Sgt. Chatson had served as a patrol sergeant and a constable after joining the detection force in 1956.

Constable French signed on a year earlier. Now the department's court officer, he previously worked in the detective arm of the force.

Spacecraft Visible Over Quinte Skies

If expected hazy conditions today and Friday across the country weren't, Belleville will have the opportunity for a brief glimpse of history in the making.

Travelling on American Space Defence Centre spokesmen in Colorado Springs, Col. the U.S. and Soviet space capsules now in the midst of the world's first international space mission will be seen in Belleville skies.

Three opportunities remain to see what a U.S. Air Force spokesman said Wednesday will be a "bright star" traversing across the sky about 140 miles above the earth.

However, says the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton, hazy skies will likey precude good viewing of flyovers.

Tonight, the capsules may be seen at 9:13 p.m. crossing the sky from the north to the southeast at an elevation of 40 degrees above the horizon. The forecaster said this flyover and the one Friday offer the best opportunities to see the "bright star".

Later tonight, the capsules cross Belleville skies at 10:43 p.m. from the northwest to the south at a 12 degree elevation.

Friday, the opportunity will again arise 33 degrees above the horizon at 9:38 p.m. Capsules will be travelling from the north to the southeast.

Early today, the capsules made the first of the four flyovers.

Two Hurt In Crash

TRENTON — Two Trenton men were treated for minor injuries after a two-car collision on Dundas St. West that caused $4,000 damage Wednesday.

Orval Cooney, 63, of 192 Sidney St. required stitches to close a three-inch gash on the head after his vehicle was in collision with a vehicle driven by Christos Stalkos, 25, of 64 Princess St.

Police say the impact of the collision at the Dundas and Queen Sts. intersection forced Mr. Cooney vehicle over a curb and onto the lawn of a Dundas St. building.

Trenton police say Stalkos was taken to hospital complaining of a sore neck after the collision.

One Price Covers All Events at Picton Fair

PICTON — Directors of the Prince Edward Agricultural Society this week decided one admission fee to cover all events on Picton fairground will be charged during the county fair on September 5, 6 and 7.

This year's admission charge will be $2.00 for adults and $1.00 for students. Public school children under 12 will be admitted free. Included are parking facilities and admission to the grandstand at all times including Saturday night. Sept. 6, when The Family Brown will provide the feature entertainment.

"We feel that these prices will be especially welcomed by those with larger families as only adults will be charged," said society president Creighton Carr.

"With rising costs in every department it is not easy to carry on a successful fair, but we desire that everyone possible enjoy this educational and entertaining event," he added.

A new attraction at this year's fall fair will be a horse drawing match to be held Friday night. Sept. 5 is the first time this event will to be held in Picton.

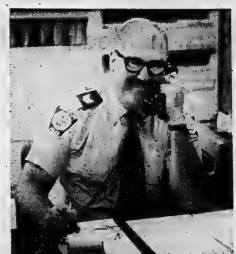
In addition to entertainment by the Family Brown several Prince Edward County musical groups have been hired to play on the grounds throughout the fair.

Copies of the 1975 prize list have been distributed by secretary-treasurer Ken Cornock and are being mailed to regular exhibitors. Requests from others who do not ordinarily receive these prize lists also will be filled.

Raccoon Shot

BLOOMFIELD — A raccoon believed to be rabid was shot by police Wednesday night on the main street of Bloomfield.

A spokesman for the Picton detachement of the Ontario Provincial Police said the animal was shot following a telephone call from a Bloomfield resident who said it was behaving strangely. The raccoon was found dormant in the middle of the village's main street.



Gets the Nod

Desk duty at the phoners in the Trenton police station will be over for Sgt. Herbert Chatson come August 1. After a 19-year stint with the force, he has been promoted to the rank of deputy-chief by the Trenton police commission. Court officer Constable George French will be doing desk duty after Aug. 1 as sergeant.

Divers Searching Lake For Missing Canoeists

MARMORA — Two Ontario Provincial Police divers entered the waters of Crowe Lake at Booster Park along two miles west of here at 7 a.m. today to search for an unknown number of bodies following a canoeing accident late Wednesday.

Provincial Police at Madoc said Constables Walter Brown and Cpl. John Mitchell were summoned to the park after witnesses reported hearing cries for help and saw a man floundering in the water at about 6 p.m.

Officers found a drifting fibreglas canoe which contained two children's life jackets and two paddles in the area.

Police say at least one person is believed drowned.

However, searchers were unable to discover any report of missing persons after interviewing visitors and campers in the park area located at the southwest corner of the lake.

Police said the water in the area is between 30-80 feet deep. The divers are Constable Garnet Brown of the Belleville detachment and an unidentified officer from an eastern Ontario detachment.

Police are appealing to anyone with a missing boat or someone who had planned to go canoeing at the lake Wednesday to come forward with information.

The witnesses included Eldon and Jenny Killian and their teenage daughter who were eating supper outside at their cottage to the west of the park at the south shore.

They said they went to the site of the mishap in the middle of the lake near a rocky shoal but by the time they arrived, the man they had heard clinging to the canoe had disappeared.

Two visitors, Keith Sargisson and his son Stephen, and Gordon Smith, son of the park attendant, also went to the scene and dove several times but were unsuccessful.

Many of the events planned can be entered by any car owner in Prince Edward.

"I doesn't have to be a souped up machine to enter," says Bruce Hyde of Bloomfield, a member of the club.

District at a Glance

Special Sale Planned

PICTON — A sidewalk sale has been planned by Picton merchants for July 17, 18 and 19. This three-day festival of bargains includes specials on travel agency cruises, clothing, service station checks, records and novelty items.

Vandals Active in County

PICTON — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police this week is investigating several small thefts and minor incidents of vandalism in Prince Edward County.

At Outlet Provincial Park, Tuesday, two campers reported the theft of coolers filled with beer. The value of the coolers and contents was estimated at $45.

Two mail boxes were reported missing Tuesday on East Lake Road and at Cherry Valley several tombstones were reported tapped at a cemetery.

Fire Danger Worst In Years Says Official

TWEED — The forest fire danger in central and north Hastings is "the worst I've seen it in years," Harold Canteloa, district manager for the ministry of natural resources reports.

"So far this year, since the fire season began April 15 we've had a total of 87 fires in the district," Mr. Canteloa said. This compares with a total of 58 fires for the entire April-to-October fire season last year.

Currently, Mr. Canteloa said, there are seven fires burning. Six are under control.

The one fire not yet controlled is two or three miles east of Northbrook, but the community is in no danger.

"The prevailing west winds are keeping it away from the village and we hope to have it under control today," the district manager said.

Mr. Canteloa blames campers, fishermen, blueberry pickers for starting most of the fires. Danger level in the bush is described as "extreme" and "that's as bad as it can get," Mr. Canteloa said.

"Until we get a good rain, all we can do is urge everyone who goes into the bush to be extremely careful with fire and smoking materials," the district manager concluded.

'Red Tories' and Blood-brothers in Media Buck 'Small-c' Conservative Trend

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — The instinct to self-destruct is surfacing again among the Conservatives.

It has made them compulsive losers in all but three of the last 13 federal elections.

And it has kept them in opposition while the power-addicted Liberals have ruled the land for 34 of the last 40 years.

All during that time the Liberals rode the crest of a slow but certain leftward rolling wave that now may have broken on the beach of the welfare state.

For more recently — in only the last year or so — but gathering force all the time — has come the reaction.

The leftward drive has lost way and even could have reversed.

There is opposition to the abuse of unemployment insurance.

There is revolt against the permissiveness.

There is increasing outrage against the blatant failure of justice and the resulting higher violent crime rate.

There is protest against uncontrolled and inflationary government spending.

There is anger over the mockery of immigration laws by illegal "visitors" who flooded the country by the hundreds of thousands.

There is more, much more, of the same public inclination to slow down and perhaps change direction.

It all suggests a growing sense of small-c conservatism.

And oddly, if not entirely unexpectedly, it is alarming the left wing of the Conservative opposition, these "Red Tories," as they call themselves, who so often stand for — and are frequently are in spiritual alliance with — new Democrats.

Instead of sensibly going with the trend to the right, the "Red Tories" are bucking it.

And the focal point of their resistance is the "Chateau Cabinet," the large and growing group of small-c conservatives who sense the change in direction of the prevailing political winds.

Oddly, the "Red Tories" have been the darlings of what seems to have been a majority of the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

They and their media supporters ridicule the small-c conservatives as "red-necks, cowboys, mavericks and right-wing extremists."

Well, the "Chateau Cabinet" has a manifesto, a platform, a statement of policy which hopes the party in future may adopt and perhaps become winners instead of the habitual losers Progressive Conservatives have been.

And what is an "extreme" in the 30-point policy statement of the "cowboys" that so upsets the "Red Tories"?

Two principles apparently.

One of them, on immigration, reads:

"The flow of immigrants to Canada must be geared to Canada's social, economic and cultural interests.

"It should not be followed by the exodus of other countries with population problems or unwanted political and racial interests in Canada."

Now what is wrong with that? The "Red Tories" storm that it is "restrictive," and serving the selfish national interest of Canadians, denies Canada's humanitarian obligations to the Third World.

But this kind of carefully controlled immigration which the "Red Tories" howl is so objectionable, happens to be pretty well what the federal government proposes.

On the basis of "selective immigration," the "Chateau Cabinet" spells out the Canadian cultural objective in these terms:

"A strong and united country created by the assimilation of all newcomers and of unassimilated back-'s of long-time residents."

To do this, scream the "Red Tories" and their media supporters would be to make everyone French or English.

Well, isn't that what has been happening for more than the long years with successive waves of immigration?

The Ukrainians of the Prairies are now English-speaking Canadians. The Brits on the West Coast ditto. So, too, the Italians, Germans, Poles, Finns, Hungarians all over the country.

To follow the bearings of the Parliamentary Committees all across the land is to know that the only supporters the "Red Tories" have are the left-wing open doors, have been the militants of the Third World, the blacks and the Asians.

Recreation Land Study

An "open space" study for the Quinte planning area paints a pretty pessimistic picture of recreational facilities available to district residents.

The study concludes that only 480 acres of recreation-oriented land is available to the 67,000 people in the region, which is comprised of Belleville, Trenton, Frankford, and the townships of Sidney and Thurlow.

It also predicts the problem will be magnified by a forecast doubling of the district populace by the year 2,000.

Specifically mentioned in the report was a lack of boating and camping facilities.

Fortunately, there are a number of silver linings with which one may edge this cloud.

Purchase of the 340-acre Ontario property west of Belleville will undoubtedly see camping and other recreational facilities provided on a big scale.

Secondly, the Upper Bay of Quinte waterfront study has already passed on some recommendations for municipal action, including the establishment of a conservation area for Point Anne and a yachting basin east of Belleville harbor.

And finally, while they are not included in the 480 recreational acres available to Quinte communities, it is pretty difficult to ignore the use made by area residents of provincial parks such as The Outlet, The Sandbanks, North Beach, Presqu'ile, and Ben Richo, not to mention Moira River Conservation area projects such as Vanderwater Park, all of which provide thousands of campsites and hours of swimming pleasure.

The Quinte area's outdoor outlook is very optimistic.

Joint Space Study

A rendezvous in space — and between vehicles of the United States and the Soviet Union.

It is scheduled for today but aside from the television build-up, there is not all that much excitement.

Human nature being what it is, it is difficult to see it being any different.

There was that marvellous state of anticipation at the time of the first landing on the moon, which was in no way diminished, but rather was heightened, when touch-down came. History, of the most tangible kind, had been made, and in the witnessing of it, there was a human response of the most exquisite sensitivity.

But it's over now . . . as President Ford said of the Vietnam war.

And an American writer with the picturesque name of Hortense Calisher, in an autobiographical work called 'Herself,' has this to say in an oblique reference to space travel: "Like any discoveries, once implemented or open to all, they are regarded as commonplace. Travel to the moon may be specific for a time, the moon being what it has been to humans, but it can scarcely remain mysterious."

The Americans have already carried out their own docking procedures, so that this symbolic one with the Soviet vehicle will scarcely create much of a stir, assuming all goes well of course.

The technique is all so familiar, but one thing that can be said, it is a milestone along the road to detente — a better understanding between east and west.

Best of All Worlds

Some waggish — or cynical — philosopher has said something to the effect that the chains of matrimony are so heavy that it takes two, and sometimes more to carry them.

John Gardner of Los Angeles may have the answer to mankind's urging for variety, without doing anything to make an anxious wife lose any sleep. A teacher, and married, Gardner was pictured on a sidewalk in L.A. recently with a young lady on his lap.

The enterprising fellow has a chair and a table and a sign that invites women to sit on his lap and sign a register book. At the time the picture was taken, a young lady called Adrienne Tukker, on his knee, was the 1,511st woman to oblige.

The Californian's goal is to get into the Guinness Book of World Records. Give him full marks too for enterprise and showing the rest of us how to have fun, as he put it, and still present a square and moral image.

Principle of Women As Priests

Ottawa Journal

The hierarchy of the Anglican Church in Great Britain voted last week to approve the principle of ordaining women to the priesthood. But they judged that the time was not yet right for implementation of that principle in the United Kingdom.

With reference to implementation, this judgement was in contrast with the action by the Anglican Church in Canada, taken last month in Quebec, to begin admitting women to ordination. Canada, however, is with the Anglican communions in Burma, the Indian Ocean and New Zealand, has led the way for these Christian churches which rely heavily on sacramental systems. It will not be long before Canterbury will be ordaining women to the priesthood; then Rome and possibly after a much longer delay — the Eastern churches in communion with Rome and the Greek and Russian Orthodox churches. This will come about in time despite their present adherence to tradition.

Christian theology, in its present climate of opinion, is not likely to maintain for long the exclusion of women from the priesthood is of divine institute. The reason was a custom which slipped in almost automatically because of the partition of roles in the ancient societies to which Christ's message was first preached.

This change in church discipline is something obvious and something that should be done. But the institutional churches, like many other institutions of Western society, are starved in their need for more radical reformation. Introducing women into traditional roles will give the churches a sense of accomplishment without accomplishing much real change. It will, of course, enlist feminine understanding and insight in a new way, but both men and women receiving the sacrament of confession will be left with the challenging task of making the sacraments — which theology calls sacred signs — convey their meaning to a world drifting farther and farther away from comprehension of them.

ECC Urges Free Trade but Would Others Reciprocate?

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The idea is noble, but is this really the right time for Canada to abolish tariffs?

Total free trade is recommended by the Economic Council of Canada (ECC) in its recently published outline of a new trade strategy for this country.

The ECC undertook its study of Canadian commercial policy in January, 1972. Our exports, especially of raw materials, were in demand then, with the world economy booming.

The boom ended in late 1973, when the Yom Kippur war led the Arab side to impose a crippling five-fold increase in the world price of crude oil.

Since then, the world economy has been in a slump, and our foreign trade has suffered badly.

In the first three months of 1975, our merchandise trade—adjusted to discount seasonal factors—fell to a record deficit of $377-million.

Latest figures show our exports of copper, ores and concentrates running 45 per cent below 1974's level, and pulpwood and softwood exports down 35 per cent.

Despite the fact that we are importing much more than we export, the Economic Council believes that free trade would foster "a vital, dynamic and growing economy," and would mean an increase of five per cent or more in the country's production.

The Council thinks we should stimulate our trade, even if our major trading partners — such as the United States, the European Economic Community and Japan refuse to reciprocate by admitting Canadian products duty-free.

The Council's proposals are in keeping with our government's long-advocated foreign policy in such other areas as capital movements and immigration.

If other countries would follow Canada's lead, the world's economy might recover more quickly. After all, the spread of protectionism in the country to country in the late 1930s was an obvious cause of the Great Depression of the 1930s.

But our trading partners tend to ignore our enlightened example. Japan retained protectionist restrictions on capital and merchandise imports long after they were needed.

The United States complains loudly about automotive free trade whenever it works in Canada's favor, and is always complaining about our exports of hockey players' services.

Eliminating tariffs, as the ECC suggests, would not necessarily achieve the benefits it foresees.

"Customs tariffs are far less important today than the restrictions imposed by quotas, local-product purchasing and a host of other non-tariff barriers," contends Hugh Stevens, a vice-president of the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

The removal of customs tariffs without the dismantling of non-tariff barriers would place Canadian manufacturing at an unfair disadvantage.

While the debate goes on at a national level, it is the individual Canadian who will be ultimately affected.

Our big trade deficit has pushed the value of the Canadian dollar down from nearly $1.04 (U.S.) in May, 1974, to about 97 cents now.

U.S. Navy's Encounters With Soviet Submarines And Security Issues

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The world's largest fleet, the United States Navy, is in the news because it wants to expand in a time of public demand for military restraint and for its espionage activities in a time when these are being exposed.

On occasion, you may remember that President Ford who is very much in favor of an expanded navy, made his statement that the Vietnam era was closed while he was commissioning the world's largest nuclear powered aircraft carrier.

Since then, the president has become involved in a dispute between the navy and Congress over his support for the construction of a multi-million dollar heavy cruiser with nuclear power.

It's not that all opposing members of Congress do not want this kind of ship nor fleet expansion. But they say the country cannot afford the 15 new ships the navy wants, if each of them is going to cost as much as the proposed nuclear cruiser.

Then there are the members of Congress who are categorically opposed to any expansion of the navy in this post-Vietnam era.

An argument from the navy which probably has impressed the president, is that the Soviet navy, growing in numbers of ships and sophistication of their weaponry, will not go away, and that it will be a case of strikers after the American decrest in fleetstrength.

A group of returning Congressmen, part of the presidential party of the East African country of Somalia, saw the new Soviet naval base which has established in that country.

This strip has reminded security-conscious politicians in the U.S. of the purported expansion of Soviet manpower around the globe.

The second lesson has been wide press revelations of the navy's ultra-secret project Holystone during which U.S. nuclear-powered and weaponed submarines slipped inside Soviet territorial waters in the Barents and White seas to make close-up sonar studies of Soviet nuclear submarine movements.

What the U.S. submarines were seeking are called "audio signatures," that is the unique sound or sonar set of different classes of Soviet submarines and within those classes of individual subs.

In these Russian submarines would move around the world, like Americans expect, a U.S. nuclear submarine could pull the particular sound of a computer tape recording of the type of Soviet sub in the vicinity.

The secrecy of Operation Holystone was broken in part by revelations of the crew of U.S.S Gato, a nuclear submarine which actually rammed a Soviet sub inside Russian territorial waters in late 1969.

Before Operation Holystone was supposed to have been at its height in the late 60s and early 70s, the San Diego Evening Tribune last week published a photo of the dented bow of the U.S. nuclear sub Pintado after it had collided in mid-ocean with a Soviet nuclear sub in May, 1970.

This accident reportedly took place in Soviet waters off Petropavlovsk, the major Far East Soviet naval base of the Soviet navy.

All senior naval spokesmen refused to confirm any of the reports currently being published in the American press, maintaining the strictest security which each submarine crew of nuclear subs were supposed to operate under.

Last week, the fear of what could be done with immense submarine power was underscored from the sub collisions. A senior navy man told the Gato he dictated how close that ship came to firing its fulcrum torpedo missile. That's a terrifying nuclear weapon capable of destroying an entire Soviet submarine as far off as 30 miles away.

We are never really very far from the fail-safe syndrome.

President Bill Davis is not one to miss an opportunity. His "freeze" on the price of gasoline is case in point.

Mr. Davis wants badly to secure over the 77 Conf. Cop' ready for the upcoming election. By placing a 90-day freeze on the price of gasoline he appeals to the Quinte voter which, at the same time takes a swing at the federal government.

The freeze is a meaningless affects most people it is obviously a mere publicity stunt to show that the Premier wants to cash in on.

The history of 90-day freezes in other countries should be an indicator for this province — they last the 90 days and no more.

As the real decision-makers — the multinational corporations, have indicated, they are very upset, they will loose a lot of money. Now, it's also true for the ordinary man or woman to spend more, Mr. Good Guy' may do that sort of thing to the multinationals' bank statements of several of the multinational oil companies have told Mr. Davis that after the 90 days they will recoup their losses at the expense of the Ontario consumer.

But then Mr. Davis will not have to face the voters, they will have been sufficient to have removed the re-elected Tory.

Hastings Highlights

Change Authorized

MARMORA — Clerk-treasurer William Shannon has been authorized by Marmora Village council to meet with planning director Niall Carney to go over Marmora's restricted area bylaw and bring it in line with the Hastings County official plan.

Property Solutions Sought

MARMORA — Coun. David McLelland, chairman of property, has recommended the steps at the town hall here be given a coat of paint. Council also accepted his recommendation that a letter be sent to Vera King, a resident of the memorial building, ordering him to see that bicycles are kept out of the hallway. Mr. McLellan said the bicycles were a hazard for senior citizens entering and leaving their clubroom.

Park Plans Discussed

MARMORA — Council Gordon Bennett has suggested to Marmora Village council that a meeting of the municipal park committee be held to discuss what can be done to implement the plans for a new park, now that Clairton Construction Co. has finished dumping fill of the site. Reeve Jack Reynolds pointed out council should spend at least $4,500 this year on the park in order to qualify for a grant of equal amount.

Taxes Rolling In

MARMORA — The first instalment of 1975 taxes is coming in well, Clerk-treasurer William Shannon reported recently to Marmora Village council, adding that approximately $160,000 has been collected. A number of payments on back taxes have also been paid.

Cleanup Messy

MARMORA — Project engineer Bob Mason is not satisfied with clean-up operations by Clairton Construction Co. Deputy-reeve Grant Airhart informed Marmora Village Council. The company was scheduled to pull out of Marmora Monday, Mr. Airhart reported. He said he and Mr. Mason made a tour of the village before council meeting to make a list of the items which need to be done before the company leaves.

Grant for Arena Repairs Coming Soon Says Rollins

MARMORA — A provincial grant of $8,500 towards the cost of renovating the Marmora Arena should be received within six weeks, Hastings MPP Clarke Rollins has advised the Marmora Village Council.

A second application for $13,000 will have to wait until the actual expenditures take place and the bills are submitted to recover the monies, Mr. Rollins added.

A bill from Decicall Pal Associates for $771.45 sparked a discussion at Council meeting Monday on how best to handle the financial end of the renovation with the three municipalities of Marmora village, Deloro village and Marmora and Lake Townships involved.

It was suggested by Reeve Jack Reynolds the other two municipalities should be asked to make interim payments so that Marmora Village will not have to borrow money and pay interest charges in order to pay the bills as they come in.

Referring to $4,000 which the Marmora Arena reconstruction committee has in the bank and which they have so far refused to turn over to the village for the arena's renovation, Clerk-treasurer William Shannon said he had consulted the village's auditor and had been advised it was up to council to order the committee to turn the funds over and if they refuse, to get legal advice.

Marmora Swimmers Plan Raffle for Meet Funds

MARMORA — Linda Lee Leonard, swimming director at Legion Park here believes in getting her students involved in fund-raising to pay for the out-of-town activities they will be participating in this summer.

Miss Leonard hopes to repeat last year's program of three meets and a trip to the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, and estimates it will cost $400 for buses. She has come up with some ideas which she hopes will raise enough money for their expenses.

The first swim meet will be held in Campbellford Tuesday as the staff and students are working hard to be ready for the competition.

On July 25, a swim-a-thon will be staged at Legion Park beginning at 1:30 p.m. It is hoped parents and friends will be willing to back their favorite swimmers with generous pledges.

Also starting the week of July 25, the students will be asked to do groceries and then sell tickets on it. Out of the first week's proceeds, another basket of groceries will be assembled and tickets sold on it, repeating it as often as necessary.

On July 30, a team of experts from Toronto will conduct a clinic for Marmora swimmers, commencing at 10 a.m. They will demonstrate proper techniques and advise the swimmers on synchronized swimming, water polo and competitive swimming.

Miss Leonard trained for five years under Fanny Forbes, well-known coach of the Peterborough Ornamental Swimmers, so she is fully qualified and anxious to develop a strong Marmora team.

Two bake sales are scheduled for July 26 and Aug. 9 at the Marmora IGA starting at 9 a.m. Mothers especially are asked to cooperate to make these two projects successful.

A Belleville drama club has agreed to present their program of skits demonstrating water safety rules on Aug. 13 at the Park. This will get underway at 1:30 p.m. and should both entertain and teach the children safety rules.

Falconbridge Methods Criticized by Authors

By JOSEPH DUPUIS
CP Business Editor

John Deverell and his Toronto research group have produced a case study of the mining empire that enchickens multinational corporations lack human ideals and must be dismantled.

Deverell, an economist and journalist, is a prominent figure with the Latin American Working Group which describes itself as researchers concerned about multinationals and Canada's foreign policy.

Deverell, with three associates of the Group, Bob Cerby, Louise Casselman and Ted Draimin, have written a compact, 134-page book titled Falconbridge.

"The title, of course, refers to Falconbridge Nickel Mines Ltd., the world's second-largest nickel producer, a fast-climbing rival of International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco), the leader.

Both are based in Sudbury, Ont., where lies the world's major source of sulphide nickel ore, and both are multinationals, with world-wide interests.

Deverell's team make the point that Sudbury's potential as a future source of supply is limited. With fast rising world Falconbridge and Inco are spending millions in search of new sources, mainly in less-developed countries.

The book says Falconbridge has achieved No. 2 position in the industry because of its plunge into South Africa and the Caribbean, particularly the Dominican Republic, where it has invested $186 million.

Regina Policeman Outdoes Interpol

REGINA (CP) — Constable Don Coolhard of the Regina police department probably has as many international police contacts as Interpol.

But instead of tracking down international criminals, he goes after police shoulder - patches, rank insignia, metal badges and hats.

He has collected 2,000 items from places from Alabama to Zambia, including a West Berlin ceremonial dress helmet plate, a cap badge from Thailand and a police security badge from the Mustang Bridge Ranch in Nevada, an area set aside for legalized prostitution. His contacts include the director of the Israeli police, the chief of the Hong Kong police and a Danish inspector attached to the civilian police contingent on Cyprus. All are members of the British, Canadian or American Police Insignia Collectors' Association.

The constable got started a little more than a year ago by sending 2,000 form letters to police chiefs all over the world. Some forces refuse to send patches, others charge 50 cents and some will send a package containing up to 20 patches.

Two boxes of duplicate patches enable him to trade with other collectors for patches he lacks.

Prince Enjoys Project Neptune

OTTAWA (CP) — Sixteen local high school boys have launched a science project that Prince Charles considers "just wizard."

It's an underwater classroom, dubbed Project Neptune, which was placed about 12 feet below the surface of Henry Lake in the nearby Gatineau Hills late in May.

The Prince of Wales, a diver himself, helped launch the planned launching when he was in Ottawa last April and invited the Ashbury College students involved in Government House to discuss the project and offer encouragement.

"The prince said he'd like to go down with us some time and we should keep in touch," student Keith MacDonald said.

When Project Neptune, believed the first underwater habitat built by high school students, was launched Charles sent them a congratulatory telegram. "Good luck to all the human guinea pigs," he wired. All the boys are experienced divers.

He did not have to worry.

Underwater habitats are relatively new and limited mainly to experts. However, Ashbury College's biology teacher Fred Bellware is confident Project Neptune can be used as a mini-classroom next fall.

The habitat, brainchild of 18-year-old Ian Scarth, is actually a 12-foot-long boiler donated by a local construction company. E. B. Eddy Co. chipped in with five mill stones, each weighing about four tons, to anchor Project Neptune.

Three-quarter-inch cables link the six-foot-six-inch-diameter boiler, now carpeted from floor to ceiling, to the mill stones.

At present, students can spend only a half hour in the classroom before the air gets stale. Mr. Bellware said he hopes to install a $1,500 air compressor soon, which will allow them to stay down for hours at a time.

Most of a $4,000 educational grant from the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show has been spent getting the materials out to the lake and Mr. Bellware has been told the project must be self-sustaining.

Lopped Off Locks Less of a Load

The new look — "look ma, no hair!" — happened last week, after a good deal of contemplation and debate.

Any woman who has ever had long hair cut short will understand immediately what the process involves — an oddly intense examination of exactly who you think you are. Suddenly you find that your appearance and your personality are much more connected than you had thought.

There are so many things to take into consideration, things you thought you had long ago settled. Like, whether femininity is associated with having long irises. Or, whether there's more individuality in having long hair that can be done in many ways.

But then, you think about finding strands of hair in salads and sink drains, under beds and on shoulders of sweaters. You think about how long it takes to wash and dry it, and what fantastic amounts of shampoo you go through. It's hot, and heavy, and a constant hassle.

You find yourself wondering if people who say you have lovely hair have started to think of you as a hairy object, instead of a person.

And the final straw is the nag in the office who derides you when you wear pigtails, and has harped for months that you'd look better with "normal" hair.

So you make an appointment at the same beauty salon you frequented in your short days, and gird yourself for an encounter with the shears. You've decided to simplify your life at last — and as a side benefit, you'll find out whether you're the same person you were before your hair grew.

Your hair stylist, who doesn't look like Warren Beatty but is much nicer, checks twice for an affirmation that yes, you really do want it all off, before he takes your mane in hand and starts to cut.

Is there a more heart-sinking sound than scissors slicing through wet hair?

At first you're buoyed up by his assurance that between May and September at least ten girls a week get the same treatment . . . and then you feel downcast that what seemed a earth-shaking is really so ordinary.

And then it's done, and your neck must be six inches longer, your head feels so high and light. You think you like it, but the person in the mirror seems a stranger. You feel a bewildering variety of emotions.

Back in the office, you encounter the same conflicting reactions. There are stares of amazement, some admiring and some hostile. It strikes you that people are surprisingly free to comment about your hair.

There are expressions of delight and encouragement, especially from other short-haired women. Some astute observers offer that you look "much younger now", as if you had been decrepid, but they're balanced by one splendidly sensitive soul who turns away in disgust, without a word.

One fellow comes to your desk and says, "My daughter got her hair cut like yours. SHE looks nice." Another stands there, muttering, "It's a shame, it's a crime, it's a g.d. waste." And another, every time he sees you, asks, "But why?"

Yet, generally people are pleasant, and you feel not too badly after all. Instead of being Rapunzel, you're a Pixie. It's a whole new image, and it's fun.

But the person you most want to hear from is the one who had nagged you to cut. And, you mean to yourself, you should have known, you just should have known the response would be what it is . . .

"Oh no! Where are the gorgeous pigtails?"

Staying at Home Fun for the Family

By RON HUSSEN
Staff Reporter

Family members do not have to travel far from their home to enjoy themselves during the summer. Many hours of pleasure, relaxation and exercise can be yours not only at the beach or the tennis courts but also in the backyard.

For the outdoors, games are as various as there are families to play them. There are the familiar games like baseball, football, badminton and croquet. But there are games for the young and not so young can be played with the same result — enjoyment.

One outdoor game needs only a strong clothesline, a ring made from 18 inches of cord, and two people.

It is called Home Deck Tennis.

The object of the game is to toss the ring over the clothesline, where it must be caught by the opponent in one hand and returned with the same hand. When one side misses the ring, the other side gets a point.

A variety of games can be played with a basketball.

Games such as Follow The Toss and Keep It Up, all have simple rules which can keep a child busy during long afternoons.

In the game Follow The Toss, a leader is chosen and the other players form a semi-circle around him or her. With many different styles of tosses, the leader throws the ball to each of the players in turn. The ball must be returned in the same manner to the leader as the leader threw the ball. Once the leader has tossed the ball to each in the line, he goes to the end of the line and the first player becomes the new leader.

Equipment for these games can be almost anything, probably already around the house. If not, they can be easily obtained from any variety store quite inexpensively.

Keep It Up is a variation of the game Volleyball.

Two teams facing parallel to each other volley the ball back and forth (in a sig-sag pattern) and the teams which fails to return the volley loses a point to the other team.

Most games are a variation of others more familiar games as volleyball or tennis.

An example of this type of variation can be used with baseball equipment.

One of these games is called Bat Ball, specifically made for two players.

The first player bats a large (preferably the inflatable) ball and tries to run from home base to another base directly ahead of homebase. The other player must get the ball and hit the first player with the ball from the waist down. Each person has three outs.

These are just a few of the many games that can be played in any open space, and with little equipment.

Listed in the Corby Public Library are an extensive array of books which can give more ideas on how to enjoy the backyard.

Lynn Knox enjoys the backyard game of croquet.

Badminton, Croquet Traditional Games

Families who wish to enjoy themselves can plan their fun in and around the backyard.

Lawn games such as croquet, and like court game badminton can be easily adapted for the backyard. Badminton, although not a backyard sport, can be enjoyed by the entire family.

For the family, a badminton set for four people starts around $4 but a better quality set might be more serviceable. Badminton sets for four people usually range up to $35.

An old Hartford game, which has been adapted for the backyard is croquet.

Ranging in price from $7 to about $25, a croquet set can be played by two to six players.

From the family barbecue to the family badminton match, the backyard can be used for a variety of recreational enjoyment.

Hair Not Changed

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Grace Scott who retired after 39 years as a hair dresser says styles haven't changed as much over the years as the prices have. She recalled when a shampoo cost 25 cents and a permanent was $2.50 when she started in 1936. Miss Scott is retiring to get married for the first time.

Finishes Wash

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Lillian Osgood, 65, has done more laundry in her life than 10 women, and said she does not regret a minute of it. Retired this June after 50 years in the housekeeping, laundry and linen departments of Kingston General Hospital, she started work at age 15 in 1925.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Elliott

Elliott — Lebow

Wesleyan Methodist Church was the scene of the June 21 wedding of Helen Ruth Lebow, daughter of Lorale and Alice Lebow of RR2, Frankford, and Stephen David Elliott, son of Lorne and Nora Elliott, of RR1, Corbyville.

Rev. Fred Irish performed the ceremony. The groom's cousin Janis Green of Barrie was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown featuring a full sheer over sharkskin, with empire waistline accented by pink lace applique and an unattached train bordered with lace. The bodice of Alencon lace had a scooped neckline and long sleeves. The waist-length tiered veil had pink ribbon inserts and was held by a headpiece of lace and ribbon bows. She carried pink roses with iry and fern.

Matron of honor was Marion Shorey who wore a blush pink gown of sheer over crepe, featuring an A-line skirt with empire waist, topped with a halter bodice and matching capleta.

Bridesmaids were Pearl Johnston, Kathy Lebow, sister of the bride, and Lois Elliott, sister of the groom. They wore outfits identical to the matron of honor. All the attendants carried white and pink mums and pink roses.

Ron Spearman was the groom's best man, and the ushers were Douglas Spearman of Ottawa, Elwood Lebow of Frankford, and Rick Green of Burlington.

After a reception in the Westminster United Church Parlor, the bride and groom travelled to Niagara Falls on their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott now reside at 158A MacDonald Ave.

Fastest Knife in the West

EDMONTON (CP) — Her husband calls her "the fastest knife in the West." Her skill with that tool has gained her 3,500 regular customers over the last three years.

Nan Morin is a butcher, proprietor of Nan's Butler Meats in Gibbons, Alta., about 30 miles northeast of here.

1972, Nan has built up a thriving business as well as a reputation that has spread to downtown Edmonton.

"Maybe it's because I'm a woman and I know what women want," she suggests as a reason for her success in a business she says is still considered "a man's world."

A hefty, fast-moving woman, Nan stands over her block sipping open a carcass with practised ease and skill.

When not interrupted by the telephone or by arranging for twice-weekly deliveries to Edmonton and nearby Fort Saskatchewan, Nan can cu... of meat a day.

Prodding deep with her razor-sharp knife, she seeks out a hidden knob of fat that 25 years of meat cutting tells her will be there. Then her knife skims off a piece of surface fat on which a few animal hairs are stuck.

"A man might not notice this. But I know that women like the meat looking good. They want it like it lean and well trimmed," she says.

Nan stakes her reputation on quality, buying only the top grades of meat in town.

It's a slick running, scrupulously clean operation, a far cry from the fears-as-you-go operation she opened three years ago after working for one Edmonton frozen-food outlets since she was 16.

"There were a lot of growing pains at first. There's a lot to learn in running a piece," she says, laughing now over the difficulty she had in finding a man "who was willing to work for a woman."

About 20 per cent of her business is custom-cutting for local farmers who first butcher their animals at home.

"When I look an animal in the eye, I know I couldn't kill it. But once it's killed, it's nothing. It's just good meat."

With most of her business in frozen orders, Nan is convinced that "it's cheaper to buy in bulk."

While she enjoys her work, Nan admits that it is dangerous, testifying with skin grafts and stitches in her stomach where she once stabbed herself.

"It's a tough job being a butcher. You've got to be strong."

The 'Oriental Look' Fashionable

NEW YORK (CP) — Oriental is in for fall as fashion turns eastward. Clothing designed with mandarin collars, side fastenings and loose workers' style pants and tops are in the forefront.

Changing to the China-doll hair style with smooth polished bangs and straight hair may be too drastic for most women, but a slight Oriental look in make-up can be achieved.

Estee Lauder, who heads a large New York-based cosmetic company, explained the new look.

"The secret," she said, "is impeccable skin, subtle cheek coloring, a lift to the eyes and mouth line and fingernails brilliantly lacquered in vibrant Chinese colors."

She said that one color over another should be used on the face, almost to achieve a layered look, a sort of glazing.

"Start with a sheer liquid make-up base, with mauve-glow color wash," she said. "This creates luminosity and blends in with any skin tone."

Miss Lauder said it also helps to achieve a light porcelain color.

"Then apply a cream rouge in either apricot or a pinkish-red, she said, "depending on your coloring. Blend it over the cheekbones.

"Finally, use a blusher one shade lighter than the cream rouge in peach or pink tones. Brush on lightly over the cheekbones to create a high boned look."

Miss Lauder suggested using a light pink-brown pencil eye color stick to blend into the entire eye area, if rouge is pink red.

"Then use a deep smoke stick for the outer corner of the lid and the brow bone," she said. "For the Oriental lift look, use a deep smoke eye liner, starting half way along the eyelashes, sweeping upwards into the smoke shadow area for a smudged-out Oriental effect."

If the soft toned make-up is applied, a gold tone color stick for the eye and a green shadow liner is in order, she said.

Lips and nails should be bright, preferably in a pagoda red or orange shade.

Charles of the Ritz suggested how to create "the exotic flattery of the China-doll look". The method is much the same as Miss Lauder's except for "tie-dye eyes". This, of course, is only for the extrovert.

Blend flowing bands of color in an easy interplay. Highlight the eye bone below the brow and the lid below the lower lashes with peach and green shadows. Then blend brown and jade in a long sweep ... the outer corner of the eye.

The m... olors are the same for any fall make-up.

Helena Rubinstein said: "It is purposeful colors against a pale natural foundation. Lips should be really red, tawnier and shinier than ever."

She added that cheek color is vital, not wishy-washy in a chestnut, cinnamon, auburn range of tone. Eye shadow begins with a warm brown on the lid highlighted by deepest taupe and shows just under the brow—add a touch of greenglaze.

PM Backs Barring Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Wednesday backed an earlier ruling by Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer that civil servants do not have the right to criticize government policy.

"They should not engage in public criticism of their government or their minister," Mr. Trudeau told New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent in the Commons.

Mr. Broadbent was attacking the recent three-month suspension of Arthur Stewart, a civil service union official and employee of the supply and services department.

Mr. Stewart, president of the 8,000-member supply and services union of the Public Service Alliance of Canada (PSAC), was suspended without pay after he wrote an article in an Ottawa newspaper critical of Mr. Goyer and his department.

Mr. Broadbent said the ruling violates Mr. Stewart's rights as an elected union official. The PSAC, bargaining agent for most federal civil servants, has appealed the suspension, claiming the action is a denial of Mr. Stewart's right to freedom of speech.

Appeal Abandoned

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Elliott has abandoned his appeal of his conviction and subsequent six-year prison sentence in the Hamilton harbor dredging scandal trial, spokesman at the Court of Appeals in Osgoode Hall said Wednesday.

The spokesman said the former Hamilton Harbor commissioner filed a formal notice of abandonment Wednesday.

Hydro Costs Up

TORONTO (CP) — Andrew Kerekes, lawyer for the Consumers Association of Canada, said Wednesday at an Ontario energy board hearing into Ontario Hydro's proposed rate increase that the increased value of the German mark is costing Hydro $4 million a year.

He said that between 1969 and 1973 Ontario Hydro sold $127 million through bonds in West German currency. Because of the mark's revaluation, annual interest costs have jumped to $13,230,000 from $9,418,000, he said.

Mr. Kerekes said that the cost of the bonds at the current exchange rates would be more than $193 million. This, he said, would mean $56 million will be lost by the time the bonds are fully paid off if the mark stays.

B.C. Crash Kills 8

PRINCETON, B.C. (CP) — Eight members of one family died in the burning wreckage of a station wagon Tuesday evening after a head-on collision which claimed the lives of 11 persons.

The accident occurred about 8:45 p.m. at a curve on a flat stretch of Highway 3 about seven miles east of here. Princeton is about 130 miles east of Vancouver.

Gunman Gives Up, 8-Hour Seige Ends

EDMONTON (CP) — A 31-year-old Edmonton man surrendered late Wednesday after wounding one policeman and grazing another in an eight-hour siege that drew hundreds of curious spectators to an apartment block in the city's west end.

Samuel James Wood was charged with two counts of attempted murder and one of armed robbery following an afternoon bank holdup that led to the standoff.

Two other men who surrendered to police almost four hours earlier also were charged with attempted murder.

They were identified as Robert Joseph Lemaire, 38, of Edmonton, and Douglas Raymond Coomsel, 24, who lived in the apartment building where the gunman was holed up.

At about 2:10 p.m., a man armed with a rifle escaped with about $1,400 from a branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia in a small west-end shopping centre.

Witnesses spotted the man running across the parking lot and entering a building in a nearby row of walkup apartments.

Two city police detectives were the first to arrive at the building. A door-to-door search led to a third-floor suite occupied by two men.

Going through the rooms, one detective was shot twice from behind a shower curtain in the bathroom.

A shout for help was answered by a nurse living in a second-floor suite. She attended the wounded policeman who was later lowered through a window to a waiting ambulance.

The detective, identified as Richard Bevan, 34, underwent surgery in hospital as was reported in satisfactory condition with a bullet wound to his left shoulder and a shattered right elbow.

After the shooting, the gunman took position at a third-storey window facing a quiet residential street, then teeming with police reinforcements.

Some of the gunman's apparently-random shots struck residents and tires of police vehicles.

One bullet shattered the windshield of a police cruiser and struck the officer at the wheel in the chest. The policeman was saved from serious injury when the bullet lodged in a training manual he carried in his breast pocket.

Rail Union Charger

Air Transport Gets More Than Its Share

OTTAWA (CP) — The president of one of the country's largest railway unions said Wednesday in a letter to MPs that the federal department is dominated by air transport supporters who have channelled "disproportionate share of public monies into air services.

Don Secord, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers, said air transport supporters have starved the Canadian National Railways of funds.

The letter was the second in as many days from rail union leaders who say Transport Minister Jean Marchand's recently-announced transport policy is wrong. The United Transportation Union attacked the policy Tuesday.

The policy, unveiled June 16, holds that rail service should pay its ways in developed parts of the country. Government officials have indicated transcontinental rail service might be reduced in future.

Railway companies must build their terminals and buildings, rolling stock, build and maintain their own right-of-way and pay for ancillary services, such as terminals, meals, hotels, communications and navigational services, road, bridge and dock constructions and maintenance, harbor dredging and most other auxiliary requirements."

Mr. Secord said, "By comparison, the airlines, in the form of government-built and operated terminals, meteorological services, and airports, have had all these provided at no cost to them."

He said that by the time a Commons committee debates the proposed policy, CNR may already have cut back more of its passenger service.

Mr. Secord said, "By comparison, the airlines, and airplane manufacturing firms receive immense indirect financial aid from government.

Ambulance Drivers Win Sharp Pay Hike

By COLIN BRUCE

Both Belleville ambulance companies have agreed on union contracts and substantial employee wage increases — a situation that has prompted a provincial study into cost-cutting measures.

According to the province, the Belleville ambulance service is costing $100,000 too much to run. Queen's Park, therefore, has announced cut in number of vehicles and staff to take affect in September.

At City Ambulance, staff won a 40-per-cent pay increase following union negotiations last fall. The new contract expires Dec. 31.

The increase drives the earlier pay rate for a driver-attendant of $4.46 an hour to $5.35 an hour. Top rate is earned after five years employment and completion of training courses.

City Ambulance owner Les Steele said Wednesday, "wages and staff benefits account for 80 per cent of an ambulance service's budget."

Though the budget for City Ambulance has not yet been approved by the province, the ministry of health has given "cash flow" to us allowing us to pay the new rate, said Mr. Steele.

At Lis Selle Ambulance the new pay scale ranges from the starting rate of $4.46 an hour to the top rate of $5.75 an hour.

A company spokesman said "the rate marks a substantial increase from earlier wages," the result of contract negotiations which concluded one month ago.

Earlier, staff were not paid on an hourly level but salaried $135 to $140 a week.

The spokesman said the new rate is not being paid to the staff because the ministry has not forwarded funds to cover the increases.

Workers for both services are members of The Civil Servants Association of Ontario, their bargaining agent.

Brush Ablaze

Sidney Township volunteer fire department was called to the same location for two fires Wednesday — along the Canadian Pacific Railway line between Aiken's and Montrose roads.

Fire Chief Doug Scott said today firemen were first called to a brush fire alongside the tracks at 2:05 p.m. He said the probable cause was carbon emission from a passing train.

And at exactly 9 p.m., firefighters were recalled to extinguish a blaze in a pile of unused railway ties which apparently remained smoldering after the initial fire was put out, he said.

Nine Persons Homeless After Foxboro Blaze

By RON HUSER

FOXBORO — Eighteen-year-old Theresa Wilson finally found herself a summer job — looking after one of the eight-week-old triplets that escaped injury Wednesday when fire gutted two rooms of a two-storey house on Main St. here.

Miss Wilson, along with many other nearby neighbors, came to the Rodgers' families rescue Wednesday afternoon by offering food, shelter and some clothing for the triplets and four other children, ranging in age from 18-months to nine-years-old.

Thurlow Volunteer firefighters were called to the house about 2:30 p.m. with firemen from the Belleville fire department also responding to the call.

Thurlow deputy fire chief Elmer Bedford Middleton said today fire broke out on the second floor of the wood frame house. He speculated that the blaze may have been caused by faulty wiring but as yet the cause is undetermined. He said the official of the Fire Marshal's will not be called in.

Deputy Chief Middleton said it took firemen about 20 minutes to extinguish the fire. He said one room was almost completely gutted with the rest of the house suffering smoke and water damage. He would not estimate the damage.

The house is owned by Foxboro resident R. G. Saunders and is occupied by Ronald Rodgers, his wife, Patsy, and their seven children. Mr. Rodgers is an employee of Black Diamond Cheese in Belleville.

A neighbor said today some neocas, Mac's and Mathew were the first to be born at Hospital, in May.

Arthur Rupert (left) and Bruce McPherson, both volunteer firemen with the Thurlow fire department, douse smoldering wood Wednesday afternoon after fire broke out at Main Street home in Foxboro. Occupants of the house were Ronald Rodgers, his wife Patsy, and their seven children. The Rodgers have eight-week-old triplets. fire officials have not yet determined the cause of the fire. There was extensive damage to the lower half of the house.

Two Drivers Charged In $60,000 Mishap

TWEED — Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc have charged both drivers with failing to share the road in connection with a collision between two tractor-trailers on Highway 37 about seven miles south of here at about 2 a.m. Wednesday.

Charged are Daniel Campkin, 22, of Ajax, who was the driver of a tractor-trailer owned by J. F. Trucking Co. of Ajax, and Christopher Moffatt, 35, of Carleton Place who was the operator of a tractor-trailer owned by Gardiner Transport of Carleton Place.

Police have revised damage estimates in the accident which saw the vehicles sideswipe and each turn over in the opposite ditches. One vehicle in the east ditch lost its undercarriage and two wheels.

Police have estimated $30,000 damage to one tractor-trailer including $5,000 to its load of pre-fabricated cottages, unassembled, and a quantity of lumber and $30,000 to the other vehicle including $10,000 in its cargo of crates of castings.

Both men were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital for minor cuts and bruises.

Hardware Strike Goes To Mediation July 28

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

New mediation talks have been called in an attempt to break the deadlocked labor dispute at International Hardware Co. of Canada Ltd.

An Ontario Labor Relations Board mediator will meet July 28 with company and labor spokesmen to sound out both sides in the strike now in its fifth week.

It was the first new development in the stalemate since the 220 - member Local 1256 of the International Union of Moulders and Allied Workers struck June 12.

The mediator was called to support demands for a 75-per-cent pay increase and unlimited cost-of-living benefits in both years of a two-year contract.

The company's last counter-offer proposed a 36-per-cent increase in a total package. It includes a cost-of-living clause capped in the first year, unlimited in the second year.

The cost-of-living clause remains the major issue blocking wage negotiations today.

Spokesmen for both sides today said the initiative for the new talks — with mediator William McGuire, at the Four Seasons Hotel — was the initiative of its Ontario Labor Relations Board.

The same reaction to any hopeful outcome for the talks was indicated by company and union officials.

"How does one know," said Howard Hanton, company vice-president. "We're always hopeful."

Ray Ryan, the local's strike captain and chairman of its negotiating committee, said union officials remain "just have to wait and see" what developed at the talks.

Meantime, both spokesmen said there had been no new moves in the situation since the strike was called.

The cool - and - living cleuse still remains the main issue, indicated Mr. Ryan.

"We're not that far apart other than the cost-of-living clause," he said.

But without it there was "no way" the union will settle, he said.

"We'll stay till it snows to get that," he added.

Report Stresses Education Needs

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Remedial help for students' special needs should remain in the classroom as much as possible, says E. T. (Ted) Morris, superintendent of special education with the Hastings County Board of Education.

Mr. Morris made the statement in reference to a new lengthy and detailed task force report on the future of special education in Hastings County. Mr. Morris spearheaded the task force which was made up of local experts in the field.

"It requires careful study for full understanding," said Mr. Morris as advice to educators interested in the document. The report basically deals with the range of special needs students not just the accepted areas of special education that includes socially and emotionally trainable retarded.

The scope is very broad," said Mr. Morris. "It is prepared on the belief that all children have special needs and it is the responsibility of the educational system to meet them."

Mr. Morris also said the report, which will be made available to teachers in the county, outlines the current programs in the county.

"In this county there is already a great deal of special education already going on," he said, "and it's not new." Mr. Morris maintains that since the establishment of the larger county board there has been greater funds and human resources to draw on for special education.

Mr. Morris said the major aim of the report is to make educators aware of what is being done in the area of special education as well as advance new concepts that will be considered for examination.

He recommened strongly that the school system must learn to justify segregated students from his or her peers due to learning problems or handicaps . . . we must begin to take a critical look at we place some children in special classes."

Mr. Morris believes strongly that every effort must be made to keep children with special needs in their normal environment.

"In this way the teacher can also learn by bringing into the classroom remedial help thus promoting a professional development," he added. The report also strongly urged greater parent involvement in their children's special needs.

The task force report also urges greater emphasis on professional development in the area of special education.

"I basically consider all teachers to be special education teachers," he added.

Mr. Morris said the major thrust of the report will be to call greater emphasis to early detection of learning problems and special needs.

Humanities Attractive For Many Students

The attraction of humanitarian programs for high school graduates in the community college system is still increasing this year, say spokesmen for two eastern Ontario colleges.

The programs in question fall under the collective heading of health sciences and community studies and involve such courses as nursing, mental retardation counseling, sociology, psychology and early childhood education.

During a Wednesday survey, Ernst Knesset, public relations chairman for Loyalist College in Belleville, said such programs have received the highest number of applications and confirmations.

"The do-gooder courses have been on the increase for the last three or four years," he commented.

Ron Doyle, principal of the St. Lawrence College campus in Brockville, said that in the humanities, "you're overwhelmed in students".

"There seems to be a more social-conscious type of student graduating from high school," he commented, "I would suspect that it's the same problem in the whole college system."

However, John Bryden, chairman of student services at the Kingston campus of St. Lawrence College, disagrees. His said interest in the humanities has waned during the last four years.

My Bryden said although applications to such courses at his college have increased, he believes it reflects an increasing population. "It's not a true penetration of the high school system," he said.

"Everyone a few years ago was hooped up about the something more tangible," he added, citing salary and job security.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance during a 24-hour period which ended at 6 a.m. today.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 2:47 p.m. — assisted Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department at house fire in Foxboro. —

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 6:55 p.m. — morgan fire north of Lighfoot Construction Ltd. at 283 East Moira St., near Lester's Dam, started by unknown children, no damage, firemen at scene for a half hour.

WEDNESDAY, JULY 16, 7:40 p.m. — truck standby at 152 West Moira St. and Front St. following accident when car struck tree.

Sidney Tries New Playground Approach

Municipal playgrounds shouldn't be glorified nursery schools, says Wendy Neale recreation director for Sidney Township.

As the same time, playground programs do not have to be limited to organ pot sessions, "A playground should provide the youngster with new opportunities in recreation," said Mrs. Neale.

"Programs should include new things and not repeat activities the child encounters at school or in the home."

Since the beginning of July more than 30 township youngsters have been participating in an adventure camp program which specializes in the concept of teaching new experiences. The course alternating between parks at the township offices and Bayside is a mixture of games, hobbies, camp crafts and nature lore.

Wednesday night, the group camped overnight near the township offices to put into practice the lessons of the last two weeks.

The adventure camp runs until Aug. 16, when it will be replaced for the remainder of the summer by Day Camp.

Camp Life Learned

Kyth Brown of Sidney Township gets a first hand course in cooking over a camp fire by municipal recreation director Wendy Neale. More than 20 township youngsters are participating in a recreation program course in outdoor life which includes camp craft and nature lore.

Bumper Crop for Raspberries This Year

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

EAST LAKE — Fred Trebell's 40 acres of raspberries, the equivalent of 65 acres because of the way they're planted, is yielding a bumper crop this year.

"Mother Nature was good to us," Mr. Trebell says.

As vice-president of East Lake Canners Ltd., Mr. Trebell has been in the berry business for most of his 47 years.

"Last year," he said, "was a disaster, but we're on our fifth picking this year and we could go through the field nine times before we're finished."

In 1974, his harvest totalled only 6,000 quarts of red raspberries. This year he estimates a harvest of between 40 and 50,000 quarts.

The berries are harvested with a mechanical harvester, worth more than $20,000 and unique in this part of Canada, as is the size of the Trebell berry patch.

The harvester travels slowly down each of the 200 600-foot rows and metal arms shake the ripe berries from the canes onto conveyor belts where they're roughly sorted and put into quart boxes. The harvester will go through the giant berry patch up to nine times this year, probably into August.

The berries are grown on the south shore of East Lake, just south of Highway 401 and end up in the cannery on the north shore of the lake. There they are preserved whole, in syrup and marketed under the East Lake label through Loblaw's supermarkets.

East Lake Canners is a family business. President is Gwen Trebell. 78, Fred's mother and the driving force of the firm is his sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hylton. Both are active in the business and Mrs. Trebell was recently invited to join the provincial council on food in the U.S.

When the berry harvest is over, the canner will swing into full production of tomatoes. The cannery has 55 acres under contract to supply additional tomatoes under contract from area farmers. All are canned whole and are marketed under the East Lake label or the labels of supermarkets that purchase them.

The farm have presented the same problem to Fred Trebell as the workers necessary to harvest and process the crops. Buying the mechanical berry picker — actually a converted blueberry harvester — helped solve the problem, but a lot of hand work still must be done.

When the berry harvest is over, field workers must cut out all the canes that bore fruit this year. "They're all finished." Mr. Trebell said. Newer growth will bear next year's crop.

The growing and canning season is a long one, begining in mid-April and winding up about the middle of October. "We get out of the fields when we're forced out by weather," Mr. Trebell said, "but there's still plenty to do."

Beating the Bushes

Unique in Eastern Canada, mechanical raspberry harvester is carefully guided through 45-acre berry patch by East Lake Canners' vice-president Fred Trebell. Bumper crop this year means machine will travel through field up to nine times before harvest is completed in August. Metal arms agitate canes, ripe berries fall onto conveyor belts where they're roughly sorted before going to cannery for processing. Entire crop is preserved in syrup under East Lake label for sale in Loblaw's supermarkets.

Tiger - Cats

Buoyant Camp After Battles

HAMILTON (CP) — After a winter's discontent reflected in newspaper headlines of contract cases and management-player scrabbles, Hamilton Tiger-Cats did some extensive sprucing, housecleaning and modern training camp in a frame of mind bordering on buoyancy.

Already that was a plus over the 1974 season splintered from the outset with the strike of veteran Canadian Football Players.

A year ago there was a veteran walkout on the eve of the season, settled quarterback Sonny Wade, more diversified running backs, more consistent punting and improved pass protection.

Twelve veterans are gone from the team that narrowly lost the eastern semi-final to the Ottawa Rough Riders, finishing third place with a 7-6 record.

Most spectacular change saw 14-star tight end Tony Galbreth, outstanding Canadian in the CFL last year, traded to Ottawa along with Canadian wide receiver Gary Kuzyk for defensive back John Krouse, offensive tackle Bob Collins and flanker-slotback Terry Wellaby.

Offensively, three-year veteran Bill Baker dropped and relaxed at training camp and rates as the leading starting quarterback.

Competition for backup pivot is between speci-ilties Jim McMillan and Terry Beaubien with the best passing credentials of any American collegian Jim Corbett last year, and Jim Stoecker, the Harvard passing record-holder who was cut by Ottawa in 1974.

Top-rated receivers include Garney Henley as flanker, back for his fifth year in Hamilton, Terry Evaskevich at split end and Lowell Hamilton at tight end.

Andy Hopkins looks solid at fullback with veteran Dave Fleming at halfback and Jimmy Walker at half. Newcomer Charles Jessamy, cut last year by New York Giants, is highly impressive at slotback although the Ticats have lots at that in exhibition games to date.

The offen ive unit will have 16 years experience between Bill Dery-buck at tackle and Ed Chakalos at guard. Veteran centre Ron Ferguson is getting good competition from American Ted Hand. Gus Collins is starring on the other tackle spot with Marco Latimore the second guard.

Top rookie signed was Canadian Ken Clark, product of St. Mary's University in Halifax, best punter in the CIAU last season with Portland Storm. Clark also kicks field goals and is a sure-handed receiver. Also ready is Jim Sutter, best placement kicker on the club last year and scorer on the East last season with 141 points.

Newmarket Rays Still Three Up

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Newmarket continued to beat Kitchener-Waterloo 5-2 and 3-1 Wednesday to maintain their three-game lead in the east division of the Ontario Baseball League.

Meanwhile in Hamilton, the scrappers and Scots closed the split, a doubleheader. Hamilton winning the first game 4-2 and the second 6-1.

In Woodstock Jack Cameron's two jackets split a double-header with Warriors, winning the first 3-1 and losing the second 3-0.

Visitor right-hander Bob Dowsmith beat Kitchener pitcher Keith Wyatt 1-0 with a pair of strikers in the opening seven-inning game. Ken Dowsley drove in 16 decisions.

Left-hander Bill Lunney scattered six hits in the second game for the win and Terry Hallamore took the loss. The losses for Evergreens balled a five-game winning streak.

Wally Cooper's solo home run and catcher George Dickey's double knocked in two more Newmarket runs in the first game and three others scored on the result of a pair of Kitchener errors and passed ball.

Ab Hudson drove in both Kitchener runs with a first-inning ground ball and a solo home run in the third inning.

A pair of Hamilton errors and a single by infielder Jim Murdock gave Kitchener a first-inning lead in the second game, but Newmarket rallied in the second inning to score three runs.

In the second, outfielder Ron Lafleur singled home the decisive two runs and singles by Cooper and catcher Gary Wooton and a wild pitch by losing pitcher Terry Gallamore gave Newmarket its first run.

A two-run home run by Fran Stuart and a homer by Ed Novajovski in the second inning of the opener gave the Hamilton the three-run relief.

A single by Ted deBuhrer which drove in Bob Christie in the third rounded out the Scrappers scoring.

Third baseman Marty Twyman doubled to begin the fielder Mickey Hancock and relief pitcher John Young came home on an error to beat Kitchener in the first game.

Young was the winner in the first game while Reg Mac-Donald got the loss.

Dave Nendorf was the winner in the second game while Reg Mac-Donald got the loss.

Nendorf struck out seven and drove in Hamilton's only run in the second game. He also had a watch as errors gave the Globetrotters three runs to help the game.

John Young was the winning pitcher.

Bob Woodstock a fifth inning home run by Don Hildebrandt gave Woodstock a 3-1 win over St. Catharines.

Doug Balliet was the winning pitcher but he needed relief from Jim Rivera to the fifth. Rivera struck out Balliet with up six hits and striking out five.

Rivera received a three-hitter for the win in the second game for his win and Terry Hallet fired from Dave Frassen in the fifth.

Hildebrandt put Mr. Jackets on the scoreboard in the third after singling, moving to third on a double by Jim Rivera.

Barry Robertson singled in the fifth before Hildebrandt homered.

Perfect Mark For Eskimos

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Edmonton Eskimos completed their Canadian Football League pre-season schedule with a perfect record Wednesday night, winning their fourth game 38-27 over Calgary Stampeders.

The Eskimos' 4-0 record stands out in marked contrast to those of others clubs, although British Columbia Lions could come close if they win an exhibition game tonight against Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Lions have a 3-1 record with a tie.

Montreal Alouettes, after a 20-7 win Wednesday night over Toronto Argonauts, stand up with a 3-1-1 mark.

Wednesday's other game saw Hamilton Tiger-Cats score their second win in 3-1 fashion when he erased a 13-point Stampeder lead with four touchdown drives in the final two minutes at Calgary.

Willard Reaves ran 2 yards to George McGown and four yards to Steve Holt for the final two touchdowns. Dave Cutler kicked his fourth convert of the game for the winning point.

Bruce Lemmerman started at quarterback for the Eskimos after Jerry Tagge left the game for one touchdown and then completed with Larry Haye for a 75-yard pass-and-run touchdown play.

The Stamps made their big charge in the second quarter, scoring three touchdowns and a field goal for a 26-14 lead at the half.

Running back Willie Burden made runs of 12 and eight yards within a minute for the first two Calgary touchdowns and Tom Forzani scored six points on a 36-yard pass from Joe Paarch. Cyril McFaul kicked two converts, a single and field goals from 37 and 32 yards.

In the quarter, the Argonauts completed their 11th consecutive quarter of play without a touchdown. Their last touchdown came in the first quarter of their second game against Winnipeg and they were shut out in the third game against B.C. Lions. Kicker Zenon Andrusyshyn, with two 31-yard field goals and a single in the fourth quarter, accounted for all the Toronto scoring against him.

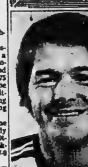
Ironically, the Argo offence sputtered despite quarterback Joe Theismann who completed 25 attempts for 306 yards. The Argo offence netted 384 yards in Montreal's 272.

Montreal quarterback Tom Wilkinson was injured in the second quarter of the game and replaced by Jim Corbett.

Former Montreal star Terry Evanshen scored on a 13-yard pass from rookie Jim McMillan with 15 seconds left in Ottawa to give Hamilton the victory.

Hamilton's other touchdown came on a 35-yard run by Jim Dairice. Ian Sinner added two field goals from 40 and 22 yards and kicked two converts and a single.

Ottawa's Peter Crepin provided one of the most exciting plays of the game when he intercepted a McMillan pass and returned it 96 yards for the Riders' first touchdown.



ROD GILBERT

Back In Fold

NEW YORK (AP) — Right winger Rod Gilbert, leading scorer with New York Rangers last season, has signed a multi-year contract with the National Hockey League club, general manager Emile Francis announced Wednesday.

Gilbert, 34, became a free agent in April when he finished the third year of a three-year contract. He did not participate in play-his option year because of "contract decrees" signed nearly two years ago between the NHL and World Hockey Association.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, however, it was believed Gilbert was seeking a two-year contract with a raise from his estimated $175,000 annual salary. Recently, the Rangers were reported to be offering a three-year contract with no increase in salary.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A couple of six-shooters guns down their opponents and lifted their teams to wins in National Lacrosse League action Wednesday night.

Terry Lloyd scored six goals for the Wings at Philadelphia as they overpowered Maryland Arrows 22-10 to break a third-place deadlock, and Brian Shellington added four at Quebec, where the Carlsons Long Island Sunbeaks 17-11 to move into fifth place ahead of Quebec.

Jim Wasson, Larry Lloyd and Sandy Lynch also had hat trick nights as the Wings attack as the Arrows suffered their fifth loss in six outings. Dan Coghlin had three goals for Maryland before leaving.

Rough Riders

New Recruits On the Scene

OTTAWA (CP) — As the 1974 Eastern Football Conference season ended, David Loeb, owner of Ottawa Rough Riders, promised his team would be more exciting this year.

He said the club would hire the team, which had won the Grey Cup in 1973, had been cold.

In an interview Tuesday, Loeb said extensive recruiting by general-manager Frank Clair and coach George Brancato should mean seven or eight new players in the lineup and he hoped that will mean more fans in Lansdowne Park, being expanded to 25,000 seats from 27,000.

Trades and departures to United States leagues also have altered the Riders' roster.

Gone are quarterback Rick Cassata and fullback Jim Evenson to the World Football League, defensive tackles Buddy Simms and Charlie Brandon to the National Football League, defensive tackle Moe Racine into retirement and receiver Hugh Oldham to the World Alouettes after being cut.

Allstar tight end Tony Gabriel and receiver Gary Kuzyk were traded from Hamilton Tiger-Cats for defensive back John Krouse, offensive tackle Doug Collins and flanker Terry Wellaby.

More offensive power was expected to improve the team's second-place conference finish and, with the Saturday night deadline for meeting the 32-player limit looming, Brancato has 11 rookies signed with barring injuries.

Tonight's exhibition game against Hamilton will decide the last name on the player list.

Veteran Jerry Keeling, who missed much of last season with leg injuries, has one quarterback job sewed up but the backup position has become so intense that Brancato has been reluctant to decide.

Quarterback Holloway, who rewrote the record books at Tennessee University, showed blow from behind

MIKE WALTON

Faces Charges

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mike Walton of Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association has surrendered to authorities on charges that he struck a hockey fan with his stick last February.

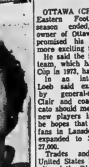
Walton pleaded not guilty Wednesday in municipal court to a charge of assault against Perry Crush of Poway. Calif. He was booked at San Diego County jail and released on his own recognizance.

A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 6.

Stingers Get Aubry

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Stingers, who begin play in the World Hockey Association this year, have purchased reserve goalie Serge Aubry from Quebec Nordiques.

Aubrey played behind regular goalie Richard Brodeur in his three seasons with Quebec.



JERRY KEELING

Ottawa fans to their feet with his scrambling and passing in the team intrasquad game.

But Norm Dunn, graduate Ken Clements, a drop-back passer, stole the show in two western exhibition games while Holloway was unable to move the team and appeared out of the running.

Canadian Bill Robinson, who guided St. Mary's Huskies of Halifax and University of Western Ontario Mustangs to successive College Bowl triumphs, also has been impressive in camp. But indications are that he'll be a slow starter.

The offensive line likely will have Bob McKeversh at centre, Tom Schuette and rookie Steve Neece at the guards and Jim Coode and Jeff Turcotte at tackles.

But Brancato, unhappy with the play of the defensive tackles, says he may switch Turcotte to defense and put Jay Paul Jones on offence.

Bruce Smith, obtained in a trade from Edmonton Eskimos for Tom Lapuka has been bobbed by a leg injury.

Dave Forbes Case

Jury Begins Deliberations

MINNEAPOLIS Minn. (AP) — A jury of seven men and five women began deliberations today on the question of whether professional hockey player Dave Forbes used his club's knee in order to injure Jean Ratelle.

Forbes said fighting is part of the game, taught to players at early age.

"That's probably one of the first things coaches are taught, that we must fight back and that's the way it is," he said.

Forbes said an unusual placement of penalty boxes and player benches at Metropolitan Sports Centre, home of the North Stars, put opposing players completing a simultaneous change almost inevitably meet by crossing the ice.

It was during the fight occurred, with Bouchs later going to hospital still complaining of double vision.

"I would guess I would have had to hockey fight in my hand at that moment."

When asked if he used the stick as a weapon, Forbes replied "no".

In cross-examination, Forbes conceded he may have felt emotional after the collision on the ice at the hands of Bouchs, since the game was being televised to the Boston area.

Forbes conceded planning to get to the first blow and didn't first drop his gloves. one of the usual pre-fight moves in hockey.

Where Now, Dave Keon ?
Just Say Good Riddance

According to where you read it and who writes it, Toronto Maple Leafs may or may not be all set to bid adieu to centre Dave Keon, a player who has been a favorite with the fickle Leaf fans during a distinguished career with the National Hockey League club.

Keon, who replaced George Armstrong as team captain when that stalwart called it quits after the 1970-71 season, became a free agent when his contract with Leafs expired on June 1. His contract contained a clause which granted him approval rights of any trade planned by the club.

Never a robust player, if by robust one is referring to the knock 'em down, drag 'em out style of play so popular today, Keon gave Leafs 15 productive seasons. Many times in recent seasons, his goal production slipped while he was being used as a shield to rookie wingers who benefitted from his play-making skills.

His age, 35, is said to be one of the knocks against the quick, lanky centre.

It is a fact that he relies on precision and ability rather than brute force and a booming shot.

Today, centres are being asked to check the puck carrier on the seat of his pants before relinquishing the puck to an forechecking mission. Forechecking is one of the many aspects of the game at which Keon is adept, but he does not rely on the body.

During the 1974-75 season, owner Harold Ballard suggested openly that Keon lacked the qualities to be a good team captain.

I don't remember Keon disputing the charge. But today's idea is to make him captain! Perhaps he'd rather someone else had the responsibility.

Seems to me T recall Sid Smith being something less than thrilled with the job when he was given the honor during the 1950s. Not everyone has the credentials to be a team captain, no matter what other contributions he may make to the club.

Norm Ullman (another free agent) and Keon gone in the same three-year period means Ft is consistent with the lack of leadership that's worn over the years at the Leaf executive level.

With little class at the top, how can we expect Leaf supporters expect anything better on the ice?

If Keon is indeed through as a Leaf, I trust he joins a club which appreciates his obvious talents and they get let someone else have the dubious distinction of being named team captain.

Let Keon play hockey his way. He'd a treat to watch after the wearying exposure to the cruelties.

Big things are happening on the wrestling scene on Friday night's card at Belleville Arena.

Andre Roussimoff who is billed as The Giant, will attempt to win the Star Stadium's North American Championship Belt in the main event of the evening.

No doubt this is the same Andre Roussimoff who is said to be considering a pro football career with Washington Redskins.

Wrestling information reports Andre is a 7-foot-4 424-pound giant who, while a recent release from the football world put his height at 7-foot-3 and weight 444 lbs.

Either way he is on the large side, you'll have to agree.

And if everything is on the up and up, Stasiak may be minus his belt when Friday's action is over.

Parsons And Italo Winners

Brighton and Canadian Forces Base Trenton scored the game's only run in Bay of Quinte Soccer Association play, Wednesday.

Playing at Brighton, Quinte Italo-Canadian blasted the home side 3-0 on a pair of goals by Nick Del Grosso and one from team captain Joe Iasenza.

Home field meant little to the CFB Team either, as Belleville Parsons scored a 3-1 victory.

Italo holds first place in the BQSA's Eastern section with nine wins, two losses and three draws for 21 points. The club's next start should provide some exciting action when Oshawa Tony's, second in the Quinte Division, supply the opposition at Bata Memorial Park in Trenton, Wednesday, July 22.

Young Lefty Does the Job

TRENTON — A "diminutive lefty, backed by some solid support, aided, stood Trenton State Farm Bastians on their collective ears here, Wednesday, as Thurlow Chisholm's 7 North received well-earned 6-4 Eastern Ontario Baseball Association win.

Lefty Steve Meeks, making his pitching debut for the club, stopped the home side on just two hits. He struck out three and walked seven. When he found himself in trouble he made a habit of getting his way out of jams.

Right-hander Kevin Patrick, plagued by inconsistent support afield and at the plate, matched Meeks' two-hitter for six innings, has gave up two more safeties in the seventh before reliable Dennis Sarli came on to hurl the five and finish up.

Patrick struck out eight and walked seven. Sarli relieved two on third strikes in his brief relief effort.

Bill Sullivan set the stage for the game-winning rally when he opened the game with a home run to deep left field. Terry Hall then put two down and Terry Gray, one, to round out the winners' hitting.

Trenton's hits, both singles, went of Hayward Morgan and Chris Walker.

Peewees Busy

Three teams, sponsored by B. J. Foster Realtor of Belleville and Thurlow, Dan McKeown and Sons Garage of Foxboro and Foxboro Cheese Factory, make up the Thurlow T'ee Ball Peewee Baseball League of baseball.

As the end of the regular season nears, Foxboro Cheese Factory is out in front with six wins and two losses. Pitching has been handled by the Huffman twins, Edwin and Edward as well as by Chris Fowler.

Foster Realtor and McKeown Garage are tied with three wins and three losses. Foster Realtor has Mark Stoughton, Mike Emerson and Steve Wellman to take the mound.

Pitching for McKeown Garage have been Pat Uens, Mike Shandrew and Dave Leeming.

JOHN MULVIHILL

Suffers Injury To Hand

John Mulvihill can count himself a lucky young man after allegedly suffered a mishap while working at the Canadian National Railway yards on Wednesday night. Things could have been much more serious.

A member of the family and John was at work when a rail came down and struck his hand, severing his thumb. The rail grazed his head, and the mishap could well have turned into a tragedy.

John was rushed to hospital by fellow worker Ron Hill, and by Thursday had been transferred to Belleville to Kingston last night. His thumb was sewn on.

John plays defence for the Trenton City of Guinness Adolphus in Minnesota, where he was named to the All-star team for his steady play.

He was also named to the National Hockey Tournaments All-Star squad during the season.

Foxboro's Rally Falls One Short

A late inning rally by Foxboro wasn't enough to pull them over the top on Read, as they lost by a close 5-4 score.

Latta defeated Deseronto 7-4 in their match.

John Masterson and Rob DeJong shared the loss, giving up six hits and three walks while striking out 10 batters.

Phil Badejo doubled and singled while Carm Millgate had two singles and Peter Walsh doubled for the winners.

Hits went to Dale Thomson with a triple and Bill Authers with a double for the losers.

Rob Reid pitched shutout ball for Latta. He gave up just three hits and two walks. The loss was shared by Steve, Heffernan and Gord Kimmett who gave up eight hits and two walks while striking out five.

Reg Abrams doubled and had two singles for the winners.

The win for Reid was his seventh of the year, and his third shutout.

World Aquatic Championships

Finalist in Every Event Predicts Swim Coach

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The Wendy and Nancy show has moved here for its latest extravaganza with Brian willing to predict which of the Canadian swimmers will finish in the money or if either will have enough to challenge East Germany's brilliant Birgite Treiber.

Wendy Cook of Vancouver, at 17 one of the age already a travelled veteran, and Nancy Garrapick, the immaculate 15-year old from Halifax who goes into her first real international meet when the world aquatic championships begin here Saturday, head the strongest Canadian women's contingent ever assembled.

Coaches Don Talbot of Thunder Bay, Ont., and Deryk Snelling of Vancouver have been waiting since the Canadian championships in May to unleash this women's team against the best from other countries.

"Without a doubt the strongest Canadian women's team ever assembled," Talbot said gleefully. "We should have at least one finalist in every event."

After a week's outdoor training in San Diego to get the swimmers accustomed to both the outdoor pools—all competitors here are outdoors—and the heat, Talbot said he expects the girls to "perform exceptionally well and put swimmers into the finals of events we haven't reached before."

Talbot and Snelling have been following a well-organized program designed to produce the best possible effort from Canadian swimmers at the 1976 Olympics. That program calls for medals but a top-10 finish position is not forthcoming, we don't have to reachout our thinking."

The pair often mention the high hopes of Becky Smith of Edmonton, Marian Stuart of Petake Clair, Que., Gail Amundrud of Vancouver and others. But when it comes to gold medal prospects, it is always Wendy Cook and Nancy Garrapick.

"Both girls could be fighting for anything between first and fourth," Snelling speculated.

"Nancy has been on a high for a while now," Snelling said of the young girl who set a 200-metre backstroke world record in April—was later broken by Treiber—and beat Cook in the Canadian championships.

"But I think Wendy is better prepared for her event. There's a world of difference in swimming between the age 15 and 16."

While the coaches are hoping Garrapick is the forerunner for a whole new wave of Canadian stars, they are looking to Cook to start a new trend among the veterans.

The former world record holder in the 100-metre backstroke has been Canada's premiere female swimmer since 1972 but, with the arrival of Garrapick, there has been some worry expressed about Cook's desire to remain in competitive swimming.

She is scheduled to get married later this year but Snelling and Talbot are hoping that she will not change her swimming ambitions.

"If Wendy can get married and still make the Olympic team on her performance in a sudden-death trial and not because she's Wendy Cook she could herald a new age in Canadian swimming," Snelling said.

"She's a great kid who has the ability to be a great swimmer. She's got to work in some form and it's going to be the trust to make it successful.

"I think the coaches involved can understand that the other coaches are not here to try and steal their swimmers or steal them away from their own club."

The same system will be used in the Pan-American Games in October and Snelling and Talbot will then make a decision on whether to retain it for the 1976 Olympics.

WENDY COOK

What Now?

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Where does the American League go from here?

Losers in 12 of the last 13 all-star baseball games, the embarrassment is limiting for the league that once led the midseason series 13-4. Now it trails 27-18, with one tie.

The trouble began in 1963 when the Nationals won the all-star game 5-3. The winning star game 5-3. The winning manager was Alvin Dark, who was on the other side of the field in Tuesday night's 6-3 All-star defeat.

Dark says the American League's all-star problem isn't one of talent. It is inferior to the National League.

"Not at all," the Oakland manager said. "They have some great players over there and we have some, too."

The problem is that the NL players seem to get psyched up for their annual confrontation with the AL.

"I couldn't believe the way the guys on our bench were going" Bill Melton, whose third-inning single delivered two runs, breaking a 3-3 tie and triggering the NL victory.

"The American League players looked like they were sitting on their bench waiting to get beat," he said.

That wasn't exactly what the American League manager, especially after Carl Yastrzemski's pinch three-run homer tied the score in the sixth inning.

Yaz connected on the first pitch he saw from Tom Seaver, and after his big blow, he thought he might remain in the game. But Dark lifted him, keeping Fred Lynn in the game instead.

Two innings later, with the score still tied, Craig Nettles was on third base with two out and Lynn was at bat against Mike Marcisch.

"I stuck with my best pitch," said Marcisch, who shared the most valuable player award with Maddock. "That's my fastball. I wasn't going to risk getting beat on a curve or something."

Marcisch blazed a third strike past Lynn, and the Oakland's wrapped up the game with their three ninth-inning runs.

They'll Test A New System

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The second world aquatic championships, which get under way here Saturday, provide the initial test for a new coaching system in Canadian swimming.

Deryk Snelling of Vancouver is the former practice of sending just one coach, usually a supervisor, train and prepare the entire Canadian swimming team.

At these championships, there will be more than nine coaches on hand to work with the swimmers. Four of them will be accredited to participate once the swimming competition begins on Saturday.

Opening ceremonies for the championships are Friday with diving and water polo events beginning Saturday. Synchronized swimming begins Tuesday.

Head coaches Deryk Snelling of Vancouver and Don Talbot of Thunder Bay, Ont., head the swimming contingent but have invited seven other coaches to assist in the supervision of the 17 men and 13 women.

"It's an important new step for us," Talbot said. "It will provide the swimmers with more needed personal attention before the meet."

The first time Don and I will control the yardage and such but we will let other coaches handle their swimmers," Snelling said. "It will provide us with a better position from which to evaluate and see if this is the right method to take into the Olympics."

Co-operation, unity and trust are the key words if the program is to succeed and help the swimmers, said Talbot.

"This system has to work in some form and it's going to be the trust to make it successful.

"I think the coaches involved can understand that the other coaches are not here to try and steal their swimmers or steal them away from their own club."

The same system will be used in the Pan-American Games in October and Snelling and Talbot will then make a decision on whether to retain it for the 1976 Olympics.

The Trade Winds

Don't Always Prove Favorable

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It seems it's often a matter of luck whether baseball trades prove successful.

Take the American League, for example, where some clubs appear to have what they have recently come out as big winners and others such as Detroit Tigers and Cleveland Indians have learned otherwise.

Others, such as New York Yankees and Kansas City Royals have managed to come out about even or slightly ahead.

The Indians finished in the 1974 season in last place in the AL Eastern Division and went in the trading block with gusto. They're still in last in their division.

They dealt pitcher Woody Fryman to Montreal Expos of the National League for catcher Terry Humphrey and pitcher Jimm Walker, Humphrey, now out with a shoulder injury, has played in only 14 games and Walker has a 3-6 record. On the other hand, Fryman is 7-4 for the Expos with a respectable 3.07 earned-run average.

Detroit also began Ed Brinkman's winding route to the Yankees by trading the shortstop to St. Louis through San Diego and getting catcher Ellie Rodriguez back. Colbert, hitting around .250, then was sold to Montreal.

Brinkman, meanwhile, shipped to St. Louis to Texas, then was dealt to the Yankees, where he seems to have found a relatively secure home.

Cleveland, one game ahead of the Tigers at the all-star break, was in the market for fresh pitching, and they couldn't have started out worse. They gave up pitchers Jim Perry and Dick Bosman to Oakland for Blue Moon Odom, who wasted nothing time in with the Tribe. Finally Odom was traded to Atlanta for Boric Hartman, 6-3 with a 4.19 ERA.

In all, the Indians traded for pitchers Harrison, Jim Bibby, Jackie Brown and Dick Hood and Dave LaRoche. But in the blood deal, the Indians also got first baseman Boog Powell from Baltimore, and that hasn't disappointed them.

Besides getting Jim Perry, Brinkman, Bosman and Fryman, Cleveland, the A's, Western Division leaders, picked up pitchers Stan Bahnsen from Chicago White Sox and Jessy Cobert from San Diego.

But the A's most significant "trade may have been the one they designated hitter Billy Williams, both of Chicago Cubs infielder Manny Trillo and relievers Rick Langford and Darold Knowles.

Williams has been in all but one of Oakland's games, has 44 RBI and 12 home runs.

The most even-up trade is the makes involved the Yankees, who went to the NL's San Francisco Giants to get Dave Rondo for Bobby Murcer. Bonds is hitting only .238 but has 47 RBI, 20 homers and 16 stolen bases. Murcer is hitting .307 with 51 RBI and 10 homers.

The Yanks also got reserve catcher Ed Herrmann from the White Sox and outfielder Rich Coggins from the Expos on waivers.

Coggins came to the Yanks by way of Montreal. He started the season with the Orioles, who unloaded Coggins, pitcher Dave McNally and pinch hitter Jay Ber Bill Kirkpatrick to the Expos for pitcher Mike Torrez and Ken Singleton in what turned out to be one of the most disastrous trades in the NL made with the junior circuit.

Torrez is 8-5 with the Orioles and Singleton leads the club with a .298 batting average, 66 walks, and he has 54 RBI.

Montreal waived Coggins, McNally retired and Kirkpatrick is still a minor-leaguer.

NANCY GARAPICK

Horton Leading The Way

NEW YORK (AP) — Led by Detroit Tiger slugger Willie Horton, the designated hitters in the American League this season are ahead of last year's power production.

The American League's DHs have already hit 127 home runs at the all-star break, 16 by Horton, compared to 167 all of last year. The production is up 41 per cent.

There are increases in almost every offensive category among DHs, including 17 per cent in RBI or runs batted in (361) and 12 per cent in runs (321).

The DHs are getting even greater respect from AL pitchers, as shown by a nine-per-cent rise in walks (422). And once they get on base, they are a bigger threat to run than last year—they are running at a 10-per-cent better pace than last season with 64 stolen bases.

Commissioner Kuhn's Job Is on the Line

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn's doings tomorrow in his job today with the American and National league executives called to table a final vote on extension of his term of office.

Kuhn came perilously close to being fired Wednesday when four American League clubs opposed his re-election at baseball's summer meetings. Kuhn, whose seven-year term of office expires Aug. 31, needs nine votes of the 12 votes in each league to continue in office.

He had all 12 in the National League but only eight in the American. The opposition was led by Oakland A's owner Charles O. Finley and Baltimore Orioles boss Jerold Hoffberger, both longtime opponents of Kuhn. They apparently convinced New York Yankees and Texas Rangers to join them in opposition.

The AL clubs spent six hours discussing the delicate issue Wednesday and then sent word to their National League counterparts of what one owner called, "our straw vote."

Kuhn got the two well with the Nationals, where Kuhn's support, was reported to be complete. At that point, the NL owners agreed to let the AL owners to agree to table the matter.

At that point, AL president Lee MacPhail and NL president Chub Feeney were dispatched to Kuhn's suite to report what had happened to the commissioner. They told him the leagues wanted to table the matter. At first, the commissioner balked at the idea.

"As I understand it, the committee met and the vote was taken today," said one owner.

"Then he changed his mind and disclosed said it would be all right to table it."

That left Kuhn's job in something of a limbo status. The tabling could be for two weeks, two months or, as Finley put it "two minutes."

It seemed certain however that no final action would be taken at today's joint meeting. The National League just doesn't feel the climate is right for one right now," said an AL owner.

Formal votes can only be held at joint meetings and there is enough opposition in an immediate one on Kuhn to assure the commissioner's backers being able to avoid one today.

That will give O'Malley and Kuhn's other supporters time to break down the opposition to commissioner.

The most right AL opposition seemed to come from Finley who refused to reveal how he voted but could not hide his happiness at the day's developments. "I wouldn't object to taking it to a conclusion right now," he said.

Kuhn's problems with Finley date back to the 1972 and 1973 World Series when he slapped the Oakland owner with fines, which he paid, forbearance bonuses to Gene Tenace and Joe Rudi after the '72 classic and then when he tried to fire second baseman Mike Andrews following two costly errors in the '73 Series.

Hoffberger's opposition dates from Kuhn's alleged interference with the sale of the Orioles. The commissioner wanted the club sold to a former General Motors executive Edward Cole while Hoffberger was negotiating with Bill Veck, to not sell the club.

Sadly missed by Madge, Ed and Bob.

KLINE — In loving memory of a dear son and brother, Shawn, who passed away July 17, 1972.
Time speeds on, four years have passed by.
Since dawn in Heaven he called Shawn
Within our home, where all seemed bright.
And took from us a dearer light.
He was the joy and pride of all,
His voice and place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain.
For up in Heaven we will meet again.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by Mom and Dad.

CARDS OF THANKS

The family of the late Harry Sylvester Horton would like to express our sincere thanks to all, for cards, flowers, gifts, and kindness in the hour of our sad and heartbreaking loss. To the community of Stoneymore in death, as in loving labour, grandfather. Rev. John R. Bush Funeral Home and staff, for their kindness and help in every way. Also those who brought cards, gifts and those that served lunch after funeral.
The Carney and Horton families.

The family of the late Howard Joseph Rowe wish to thank their many friends, neighbors and friends who have called, visited our home, sent flowers and cards during his illness in Belleville Public Hospital and the YMCA.
Sincerely, Enid Rowe.

Express Train Draws Criticism

TOKYO (Reuter) — Not everyone likes a technological miracle these days—even if it is the fastest passenger train in the world.

When the first Tokyo-Osaka stretch of the Shinkansen Line opened in 1964, the public cheered, railroad workers burst into tears of joy, the Emperor made a speech of praise and the entire nation swelled with pride.

But when a 180-m.p.h. "bullet" express inaugurated the line down to Hakata in southern Japan, it was greeted by angry demonstrators claiming compensation for noise and vibration.

There are doubts in the hearts of the working best, wrote one Japanese commentator.

And the doubts are not without foundation.

Although Shinkansen profits hit the $539-million mark in 1973, providing a quarter of the Japan National Railways' revenue—the country's other rail services have taken a battering.

So heavy are their debts is fact that they are talking of doubling fares and expansion plans for the Shinkansen Line may have to be curtailed.

Meanwhile, the line and its advanced technological systems are showing signs of age.

Delays of up to five hours have been caused by computer break-downs, and half-day suspensions of services have been ordered for checks on the track normally done at night.

Unions have complained that safety margins are too narrow. Malfunctioning electrical circuits, cracks in the rails and defective coaches all indicate that the system requires an overhaul, they say.

In March the inaugural train on the new route to Hakata arrived 13 minutes late and 18 other trains were late the same day.

The situation has gone a long way since the heady dreams of expanding the Shinkansen Line to make the national railway's entire system pay.

As oil crisis and political change have put an end to the era of fast growth in the Japanese economy. Other problems are rising costs, difficulties in purchasing land and a shortage of funds.

The main obstacle, however, involves public objections to vibration and noise.

Railroad engineers say the environment agency has set standards which are impossible to achieve, despite moves to solve some environmental problems.

On a further pessimistic note a visiting engineer told railroad officials that the Shinkansen would be out of date before the whole network was completed. Faster, cleaner railway systems will have surpassed the "bullet" by then, he said.

Coin Collectors Real Detectives

VANCOUVER (CP) — Want to add a touch of cloak-and-dagger romance—and big returns to the daily humdrum?

Coin-collecting, with its decapitive undertones of conquest detective- cunning, numbers of the Vancouver Society of Coin Enthusiasts say.

Because Canadian and foreign counterfeiting laws are either vague or non-existent, it's easy for the small-time $5-coin collector to be taken, as well as the major collector of numismatical rarities, the experts say.

At a recent three-day counterfeit detection seminar sponsored by the society at University of British Columbia, 44 students—half collectors, half dealers—learned the nitty ways criminals have developed to fleece them.

"We don't like to talk publicly about some of the specific tricks of the trade," said Ingrid Hancock of Delair, Tex., who along with Col. Robert Kritz of Merritt Island, Fla., taught the course.

"These counterfeiters are very organized and very bright and if we made a big to-do about the minor errors they make, they'd only correct them and make the job much harder."

Certain areas of the world are renowned as counterfeiting centres, they added. Guatemala has become a busy area in recent years, and high-quality work is done from mobile counterfeit mints in the mountains of Afghanistan.

"Most well-known as a counterfeiting centre, though is Beirut," Mr. Hancock said, "where there is a street called the Street of Counterfeiters.

"In Beirut, you can get 24-hour delivery on a counterfeit of any United States coin of any date, with any mint mark," he added.

The odds of encountering counterfeit U.S. coins have increased markedly in recent years, Col. Kritz added. In 1958, authorities estimated that 17 per cent of the $3 gold pieces sold in the U.S. were counterfeit. By 1974 the raid, about 85 per cent were counterfeit.

"You can buy a counterfeit $3 gold piece in Mexico for $20 and the going price in the U.S. for an authentic piece—if you can pass it off as that—is $1,300."

In Canadian coins, the silver dollar is most frequently counterfeited, particularly for the years 1935 to 1949. Again the risk brings a good return, Col. Kritz said a 1945 silver dollar in mint condition might bring $800 to $900.

The problem for collectors or dealers who get taken is prosecution, both men said in Canada, if the counterfeit coins are not Canadian, issue, the only recourse is a civil action and the plaintiff must prove the coins involved are legal tender in their home country—a tricky proposition at best, and always expensive since it involves bringing in expert witnesses.

In most European countries there are no counterfeiting laws at all, except for their own currency. The Italian government, managed, through a diplomatic lip, to uncover a major counterfeiting ring a few years ago, but the only thing they could charge the culprits with under Italian law was making gold jewelry without a licence, Mr. Hancock said.

In 1974, West Germany passed one of the world's best counterfeiting laws prohibiting the import or manufacture of counterfeit coins of any country. The law was passed after two Vancouver men, Dennis Lade and Arthur Hosmer, presented evidence briefs to the West German government proving the existence of well-organized counterfeiting rings in that country.

There are fairly simple steps that can lessen the average collector's chance of being duped, Mr. Hancock said.

"The most important thing is to get a good book on coins, and they cost as little as 3.50," he said. "The most convenient way in which collectors are taken is by over-

For less expensive coins, the collector should invest in a fairly inexpensive 30-power stereoscopic microscope which will enable him to see signs of wear, or any sloppy counterfeiting tricks, such as a bad soldering job in applying a mint mark.

For a coin in the $25 range, if it is U.S. issue, the collector should insist that the coin be sent first to the federal laboratory in Washington, DC. for verification of its authenticity, he said.

The $2 fee is paid after the test is done, Mr. Hancock said, but the certificate accompanying the coin will potentially add $10 to its resale price.

Col. Kritz said the amateur collector has another inexpensive resource to foil counterfeiters if he purchases a microscope, scale, weights and calipers.

"Each coin has a mint-specified diameter, thickness and dry weight (specific gravity and density)," he said.

Both men had a common word of advice to beginning collectors—never keep coins at home, even if your collection is relatively small.

Red Barn Home Of Summer Theatre

JACKSON'S POINT, Ont. (CP) — For 28 years, The Red Barn has been the home of Canada's first professional summer theatre.

Next year, the barn itself will be 100 years old, and the theatre hopes to be going as strongly as ever—even though many persons thought the barn had been torn down, says artistic director Sam Donaldson.

Three years ago, it was threatened with demolition to make way for a new suburb. The Lake Simcoe Arts Foundation, which now runs The Red Barn, grew out of a committee to save the building.

Located on Lake Simcoe an hour's drive north of Toronto, the theatre has at times been home to such names as the late Brian Doherty, founder of the Shaw Festival and Canadian Mime Theatre, Bill Glassco of Toronto's Tarragon Theatre and Jean Roberts, now director of theatre at Ottawa's National Arts Centre.

Donaldson, who, with Alan Goldfarb, runs the Children's Shakespeare Players in Toronto during the winter, says the audience has always been transient, mainly vacationers from the surrounding cottage country.

Last year, The Red Barn tried what Donaldson calls "theatre with a capital T" — but audiences were poor.

This year, it's back to the tried and true—Neil Simon and Noel Coward, George Axelrod's The Seven Year Itch, and Bob Randall's 4 Into Riv Vu—plus one Canadian play, David French's Leaving Home.

A budget of $30,000 has been allocated for the eight-week season of eight plays, to be performed by a basic troupe of nine, satisfied by six supervisors, three of whom are paid $100 a week for nine weeks by the Ontario Arts Council.

It's a change from the early years when young actors at The Red Barn slept in a farm shack faithfully known as the chicken coop, and worked for nothing.

Since its rebirth under the Lake Simcoe Arts Foundation, it has been contracted with Equity, the actors' union, and its actors are paid a minimum of $152 a week—$182 a week next year.

Donaldson's ambitions are modest—two weeks instead of one in which to rehearse a production, and a circuit in which productions might play in neighboring communities.

But then, since Sibbald's barn became the Red Barn theatre in 1946, it has always had ambitions.

JOHANNESBURG (Reuter) — The orchestra of American drummer Buddy Rich has cancelled a tour of South Africa because of government objections to one of the musicians being black.

Local impresario Don Hughes said the government gave no reason for turning down an application for the tour. But Mr. Hughes said he received a strong hint that it was because of the inclusion of the orchestra's black bass player.

Mr. Hughes said he made a second application omitting the black musician and received approval within 48 hours. He telephoned Mr. Rich who told him the...band would not make the tour without the black musician.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — The late comedian Jack Benny left $3,852,000 when he died last December at 80, it was revealed here Friday. The exact size of Benny's estate was revealed in an appraisal submitted to superior court Judge Pearce Young.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor David Carradine, star of television's Kung Fu series, has been ordered to pay $30,000 to a woman who says he accosted her as he ran naked through his neighborhood.

Anrita Marie Kilty, 28, testified in superior court that Carradine called her a "witch" and tried to tear off her clothes on Sept. 15 near his Laurel Canyon home.

The actor was arrested the same day for malicious mischief after breaking into a neighbor's home. He pleaded no contest to the charge and was fined $200 and placed on a year's probation.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, July 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Stay away from affairs of the heart. Concentrate on things where you use your head. You're much sharper in the business department.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You find it easy to make a buck today, but you could end up spending it quickly on something you need in the home.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your head is in the clouds today. Be careful what you put in writing. You might make a romantic promise you don't intend to keep.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Do your work early, when you're fresh and creative. Later you'll be prone to make mistakes. Just take it easy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) You're in the mood for a good social time today. Don't overdo it and end on a sour note.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you plan some changes round the home, don't be dissuaded from following your own ideas. Others' advice will only cost you more money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Using friends for a sounding board for your ideas today is a mistake. Your thoughts are better. Others would throw you off the track.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You get a nose for a bargain today, but follow your instincts rather than those of someone who can't understand your reasoning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll have a good time with friends today. But since you're both extravagant and unwise, you could blow yesterday's winnings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you think you have good hunches today, follow them only after they pass the test of sound, logical reasoning. A casual acquaintance you've attracted to may not be all he appears to be. Don't be deceived. Stick to tried and true pals.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The recognition you seek will not come from buttering up bigwigs, but from doing your job the best you can and expending extra effort.

Shady Strollers Vital for Babies

By G. C. THORTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For the future regrets of babies will you please comment about carrying babies in a receiving position so that they must look directly into the sun? Is it important? It seems very thoughtless to expose the dear little ones this way.—Mrs. E. F.

It is, of course, unwise to allow infants' eyes to be exposed to the sun. This is particularly dangerous even while the tot is sleeping. I have seen mothers wheel their small children out into the sun to shaded strollers without considering the fact that the sun will eventually move around to a point where it beats down directly on to the eyes.

Infants should be positioned that the sun will strike the top of the head (covered). Extreme times should be brief. Most infants will, when awake, put up sufficient fuss when the sunlight strikes their eyes, but some may not. They may momentarily find the bright objects in the sky an attractive one to stare at.

Direct sunlight can cause retinal damage in persons of any age.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Eight years ago I had a bad cold with sinus trouble, for which I went to a doctor. He prescribed some medicine and a nasal spray. To this day (I am now 27) I am still using it; and if I cannot breathe without it, I have to use it right or nine times a day.

As soon as it wears off, my air passages close up tight, I have to breathe through my mouth, and my ears plug up, and sometimes I start getting a terrific headache.

What on earth am I going to do to get rid of this habit? I have tried three times to throw mine away, but I never got through the first 24 hours because of the breathing problems.

If I did stop, would I ever be able to breathe through my nose again? What should I do?—Mrs. A. P.

Get yourself under a physician's care as quickly as possible. You could be in rather serious trouble already. How long the spray has been done to your nasal membranes would be impossible to determine without direct examination. Yours is one of the worst examples of medication I've encountered in some time.

From the distance there is little other advice I can offer, but I want your letter as an object lesson (granted a most extreme one) on some of the rebound effects from indiscriminate use of such medications. You may have to "wean" yourself away gradually from the inhaler. For your health, you will have to somehow throw the darn thing away!

I hope other readers learn from your example. There are more sensible ways to fight nasal problems.

Besides damage to your nasal tissues, there may be some damage to your lungs. After your years of use of this medication, you'd have a most thorough examination to begin a general "repair job."

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband has been taking two tablespoons of epsom salts every day for a few months. He claims it helps the pain in his joints. He is 69.

The only thing I see is that he has gained weight, and I have been wondering if the water would be doing him harm because high blood pressure?—Mrs. L. M.

I thought this salt water nonsense had been squelched for good, but it seems to prevail. I assume your husband is using epsom salt water for an arthritic condition. It will not help a bit. He'd be better off using aspirin.

Sea water is high in salt content, and if he took enough, it could be a factor in weight gain, since salt tends to hold liquid in the body. It could also aggravate a high blood pressure condition.

Monegasques Train For Life in Casino

MONTE CARLO (Reuter) — Philippe Pastor, a security guard, modestly rakes $11,000 in winning chips over to the plunderer after a spell of congratulation. He slithers for the next play.

Both are in a crowded back room of the ornate Monte Carlo Casino where a unique training school for croupiers is in progress.

They are among a score of working-class Monegasques — citizens of Monte Carlo—in their mid-30s, who share the roles of bankers, gamblers and cool croupier in preparation for a lifelong career as one of the world's most celebrated temples of gambling.

Once a young Monegasque has passed through the 12 years training school and become a full-fledged croupier, it is virtually certain he will never leave the casino.

Pierre-Jean Lacombe-Lacombard, who spent 25 years at the green baize tables before becoming an assistant director of the 183 croupiers here, says of the job: "Working here is like marriage. Once you're in it, it's for life—unless you're terribly cheating."

What drives Philippe into the tense, secretive world of the croupier?

"I'm a Monegasque," he replies. "It's in my blood."

He takes his backroom training each day from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m. nightly, on top of security-guard duties by day.

The school is held once every six years, providing an eight-month course open only to men aged 21 to 40 who have worked at least two years for Monaco's Society des Bains de Mer, the casino owners.

The school provides a flow of new croupiers who help raise its 60 million francs annual profits for the bank. Aspirants for training vie for jobs as messengers and floorsweepers to get a place on the course.

If they pass stiff examination under the searching eye of Giaccardi and other directors, they are allowed to don a croupier's blue jacket and cater to the gambling whims of some of the world's richest players.

"It's a very tiring job," Lacombe-Lacombard said. "It needs nerves of steel. You must keep your emotions and your feelings."

As he speaks, a slender Italian property dealer, clutching half a dozen 50,000-franc ($11,850) chips in his hand, gesticulates at the croupier assisting the roulette wheel in the salon for high-stake players.

"Listen, detail is in your interest as well as mine," the Italian says with a trace of a threat. "Spin that wheel more slowly."

A fleeting flash of anger in the croupier's eyes is replaced by a smile. "Yes, sir, of course," he says.

Two spins later, the Italian has a new stack worth $163,000.

He tosses the croupier a 10-franc (about $2.50) chip. The croupier's self-control has paid off handsomely.

The cagnotte, or kitty—a tenth of every gaming table—represents the croupier's pay. He has no fixed salary and relies on tips from winning gamblers.

The cagnottes are added together and shared among the month among the croupiers according to seniority percentages. Earnings are a closely-guarded secret. Insiders estimate the average croupier's pay at up to $2,300 a month.

Politeness and self-control are important characteristics of the croupier, says deputy casino chief Pierre Fraisi, include honesty, good personal presentation, dexterity (long fingers help), and a nimble mind.

Compassion is not essential but many have it.

"I have been married for life by watching people playing above their means," Fraisi said.

"We always know intuitively when clients are going too far. We try to stop them in time or simply avoid serving them, but it's hard."

North's raise to two spades is the correct bid with his hand. It is worth eight points in support of spades.

South has 13 high card points and two doubletons so his hand counts as 15. However, it would reveal his hand upward because an immediate raise always you to add one point for your fifth trump and two for each additional one. Thus, his hand has become an 18 pointer and he might well jump right to the spade game.

Why does he only rebid to three spades? Because he and his partner were playing standard methods in which the single raise might be made with as little as his supporting point.

In their system the simple rebid to three spades said, "Partner, I really should bid game, but am giving you leeway in case you raised me to two with mind nothing."

Hence, North goes on to four. The hand is perfectly suited, has to lose his two clubtricks, but can not lose any more. The six of diamonds is discarded on the queen of hearts and in spite of the spade finesse being wrong South makes his four spades.

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from Winnipeg asks: "Why do you open one club with this hand?"

♠ K J 8 3 ♥ K 7 5 ♦ A 8 5 ♣ K 9 7

This is normal correct procedure and has been so for over 50 years. The idea is to facilitate rebidding while showing at the one level that your spade suit is just a four-carder. When you do open one club with this type of hand and partner raises to two clubs, don't rebid — just pass.

Federal Action Sought

Edward Kennedy Critical Of Canadian Egg Quotas

WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Edward Kennedy is planning to call for U.S. government action to have Canada's recently imposed quotas on foreign egg imports lifted as quickly as possible.

A spokesman in his office said the Massachusetts Democrat became interested in the quotas after getting complaints from constituents who were major exporters to the Canadian market.

Meanwhile, in a related development Wednesday, the United Egg Producers Organization presented a brief to Congress demanding retaliatory quotas be imposed on Canadian eggs shipped to the U.S.

The spokesman said that after discussions with state and agriculture department officials, Kennedy decided there was enough doubt about whether the quotas violated the rules of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) that they should at least be challenged, the spokesman said.

He said producers in the New England area — among the major exporters of eggs to Canada — were concerned at loss of a large market, but were even more worried that the ceiling before of Canadian egg products, combined with the cut-off in exports, will create a glut on the U.S. market.

The egg producers association, in its brief to the House subcommittee on dairy and poultry, calls for a "strong U.S. governmental request for the restoration of free trade" across the Canadian border.

It also requests an immediate petition to the GATT asking for an investigation of the Canadian quotas and, in the meantime, calls for the U.S. to impose quotas on Canadian eggs equal to those allocated U.S. producers by the Canadians "until free trade is restored."

Canada, which imposed the egg quotas July 3, imported about six million dozen eggs from the U.S. in 1974, while exporting 13 million dozen.

The restrictions permit farmers to supply eggs in 1975 in amounts equal to only 28 per cent of Canadian production. The short-fall quota for 1975 is 54,000 cases of 30 dozen, with 30,000 cases allowed in during the remainder of the year.

U.S. Wheat Sold

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is selling millions of tons of wheat to the Soviet Union with the agriculture department repealing that the purchases will have little effect on food prices at U.S. supermarkets.

The department said Wednesday that Cook Industries Inc. of Memphis has sold two million metric tons, and Cargill Inc. of Minneapolis said it was completing arrangements to sell another 1.5 million metric tons. $17,500.

Vote Taken

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Nuclear power engineers have voted to go on strike Tuesday against Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AEC) unless wage demands are met, the president of the Society of Professional Engineers and Associates (SPEA) said Wednesday.

Dr. Oleh A. Trojan said a strike might halt work on $6-billion worth of Canda nuclear reactor projects underway by AEC and might cost Ontario Hydro $10 million a week in delays on nuclear plants under design and construction.

The engineers, members of the first professional union to be certified under the Canada Labor Code, have been negotiating with AEC since they were certified last December.

AEC has offered the engineers a 17.7-per-cent wage increase over two years, Dr. Trojan said, but this falls short of the 47.5-per-cent over 23 months needed for parity with other professional workers in the energy field.

The engineers currently earn an average annual salary of $17,500.

The Way to Go

Sgt. Robert Hall, city police traffic safety officer, indicates the route to eight-year-old Terry Grant at bicycle roadeo at East Hill playground Thursday. The program, aimed at boosting cycling safety among city youngsters, was a first-time co-operative effort between police and city's recreation department.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Thursday proposed a surprise amendment to the Criminal Code that would enable police to hold roadside screening checks to pick up suspected drinking drivers through breath tests.

The proposed amendment was one of several introduced in the Commons by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

The 1969 breath test law provided that a policeman can require a breath sample from a driver only if he has reasonable grounds to believe the driver is impaired.

Mr. Lang said this limits the preventive action that police may take to detect offenders.

"Since drinking drivers pose a grave and continuing danger to society, the amendments would allow police to conduct roadside screening tests in cases where an officer has reasonable cause to suspect a driver of having alcohol in his blood."

The proposed breath-test penalties would be the same as those for impaired driving, introducing a minimum sentence of two weeks in jail for second offenders and three months for subsequent offenders. More than 100,000 Canadians have been convicted at least once under the breath test since 1969.

Under the present law, a police officer must require a reasonable grounds to believe a driver is impaired when he requires a breath test. The proposed law would require only a reasonable belief that the driver had been drinking.

That means police would be able to monitor bars and taverns at night, getting to drivers before they leave the parking lot. If the driver refused to take the test, he would be subject to the same penalty that would apply if he failed it.

The police also would be able to make roadside checks, setting up a breath-test van and testing any driver they believed had been drinking. A transport department survey last year found that at night, one driver in 13 was impaired and about a-n-quarter of the 7,000 recorded in the survey—had been drinking.

Mr. Lang said the breath test had some impact for a year or two after its introduction but this "seemed to disappear" and tougher measures are needed. The object isn't to get more convictions but to make "the dangers of conviction much more clear," even to casual drinkers.

Judges no longer would have the power to suspend licences on conviction. Licences are automatically suspended in such cases by the provinces.

But judges would be able to grant a conditional discharge—meaning no record, fine or jail term — providing the driver agreed and was willing to take treatment for alcoholism.

This clause would not be enacted until the provinces amended their legislation to invoke licence suspensions in such cases and until treatment facilities were available.

HOUSTON (AP) — In a spirit of good-humored, if cinnamonette, Apollo astronauts and Soyuz cosmonauts executed their own brand of shuttle diplomacy today in a series of visits between their linked orbital homes.

Hotts took visitors on television tours of their spacecraft, family pictures were proudly displayed and meals shared.

Cosmonaut Valeri Kubasov pointed a television camera out the window over the Soviet Union as he gave visiting Vance Brand a high-altitude travelogue of his homeland, a vast stretch from the Black Sea to the Pacific.

Then the spacemen continued their unprecedented space journey, Soyuz commander Alexei Leonov and Brand made early-morning visits to the other's craft.

It was the first of three transfers on this final day of linkup in the first international space mission.

The five spacemen also answered the farewell ceremony and a televised news conference later today, to answer questions submitted by reporters in Houston and Moscow.

Leonov was the first of the Soviet crew to visit Apollo, U.S. astronauts Thomas Stafford and Donald Slayton visited the Soyuz for nearly three hours Thursday after the docking of the two ships 18 miles high.

"I am very happy to be here," Leonov said as he slipped through the Apollo hatch and was greeted by Stafford and Slayton.

Stafford showed off the commander's about Apollo and told Leonov: "It is a very smart computer."

The Soyuz does not have an onboard computer and instead relies on ground control for maneuvring calculations.

Leonov inspected the astronauts' dining area and remarked: "There's very little room here but after all, nobody has to do any dishes."

Kubasov greeted Brand with a joke that read: "Welcome aboard Soyuz."

The cosmonaut showed his host a picture of his wife and two children and Brand told him he had a "good-looking family."

During the transfers, astronauts and cosmonauts are conducting joint medical and scientific experiments and sharing meals. Throughout the joint activities, the Americans speak Russian and the Soviets speak English.

Leonov, who has had three books of his paintings published, today handed Stafford a sketch he had made of him, apparently during the Thursday visit to Soyuz.

The spacemen were up early to prepare for the transfers.

Betrayal Charge

OPP Will Police Indian Reserves

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Free Press says the federal and provincial governments have signed a joint cost-sharing contract to establish an Indian branch of the Ontario Provincial Police for reserves.

But the newspaper says Indian leaders say they have been betrayed because both levels of government promised they would be consultation with the Indian people before any such agreement was signed.

The Free Press says Judd Buchanan, federal minister of Indian and northern affairs, signed the contract Wednesday while Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr is to sign today.

Michael Roy, president of the Union of Ontario Indians, said he and leaders of other Indian organizations will make an official protest to Mr. Buchanan, the newspaper reports.

It quotes Gordon Hopkins, president of the Association of Iroquois and Allied Indians of Ontario, as saying natives do not participate in a policing program set up without consideration of their wishes to control the police force themselves.

The three-year agreement provides for appointment of constables to assist in policing reserves. Indian constables would assign such officers duties as he sees fit and they would work under the direction of the provincial police.

The native constables would be trained by the provincial police detachments in the area of their reserve at the province's expense.

The number of reserve constables would be limited to 100 in Ontario unless higher levels of government agreed to an increase.

The Weather

Synopsis: Warm and humid conditions were forecast for Ontario today with little change expected for Saturday. Temperatures in the southern portions of the province are expected to be in the 30-32 range.

PLO Issue Decision Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet again Thursday discussed the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) issue but Prime Minister Trudeau said a decision still has not been reached.

"Not quite yet," he replied as he left the cabinet meeting for the Commons.

The government has been under pressure to bar the PLO from the Sept. 1-12 United Nations congress on crime in Toronto. The PLO has observer status at the UN, but has been branded by critics as a terrorist organization dedicated to the destruction of the state of Israel.

In the Commons later, Mr. Trudeau said there will be an announcement on the PLO next week.

Flattened Car Examined

Investigating Constable Terry Lewis, left, and Cpl. Al Cockburn examine the small foreign station wagon which carried Margaret Vermilyea, 24, a Belleville nurse, to her death. The car went out of control on Highway 401, crossed the median and was in collision with two oncoming vehicles.

Three Cars Collide

One Dead, Three Hurt Here As Car Crosses 401 Median

By JERRY BROWN

One Belleville nurse is dead and two others seriously injured after a spectacular three-car accident when the car they were in, travelling west on Highway 401, crossed the median and was in collision with eastbound vehicles. The accident occurred on Thursday evening, about 8 p.m.

Dead is Margaret Vermilyea, 24, of 284 Highland Ave., Belleville.

Patricia McAvoy of Belleville owner of toe small foreign station wagon which was destroyed, is listed in serious condition at Belleville General Hospital with head injuries.

The third occupant, Joan Abrams, 23 of Camillon was transferred to Hotel Dieu in Kingston suffering from head injuries and severe facial lacerations. Hotel Dieu specializes in plastic surgery.

Peter Maitland, 46, of Willowdale, Ont. is listed in serious condition with head and leg injuries. He is in Belleville hospital. The passenger in his van, Glen Miller, 15, of Willowdale, was treated at hospital and released.

The driver of the third vehicle, Robert McGeachie, 29, also of Willowdale was uninjured.

The women, all operating room nurses at BGH were en-route to a hospital social gathering when the accident occurred, one night staff nurse said.

Traffic on the 401 was halted for more than 1½ hour and cars were line up for more than a mile while crews removed the victims and vehicles and the pavement was swept clean of debris.

One accident drew scores of curious onlookers who crowded near the railing on the Sidney Street overpass near where the accident occurred.

Even after the way was clear for traffic to proceed police had a difficult time maintaining the flow as the occupants of the more than 250 vehicles slowed as they passed the accident site, to see what had blocked their way.

Witnesses at the scene gave sketchy information and it was almost an hour before Constable Terry Lewis of the Belleville detachment Ontario Provincial Police, was able to begin sorting out the details.

The driver of the women's car is still not known.

12 Die as Train Falls on School

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP). —

Officials say 12 persons were killed and more than 100 were injured Thursday when the air-car commuter train carrying 1,500 persons left the track and hit a dance school in this capital of Brazil.

None of the victims were children, authorities said.

"When the train fell over the wall, all I could hear were screams coming from all sides" said a samba dancer after the train smashed into the school.

Several persons were reported buried in the rubble. The school, the Imperio Serrano, is one of Rio's most famous.

Earlier reports said at least 20 persons died in the accident in the district of Madureira. But the railway department said 12 bodies were recovered, and the morgue confirmed the figure.

"We were here chatting when we heard the noise," said Silas do Imperio, a dance school official. "All I was able to see was the wall collapsing like a bar of chocolate. It was horrible."

Firemen, state troopers, army troops, doctors, nurses and volunteers worked in the wreckage to rescue trapped passengers.

A state trooper ordered several buses emptied for use as ambulances. Private cars rushed other wounded passengers to nearby hospitals.

Several survivors blamed the engineer for the derailment. One said: "It usually takes 30 minutes from the main station to the site of the accident but this engineer made it in only 19 minutes."

The engineer, identified by the railroad spokesman as Vilmar Valentin Linace, 28, was reported to be critically injured.

U.S. Would Oppose Change In UN Stand

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sources at the United Nations headquarters in New York say the United States would oppose any action by the UN Security Council altering the balance in the council's 1967 resolution that formed the basis for an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Egypt is pressing the council for a resolution calling for Israeli withdrawal from occupied Egyptian territory in exchange for Cairo's consent for the UN peacekeeping force (UNEF) to remain in the area. The mandate for the force expires next Thursday.

The 1967 resolution called for Arab abandonment of belligerency against Israel as well as an Israeli pullout from territories occupied in the 1967 Middle East war.

The council conferred for 11½ hours Thursday on Egypt's ultimatum.

Another session was scheduled for today.

Loyalist College Applications Up 30 Per Cent

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Loyalist College is receiving 30 per cent more applications than last year, says its public relations chairman Ernst Kneisel.

Other community college spokesmen from St. Lawrence in Kingston and Brockville also report 10 to 30 per cent increases in applications this summer.

Mr. Kneisel says the highest increase is in the school of health, science and community studies, where 119 more have applied. The school of business and communication has received 73 more applications and the school of technology remains the lowest with 18 more students.

Ron Doyle, principal of the St. Lawrence College campus at Brockville, said total applications are up about 20 per cent over last year from 200 to 250.

He noted the highest increase is in the crafts and design program where applications have risen by about 50 per cent.

Mr. Doyle said the campus' new mental retardation counselling course for this year is filled already.

He said applications to the business and technology programs are about the same as to the same date in 1974.

John Bryden, chairman of student services at the Kingston campus of St. Lawrence College, said applications there are up by about 10 per cent and the campus is enjoying a booming year with no department suffering.

He said statistics show 157 prospective students accepted in technology as of about a week ago while 141 were accepted at the same time last year.

In total number of applicants, 2,350 were received last year and already this year, 2,500 have been sent, Mr. Bryden said.

Tall Ships Still Used To Train Good Seamen

LONDON (CP) — A four-masted sailing ship, the Abraham Rydberg, arrived in the Spencer Gulf, South Australia, in 1938, to load grain for England.

There were 13 such ships altogether, an older existence, even then, was regarded as an anachronism. Largely Finnish-owned, they were confined to the grain trade, in which steamships and motor vessels could lit afford the long waiting periods while loading.

These square rigged ships seemed unlikely to survive and when the Second World War came the fleet disbanded. Some became hulks, like the Moshulu, confiscated by the German Government by midway and stripped of her fittings.

It seemed inevitable that a group of such fine vessels would never be seen again, and yet, after the upheaval of war a square-rigged sailing ships still were occasionally reported, usually with the prefix "the last". For it seemed as if it could never be competitive.

Skeleton crews, overworked and underpaid, risking every imaginable hazard, would no longer be required to operate in what was, after all, a most inefficient business.

The "tall ships", though beautiful, and given to good speeds if wind and sea were kind, were still at the mercy of weather that might keep them beating to windward for weeks in an effort to reach port.

But square-rig has persisted and the crowds that now gather wherever a "Tall Ships Race" is staged testify to the romantic appeal of such splendid vessels. Not only have certain early craft survived, but new ones have been built, often to provide training for young men wanting to become professional seamen themselves, or, equally often, signing on just for the adventure provided.

The system has its detractors, who claim that the hardships and risk of climbing to the yardarm are immaterial at a time when commercial craft ply under engine, but there are just as many favorable the toughening effect of a spell on a sailing ship.

The British Sail Training Association runs two craft for crews aged between 16 and 21 speeds if wind and sea were kind, were still at the mercy of weather that might keep them beating to windward for weeks in an effort to reach port.

But square-rig has persisted and the crowds that now gather wherever a "Tall Ships Race" is staged testify to the romantic appeal of such splendid vessels. Not only have certain early craft survived, but new ones have been built, often to provide training for young men wanting to become professional seamen themselves, or, equally often, signing on just for the adventure provided.

The same thing was scheduled to happen today at the Parkdale playground.

As a result, cycling may be that much safer for city youngsters this summer.

Both events involved a roadeo — a competition to test the cycling skills and safety knowledge of youngsters from the city's 22 playgrounds.

The program — a joint effort of the city's recreation department and the police traffic safety division — was a first.

And response was overwhelming, officials of both departments say it likely will become an annual feature of summer playground programming.

The roadeo is an extension of the regular safety program run in the schools during the year before summer holidays.

"But there are lots of kids riding in the summer and many don't seem to realize how dangerous it is on the road," said Karen Fraser, recreation department coordinator of the events.

The youngsters' responses were tested as they guided their wheels around obstacle courses. Simulated traffic lanes and intersections revealed their knowledge of signalling and other road rules.

On hand with advice on proper procedures and bike-handling was the police department's safety officer — Sgt. Bob Hall.

The East Hill event drew 65 entrants. Another 100 were expected at the Parkdale centre from westend Belleville today.

"This is the first summer for such an event on the playgrounds," said Karen. "But we're hoping to continue it because it seems such a success."

Maximum score was 50 marks and there were eight top entrants at the East Hill event. With marks in control, and identified by playgrounds, they were: First (47) — Mary Patterson 11 Queen Elizabeth; Karen Donaldson 11, Churchill Heights. Second (46) — Lisa Mitchell 11, East Hill; Cell McQuinn, 12, Alemlie. Third (45) — Steve Molnaki, Julie Dixon, Bryson Laale all 12, of the city parks department.

Churchill Heights; Morgan Wilson, 12, Queen Victoria.

Towers Offer View

PICTON — Two observation platforms at the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority's Macaulay Mountain site this summer will provide visitors with a panoramic view of Picton.

David Matthie, a student working with the Experience '73 program says the twin towers now lookout decks offer a 50-mile view. Both are located near the top of the ski hill at Macaulay Mountain.

The thrust of hiker finance is a path to the look-outs that winds up the mountain and across the trees. For the less athletic, access to the platforms from a back road will be available later this year.

Mr. Matthie said a trail now is being cut across the escarpment to join with main nature trails at Macaulay Mountain. There are five miles of trails now cut for hikers and eventually there will be six and a half miles of walking trails.

Maps outlining the trails systems are available at the PERCA recreation and education centre at Macaulay Mountain.

Mr. Matthie observed that the nature trails have proven popular with the public and many hikers enjoy them from spring until fall.

The trails are designed in loop patterns permitting walkers to select long or short routes through the fields and woods at Macaulay Mountain.

Marconi Grape Poles Sent First Signals

WASHINGTON (AP) — In 1886 a 32-year-old Italian set up an apparatus in a vineyard near Bologna and, using grape vine poles to hold his antennas, sent an electric signal from one pole to another without wires. It was the beginning, just 86 years ago, of the wireless telegraph which led to radio communication. In the hands of that young Guglielmo Marconi it progressed rapidly.

In 1896, the inventor secured his first patent in Britain, and on July 13, 1897, he received an American patent. He now has been named inventor of the 38 basic patents, on Dec. 12, 1901, at Signal Hill in St. John's, Newfoundland, he received the first transatlantic message from Cornwall, England, to Newfoundland.

Bigger Pay Cheque Attracting Students

Increased publicity given to recent salary hikes and contract settlements are developing more interest in community college business and technology programs by high school graduates, says John Bryden, chairman of student services at the St. Lawrence College Campus in Kingston.

In an interview Thursday, Mr. Bryden said there are also results inclinations inferred growing due to a recent increase in application to those programs at his college.

He explained students over the last few years have sought careers in the humanities where they will work for little money to cure the ills of society.

However, with a change in the economy and more awareness of high salaries and security in business and technological trades, high school graduates are entering post-secondary courses in these areas, he said.

Mr. Bryden noted, "more women seem to be going into business." He said currently over 50 cent of certified business students are female.

British-born Critical of Vote Change

PICTON — Amendments to the Immigration Act prohibiting British-born subjects the right to vote in Canadian federal elections unless they hold Canadian citizenship papers recently were termed "brazen and illogical" by James Taylor, MPP Prince Edward-Lennox.

When polled by The Intelligencer for their opinions regarding the new policy, five British-born Prince Edward County residents displayed mixed reactions.

PHILIP DODDS

Retired news editor Philip Dodds of Cherry Valley described the amendments as "an insult".

"I have lived here for 60 years and hopefully, have contributed something," he commented.

Mr. Dodds was born in Derbyshire, England and came to Prince Edward with his family as an infant.

He said three of his brothers fought in World War One and he questions the need for a certificate to declare him a Canadian. He plans, however, to apply for the necessary papers permitting him to vote in the next federal election.

ALAN CAPON

A British-born subject who has resided in Canada for the past 18 years Alan R. Capon, an employee of the Picton Gazette obtained citizenship papers as soon as possible.

"I feel British people living permanently in Canada should become Canadian citizens as soon as they are able, but when the federal government amended the Immigration Act to deprive British-born Canadian residents of a long-standing right they should have permitted British subjects who were landed immigrants at the time of the change the opportunity of automatically assuming Canadian citizenship", he commented.

ANDREW JARVIS

Picton town clerk Andrew Jarvis who was born in Broadstone, Scotland came to Canada 46 years ago but did not take out citizenship papers until three years ago. He said he obtained the papers for a trip back to Scotland.

Mr. Jarvis said he feels British-born immigrants who have resided in Canada for the past five years should automatically become Canadian citizens. He added that both the British and Canadians have allegiance to the same monarch and enjoy a close association.

JACK HAYWARD

A Picton furniture store manager, Jack Hayward, who came to Canada in 1929 says he disagrees with the new policy in relation to immigrants who have resided here for five years or more.

Mr. Hayward, who obtained his citizenship papers three years ago for travel purposes observed that when he came to Canada there was a campaign to woo immigrants from Great Britain. Now those who did immigrate many years ago must obtain citizenship papers in order to vote in federal elections.

HELEN DUGGAN

Secretary with the Prince Edward Region Conservation Authority, Helen Duggan, says she has mixed feelings regarding the new policy.

She said she feels that British-born persons raised in Canada should be permitted to vote in federal elections.

"But, if you live in a country you should take out citizenship," she added.

Mrs. Duggan, who was born near Glasgow, Scotland, came to Canada ten years ago and took out her citizenship papers as quickly as possible.

Gone Fishing

Youngsters crowded a "fish pond" in front of Scott's Gift Centre in Picton Thursday afternoon to try their luck in reeling in a prize catch. Hooks were baited by pretty Randee Johnston wearing a straw hat to celebrate Picton's sidewalk sales held this week. The three-day promotional attracted a crowd of shoppers despite the heat wave here.

Trenton Merchants Add New Wrinkle to Sale

TRENTON — Trenton Retail Merchants Association members are hoping to combine a carnival atmosphere with a sidewalk sale in a downtown mall next week, says president Lloyd Wells.

Mr. Wells emphasized Thursday merchants are looking to create a family-oriented three-day mall.

"We want to attract people from more than just to sell them something," he said. "We want to show them the friendly atmosphere of stores and their employees."

This year, from Thursday morning to Saturday at 5:30 p.m., July 24-26, a large number of the 90 members of the association will be displaying their wares downtown. Dundas St. west will be closed to traffic from Division to Front St.

In that stretch of roadway, says Mr. Wells, the association will build a small platform in front of the town hall. It will provide a focus on which a Trenton rock group will play Friday.

Ponies will be brought in as will mechanical rides for children.

The newest wrinkle to the mall, the third in four years in Trenton, is an information centre from which downtown merchants will announce special sales in their stores.

Mr. Wells said merchants been invited to participate in this year's mall. Town service clubs will also be involved.

Youth Faces Impaired Charge

A 18-year-old Frankford youth William Wilson, was remanded in provincial court Monday to Aug. 11 at which time a trial date will be set on a charge of impaired driving in connection with an incident early June 28 in Frankford Trailer Park.

The charge resulted from a report to provincial police that a man was doing "donuts" with his car among the cars at the crowded park at about 2:30 a.m. when he was involved in collision with a vehicle driven by Donald F. Mills, 20 of RR 3, Frankford as one of the cars was leaving.

Top Salesman Recalls Selling Model T's

MADOC — Ask Bill Bateman of the car sales business has changed in the 45 years he's been selling and he will tell you about the people who traded in their horses for tractors and automobiles.

Currently working in Madoc as a car salesman Mr. Bateman says this trade-in method has been rarely employed for many years.

Mr. Bateman, recently awarded the title "Grand Salesmaster" by his employers recalls selling many Model T's.

A farmer during sil his years in sales he also has noted that people trade in their autos more often then they used to.

"Perhaps it's because of the use of salt on the roads during winter," he said, "and also because people used to store the cars during the winter and use a horse and sleigh until the roads were clear in spring."

Bell Honors Rural Educators

HILLIER — The bell from SS Number Six school in Hillier Township will be mounted on a cairn during dedication ceremony at the town hall here on Saturday, July 26 at 8 p.m.

The bell will be declared to be the township's rural schools and to the teachers, trustees and inspectors who served them. A plaque also will be placed at the site.

All previous students of rural schools in Hillier as well as any other interested persons are invited to attend the dedication service.

Trenton PUC Investigating New Sources for Town Water

TRENTON — More water than Trenton now is capable of using is available at the Tremur Lake — Mayhew Creek — Murray wellfield, utilities commissioners learned here Tuesday.

International Water Consultants Ltd., hydrogeologist, Vern Dixon told the commission that approximately 2.73 million gallons a day is the minimum potential the wellfield can produce.

Daily gallonage is therefore approximately 700,000 gallons more than the town's water delivery system is capable of handling, under normal conditions.

Mr. Dixon said the water now available can be utilized by sinking another well. Three now exist.

In a report, he wrote "Wells two and three (jointly limited to the production of 2.02 million gallons daily) fall short of delivering the estimated natural recharge and recharge from the existing pond. This may be due to well plugging and a need for rehabilitation."

Mr. Dixon's study commissioned by the utility last year and worth an approximately $21,000, presents information with a decision it deferred Thursday.

It will await a recommendation from town consulting engineers whether to proceed with enlarging the well field for the delivery of additional water.

The commission decision is closely tied with the costs of enlarging wellfield capacity and the possible costs of increasing the size of the filtration plant.

It is expected that if the gallonage ratio is better by enlarging the filtration plant on Chester St., commissioners will opt for increasing the plant size.

Water for town use comes from both the plant and the well field from where commissioners predict a maximum of 2.7 million gallons a day (MGD) can be obtained now. A 10-inch water line carries well field water contained in the report, to town users.

The 2.73 MGD figure, assumes water is pumped continuously for 20 days between August and October, the period in which Mayhew Creek produces the least water. It is assumed such pumping will be all water in Tremur Lake, the system's reservoir.

Ladder of Success

Picton shoppers Thursday tested the old superstition about walking beneath a ladder when a work crew set up its equipment to repaint the front of the Royal Hotel. A giant cherry basket was required to take workmen to the top of the building successfully.

Board Keeps Minutes Says County Educator

BLOOMFIELD — Prince Edward County Board of Education keeps complete minutes of both public and closed meetings held by school trustees.

This has been emphasized by E. A. Shortt, board business administrator.

A statement from David Shoots — chairman of a parent's group in Ameliasburg Township contesting replacement of a former principal of Keeler School — was published in The Intelligencer June 23.

The report stated members of the group found no record of closed sessions in the board's minute book.

Mr. Shortt says minutes are kept of all meetings. These include regular sessions, committee-of-the-whole and committee meetings.

However, minutes of closed sessions — which include discussion of personnel matters — are kept in a separate book. These may be examined — but with the approval of the board, he said.

Argentines, Lacking Cohesion, Plagued by Economic Chaos and Social Unrest

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

and

Thomson News Service

Why is Argentina which is potentially rich, racially white, and culturally proud, an almost indescribable mess?

This country's failure to resolve her domestic differences, accept workable governments, and terrorism and inflation, is one of the great mysteries in a hemisphere of understandably hard-to-govern societies.

On the eve of social breakdown, the Peronista government of President Senora Isabel Peron accepted the pressure of the labor confederations to hike wages 50 per cent, in a country where inflation climbs at the rate of 100 per cent since January.

A nation wracked with terrorism, political kidnappings and murder, ruled by the residual and divided movement of a dead dictator, stumbles from crisis to crisis.

Yet Argentina is the vast and wealthy agrarian nation which long styled itself "primus inter pares," first among equals of the large nations of Latin America, and Buenos Aires its sprawling capital as the "Paris of the New World."

Those symbols repeated over and over actually tell the story of the country's decay and its bankruptcy of the values it has been lobbed by since the middle of the 19th century.

A thesis which, once blamed on the very thin ranks of Peronista intellectuals, that modern Argentina is a re-round of chaos and near-civil war because it is the product of a philosophy and policy of national plunder.

Built about 1870, Argentina was a placid, fat-cattle nation, its rich pampas with their 10 inches of topsoil partially populated by docile Indian tribes, but mainly Spanish peninsulars concentrated in Buenos Aires and two or three other major urban communities.

The change came with the forced-draft measures of Argentine presidents to meet the food needs of European empires by exterminating the Indian and dividing the land pampas among the country's officer class and European-born merchants.

The fat, the whip and barbed wire, the latter to demarcate landholdings for the new cattle barons, were the weapons of Argentine expansionism of the late 19th century.

The other was the "frigerifico," the frozen meat plant on shore or at sea in the form of the refrigerator ship, which made possible the immensely rich Anglo-Argentine meat trade.

The result was wealth in the hands of a very few for whom the land did not have a meaning other than as a place of exploitation.

The European immigrations of the turn of the century, often compared to those into the Canadian prairies at the same time, served a very different purpose. The poor peasants came to Argentina to service the rich landholders. In Canada, they came to build farms and lives of their own.

Neither rich nor poor Argentines developed a strong sense of a new nationalism but looked to Europe for their inspiration.

The immensely rich—the so-called aristocrats of the expanded Buenos Aires, were encompassed by European values and attitudes, and admitted to it. They shunned any effort at Argentine values.

Peronisme, the philosophy of the "shirt-less ones" the disenfranchised Europeans and their working class descendants in the packing plants and on the pampas, mocked and destroyed pseudo aristocracy.

Evita Peron, the demagogic second wife of the late Juan Domingo Peron, who squirreled the wealth of the plunderers into a new form of state plunder, her huge Eva Duarte Foundation of state hospitals and workers centres.

That was during Peronisme's first and heady years of the late 40s and early 50s. Between that time and its re-appearance with an aged Peron two years ago, the oligarchs returned in the form of generals and civilian presidents. With no national cement of common purpose to hold them together, Argentina's classes have gone into perpetual war against each other.

Juan Domingo Peron fell short of giving the cohesion he promised. Unlike Fidel Castro who created a national society in Cuba and to whom today's Peronists struggle to become, Argentina themselves failed to unite Argentines.

In Canada's substantially different course of national history since the war there is a warning nevertheless for Canada. It is found in that country's failure to create a national consciousness strong enough to replace the appeals of outside cultures, in Argentina's case those of Europe, in ours, that of the United States.

Americans and Energy

It used to be that most American visitors to the Quinte area — to judge from registration plates at feast — were from the mid-west.

Ohio and Illinois seemed to predominate. Of course there would be a goodly number from New York, Pennsylvania too, and a smattering from New England. And let's not forget Michigan or Massachusetts. Alas, one visitor from Kentucky lost his life in an accident in Prince Edward County recently.

Many a State would not be represented in these parts at all, although we have seen them from as far away as Texas, Arizona, and California, as well as from Mexico and Guatemala.

In any event, it's hope Belleville's welcome to its visitors from the United States and beyond is as warm this year as the weather is bright.

On successive days this week cars have been observed "with California plates, with one family shopping at a local supermarket, and in the second instance it was a shiny new-looking compact from that fabled Pacific coast region, and it was parked at Zwick's Island.

New York, incidentally, is introducing the right-turn on a red light, as in Ontario, as a further fuel economy measure. Interesting, in this context, is a statement by U.S. physicist Edward Teller. On a visit to Israel, he dismissed suggestions that the world's energy resources are running out. An inventor of the hydrogen bomb, Teller said nuclear energy and untapped oil supplies would prevent a world energy shortage.

Let's hope he's right. It is as well to realize that it took the so-called energy crisis to shock the western world into a realization it has been profligate in its ways, in its failure thus far to husband available resources.

Still, recession or not, Americans have been coming our way again this year. Great travellers that they are, it would be unusual if it were otherwise.

I JUST TOLD HIM WE'VE SET UP A COMMITTEE TO RE-ELECT THE PRESIDENT AND STAFFED IT WITH A COUPLE OF SEASONED PROS!
FORGE SAYS HELL RUN!

Amin Made His Point

There was something peculiarly African in the context of the post-colonial era in that recent incident involving British teacher Denis Hills.

In an unpublished book, Mr. Hills had referred to the eccentric President Amin of Uganda as a "mental tyrant."

However apt the descriptive, given President Amin's authoritarian ways, Mr. Hills learned that he was not to be trifled with. The Briton was sentenced to death by firing squad, but after some cliff-hanging negotiations and ultimately at the marriage of President Mobutu — like Amin a one-time army sergeant turned general — of Zaire, he was reprieved.

The President insists he remains pro-British. Maybe he is at that, for didn't he offer to send meat and bananas, not to mention a personal donation of money, during the troubled economic times of the three-day work week in Britain.

There are times when Amin is all heart. But he has made his point, where the dignity of his office, if not of his personality, is concerned. If there are any others in Uganda bent on calling him names, the lesson of Denis Hills is that they will do so at their peril.

Lost or Damaged Baggage Costs Air Canada $6 Million a Year

10,000 pieces of luggage that find their rightful owners that is tend to bear about. It's the one Vancouver passenger whose luggage has gone to Halifax that colors our image of baggage-handling inadequacies.

Frankly, we do not know how the airlines hope to better a performance which A.C. Morrison, president of the Air Transport Association of Canada describes as "generally good." But with ever-it is, let's hope it's more than the usual image polishing exercise which amounts to an advertising program telling us how well off we are with a service that only loses a million a year on claims for lost or damaged baggage.

Viewpoints

Ottawa Journal

Richard Nixon's unexpected testimony oath to a special Watergate grand jury understandably whets curiosity as to what he said. Such testimony in closed hearing is secret. But the New York Times opines that "a way should be found to make his testimony available to the public," and that demand will doubtless be echoed in other quarters.

The Globe and Mail

Mark Geiger, an official of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation, told student leaders recently that they should "act with integrity — apparent integrity — which doesn't mean your tactics can't be sneaky. All political parties, governments and pressure groups use sneaky tactics — but you must maintain an aura of dignity."

Isn't it wonderful to see wisdom passed along from generation to generation and to know that the old-fashioned principle of teaching by example — even when the subject is cynicism — has not departed.

Britain, Market Vote Behind It, Faces Uncertain Future

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs

Analyst

Thomson News Service

Britain's prolonged public debate on continuation of membership in the European Economic Community started out as an economic referendum.

By the end it had become just as much a political vote.

The vote to remain within the Community was in the first instance a vote to be a full partner in decisions affecting trade, jobs, money.

And that inevitably leads to the political choice between a closer political link with Western Europe than ever before, or a retreat into left-wing isolationism.

"If Britain leaves now, every other nation in Europe will think twice about accepting our word again," wrote The Guardian Daily Mail on the day before the June 5 referendum.

"On the other hand, a vote to stay in means that at least Britain has prospect—be the prospect of friends and partners, and the prospect of the power to direct our own future."

But the voting results showed that thousands of British people were not convinced that the United Kingdom should have a voice in the affairs of the present national Community, even though the British economy is heavily dependent upon trade with Europe.

To many Britons, economic crises have lost their urgency.

Through one crisis after another, their living standards continued to rise—and fatality has been reduced, wages keep ahead of the inflation rate, and three-week annual holiday has become general, and the ownership of cars, bathrooms and other TV sets has multiplied.

But those who looked just beneath the surface could see a trade deficit of almost incredible magnitude, a big chunk of Britain's gold and foreign-currency reserves, troubled industries such as steel that are prevented by politicians from closing out-moded factories, and a currency that is in danger of falling still further on foreign-exchange markets.

If the downward trend continued much longer, there could be an economic crisis of a gravity that the British public could no longer ignore.

Such a crisis would be far worse if it were to be accompanied by the anti-British resentment that would follow expulsions of the European Economic Community, that a vote for withdrawal would have prompted.

With the referendum safely behind it, Prime Minister Harold Wilson's Labor government must turn its attention urgently to the hard economic decisions that it has been putting off for much too long.

In itself, the referendum has not solved any economic problems. Worse, it has widened the split between Mr. Wilson's moderates and the left-wing Laborites such as Industry Minister Anthony Wedgwood Benn (who had opposed EEC membership with the shrill charge that the Community had meant the loss of half a million British jobs).

The period between now and the end of 1976 could be crucial for the British economy. More than anything else, Britain needs the help that only a worldwide economic recovery could give it—and such a recovery is unlikely before next year.

In the meantime, Mr. Wilson is handicapped by dividends caused by a referendum that has used over five million pounds within his own party, and the resentment of British industry at the unnecessarily rapid march toward all-out socialism that has been spearheaded by Mr. Benn.

Orangemen's Celebration

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Who is blaming the Orangemen exclusively for bigotry in Northern Ireland? There is bigotry on both sides of the issue and it was, I believe, in order to deter the revival of such bigotry in our own country that your correspondent deplored the parade. It, I do not logical to condemn violence in Northern Ireland and at the same time, condone an activity which has been instrumental in fomenting violence in that country. By permitting the 49th parade, Belleville has taken a retrograde step that will be regretted by those who are opposed to the spread of bigotry and violence in our community.

The key to the trouble in Northern Ireland is explained in that paragraph of your editorial pertaining to what you call the strength of the Orangemen. When any group of men celebrate for 300 years the victory of a two-month war, Catholic. I would refer to it in many ways but hardly as a symbol of strength. To me, it proves that even after 300 years the Orangemen of Ireland have not become Irish. The only solution to the problem is to return to the land from whence they came providing that land would accept them.

MORE

Any Bellevillian who told you about conditions—in Belfast on July 12, must have been wearing rose colored glasses. I have first hand knowledge of the situation in Belfast on the glorious twelfth and can assure you that trains leaving that city for the south are packed with Catholics and non-Catholics wishing to escape the violence of the celebration.

As regards your comments on the strife in Northern Ireland, I do not remember having neglected to mention that it is not the Catholic politician in Belfast who have spurned the British efforts to re-establish some semblance of order to that unhappy land but rather those who wear the Orange Sash, such as Paisley and Craig.

A Shift in Emphasis

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

With the successful completion of the 12th of July Com-memoration, it is felt necessary to reply to the letter to the editor published June 19.

While it would be more effective if the writer could be contacted personally, to discuss the matter, it is evident that the opinions expressed are those held by many who do not understand the reason for the existence of the Loyal Orange Association.

It is true the Association had its foundings following the religious battles of the late 1600's, but students of history are well aware that these were turning points in world history. The victory of King William 111, Prince of Orange, over the forces of King James, secured the Protestant succession to the British throne, which still exists today. As a result of this event, men who supported this cause, both Irish and of other lodges, and the style has been named, Orangemen. The purpose has somewhat changed, especially in Canada.

Commemorating this significant event in history is not intended to perpetuate the battle between religious factions, but rather to establish and maintain an indifferent public remember that it was by God's grace that our life style would be greatly different than it is. The Loyal Orange Association stands for loyalty to Queen and country, propagation of the Protestant faith and maintenance of the principles of British jurisprudence that are the foundation of civil liberties in any section of the world.

The Association in Canada was originally formed by men of Irish descent, now to a large degree, just today, embraces in its membership both men and women of many nationalities, who are certainly a cosmopolite expressed for the battles being fought in Northern Ireland, but those feelings are not embodied in the Canadian organization.

In the last quarter century the Loyal Orange Association has undergone a change in emphasis of interest from political to social concerns. In every province of Canada there are halls provided for the use by the young, the elderly or the ill and handicapped. Activities in Eastern Ontario is planning a Senior citizens' residence in the Frankford area, which will ultimately accommodate about 100 people.

If the writer of the previous letter is interested in finding out the true situation today, he or she should write to the undersigned and any information desired will be gladly made available.

Cycling in the Big City

Letter in The Globe and Mail

I am a cyclist. I also drive a car for my business as a parcel pickup. I know that there is a definite hate for cyclists. Bad drivers push one out of steel and concrete into steel. However, even the worst cyclist does not pile into another bicycle — let alone a car.

As a cyclist, I am sick of being abused by drivers. If it were only verbal abuse, I would not be afraid — only annoyed at the lack of consideration. However, cyclists are physically harassed by drivers, so, not to the point of death, but to great lengths of danger and danger.

I am also a woman. I was born this way and I have a right to be so. This does not entitle male drivers to boot at me or make a joke out of endangering my life by cutting in front of me — quite deliberately — as I cycle in bicycle lanes across Bloor St., I must concentrate on the traffic and also have to watch out for garbage cans on the side of the road because bicycle wheels are just the right size to get into these hazardous slots. Also I must watch for the door that sits at a right turn, pedestrians stepping out in front of me and yellow lights. Now, in all of this, when someone yells at me or honks outside me blows a peppercan or whistle in my ear and then roars off laughing, it is more than humiliating. The shock makes me skid and swerve. Suddenly I am totally aware and I am no longer careless drivers. I become a cyclist and I have a perfect right to be on a bicycle.

Cyclists have no way to stand up because someone is

Volunteers Key to Pre-school Centre

TILLSONBURG, Ont. (CP) — Seventy-year-old Laura Wilkinson is "keeping young" as a volunteer at the Tillsonburg Developmental Centre.

This unique pre-school for handicapped children in the counties of Norfolk, Oxford and Elgin has been built on the base that it is an entire community effort. Since its conception in 1967, the centre has been the focus of a co-operative input from institutions, clubs and individuals throughout the Tillsonburg area.

Beverley Mercer, superintendent of the centre, said that its function is "to provide an environment in which each child can develop to his maximum potential."

She said the centre creates this environment by building a close relationship between the teachers, volunteers and the children's parents.

Mrs. Wilkinson travels 80 miles every day on each trip from her home at Courtland, Ont. to the centre. She specializes in looking after Shane who is four and has been at the centre for two years.

All the children are taken to the centre by taxi from their homes. Three teachers and a dozen volunteers staff it during its three-hour morning operation.

The children are divided into three groups—junior, immediate and senior—on the basis of age and according to the degree to which their handicap distracts from their ability to learn.

The junior room stresses gross motor functions; the development of walking, arm movements and other similar actions.

The intermediate room, operating on a more advanced level, emphasizes crafts prior to academic skills and concentrates on fine hand-eye control. The senior room is used for academic instruction. The three age groups rotate among the rooms daily, while teachers exchange rooms every two weeks.

The centre is closely connected to the Children's Psychiatric Research Institute in London, Ont., where the children are periodically taken for testing.

The results of the tests are reduced to the centre where they are used for reference and placed in the permanent records kept for each child.

By maintaining close contact with the resources available in London, the personal environment of the centres may be used to its greatest potential, said Mrs. Mercer.

She is convinced that it could not operate without its 12 volunteers. Each school day, at least 15 individuals from the tri-county area go to the centre in the same taxis that take the children.

"Our volunteers come from all walks of life," said Mrs. Mercer. "Some are parents or relatives of our children, while some are people from around the area who come simply to be a part of the program."

The result she said is a system that operates together as a group effort, within the further co-operation of the entire community.

Large Scale Love

Laura Wilkinson, 74, a volunteer worker with the Tillsonburg, Ont. Developmental Centre, comforts four-year-old Shane during a visit. The centre, a pre-school for handicapped children was begun in 1967. Beverly Mercer, superintendent of the centre says that its function is "to provide an environment in which each child can develop to his maximum potential."

Author Jane Austen Recognized

(CP)—In recognition of Jane Austen, who is regarded as Britain's greatest woman novelist, a stamp bearing her portrait has been issued in the bicentenary year of her birth.

A bibliographical dictionary which gives in capsule form at the head of each author's entry his or her biography has Jane Austen entered as: "English novelist, daughter of rector of Steventon in Hampshire; lived an uneventful life; died at Winchester."

Jane's life may have been uneventful in the sense that she did not travel the world; she did not get married or have children; her personal behavior and her choice of friends did not bring her into disrepute—but it would be wrong to say that she lived an empty or an unfulfilled life.

Jane was a seventh child and one of two sisters who grew up in the same sort of slightly scatty yet essentially happy family atmosphere that she described in Pride and Prejudice.

Her five brothers all left home, two of them to serve in the Royal Navy. After the death of her father she led a wandering existence, dividing her time between the homes of her three civilian brothers; but the last years of her short life (she died in 1817) were spent at Chawton, a small house on her brother Edward's Hampshire estate in southern England, with her mother and sister.

Although Jane never married there was a romance in her life, the circumstances of which are rather mysterious. She was engaged to a clergyman who died before they could marry.

It was mysterious because this unhappy experience seems from her written records (and her beautifully written letters have been preserved) to have had little effect on her. Perhaps so self-possessed a person as Jane was happy not to have condemned herself to being a parson's wife.

Her writing was really her life. As a young girl she wrote for her family's amusement a large number of burlesques and a comic history of England. By her early 20s she was seriously practising novel writing and was hard at work.

When talking about this period one comes up against complications over the dating of her work that are complex. Several of her novels, although completed in this period, were revised at a much later date to produce the novels one knows today.

It is known that a first version of Northanger Abbey was sold to a publisher by her father, acting on her behalf (all her dealings with publishers were conducted by her father, and after his death by her brother), but the publisher obviously did not think highly of it and made no effort to put it into print. Similarly an early version of Pride and Prejudice was turned down.

Clearly publication was not Jane's aim. She went on writing, often apparently sitting in the corner of a room where other family activities were going on, and it was not until 1811 that Sense and Sensibility was published in three volumes. As with all the novels published during her lifetime, her name did not appear on the title page, which merely stated: "By a lady".

Babbette, 6, Author

TORONTO (CP) — Babbette Macmillan, a six-year-old Toronto girl, may be Canada's youngest published Canadian storyteller when one of her funny fantasy tales appears in print this summer along with the stories of 90 other young writers.

Books by Kids, a series of three books of stories written by children in the publishing venture of Anne Millyard, a Toronto-area writer.

Last winter, after Mrs. Millyard taught a creative writing course and discovered a wealth of untapped talent in the classroom," she asked young Toronto writers to submit their stories to her.

The response from children, parents and teachers was overwhelming. She received 600 manuscripts in the first month.

"Children have reacted enthusiastically to some of the excellent work done by other children and clearly would like to read more of it," Mrs. Millyard said in an interview.

Contributors sent her a wide range of material but "their vision's influence on the creative processes of today's young writers was not insignificant," she said.

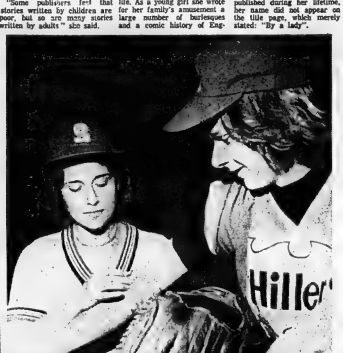
"Dope, suicide, divorce—these are subjects some of Canada's youngest novelists writers are exploring," she said.

But Mrs. Millyard, mother of two children, was encouraged to find among the pile, "material with an appealing freshness, about a vivid and excitingly funny fantasy world."

The children are involved in the project as writers, readers and editors and will follow the production of the books all the way to the printing plant, she said.

Mrs. Millyard is hoping Books by Kids will break down adult prejudices against children's literature. She and her researchers have found only four Canadian books written by children.

"Some publishers feel that stories written by children are poor, but so are many stories written by adults" she said.



After graduating from a two-year course in athletic training and management at Sheridan College in Oakville, Ont. Sherri Lee, 22, was hired as a woman trainer with the Stratford Hillers of the Intercounty Baseball League.

Sherri Lee, Baseball Trainer

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — After graduating from a two-year course in athletic training and management at Sheridan College in Oakville, Ont., Sherri Lee, 22, has been hired as woman trainer with the Stratford Hillers of the Intercounty Baseball League.

"I didn't know what to expect at the beginning when they told me we were going to have a female trainer," said playing-manager Larry Appel. "Now she's just like one of the guys . . . well not quite."

When Miss Lee arrived, the players found themselves watching their language a bit. But now Appel says everybody is "getting back to clubhouse talk."

Sherri said she doesn't mind the raw language.

"I know it's not directed at me. The day of a game players are bound to be tense and that's one way they relieve their tension."

Miss Lee is seeking a full-time therapist job but in the meantime she is enjoying her stint with the Hillers.

Earlier she was assistant trainer with Sheridan College's football team and that raised a problem. The quarterback objected to the idea of having a woman in the dressing room and was ready to refuse to be in the team picture if she was. But the photo session was eventually cancelled for other reasons and the issue was never resolved.

Last winter she was head trainer with the University of Toronto men's swimming team and also did some work at the Canadian open wrestling championships.

One of her gripes is that women's teams are often left with little or no trainer help.

"The guy's injuries have more priority."

She says she believes there is a need for sports therapists, both men and women at all school levels. But budgets are tight and such jobs are scarce.

For Women's Year

TORONTO (CP) — More than $32,000 has been awarded in grants covering 16 projects by the Ontario government for International Women's Year. Some new groups granted include a women's community employment centre in Toronto; a visible minority women's group in Windsor, Ont.; an Indian women's homemakers' club in Nestor Falls, Ont., and a women's centre prison group in Kingston, Ont.

Police Watch Child Abusers

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan social services department intends to keep policy informed of suspected child-abuse cases under an agreement made following an inquest at which doctors and welfare workers were criticized for not reporting cases to the police.

The case involved a three-year-old boy who was taken to hospital at the age of two months after suffering injuries, suspected to have been the result of child battering.

The boy, who was without basic reflexes, partially blind and deaf, underweight and believed to be suffering from brain damage, was made a ward of the state soon after being taken to hospital in January, 1971. He died last August.

Gas Shortage Won't Affect Quinte Customers Says Supplier

The 7,000 homes using natural gas in the Belleville and Trenton areas will not be affected by gas shortages predicted by the National Energy Board (NEB) says Ted Pearse, local manager for Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd.

Referring to a question about the statement, issued Wednesday by federal Energy Minister Donald Macdonald, announcing domestic gas consumption would be restricted and exports to the United States would be reduced until new supplies were developed, Mr. Pearse said the company is doing "business as usual."

Mr. Macdonald also said federal legislation giving the NEB power to allocate gas supplies to the provinces would be introduced to discourage wasteful use of the natural gas.

Mr. Pearse said he has received no word from his company's head office in Toronto indicating a change in policy for Belleville and said his branch will continue to solicit business on a regular basis.

Most of the 7,000 homes use the natural gas for hot water and heating.

The average yearly bill for a standard home in the Belleville - Trenton area is about $185 since the last increase in November a gas company employee said.

Mr. Macdonald in his statement, said the domestic restrictions would have a greater effect on industrial users able to convert to alternate energy sources.

Mr. Pearse said he knew of no company policy forthcoming that would restrict the amount consumed by an industrial user.

He cited the building of Century Place, which is destined to become a large, local industrial user of natural gas, as an indication of the company's intentions to continue selling the product.

Dennis Timbrell, provincial energy minister told reporters Thursday there will be no shortage of natural gas for use in homes or industry this winter in Ontario.

Mr. Timbrell said householders would be given priority gas reserves to be used for cooking and heating. A separate ranking plan would be developed for commercial and industrial users.

A provincial allocation plan is being developed and legislation would soon be introduced to implement it, Mr. Timbrell said.

The latest word Mr. Timbrell said he had from distributors serving Ontario indicated there would be no need to implement rationing this winter.

Bowling Strikes Fancy Of Many Senior Citizens

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Summer may not be the season for bowling but people in the know say interest in the competitive sport is growing by leaps and bounds cachyear.

And according to spokesmen from Belleville's top bowling lanes the bowling boom is also occurring here as well as across the country — general opinion has it's still one of the few leisure activities that has not been hit by inflation.

Tom Swaluk, manager of Brunswick Belleville Bowl, said the game costs no average bowler between $1.75 and $2.50 a week for league participation — and that fee includes the annual banquet and trophies.

For about $40 even the most avid bowler can acquire, on a notch above as well as a bowling ball for the basic game. Between Brunswick Belleville Bowl and Bowlo-Drome there are an estimated 2,200 bowlers in Belleville.

And most of them are league bowlers because in the last few years open bowling has all but been eliminated due to the extensive demands on the available bowling lanes.

Robert Sills assistant manager of Bowlo-Drome said it is almost impossible for people to walk off the street and find an empty lane through the fall and winter months. However, Mr. Sills did say things slow up in the summer months.

Mr. Sills said that during the early day bowlers usually seemed to lose numbers but since the mid-60s has gained steadily.

No one seems to have an explanation for the decline but both bowling managers said the influence of television and professionals earning large amounts of money has attracted many to the game.

Mr. Swaluk said the game provides a great social outlet for groups of people who like to be together for an evening's entertainment without too much expense. He said ladies bowling leagues are popular on the afternoons.

Both men said that in the past five years senior citizens are showing a great interest in the game. Brunswick Belleville Bowl has a regular bowler who is 84-years-old and Bowlo Drome's interest in the winter and twice a week in the summer.

Scouts Plan Camp For Less Fortunate

Camp leaders under Bob Shaw will be giving up their holiday time to keep things organized for the young campers. Scout spokesman Ken Bartlett said that the second year for the Scout project and a second camp for older boys is being considered for later in the month.

Search Continues For Missing Men

MARMORA — Provincial police divers are continuing their search today for the bodies of two canoeists believed drowned in Crowe Lake Wednesday evening.

The search was triggered by the discovery of a drifting canoe containing life jackets and paddles and the reports of onshore witnesses who said they heard shouts for help and saw a man clinging to an overturned canoe.

Marmora OPP today confirmed they are looking for two male adults believed to be visitors to Canada. The canoe is believed to have overturned about a half mile from shore in water 15 to 50 feet deep.

Divers began their search Thursday morning and were back on the job at 6:30 a.m. today but had been unsuccessful at press time.

Although police believe they know the identity of the victims, no confirmation can be made until the bodies are found and positive identification made, an investigating officer said.

Damage to the car is estimated as minor by police and to the bicycle about $40.

Hillcrest Ratepayers to Take New Sewer Cost Issue to OMB

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Hillcrest homeowners have decided to take their protest over high sewer service costs to the Ontario Municipal Board.

The decision came Thursday — exactly a week since Ontario Housing Minister Donald Irvine discussed the dispute on the spot.

The move was approved at a meeting of Hillcrest Ratepayers Association after members heard a report on the minister's visit from its president Ken Brooks.

Mr. Brooks later indicated the association was not completely satisfied with the minister's visit. It could not afford to delay seeking a solution to the cost of sanitary sewer installations which have seen local taxes soaring in the sanitary sewer portion.

A month ago, the association decided to seek a meeting with the OMB and asked city council's support in a bid for grants or low-cost loans to lighten the tax bills.

The sequel arranged by Mayor Robin Jeffrey, was Mr. Irvine's visit to city hall — and a tour of Hillcrest.

Mr. Irvine promised to contact the environment ministry about grants or loans and also examine the possibilities of housing development in Hillcrest. This would ease the tax burden by spreading it among more homeowners. He promised answers within two months.

Nonetheless the association decided to return to its original intentions and seek a meeting with the OMB to possibly revise the bylaw under which the sewers had been installed.

"The only reason we're doing this is we're afraid of the delay in going through the minister of housing," said Mr. Brooks later. "We figure we should go to the OMB. I think they could arrange to have a subsidy — for this area."

He said the group was "not satisfied" with the meeting with Mr. Irvine since "he was talking about housing" as a solution.

"Maybe they're going to work on it and get some money for us. But we can't be sure. That's why we're going to the OMB."

Earlier, Mr. Brooks told the meeting that during the session with Mr. Irvine Mayor Jeffrey said the bill was good for the environment could not single out Hillcrest for help and she had a letter to that effect.

Development of more housing through Ontario government programs was suggested, it seemed a long-term solution.

Mr. Brooks said.

Such housing now is made possible in Hillcrest with the recent lifting of a years-long zoning freeze which permits property owners to split lots. Such lots — a hangover from the days when the suburb was part of Thurlow Township — are one of the reasons of discontent in the area. Big frontages mean large local improvement charges now running at $17.85 a foot for the sewer service.

Inflation is another problem. Mr. Brooks noted the 1969 approval of annexation of Hillcrest proposed the city expedite sewer and water installations.

"They've made us wait 14-17 years to put sewers in and the costs have become so great I feel it would only be fair to arrange for a subsidy of 60 per cent."

Letter An Insult Says Cox

A letter from a New Democratic Party candidate supporting Hillcrest homeowners over high taxes was dismissed as political "hoax" and an insult to city council Thursday night.

The letter, read to Hillcrest Ratepayers Association, was from Carson McLaughlan, NDP Candidate in Quinte.

The criticism came from a city councillor, Joe Cox.

"In his letter, Mr. McLaughlan said he supported Hillcrest's resolution in a current dispute over the high cost of sewer installations.

Mr. McLaughlan added: "Mayor Robin Jeffrey has used Hillcrest for political football before as you know, and the rumor is that she is at it again."

Mr. McLaughlan said property taxes in their present form should be abolished and should be geared to income and services provided.

"That's bunk," retorted Ald. Cox.

He said the letter made misstatements about the mayor and city council. More had been done municipally in Hillcrest in the last three years than during the past quarter-century, said Ald. Cox.

Youth Placed On Probation After Shooting

An 18-year-old Belleville youth fined $300 and placed on probation for 18 months following his conviction on a charge of dangerous use of a firearm is provincial court Thursday.

The youth is identified as David Arnold Wessels of 64 South Front St. He was prohibited from having an offensive weapon in his possession as a condition of his probation.

Wessels was charged April 26 after a man at Victoria Park reported a police someone was shooting in the direction of the park from in front of 64 South Front St.

Proposed Bylaw Would Regulate New Building

A set of municipal, zoning bylaws that if passed will govern new building in the city limits, will be ready for presentation by fall, says Bert Deyarmin, director of planning for the Quinte Planning Board.

During a meeting Thursday, Mr. Kenny indicated the bylaw might be ready before that time and that some consultants are satisfied with the document. Belleville's subsidiary planning advisory committee will begin considering implementation.

The first draft of the bylaw was forwarded to planning board staff more than a month ago. A meeting between the staffs of the board and consultants, Tulloss, Sims Rubicki Ass. Ltd., has been called for Thursday.

Mr. Kenny said there are "many" changes to be made on the drawings which consultant presented.

Last January Belleville city council adopted an official plan and forwarded it to the province's ministry of housing for ministerial approval. There has been no official word back, said Mr. Kenny.

Letter Opposes Trailer Park

Belleville city council received a letter opposing the proposed trailer park on Wallbridge-Loyalist Sideroad Thursday night.

The letter, read to Hillcrest Ratepayers Association, was from Carson McLaughlan, NDP Candidate in Quinte.

The criticism came from a city councillor, Joe Cox.

"In his letter, Mr. McLaughlan said he supported Hillcrest's resolution in a current dispute over the high cost of sewer installations.

Mr. McLaughlan added: "Mayor Robin Jeffrey has used Hillcrest for political football before as you know, and the rumor is that she is at it again."

Mr. McLaughlan said property taxes in their present form should be abolished and should be geared to income and services provided.

"That's bunk," retorted Ald. Cox.

He said the letter made misstatements about the mayor and city council. More had been done municipally in Hillcrest in the last three years than during the past quarter-century, said Ald. Cox.

Northern Earnings Up

Northern Electric Co. Ltd. reports new record highs in sales and earnings were set in the first half and second quarter of 1975.

Consolidated sales totalled $568.3 million in the six-month period, compared with $455 million in 1974. Consolidated earning for the first half of 1975 were $36.5 million. In 1974 they totalled $28.8 million.

Although no layoffs have recently been announced at Northern's Belleville plant, the workforce remains at a fraction of the level of mid 1974.

Ellie's Blast Lifts Orioles

Hendricks' game-winning hit came off Bill Campbell with two out in the 12th, heading all the more dramatic.

With one away, Bobby Grich drew a walk from Campbell, 3-2, and Tommy Davis singled. After Doug DeCinces popped out, Hendricks planted his fourth homer of the year into the right field stands.

Dave Chalk's two-run homer capped a three-run sixth inning and Morris Nettles' single theme two more in the seventh, leading California's new Millwaukee, Ed Figueroa, 8-5, checked the Orioles on four hits as the Angels snapped a five-game losing streak.

Wilbur Wood pitched a two-hitter for his second consecutive shutout as Chicago beat Cleveland in the first game of their doubleheader.

Aurelio Rodriguez drove in four runs with a two-bagger and single and a two-run double to lead Detroit to victory in the second game.

Detroit batted hitter Cecil Cooper hit a home run, triple and double and drove in four runs, leading Boston over Kansas City.

The victory was the eighth in a row for the Red Sox and improved their lead in the American League East to 2½ games over both Milwaukee and New York.

A double by Billy Williams and singles by Joe Rudi, Gene Tenace and Sal Bando scored three third-inning runs that helped Oakland stop Cleveland.

Ferguson Jenkins pitched a three-hitter and drove in three runs to lead Texas over New York.

Bowie Kuhn

Commissioner Still on Job

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The vote was 9-8, the closest 23-to-2 vote you'll ever see.

By virtue of baseball's sometimes-mysterious bylaws, Bowie Kuhn came perilously close to being ousted as commissioner Thursday night. Only a vast majority of the owners were satisfied that he be the best choice since taking office in February, 1969.

The quirk was the rule that requires the commissioner to have a minimum of nine votes in each league. Kuhn had that and more in the National League where his support was led by Walter O'Malley of Los Angeles Dodgers. But he had only eight votes in the American, one short of the number he needed for re-election.

Besides Oakland and Baltimore, outspoken opponents of the commissioner were New York Yankees and Texas Rangers who also had voted against him when the matter came up at the AL meeting a day earlier.

As it turned out, it was a good thing for Kuhn that the AL opposition softened when it did. The AL vote was unofficial—more a feeling-out basis of the sentiment of the owners was.

Had the matter not come up in that manner, a formal vote might have been called at the joint meeting, before Kuhn's supporters had time to change any minds. And if the first vote taken had been a formal one, Kuhn would be on his way back to Wall Street today instead of enjoying the security of a new seven-year contract as commissioner.

When it learned of the AL sentiment, Bud Selig moved that if the American League would reconsider the vote, he would abstain. The request was refused. The AL delegation left Kuhn to make up. The owners would, however, agree to abide by the smaller since no decision really had to be made until the February, six months before the expiration of Kuhn's first term.

But Selig voted for Kuhn in that. The commissioner said he would have voted for him if the owners moved in that direction. Then the backroom bickering began. The minds of the New York and Texas clubs changed and overnight, the four negative votes became two and two and now the formal vote is 9-8. Kuhn had failed to get the votes he needed for re-election.

The vote he would have lost 9-8 to 8-9 in the AL.

In the final vote on Kuhn's re-election, only Oakland and Oakland stood firm in opposition to the commissioner.

Oakland owner Charles O. Finley had two angry words to exchange with Kuhn after the vote. The first came when the commissioner thanked the owners for their support and made a remark about "the quality of the opposition."

Later Kuhn virtually ordered Finley to leave a conference room where the commissioner was meeting with reporters. The two exchanged heated words that despite Kuhn's new pact, there will be peace between Finley and the commissioner.

Rogers and Murray Blank Reds

MONTREAL (CP) — Cincinnati Reds were on a 9-game winning streak that had helped their season average and record to an astounding 61-39.

Montreal Expos were a somewhat less-than-mediocre 25-48.

Then many of the 30,084 in attendance could have been pardoned when the Expos blanked the Reds 2-0 in their National League baseball game Thursday night.

Not so Reds manager Sparky Anderson.

"We've lost 30 games this year," said Anderson, bitpen for his relaxed approach to directing a super-team. "It's happened before. It ain't the first loss.

Given the combined seven-hit shutout pitching of starter Steve Rogers, 6-7, and reliever Dale Murray, the Expos got the only run they needed when Pepe Mangual hit a sacrifice fly off loser Jack Billingham, 10-4, out of the park. It was his eighth home run of the year.

Pete Mackanin homered in the fifth inning and Larry Parrish added a run-scorer, the latter infield single in the sixth inning.

Cindy Battling English Channel

(CP) — Toronto swimmer Cindy Nicholas, 17, plunged into the English Channel today, hoping to be the first woman to swim the crossing to France. But veteran observers said conditions were far from favorable.

Cindy, in high spirits and wearing a bright red bathing suit, Shakespeare Beach at 9 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT) under misty, overcast skies.

She had been wailing here since Tuesday for favorable tidal and wind conditions. Although the water was calm, the wind was picking up speed and could make for a choppy crossing. Cindy's escort vessel, Mercura.

Cindy swam Lake Ontario last August in 15 hours and 15 minutes, breaking the previous record set by Marilyn Bell in 1954.

Cindy went for a one-way channel crossing was set in 1964 by Tom Blower of Britain in 16 hours and 35 minutes. American Lynne Cox, 17, has swum within a tantalizing minute of breaking it in 1972.

Dodgers Can't Gain Ground

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Los Angeles Dodgers suddenly found themselves with the opportunity Thursday of making at least a small dent in Cincinnati Reds' 13½-game lead in the National League West Division but the Dodgers dropped the ball.

The Reds ended a 10-game winning streak with a 3-0 loss to Montreal Expos while the Dodgers lost 5-2 to Pittsburgh Pirates who retained their 2½-game edge over Philadelphia Phillies in the East.

The Phillies beat Houston Astros 6-5 in 11 innings. New York Mets defeated Atlanta Braves 4-3. Cardinals defeated San Francisco Giants 1-0 and Chicago Cubs edged San Diego Padres.

The Dodgers were victims of the Pirates' long-ball hitting. Dave Parker's two home runs and Willie Stargell's solo shot, all off Andy Messersmith, gave Pittsburgh its total victory in the last seven games.

Parker hit his first of the game in the second inning, Rennie Stennett singled home a run in the third, Stargell unloaded his 18th in the sixth, Parker got walked and Parker hit his 17th of the year in the eighth. John Hale's earlier RBI single drove in both Los Angeles runs against Bruce Kison.

Montreal's Pepe Mangual and Pete Mackanin hit homers while Steve Rogers and Dale Murray baffled Reds' bats for seven hits.

DALE MURRAY

Astros, Expos Poor Dealers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston Astros and Montreal Expos have been strictly stockholders in the company that built the Astrodome.

Houston once traded Joe Morgan, Jack Billingham, Cesar Cedeno, Denny Menke and Ed Armbrister to Cincinnati Reds for Tommy Helms, Lee May and Jim Stewart.

Then they traded Jimmy Wynn to Los Angeles Dodgers for Claude Osteen, who was ineffective.

May ended last winter in another deal when the Astros sent him and minor league Jay Schaaf to Baltimore Orioles for Enos Cabell and Rob Andrews.

May now leads the Orioles with 55 runs batted in and 12 home runs.

Meanwhile, Montreal is the proud possessor of perhaps the most disastrous spring training deal made by a National League team this season.

The Expos sent pitcher Mike Torrez and outfielder Ken Singleton to Baltimore for pitcher DaVe McNally and outfielder Rich Coggins.

Singleton leads the Orioles with 59 runs batting average and 57 RBI's. Torrez is 9-5 with Baltimore, McNally retired, then suffered a case of blisters which would prevent that he had to be sent to hospital. Coggins was traded to New York Yankees.

Then, after the Astros and Expos, the bottom has fallen out of the Montreal team. It is last place in the National League East Division, 13½ games behind Cincinnati, and Montreal trails Houston by 11½ games behind Pittsburgh.

It's been another year for trading in the NL. One trend emerged on the senior circuit. The big name deal was the one-for-one exchange of Chicago Cubs' Pitchers Geoff Zahn and Eddie Solomon for starter Burt Hooton, who assumed the No. 4 spot in the Dodgers' starting rotation.

San Francisco Giants, San Diego Padres and New York Mets feel they have put their money into blue chip material, with Padres' Dave Winfield a heavy traders and heavy losers. Mets' Jon Matlack.

The Giant say they are happy with a deal that sent Bobby Bonds to New York Yankees of the American League for Bobby Murcer, who is hitting .307 with 10 homers and hasn't made an error in the outfield this season. Both Murcer and Bonds were on the all-star squad.

The Padres consider it trade with the Giants for second baseman Tito Fuentes one of their better investments. Fuentes is batted for shortstop Derrel Thomas, is hitting .307 with 28 RBI and has done a good job defensively.

The Mets have made some major acquisitions: slugger Dave Kingman, purchased from San Francisco Del Unser, and third baseman Joe Torre. Unser before leaving the game with a blister on his pitching hand. Jack Billingham gave up only six hits in six innings—but two of them were the homers by Mangual leading off the bottom of the first and by Mackanin with one out in the fifth. The Expos' other run came in the sixth on a single by Larry Parrish.

Larry Bowa's alert base running that forced Houston hits on a throwing error helped the Phillies past the Astros. He singled in the 11th inning, then moved to second on Jay Johnstone's sacrifice bunt and kept on moving to third on the play. Second baseman Julio Millbourne, covering first at the moment, wildly threw past third and Bowa steamed home with the winning run.

The Mets, trailing Atlanta 3-0, tied things up in a hurry in the sixth inning when Ed Kranepool singled, Steve Staida and Dave Kingman hit homers. Then Joe Torre's eighth-inning single brought in Dave Rader. Braves, ended New York's four-game losing streak as Reginald Houre's string of 28 consecutive scoreless innings.

St. Louis' Ted Simmons ended a hitless streak with a two-run double in the ninth inning to defeat San Francisco.

Chicago's Manny Trillo drove in two runs and Cubs' Rick Reuschel fought back a late San Diego attempt to beat the Padres.

Rick Monday's homer highlighted a two-run Chicago second inning. Randy Hundley hit a two-run homer for the Padres in the bottom of the second and Trillo's two-run single climaxed a three-run third for the Cubs.

Stephan Junior Leader

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Bob Stephan of London Fanshawe posted a one-over-par 73 early Thursday to take the lead after the first-round lead in the 36th Canadian Ladies' golf championships at Beach Grove golf club.

Stephan, a first-day leader and field of 1,547 contesting the lumber and juvenile divisions of the tournament over 36 holes, will have no easy time keeping her title gaining his edge.

No fewer than 30 players are bunched within four strokes of Stephan on them, Ted Bishop of Lookout Point, a juvenile. Bishop fired a 74 along with Tony Zimmerman of Toronto Day, another Londoner from Thames Valley.

The 36-hole competition embraces juvenile, junior, senior and juveniles, 14-16 years old. The Saskatoon division for 18-19 and under will decide their champion today over 18 holes at nearby Hydeaway Golf Club.

Switch A Laugh - Tigers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Boston Red Sox and Detroit Tigers in the National League?

Sounds improbable — but count it completely out of the realm of possibility.

Associated Press learned the subject came up more than once during owners' meetings which ended Thursday in Milwaukee.

The agreement among the 34 major league baseball clubs setting up the National and American circuits expires next year.

It was learned that several NL officials talked about the possibility of shifting the Red Sox and Tigers to the National for a new alignment could be worked out next year.

Among those known to have talked about the proposal, sources said, were National League president Charles O. (Chub) Feeney, M. Donald Grant, president of New York Mets; and John McHale, president of Montreal Expos.

A spokesman for the Red Sox was asked Thursday in Boston about the report but his comment was: "Anything is possible, but it does not seem probable at this time."

Jim Campbell, general manager of the Tigers, took another tack, calling the report ridiculous. "We're American League and we intend to stay in the American League," he said. "The whole thing sounds like a joke by some one in Milwaukee.

Lions turned to Leo Harris back, to help them pull the game out and he didn't let them down. He scored two third-quarter touchdowns and added an 8-yard field goal in the fourth quarter.

Bob Cameron scored the first from 32 yards out gave Bombers a 6-0 lead after the first quarter. He kicked the convert in the second quarter before the Lions got their first touchdown. Dave Mcdonald's 16-yard touchdown pass to Tony Gabriel which John Wintermeyer converted.

But the Lions kicked right back to make up for Mcd's touchdown. Willie Fleming found an open route on the sidelines and ran the remaining kickoff back 93 yards to the B.C. 7 where Joe Pourquerau's defensive tackle stopped him.

A few plays later fullback Stan Bealieu scored on a three-yard run and Macorvii converted to give Bombers their 13-7 halftime lead.

Bombers opened third-quarter scoring with another Macorvii field goal but Wintergreen's kicking game faltered later in the quarter when B.C. linebacker Lorne Walters blocked a Macorvii punt at the Bombers 13-yard line.

Larry Cameron recovered, taking the ball to the four-yard line and two plays later Harris scored from two yards out. The convert failed.

Four minutes after that, Harris capped a B.C. march, taking Moorhead's screen pass to scamper 38 yards for a touchdown. Wintermeyer converted to put Lions ahead 20-19 going into the final quarter.

Wintermeyer kicked a fourth-quarter field goal then added a convert on Reed Moorhead's 46-yard touchdown on a pass from Ron Johnson.

Hung Jury?

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jury weighing the fate of Boston Bruins hockey player Dave Forbes said Thursday it had been more than seven hours of deliberation without the possibility of a hung jury and a mistrial.

Jurors were to resume deliberations today.

Forbes, 26, is charged with aggravated assault as a result of an attack on Minnesota North Stars' Henry Boucha during a National Hockey League game last June 9.

Do Thoughts of Hockey Turn off Heat Wave?

No, you're not caught in a droll toy golly, I always thought that was de-a-e-g-b-t! the cool breeze coming at you is courtesy of Trenton Community Gardens where the ice is in and everything in readiness for the opening, Monday, of Tam O'Shanter Hockey School sessions.

Activity actually gets under way Sunday when registrations are being taken at Albert College here, the home away from home for many of the participants in the hockey school operation.

And since Tam O'Shanter gets going this weekend, it means the much discussed Hockey Coaches Symposium is only a week away. That session (you'll remember panel members include Philadelphia Flyers' Fred Shero, Peterborough Petes' Roger Neilson, Billy Harris of Toronto Toros and others, with Father David Bauer also on hand; runs July 27-August 2 at the Tam' Seasons.

Since I last spoke to you on this subject (remember the report on the interest in the project expressed by hockey people in the United Soviet Socialist Republic) it has been officially announced that Boris Kulagin and his entourage will attend.

Also planning on taking in the sessions are hockey people from Germany, the Netherlands and Sweden. Registration is well over the 100 mark with players coaches from the U.S. flocking in from all directions.

And there's good news for those who are unable to spend the whole week taking in proceedings. Plans have been completed to lay down a three - hour presentation, Wednesday night, July 28, at Grant Hall Queen's University, Kingston. The $11 pay-at-the-door is open to all interested and there is no admission charge.

The Symposium is assured of being a truly international event and should accomplish what Tam O'Shanter executive director Gary Green and other organizers had in mind when they came up with the idea. And that is a true exchange of ideas on the sport of hockey.

SLICES — With the ice in at Trenton, and the evenings open for rental at the Gardens, another summer hockey season is upon us.

Persons 14 years of age and over who would like to take part in the league may do so by registering either at the Gardens or Memorial Arena in Belleville, July 21 and July 22, 7:00 p.m. Registration fee is $17.

It is expected the league will get started July 28 and run for five weeks, Mondays through Fridays.

Softball Tournaments are on the program again this weekend with Belleville Minor Softball Association's McDonald's Peewee Tournament going Saturday here while in Trenton it's the seventh annual midget tourney running Saturday and Sunday.

Games will also be played at Queen Victoria and Queen Elizabeth Public School with the B championship and A title matches set for Alemite at 6:30 and 8:30 p.m. respectively.

Complete schedule appears in today's sports calendar.

Other teams entered are: Picton, Sarnia, Napanee, Scarborough Corvette Park, Cobourg, Port Perry, Madoc, Barrie, Kingston, Bracebridge, Alderwood, Campbellford, Deseronto and Bowmanville.

At Trenton, Belleville Yardmen will be bidding for the title as top midget teams so far in Yardsmen's last year at it is at noon, Saturday, when they match skills with a team from Glen Williams.

Stittsville, Agincourt, Willowdale, Trenton Dickson's Sports and Cobourg East Gwillimbury - Peterborough, Port Victoria, Bracebridge Hills, Brampton Chargers, Port Perry, Bancroft, Glenfield and Brampton Lakers are the other entries.

Championship games are scheduled for Sunday, The A title game at 2:00 p.m.; the B at 3 p.m. and the grand championship, 4:30 p.m.

Lefty Reid, who after stops at Trenton via member of the Canadian Pioneer, Belleville where he put in a stint with The Intelligencer) Toronto Sports Department of The Toronto Telegram became the latest Hockey Hall of Fame, to be here for the 1976 season. The Exhibition game between CJBQ-CHNI and the Belleville and District Umpires' Association.

Lefty (he's Maurice, but he came by the nickname honestly since he was quite a softball pitcher during his days in this area) is looking forward to renewing acquaintances with old friends while he's here.

Proceeds from the game go to charities supported by the Shriners, Alhambra 109 and the Knights of Columbus.

While it's not clear yet which team they'll play for, Tam O'Shanter Hockey School is also expected to make the trip to Toronto's Centennial Park to meet defenceman Jim Harrison and the Toronto Toros' Peguins' Colin Campbell and Toronto Maple Leaf rookie Jack Valiquette in action on the diamond.

Sires Stakes a Headliner

It will be well worthwhile for the owner of any horse entered in the Ontario Sires Stakes at the Quinte Exhibition Raceway on Friday night.

The Stakes, for two year old colts, will have some of the largest purses seen in this area in quite a while.

For the third race, the purse is $4,082.51. That's quite a bundle for just about any horse on the circuit.

One of the stronger horses in the race is Paul's Brat, driven by Bud Brown, last year's top driver in the Quinte area. Brown is just a young driver, but he has already moved into a higher circuit than he was in last year.

In the fifth, a $4,382.51, Derek Wall driving again, this time behind Choppy Herbert. All three Sires Stakes will be excellent races, considering the fact that only the best horses are entered.

In the seventh race more special events as the Hamilton Tenaco counter Driver will be presented to the winner.

The eighth will have the Bunnell's Auction Service cooler presented, plus a purse of $400.

Starting things off in the first race, the winning driver will get a free meal at the Four Season Hotel. This will be a regular feature till the end of the racing season.

Tight Battle for Top In Player's Challenge

TORONTO — International motor racing attention will be focused on the Player's Ontario race at Mosport, July 16, 17, and 18.

Any one of five drivers representing three countries may, following that race, lead the Player's Challenge Series for the Canadian Driving Championship and the winner's share of the $150,000 in prize money, and any one of 11 drivers could go on to win the series when it winds up with the Player's Mariposa, August 17, at Shubenacadie, N.S.

Nine countries are represented by 72 drivers who have entered the first four events in what current national title holder Bill Brack of Toronto calls "the most fiercely competitive formula racing tour in the world."

"In the four races to date," says Brack, "24 different drivers have finished in the top 10 positions. The competition is one defense to ease up for a second."

The qualifying for the first four races of the series, 11 cars were within two seconds of each other at Edmonton, 23 cars within two seconds at Vancouver, the entire field of 30 cars within two seconds at Gimli, Man., and at it Circuit Mont Tremblant, nine cars qualified within one second of each other.

Two Canadians share the top four positions in the Player's Challenge Series going into the Ontario race. Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., is second, while Bill Brack is fourth. Leader is Sweden's Bertil Roos, with Tona Klausler of Palatine, Ill., last year's runner-up, in third place.

Plenty of Talent on Show In Annual All-star Clash

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

On Saturday afternoon in St. Catharines some of the best baseball players in Canada will book up in an all-star match.

The Ontario Baseball League will be holding their annual all-star game between the East Division players and the West Division players.

Voting took place last week, with players and coaches voting for their thought best in their division, players could not vote for others on their team.

It should be quite a hookup, with all of the essentials being found on both squads, as well as the fact that the best in each category of the game will be there.

The East Division will probably have a power hitting squad, going for the long ball from Lee Downing of Newmarket, Derek Kennerly from the same squad, and Larry Mavety, from Belleville. The latter two will come from the second all star team. Downing was voted to the first squad.

The West Division will be strong on the pitching side, with Paul Hannamaker from Oshawa leading the way. Dick Ballint, the workhorse from St. Catharines who went 28 innings with the Ethier earlier this year, will join Hannamaker, as will Dick Hannes and Metro Sseryk from London.

The East's starting rotation is nothing to scoff at, as Bill McMellin, Al Few and Bill Lunney will be among the starters on the staff.

McMellin is a firehaller from Hamilton, while Few is from Burlington and Lunney is from Newmarket.

Starting on the West squad is the man who got the most votes of any player, Ed Neudorf, the hard hitting second baseman and pitcher from Hamilton. Jim Brown from London should assist his squad in power department. He is also a good defensive catcher.

In the East, speed will also be a strong point, since Pat Werby from Woodstock and Lee Gould from Toronto are in the starting lineups.

All in all, it shuld be quite a match up, with both teams strong everywhere.

Belleville players on the squad, Mavety, Paul Goodfellow and Frank Robinson should see some action.

Mavety is one of the squad's better power hitters, while Goodfellow leads the OFL in doubles and Robinson is one of the better fielding first batsmen.

It will be a special game for Robinson in more ways than one. He played for St. Catharines last year, and will be close to his home town.

Denie Nerson and Wayne McConnell.

Ken Genereaux came up with two singles, while Wayne Woods tripled and Dave Skelton cracked a double.

Canada's Chances at Champions hip

Synchronized Swimming, Yes! — Polo, Maybe

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The two almost-forgotten sports of the world aquatic champion-ships — synchronized swimming and water polo — will be featured at the Pan American Games.

While synchronized swimming has been a staple of Canadian competition for years, water polo has been dropped from the Canadian program for the last two Games.

Coach Mary Ann Reeves of Calgary is confident of finally overtaking the United States, water polo coach Denso Lemberyi doesn't expect his team to go home with many victories.

It's Canada's maiden entry into the world championships and it took a thrilling triumph over Brazil in a best-of-three elimination series to get here.

"But we are still a very young team," Lemberyi said Thursday. "We have been together only about two years. To be with the world's best it will take seven or eight years."

Reeves is looking at two 18-year-old Calgary girls to provide Canada with its first gold medal in the world championships.

"This time we'll finally get them," she said, referring to the reigning champions U.S. "We'll do so worse then a silver medal but I'm confident we'll win."

Th retirement of João Carriere of Quebec leaves Canada with 16-year-old Sylvie Fortier of Quebec City to compete in the solo event against the much more experienced Russian and Japanese, a situation Reeves is not too hopeful will produce anything better than a bronze medal.

But Carol Stuart and Laura Wilkin of Calgary, Reeves says, are equal to any duet in the world and "should bring home a gold medal. In the 1973 championships Canada won silver medals in the solo, duet and team competitions.

Synchronized swimming begins Tuesday, along with the regular swimming competitions. Water polo and diving are the first events, beginning Saturday morning, following tonight's opening ceremonies.

Water polo has expanded tremendously in Canada since Lemberyi came over from Hungary less than two years ago. But the former coach of Hungary's national team says the country's international hopes are hampered by the lack of suitable training pools.

"Pools in Canada are mostly 25 yards instead of 25" he explained. "And they have one deep end and one shallow end. Our players can't train in that."

Canada's first three games are against Holland, Italy and Mexico and Lemberyi says they will probably all be losers.

"Normally we will lose all three, but there is always the possibility," he said. "But after that, we should win some games.

Two-year Suspensions For Swimmers, Officials

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The International Swimming Federation (FINA) has announced two-year suspensions for two years of a group of Canadian swimmers and officials who participated in a 1974 tour of China.

The federation, meeting here before today's opening of the second world aquatic championships, also decided that all trade names on shoes or uniforms of athletes and officials will be banned in competition venues.

Dr. Stuart Maddin, president of the Canadian Aquatic Association, said none of the 20 swimmers, divers and officials suspended are actively competing.

Among those suspended were Ken Solly, Frank Groll, Kathy Lane and Kathy Rollo and swimmers Sylvie Dackerich, Terrence James, Marilyn Roseboral, Jennifer McHugh, Shirley Coulet, Eric Fish, Brad Shirley, John Hawres, Tim Back and Rob Duncan.

Maddin said the only person affected by the suspension, which bars the offenders from participation in any competition under the FINA umbrella, is Ted Thomas, a coach from Edmonton. He also had to resign from FINA's age group technical division.

"The unfairness of the rule," Maddin said, "is that the United State s broke the rules when they sent a team to China in 1973 but they only got 90 days."

FINA and track and field associations are the only remaining sports bodies that retain bans against competing in China. Maddin said China is not a member of FINA.

Included in the suspension is CBC television sportscaster Ted Reynolds of Vancouver who accompanied the group and acted as manager.

International Event Led by U.S. Archer

JOLIETTE, Que. (CP)—Richard McKinney of the United States increased his overall lead Thursday after four rounds of the international archery competition, part of International Canada Games.

McKinney, from Muncie, Ind., won both the 30 and 50-metre events and now has 1,197 points. Ron Lippert of Kitchener, Ont., is second with 1,186.

Lippert, over-all leader after three rounds, finished fourth in the 30-metre event after placing second in the 50-metre competition.

Darrell Pace of Cincinnati, Ohio was third in the over-all standings with 1,173 points followed by Glan Carlo Ferrari of Italy with 1,151, Ray Matthews of Great Britain with 1,144 and Wayne Pullen of Dorchester, Ont., with 1,141.

Irenel Lorenzen of the U.S., fourth of the women after the 50-metre event and fourth-place finisher in 30-metre competition, still holds the women's over-all lead with 1,191 points. Zebenslo Kopaliz, who won the 30-metre event Thursday, is third with 1,128 points, one ahead of American Linda Myers. Ida Da Polan of Italy is fifth with 1,081 points and Wanda Allen of Victoria sixth with 1,071.

International Competitions 1975 is a series of Olympic-type activities organized to test Olympic facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympics to be held in the Montreal area.

Argos Are Standing Pat; Tightening Purse Strings

TORONTO (CP) — It has been almost 25 years since Toronto Argonauts last won the Grey Cup and the long, lean years since 1967 have usually been marked by their annual panic airlift.

It was often said that they were really three teams—one coming, one going and one on the field.

But this year it's different, likely because the good ship Argonaut is being handled on a tighter than usual budget in these recession days.

Whatever the reason, the Argos, despite their last in the Eastern Football Conference last season, are just about standing pat.

The exception is in coaching ranks. Ross Jackson, the former Ottawa Rough Riders quarterback, is in his rookie year as head coach. The only holdover from last year at defensive coordinator Joe Moss. Other newcomers are defensive line coach Lamar Leachman and offensive line coach Bob Ward.

Jackson doesn't care to talk about the club's prospects.

About all he will concede at this point is that he has backfield problems. Randy Sweet-back Walker, the Bellaire Cookman College dropout, will be supposed to provide the break-away speed the Argos needed. But a leg injury has concealed his skills and Jackson admits he is becoming impatient.

Eric (the Pea) Allen has been moved from wide receiver to fullback to replace back bolter at tight end. Canadian Stewart Francis has replaced the injured Morris Zubkevych at centre. Tom Cousineau is competing with Ralph Miller for the right guard spot after calling high-priced Billy Corbett, and Dave Whiteside has improved at right tackle.

RUSS JACKSON

As kicker Jim Stillwagon has forced the Argos to move Granville Liggins back to the defensive line. Centre Hank Ilesperger, picked up on waivers from the Lions, has been given the defence along with Jim Corrigall. Ed Farris has been seems to have turned back the competition for his defensive end spot.

Sam Cvijanovich, rookie of the year in the CFL in 1974, is playing without a receiving backfield but the cornerback positions are the subject of competition among John Williams, late of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, and rookies Ben Clayton, a converted wide receiver, and Steve Dennis.

The Argos also can feel secure at the punting spot where Zenon Andruszkyhun hasn't lost his touch, although his place-kicking has been less than spectacular.

Bob Miranda and Cleo House are trying to break into the backfield but holdovers Doyle Orange and Ed Shuttleworth seem to have the inside track.

Mike Rae, in his third year in the Canadian Football League, appears to have nailed down the No. 1 pivot spot. Neither of the two rookies, Rick Worley and Bill Bynum, has made much of an impression.

spent most of the shutout loss to the B.C. Lions running backwards.

Knudson Continues Comeback

SUTTON, Mass. (CP) — George Knudson of Toronto, fighting off his rustiness finish in last week's Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship in Toronto, is also making steady improvement on the United States tour.

Knudson, continuing his comeback from a dismal 1974 season, shot a two-under-par 68 and was three strokes off the pace after Thursday's first round of the 72,000 Pleasant Valley tournament.

Rod Curl led the field with a five-under-par 66 over the 7,119-yard, par-72 course, a subject Club course.

Curl, making a comeback after he was crippled by tendonitis in his elbow late last year, didn't make a bogey. He scored five birdies, only one of them from more than eight feet. He missed three greens and needed only an average of 1.5 putts per hole.

Veteran Miller Barber, in hospital the night before and unsure he'd play, bladded two of his last three holes for a 67 and second place, one shot back.

Lee Elder, Chuck Courtney and Eddie Pierce were one more stroke back at 68. Elder has yet to win here, but he was second two seasons in a row and ranks as this event's all-time leading money-winner.

Joining Knudson at 69 were Art Wall, Bill Ih. Ben Crenshaw, Leonard Thompson, George Johnson, Jim Simons and Mark Hayes.

Many of the game's leading stars—including Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller, Arnold Palmer, U.S. Open champ Lou Graham and newly-crowned British Open king Tom Watson—are not competing.

Permission Refused

Red Wings Won't Be Back

LONDON, Ont (CP) — Detroit Junior Wings have been refused permission to rejoin the Southern Ontario Junior A Hockey League this season by the United States Amateur Hockey Association (USAHA).

Thomas Wilson, Wings' general manager, informed the league convenor Hugh McLean of London of his club's position in a letter McLean received Thursday. Detroit competed in the southern junior the last five seasons.

Wilson said that the Red Wings had previously been allowed to play in the Ontario Hockey Association on the basis there was no comparable league or junior within the Michigan area. The Red Wings had received permission on an annual basis in order to play in the SOJHL.

Wilson said that at the end of the last hockey season, Michigan amateur hockey officials announced plans to form an A category junior league and asked the USAHA to bar the Red Wings from playing in the OHA.

The Red Wings have asked the SOJHL to hold its franchise in abeyance for the 1975-1976 and 1976-1977 seasons.

Detroit joined the SOJHL in 1970-1971 and was the league championship in that year, lead by Mark and Marty Howe, now with Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association. They lost out in the Centennial Cup playoff for the Eastern Canada championship in 1971.

The departure of the Red Wings leaves the SOJHL with only five teams: Chatham, Migoods, Guelph Biltmore Mohawks, Fala Flyers, Welland Sabres and the new entry Hamilton Mountain Bees.

"It's a tough blow to the league because it was one of the main drawing cards," said McLean, also first vice-president of the OHA.

"We have to look to it this way. We can't stop progress. The formation of a junior A league in Michigan is a step in the right direction."

McLean said the league is concerned that only five members remain and he said the OHA president Cliffe Phillips of Newmarket is to consider granting franchises to Owen Sound and Collingwood or transferring teams from the provincial junior A league, mostly Toronto area teams, to the SOJHL.

The Provincial Junior A has 12 members.

McLean said Collingwood and Owen Sound groups have actively sought elevation from Junior B.

EXPOS GET LYTTLE

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos have re-acquired the contract of outfielder Jim Lyttle, the National League baseball club announced Thursday. Lyttle, 30, a lefthanded batter, had a .210 average, two home runs and 27 runs batted in with Denver Bears of the American Association in 79 games this year. He was with the Expos for part of the 1972 and 1974 seasons.

DROPS CHARGES

BALTIDORE (AP) — Phil Hersh of the Baltimore Evening Sun said Thursday night he will drop criminal assault charges against Detroit baseball manager Ralph Houk, who forcibly ejected the sports writer from the Tigers' locker room in Baltimore June 27. Hersh said he received a written apology from Houk. Houk is reported to have slapped Hersh and dragged him out of the clubhouse after summoning the writer to dispute a story which appeared in the newspaper earlier that day.

FACES OPERATION

ANAHEIM (AP. — Quarterback Daryle Lamonica will be operated on Saturday for hiliated neural hernia injuries and will probably be lost to Southern California Sun for at least six weeks, the team announced Thursday. A spokesman for the World Football League club said Lamonica is not certain how the injury occurred but remembers being hit hard in the pelvic area late in the second half of Monday night's game against Memphis Southmen.

IN MEMORIAM

MOTT — In loving memory of a dear uncle (Fred) who passed away July 19, 1953.
You never told people to say goodbye.
Perhaps it's just as well,
You never could have said goodbye.
To one we loved so well.
Sadly missed by Gordon your grave, May mother and daughter.
But the love for you, who lies beneath.
Will never fade away.
Remembered by Ida never forgotten by Verna and Dale.

WILLMAN — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandmother Nancy Willman who passed away July 19, 1969.
Quietly remembered through the years.
With silent thoughts and unshed tears.
Life goes on we know that's true,
But not the same since we lost you.
Lovingly remembered by wife Martha, children and grandchildren.

WHALEN — In loving memory of a dear husband and father Wilfred Whalen who passed away July 18, 1974.
Sad and sudden was the call,
So dearly loved by one and all,
His memory is as sweet today,
As in the hour he passed away,
Sadly missed by wife Edna and family.

HASLIP — In loving memory of my dear father James E. Haslip who passed away July 18, 1964.
Things we had most deeply,
Are the hardest things to say.
Dad, you left us suddenly,
In a very special way.
If we could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
We'd pray to God with all our hearts,
To have dad back with us.
— Lastly and always remembered by daughter Olive, son-in-law Arthur and family, Corrin, daughter-in-law Phyllis and family.

Third World Lands Emerge As Economic Power Brokers

UNITED NATIONS, (CP) — The international community is witnessing the emergence of a new world order dominated economically at least, by the nations of what has become known as the Third World.

By sheer weight of numbers, the Third World coalition has managed to win effective voting control over decisions of the United Nations General Assembly and now has the potential to affect gravely the economic well-being of the rest of the world.

What is the Third World? Who are its members? How do they function and, more important, how did they win control of the General Assembly?

The Third World is made up mostly of have-not nations, the poorer, under-developed one-time colonies which furnish raw materials to the industrialized West. They lack the equipment and know-how to turn these materials into finished goods.

Drawn mostly from Africa, the Middle East and South America, they call themselves the Group of 77, though they now number more than the original 77. On key issues they can easily outvote the West in the UN.

Not all of the Third World countries are poor, though all share a common lack of industrial capability of any magnitude. The oil-rich states of North Africa, for example, are among the leading members of the coalition.

Its ranks also include the so-called non-aligned nations of the world and the two terms—Third World and non-aligned—often are taken to be synonymous. But some standards exist within the coalition, with some of its members owing allegiance to the Communist world and others favoring the West.

Cuba, for instance, considers itself Third World and non-aligned but depends heavily on the Soviet Union for economic support. Thailand is within the coalition but at the same time is aligned with the United States in the defence alliance known as the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization.

In recent months, a new term—the Fourth World—has entered the diplomatic language. It is applied to the 35 countries which are the least developed of the under-developed nations. In other words, the 35 poorest of the poor.

Geographically, the Third World lineup spans the globe. Everything outside of the Communist empire and the so-called Western industrialized world can be considered Third World.

In the Western Hemisphere, the coalition includes everything south of the U.S.-Mexico border-Mexico itself and all of Central and South America.

In Europe, the only Third World member is Yugoslavia, the original non-aligned state.

The African continent is virtually all Third World, the exceptions being Rhodesia and the Republic of South Africa.

Israel stands alone in the Middle East as non-Third World.

India, Pakistan and Bangladesh all are members of the alliance, as are most of the nations of the Orient, including mainland China, which considers itself a leader of the Third World.

In the Pacific, Indonesia and the Philippines rank as Third World members but Japan, Australia and New Zealand do not.

The term Third World seems to trace back to the Cold War era when the international scene was dominated by two great coalitions or "worlds": the East, led by the Soviet Union and its allies, and the West, led by the United States, Britain and France.

Then came the breaking up of the great colonial empires of Britain, France, Belgium and the Netherlands, and a host of new emerging nations began to enter the international community. Diplomats began to refer to this new grouping of former colonies and dependencies as the Third World.

About the same time, in the 1950s, the notion of non-alignment began to develop, with the idea that the smaller countries should avoid following the lead of either of the super-powers and should instead form a sphere of their own.

The Cold War began to moderate, the developing countries became more cohesive and vocal and the main issues on the world stage were no longer were East-West confrontations but rather North South economic problems involving the new Third World.

The emergence of more and more new nations on the international scene produced a phenomenal growth in the size of the UN—from an original 51 founding members in 1946 to 138 members today.

But that growth was not without cost to the West in terms of both prestige and control of the voting mechanism of the UN. As membership expanded, majority voting control passed from the West to the Third World, which now can command 100 of the 138 votes.

That control does not extend to the Security Council where the five great powers—Britain, the United States, France, Russia and China—still hold veto power.

But the case with which the Third World now is able to push one-sided resolutions through the General Assembly, overriding Western objections, prompted U.S. Ambassador John Scali to complain bitterly towards the end of the last UN session about what he termed "the tyranny of the majority."

The Third World is seeking UN acceptance of its concept of a new economic order, based on the claim that past Western economic practice has been biased in favor of the developed countries of the world and against the non-developed countries.

This, their spokesmen suggest, is historical bias that can be remedied only if the under-developed countries are given special advantages in international trade and finance.

To this end, they called a special session on the use of raw materials and in the regular 1974 session railroaded through the assembly a "charter of economic rights and duties" which, among other things, enshrined the right of any nation to nationalize foreign assets within its territory and pay just so much compensation as its own domestic laws require.

While Third World nations hold voting power in the UN, they contribute relatively little towards the financial cost of running the world organization.

Assessments are based on a country's size and wealth and the U.S. is the major financial contributor, paying an annual assessment of 25 per cent of the UN budget. The Soviet Union contributes 12.9 per cent, West Germany 7.05, France 5.86, Britain 5.31 and Canada 3.49.

By contrast, 70 members pay only .02 per cent—and that includes the bulk of the members of the Group of 77.

The third world operates on four levels—head of state summit meetings, such as the non-aligned summit conference held in Algiers in 1973;

The Third World is made up mostly of have-not nations, the poor, under-developed one-time colonies which furnish raw materials to the industrialized nations, but lacking the technical knowhow to turn the materials into finished goods. Geographically, foreign ministers' meetings; meetings of a special co-ordinating committee, and caucuses at the UN.

The 1973 Algiers summit meeting is regarded as a Third World landmark since it was called to plot strategy for dealings with the industrialized world and led to the calling of the special UN session on raw materials.

Algeria has emerged as a leading spokesman of the Third World and its foreign minister, Abdelaziz Bouteflika, assumed the presidency of the General Assembly for the 1974 session and gave the Third World its strongest ally.

His ruling as presiding officer invariably favored the non-aligned states and it was during his tenure that the Third World bloc, ignoring Western objections, invited Arab guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat to address the General Assembly, gave his Palestine Liberation Organization permanent UN observer status and recognized the right of Palestinians to sovereignty over Palestine, including the area which makes up the present state of Israel.

Drug-makers Profit-hungry Says Author

By PAT USHER
The Canadian Press

The international pharmaceutical industry is represented as profit-hungry and dangerously influential in The Medicine Man, a novel by Ivan Shaffer.

The setting is in Ottawa during hearings by a special committee of the House of Commons on drug costs and prices. The task of the committee is to investigate whether drugs are safe or unsafe, their prices and their relationship to patent protection.

Protagonists in the novel are Joseph Mann, a management consultant representing the international pharmaceutical industry in its lobbying manoeuvres during the committee hearings, and his boyhood friend Grant MacDonald, political columnist and TV commentator.

The story takes an unexpected twist before the finish and the eventual outcome of the hearings is largely a victory for the pharmaceutical industry.

Mr. Shaffer, who was born in Ottawa, is the author of three other books, The Stock Promotion Business, The Widget Competition and Business is Business.

Director Fights Town Bias

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) —Joe McLeod wants to establish Peterborough Summer Theatre as an outlet for works by Canadian playwrights in a town which he says has a bias against them.

McLeod, artistic director of the Canadian Players' Co-op, describes Peterborough as "an English town, used to English and American theatre," but suggests that may be due mainly to lack of familiarity with Canadian playwrights.

His program this season may help to remedy that—it features three Canadian plays.

Theatre-goers can stay two nights at Trent University and see Charbonneau and Le Chef, by John T. McDonough, in its first English-language Ontario production; Shelter, by Carol Bolt, first produced last winter in Toronto, and McLeod's own Sam Slick's Surprise.

The theatre, now into its second season, is one of the youngest successful summer theatres in Canada.

McLeod's philosophy is that summer audiences want plays that are light, lyrical, and in his own word, "unlikeable."

In Sam Slick's Surprise, McLeod tried to write a "unlikeable" play—what might have happened, if Sam Slick, the Yankee clock peddler conceived by Thomas Chandler Haliburton, had met Anna Boruski in an Ontario farm community settled by Poles.

Shelter is a zany, dark-hued comedy about the young widow of a Saskatchewan MP who runs for Parliament with—or despite—the support of her women friends.

Much meatier fare was Charbonneau and Le Chef, which deals with the resignation in 1959 of Most Rev. Joseph Charbonneau, controversial Canadian archbishop. The play depicts Roman Catholic authorities as forcing the resignation, under pressure from the late Maurice Duplessis, then Quebec premier.

McLeod, who undertook the summer theatre enterprise last season while teaching at Lakefield high school, is working on it full time this year.

His budget is $30,000 for the six-week season. He has $4,000 from the Ontario Arts Council, $2,000 from the Canada Council's Explorations program.

Trent's 350-seat theatre is at his disposal for a modest rent, but with 15 professionals under contract with Equity, the actors' union, and six apprentices partly funded by an Ontario Experience '75 grant, he may have a $3,000 deficit.

That's worrisome because in McLeod is personally financing his project. The theatre hasn't yet recruited the community-based board which could mount a fund-raising drive.

Playing the three plays in repertory is proving costly. On weekends, the sets have to be struck after each performance, and the stage hands demand full pay each time.

Whether or not the theatre can survive the debt it fears it will rack up this season, its effort to present Canadian plays in polished performance is a valiant one.

Sometimes bridge gets confused by their own bidding language. This hand is a major team championship some years ago.

North was one of those mid-innum bidders who hated to open with a forcing two of any sort. His two heart redid was a obe to ultimate trick-taking factor in all cases, old, young, heart vic-tims.

Dear Dr. Theniless: Will allowing my five-year-old son to occasionally shave with me cause him to want to grow an early ex cause it to come in coarser when he does?—A. B.

He has no beard now, so pre-mature "shaving" would not affect subsequent growth. But I do not condone this practice. Even without a blade is a fa-vor. Some fathers do this, I know. The danger is that the child may at some time pick up a razor and learn how to have a blade in it and inadvertently hurt himself.

Better to find some other activity he can engage in with dad.

Dear Dr. Theniless: I eat asparagus and some almost immediately smells unusual. What causes this? Is it unwise to eat asparagus because of this?—C. M. B.

The odor, when it occurs, is due to sulfur in the amino acid in the asparagus. No harm. The odor occurs only in the urine, and quickly disappears after one or two urinations.

To Your Good Health

Too Much Driving Not Recommended

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'm a retired man and a resident of Florida where I live in a condominium where mostly other retirees live.

The point of this letter is that about 30 per cent of them have some kind of heart trouble, and 95 per cent drive cars. Many drive up north during summer months and some are in collision such as nitroglycerine.

What I want to know is whether you think it is good for any person with a heart ailment to use their autos? Some oldsters even brag about making the Miami-to-New York City run in two and a half days. Hope someone will. R.

As you know, there are different kinds of heart trouble and of varying degrees of each. It is impossible to make general comment that would apply to all. However, a trip of long length (approximately 1,200 miles) that is short a period seems to much for an oldster with a heart condition.

Some heart trouble is due to high blood pressure, some to valvular disease. Most is due to arteriosclerotic (coronaries and angina). In any of these, even a longed stress can be dangerous. Some of your friends may have rhythm irregularity (such as fibrillation). Others a degree of heart block requiring pacemakers to keep the rate adequate. These are conditions that put a quire careful expenditure of energy.

Studies monitoring heart action with a portable type of trocardiogram have chown that even "normal" individuals may have ECG changes while driving. Stress is a factor too often overlicked, especially in accidents such as driving that seem rather casual and harmless.

Persons subject to rhythm disorder should be especially watchful. If angina (requiring nitroglycerine for pain) occurs the stress could be too great to manage while driving a car down a high-speed expressway. As we know, many one-car accidents are due to heart trouble, many immediately occurring because of long-haul trips such as you describe.

Often problems occur not so much on the relatively relaxed expressway sections but on occasions when one has to turn off the freeway stretches of heavy traffic. Too often these occur at the conclusion of long driving stints.

Persons should not undertake such drives without their doctor's full knowledge and consent. They should not attempt more than two-hour stints. Too long a period at the wheel, sitting in one position, can also play havoc with circulation, another important factor.

Better to allow an extra day and make it a leisurely drive as opposed to a forced Prix endurance test. And what's the hurry, anyway?

Most people know their endurance. Common sense should be the ultimate guiding factor in all cases, old, young, heart victims.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will allowing my five-year-old son to occasionally shave with me cause him to want to grow an early ex cause it to come in coarser when he does?—A. B.

Artist Presents Story of Prairies

The Canadian Press

Anyone raised on a prairie farm can relive his childhood by reading A Prairie Boy's Summer, written and illustrated by Canada's noted artist, William Kurelek.

The 32 page accompanying color sketches are like the diary of a boy just released from the stuffy confines of a one-room school into a hot, dusty summer filled with long hours of "stooking"—piling sheaves—in the fields and clandestine skinny dips in a muddy pond.

Although the writing and naive drawings are clearly aimed at capturing the imagination of a child, the book stands out as a historical document of prairie life as it was for many and remains for some.

The book, set during the Second World War, dangers to a lonely endless landscape ac-cident which members of a family are crowded into a work unit to fight the un-mercies of winter, rain and weather and, to cope with the injuries of grown-up pain, prices and politics.

"William was only 12 when his father drafted him and John into harvest work," writes Mr. Kurulak.

"He might have had another year to grow stronger and more capable if the war hadn't taken away all his father's hired hands."

But the prairie boy's life was not just one of work. Gopher hunts, softball games on Sundays and a school-yard wheelbarrow race are described and colorfully painted.

The book ends on a subtly foreboding note, at least for those who lament the good old days. The boys are gone forever because of such movements as school centralization.

"In another two years William, too, would be leaving the grassy schoolyard—for the concrete and cinders of a city high school playground."

For most of the rural-bred, that daily bus ride to a nearby city was a harbinger of the end of gopher hunting, clandestine skinny dips and a close-knit family living in the shadow of a one-room school house.

Mr. Kurelak's book is a companion piece to an earlier one, A Prairie Boy's Winter, which received critical acclaim in both Canada and the United States. Both that book and the latest are Mr. Kurelak's works. Lumberjack, were printers in the New York Times best illustrated book award in 1973 and 1974.

The original paintings—A Prairie Boy's Summer are in the permanent collection of the Winsor Art Gallery, Windsor, Ont.

Lang Proposes Code Changes

OTTAWA (CP) — The 102 criminal law amendments proposed Thursday by Justice Minister Otto Lang reflect, more or less, modern times (pinball machines would become legal) and modern crimes (laundering money would become illegal).

Rape victims no longer would be subject to sudden cross-examination about their past, and they would get other protections against court room treatment that has often made them look, and feel, like the accused.

Appeal courts no longer would be able to reverse jury acquittals, as they did in the Henry Morgentaler case, reversing a jury verdict and sending the Montreal abortionist to prison for 18 months.

The person who skips bail, or commits a crime while out on bail, would have to show the judge why he should be granted bail again. The Bail Reform Act of 1971 will be slightly tightened in other ways to keep the more risky repeaters off the street before trial.

The bill was given first reading in the Commons Thursday and will come up for second reading during the fall session which begins Oct. 14. It is unlikely to become law before the late winter or spring after lively committee study and debate.

It may play second fiddle to the omnibus public safety bill Mr. Lang and Solicitor-General Warren Allmand are working on. This bill will contain amendments to the law on capital punishment, gun control, parole and related matters.

Thursday's bill is the sternest of the annual criminal law amendment bills to arrive before the Parliament since John Turner—then justice Minister—initiated them in 1969 after his predecessor, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, had hatched the idea.

Excepting the rape amendments, the Morgentaler amendment, and the legalization of pinball machines, the bill tends to tighten and stiffen the law.

Another series of amendments is aimed at international crime.

It would be a crime "knowingly to possess in Canada anything obtained by crime in Canada or elsewhere."

Mr. Lang said police often can demonstrate that funds used by a person or company in Canada are "the direct proceeds of securities stolen in the United States and 'laundered' or passed through various companies that are a front for organized crime."

It also would be an offence to "conspire in Canada to commit an offence out of Canada" or vice-versa. "Canada should take a stand against those who use Canada as a planning base for criminal activities," the bill's explanation, again mentioning international crime, says.

Unacceptable

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis said Thursday he finds "unacceptable" a suggestion by some oil companies that Ontario's 80-day price freeze on gasoline will mean a further eight-cents-a-gallon hike when it expires this fall.

Plan Expansion

OTTAWA (CP) — Parks Canada officials Thursday said they are waiting for treasury board approval for a $20-million expansion of St. Lawrence Islands National Park near Kingston.

The plan to add about 14,000 acres to the 1,000 acre park—the smallest in the system—was announced in May by the northern affairs department.

Freeze Stays

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister Thomas Wells told the Toronto board of education Thursday he does not plan to end a school building freeze imposed upon Metropolitan Toronto July 10 until the board and trustees from the separate school board reach an agreement about classroom sharing.

Dealers May Sue

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's imported-car dealers may take the Ontario government to court over what they call "discriminatory and unfair" cash rebates recently announced for purchasers of North American built passenger cars.

Jack Praine, a Toronto Toyota dealer, told a news conference Thursday he is "actively considering" being the "test dealer" in a court action against the government.

Confer on Airport

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Jean Marchand said Thursday he will meet his Ontario counterpart, John Rhodes, in Ottawa Tuesday to discuss the province's opposition to construction of an airport at Pickering.

Mr. Marchand said he hopes Mr. Rhodes will clarify his statement last week that Ontario is not prepared "at this time" to proceed with building new access roads and other services for the airport.

CBC Head Named

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday the appointment of A. W. Johnson as president of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, effective Aug. 1.

No Shortage

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said Thursday that Ontario home owners and industries will not experience a natural gas shortage this winter.

Egg Prices to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Brian Elsworth, general manager of the Ontario Egg Marketing Board, said Thursday egg prices will rise again Monday, the second increase in two weeks.

Fears Labor Shortage

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada could be faced "with a very severe shortage of labor" eight years from now, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Thursday.

Work Halted

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Work was stopped at dozens of construction sites here and in northeastern Ontario Thursday as 1,300 construction laborers set up picket lines.

The picket lines were ordered after the Sudbury Construction Association rejected a tentative agreement with Local 493, Laborers International Union, which would have given the laborers $8.88 an hour in wages and benefits in a two-year contract. The workers now earn $6.54 an hour in wages and benefits.

Amin Wants Alliance

Apartheid Termed Invitation to War

KAMPALA (AP) — President Idi Amin of Uganda says South Africa's policy of racial separation "is an invitation to war."

He called on black African countries Friday to join their armies in an anti-apartheid force similar to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization or the Warsaw Pact.

Apartheid—the separate racial development policy of South Africa—"must be uprooted, if need be, by force of arms," Amin told the 12th annual foreign ministers' conference of the Organization of African Unity (OAU).

The week-long ministerial talks in this capital of Uganda are to prepare for an OAU summit meeting beginning July 28.

The OAU operates as an African equivalent to the United Nations, setting nonbinding policy for members on regional and world issues.

Amin also said a united African force should be sent to keep the peace in Portuguese Angola, where thousands have died in a power struggle among Angolan guerrilla groups in anticipation of independence in November.

Amin confirmed the view held by some OAU members that dialogue with South Africa would help improve conditions for Africans.

He said black African countries should deny transit and refueling rights to ships and planes bound for South Africa.

He also said Ian Smith's white-minority regime in Rhodesia should be made to start immediate negotiations with the liberation-seeking African National Council on terms for black majority control.

The UN charter, drawn up at Monrovia, Liberia, Ethiopia and Egypt were the only African members, should be amended to give Africa a bloc veto, Amin said. He said Asia and Latin America also should have bloc vetoes.

"Africa and indeed the Third World in it is a very strong position to control the political affairs of the whole world," Amin said.

Support of blacks outside Africa should be enlisted to make sure that Africa remains independent, Amin said. "Large enslaves" of blacks in North America and Latin America should be granted observer status at the OAU.

The OAU raised its membership to 44 by admitting three newly independent Portuguese colonies—Mozambique, Sao Tome and Principe, and the Cape Verde Islands—and one former French possession, the Comoro Islands.

Three countries—Botswana, Tanzania and Zambia—boycotted the session. Botswana gave as its reason that life in Uganda is unsafe under Amin's turbulent army rule.

Separate, Dock Again

Soyuz, Apollo Reverse Roles

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo and Soyuz, nearing the end of the joint phase of their mission, undocked today and then linked up again in a successful test of the Soviet craft's ability to execute the manoeuvre.

The United States ship had been the active vehicle on the initial hookup Thursday and today's successful dock completed one of the major goals of the flight — the total testing of a common docking mechanism that in the future could be used on a space rescue mission.

Space Cocktail Sounds Potent

HOUSTON (AP) — Apollo astronauts were told by a ground controller today that a new cocktail has been introduced in London in honor of the joint Soviet-Soyuz space mission.

The drink, called a Linkup, is made from equal parts of American whisky and Russian vodka with a teaspoon of fresh lime, shaken well in ice.

good and drift apart to end the joint phase of a flight which the Russian commander termed "only the beginning of a great human journey into outer space."

"We have contact," U.S. commander Thomas Stafford reported as the two ships came together 140 miles over Europe.

A television picture from the Apollo craft showed the vehicles shuddering briefly when the linkup was made.

Apollo had moved about 160 feet away from Soyuz during the 52 minutes they were apart.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov donned space suits for the undock and redock manoeuvres. Soviet officials said this practice during critical flight manoeuvres since three cosmonauts were killed in Soyuz II in 1971 because of sudden cabin depressurization.

Astronauts Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton wore regular cloth flight suits.

After the separation, Apollo moved into position between the sun and Soyuz to create an artificial eclipse for the cosmonauts.

But the eclipse was created, the TV picture from Apollo showed a black shadow gradually grow across the center of Soyuz.

The cosmonauts photographed the eclipse with special film to perhaps provide scientists with information about the solar corona, the sun's atmosphere of gases.

The spacesships won't come home right away, but will stay in their docked configuration scientific experiments.

The cosmonauts are to return to earth Monday and the astronauts Thursday.

The spacemen had their official farewells Friday after a day of shuttling back and forth between the spaceships. They performed experiments, exchanged gifts and dined together.

Just before the hatches were closed for the last time on the tunnel connecting the two ships, Stafford, the U.S. commander told Leonov, the Soviet cosmonaut:

"I'm sure we've opened up a new era in the history of man."

"We wish you the best ever," Leonov replied. "But our next meeting will be back on the ground."

Nurses Get 18 Per Cent Pay Boost

TORONTO (CP) — About 19,000 Ontario nurses will receive an 18-per-cent increase over 15 months under terms of a tentative agreement between the Ontario Nurses' Association (ONA) and 194 hospitals.

Details of the agreement were announced Friday at a news conference held jointly by the ONA and hospital representatives.

The agreement, reached last weekend after nine weeks of negotiations, was ratified Friday in Toronto by representatives for each local of the union. The nurses themselves are expected to vote on the agreement by end of the month.

Under a contract which expired June 30, nurses' salaries ranged between $945 and $1,145 the end of the month.

Under the new agreement they will receive a monthly minimum of $1,045 immediately and $1,115 by January, 1976. The new maximum — monthly rate will be $1,255. Nurses with seven years experience will receive $1,315 a month effective next January.

The contract also provides shorter work weeks, longer vacations, increased pay for employees with higher education, and increased overtime payments for holidays.

Communists' main backer in the military government was reported under pressure from officers in the 30-man Supreme Revolutionary Council to step down.

Moderates in the council were said to be concerned at Goncalves' failure to solve political and economic problems.

Military leaders met Friday night with Communist and Socialist representatives in an attempt to defuse the country's worst crisis since the military overthrew the fascist dictatorship 15 months ago.

The Communists are the only civilians left in the cabinet since the withdrawal of the Socialists and centrist Popular Democrats, the two largest parties.

Socialist party leader Mario Soares told a crowd of 70,000 in Oporto, 175 miles northeast of Lisbon, Friday night:

"We are ready to defend ourselves and democracy by all means. The Communist party is engaged in a totalitarian adventure.

"They are trying to impose a dictatorship on us. We say no, no and no.

"Down with Communism," the crowd thundered back.

"It is time to ask the Armed Forces Movement whether it is going to govern with the support of the majority of the people or against them," Soares said.

Thousands of Socialists burned a Communist information booth on the city's main square after the rally.

Later Friday night, Communist party chief Alvaro Cunhal called on his party's militants to use "any means possible" to prevent the Socialist rally today, calling the Socialists "reactionary forces."

The military was ordered on full alert as mobs attacked Communist headquarters in several towns Friday.

LISBON (AP) — Communist militants joined by army units encircled Lisbon with checkpoints today in an effort to dock a giant Socialist party street rally.

Tea for Two

Hastings MPP Dr. Richard Potter pours 91-year-old Annie Doolittle a cup of tea Thursday from a giant tea pot given to Dr. Potter during the official opening of Belleville's fourth senior citizens' housing complex on West Bridge St. Mrs. Doolittle is the oldest resident of the Fairview Towers.

Fourth Housing Complex For Elderly Is Opened

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Hastings's MPP Dr. Richard Potter officially opened Belleville's fourth senior citizen housing complex Thursday.

The 81-unit complex, named Fairview Towers, is located at 321 West Bridge St. The housing complex has reached full-occupancy, 85 people and was completed in March. Construction began last April.

Belleville housing minister Donald Irvine was scheduled to be at opening ceremonies but was unable to make it. Dr. Potter, Ontario's correctional minister, along with Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Hastings MP Jack Ellis attended the event.

Project manager Kaye Kokesh, with the Belleville Region of the Ontario Housing Corporation, said the Fairview Towers is unique among senior citizen housing complexes. Adjacent to the apartments are garden plots for the residents.

Mrs. Kokesh said the response has been slow this year to the garden plots but greater interest in garden plots but greater interest is expected next year. The complex also has several shuffleboard areas, as well as park and patio areas.

She said that a fifth senior citizen housing complex is expected to be completed this September on Wellington St. North at a sixth one scheduled for completion February on East Bridge. This will add an additional 163 units to Belleville.

Mrs. Kokesh said the additional two housing complexes will meet about 40 per cent of the area's demand for this type of housing.

In his remarks Dr. Potter acknowledged the federal contribution to the project by saying "there are times when the government (federal) does spend money in the right way."

Americans Abducted

LONDON (Reuter) — Addis Ababa radio reported today the kidnapping of two Americans and four Ethiopians working at the United States communications centre in Asmara, capital of Ethiopia's northern province of Eritrea.

The radio quoted an information ministry spokesman as saying the six were abducted Monday.

The identity of the kidnappers had not yet been established, he added, but they were believed to be elements connected with Eritrean secessionists.

MacEachen, Waldheim Confer on UN Parley

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen flies to New York Friday for discussions with UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim on the Middle East situation, Cyprus and the upcoming UN crime conference in Toronto.

The two met for 55 minutes in Waldheim's office in the UN and aides said later both seemed "happy" at the outcome. There was no detail or indication of the direction of the talks.

A Canadian spokesman said the meeting, which came without prior announcement, was at MacEachen's request. He spent only hours in New York and at the UN Friday before flying to Nova Scotia and his riding of Cape Breton Highlands-Canso.

It was not known whether MacEachen may have conveyed to Waldheim any Canadian comment decision on admission of delegates from the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) to the crime prevention conference in Toronto in September.

The cabinet has been under pressure from Jewish and other groups in Canada to bar entry of PLO delegates. Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday a decision will be announced next week.

The UN is likely to withdraw the conference from Canada if the government bars the PLO, which last fall, was granted observer status with the right to officially attend UN conferences.

The Mideast discussion likely revolved around Egypt's demand the Security Council speed up Middle East peace moves before it agrees to renew the mandate of the UN peacekeeping force in the Sinai desert, which expires next Thursday.

Canada has one of the largest contingents—approximately 830 officers and men—in the 3,900-man seven-nation force.

Drought Threat To Cash Crops

By ELMER BONTER
Staff Correspondent

AMELIASBURGH — The many cash crop growers in this township stand to lose heavily should badly-needed rain fail to materialize by the end of next week.

The Quinte region since June 19 to today has had .47 inches of rain — more than two inches less than the seasonal average for this time of year, says the duty forecaster at CFB Trenton.

The forecaster late Friday held out little hope for relief for farmers, with prediction the situation could worsen before there's a change.

There is a 10 per cent chance of a thunderstorm in the locality by Saturday morning and the chance may increase to 30 per cent by Sunday morning," he said.

He said a steady rainfall for a whole day would do much good than a flash downpour that runs off rather than soaks into the dry ground.

Growers hit hardest by drought conditions are those raising crops for the canning industry apple farmers, while expressing concern, worry more about thunderstorms accompanied by hail.

On the other hand, potato growers could be interested, voiced optimism about satisfactory crop growth in spite of the long dry spell.

A grain grower, Albert Cairns in the area of last harvesting wheat said he looked forward to a bumper yield.

Superintendents Get Merit Pay

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Merit pay for teachers. Why not?

By virtue of merit pay being given to superintendents with the Hastings County Board of Education, educators are admitting there are some benefits in the system of incentive. Superintendents have a $4,000 a year negotiable with the board of education based on achievement.

If the principle can apply to superintendents it can also work for teachers. The idea is not quite out in left field either because a system of education task force is currently working on the idea.

There are many professions and jobs which rely on the principal for visible evidence or productivity. Teachers are not alone in this situation. In fact educators could take a close look at some industries and how they handle this problem.

We can all accept there are good and bad teachers. We can also accept that bad teachers will become good teachers — or at least better teachers. Therefore, living in a capitalistic society it only makes sense to reward progress with more money.

The key figure in the establishment of merit pay would be the principal. The principal as the administrative head and also the most experienced teacher is in the best position to judge his or her teachers.

The merit pay program could be based on a certain percentage of the teachers salaries — perhaps 10 per cent. Or a stipulated amount as in the case of the superintendents could be negotiated between the principal and the teacher.

Obviously disagreement could occur and it would be the role of the superintendent to step in and mediate the dispute.

With the buge salary increases this year there is going to be greater thrust from the public for professional accountability. Educators and boards of education can meet the public half way by supporting a system which would develop teaching talents.

Since it is now unlikely that the government will change its mind over current legislation placing principals in more of a management role the stage is just about set for establishing a merit pay program.

Much professional development will have to take place with principals in the area of teacher evaluation.

Hay Cutting Okay

PICTON — Richard Hendry is assistant agriculture representative with the ministry of agriculture and food here said Friday most Prince Edward farmers reported an excellent first cutting of hay.

"The rains came at just the right time," he observed.

Although the hay yield was good this year prices have increased from 1974, primarily because of cost hikes in farming operations.

Mr. Hendry noted that fuel and machinery costs have "skyrocketed" and fertilizer prices also are up. The higher prices contributed to a raise in the price of hay that

Seek Thief

PLINTON — Provincial police are still seeking a man who escaped with $300 from a residence here after knocking a girl unconscious.

The 24-year-old girl had been left in charge of the house by its owners when a man knocked on the door and inquired if her husband was home. Discovering she was alone, he knocked her unconscious and took the money.

Provincial police at Kalador did not give any names.

They say they are looking for a man of medium build, about five feet eight inches tall, with shoulder-length hair.

Body Found

MARMORA — The body of one of the two men police have been diving for in Crowe Lake was found floating in the water by three young boaters Friday evening.

The body was spotted by the cottagers, Chris Killian, Marmora, Carol Ann McCormick, Springbrook, and Craig Reid of Toronto, near where the fatal accident occurred.

A police search was initiated after the discovery of a drifting canoe paddles and life jackets and reports from people on shore of hearing cries for help, Wednesday evening.

Provincial police have withheld the names of the men pending notification of their families.

The victim recovered has family in the United States, while the next of kin of his companion is in Italy.

Diving for the body of the other man continued today.

L.I.P. Sending ideas out to work.

You can help fight unemployment this winter by getting to work on an idea this summer. Your federal government is encouraging you to submit proposals for community projects that will help provide jobs for the unemployed. Your idea has to make useful jobs where there were none before and must employ people registered at a Canada Manpower Centre.

Your L.I.P. program has up to $150,000 for every approved municipal project and up to $100,000 for other approved projects. Your idea should get underway anytime between November 3rd this year and January 26th, 1976, and must end by June 26, 1976.

It has to be creative, original, and innovative. It could be anything from converting that one room school house into a new community centre to writing and publishing a history of your city, town or village.

All applications must be in our hands no later than September 12, 1975. Other than that, it's up to you. If you've got the right idea, we'll help you put it to work.

A backyard farmer, Jack Hayward of Hill Street, has cultivated a vegetable garden this summer instead of flowers. His tomato plants are heavy with ripening fruit and he anticipates a bumper crop. In other areas of Prince Edward County all farm crops are threatened by the hot, dry weather experienced in July.

Small Crop Grower Beats Heat in Garden

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Backyard farmer Jack Hayward of Hill Street this summer has discovered there are times when it's a distinct advantage to be classed as small crop grower.

Hot, dry weather this month is threatening all Prince Edward farm crops but Mr. Hayward, who irrigates with a sprinkling can looks forward to a bumper yield of tomatoes.

Several years ago he terraced his backyard and planted beets, cabbage, onions, cucumber, potatoes, tomatoes and peppers. The farm garden he has planted was built on a steep grade at the rear of his property that slopes to the shoreline of Picton Harbor. His annual yields supply him and his wife Muriel with fresh garden vegetables throughout the summer. Surplus produce is enjoyed by neighbors.

Assistant agriculture representative with the ministry of agriculture and food here, Richard Hendry said Friday that lack of rain in Prince Edward is taking its toll.

"All crops are suffering terribly," he observed.

Mr. Hendry said it is impossible to predict yields at this time but "things are really drying up."

There have been reports of farmers who have plowed under barley and oats as there was no crop coming on.

Mr. Hendry observed that corn is curling in many Prince Edward County fields.

Jew Leads Crimea's Most Successful Farm

SIMFEROPOL, Soviet Union (Reuter) — Ilya Abramovich Yegudin runs the most successful collective farm in the Crimea. He is a member of the Ukrainian parliament and a passionate advocate of the Soviet system. He is also a Jew.

"I'm not a propagandist," he declares. "I just believe deeply in our Soviet way of life. What we have achieved could only have been done under socialism. Jews who leave looking for something better are really crazy."

Yegudin, 62, a short, rotund figure with grizzled hair and powerful forearms, has been chairman of the Friendship of the Peoples Kolkhoz (collective farm) north of Simferopol for the past 24 years. In all senses his is an outstanding Soviet Jewish success story.

Born in a rural Jewish community near Gomel in Byelorussia in 1913, he came to the Crimea with his parents when he was 19 and during the 1930s worked on the farm as a laborer, tractor driver and mechanic.

He married a Jewish girl who was a kolkhoz agronomist and they had three sons. When Nazi Germany attacked the Soviet Union in 1941, Yegudin was mobilized and fought on the eastern front and with partisans behind the German lines.

The war brought him bitter personal tragedy. Although his wife escaped when German forces swept into the Crimea, their three boys were seized and died in a Nazi extermination camp for Jewish children.

Five of his eight brothers were killed fighting in the Soviet Army.

After the war he returned to find the kolkhoz destroyed and a small band of 13 men aided by women and children began building it again.

"All we had then was one cow and two hack horses, but a lot of determination," he recalls.

In 1949, when Josef Stalin was propounding a massive purge of Jews from official and intellectual circles, Yegudin was rewarded with a new chairman.

Reunited, he and his wife also set about rebuilding their family and they had three more sons.

Today the kolkhoz covers 40,000 acres of the north Crimean steppe and although its main product is wheat, its 4,000 active workers, evenly balanced between men and women, engage in almost every aspect of modern farming.

It supplies milk, eggs and vegetables as well as wine from its own presses to Simferopol and other towns by rail to remote cities in Siberia.

'MINI GUINEA PIGS'

The kolkhoz has also amassed more than $78 million in the bank and pays its members an average of $365 a month—figures which put it among the top collective farms in the country.

Yegudin receives foreign visitors in a contemporary-styled three-storey administration building where a new museum of shoes, a theatre, a movie and a swimming pool are nearing completion.

The farm has eight elementary schools and three high schools—it is building two more—and a boarding school.

The chairman says none of this could have come about without the devotion of the kolkhoz workers and government aid in the form of an irrigation system which in 1971 brought water from the River Dnieper to the north.

Observing Yegudin, the visitor gains the firm impression that his three sons' energy must have played a key role in making the farm a showpiece for top Soviet and foreign guests.

The chairman recalls a visit in 1972 by U.S. Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz who, according to Yegudin, offered him a job as manager of a major American farm.

"I told him that capitalist system wouldn't suit me," he says with a wink.

Yegudin makes no secret of the fact that he regards himself as a Soviet citizen first and a Jew second.

"In my view, the Jews who leave are obsessed with their nationality," he says. "As for me, I regard myself as an international."

He adds: "Two of my sons have married Russian girls and the third an Armenian, and you should see the beautiful children they've all produced. We have people of 19 nationalities on this farm and honestly its a happy community."

"This country belongs to all of us. Anyone who wants can make a life here. All my life I've lived with Russians, Ukrainians and the like and I've never heard anybody single me for being a Jew."

The chairman also expresses strong views on the place of the collective farm in the Soviet agricultural system, scorning proposals to abolish the kolkhozes and merge them with the state farms.

"Anyone can bandy about ideas like that," he comments with a sniff, "But in practice there's no better system of farming than our collective one, especially while the freedom of action we've gained these last 10 years."

He draws a glass of the powerful, sweet wine Yegudin is now known on the farm as "the chairman's favorite."

"Look," he adds, "as chairman of the kolkhoz, I make the decisions. I don't have to wait for someone in a ministry thousands of miles away to decide for me. And the workers have their incentives."

Perhaps surprisingly, Yegudin is not a believer in the private plot—the small garden Soviet farmers are allowed to maintain where they grow fruit and vegetables and sometimes keep animals to supplement their often-meagre incomes.

"For the people on our farm the private plot is not the source of life," he says. "They earn well enough on the collective land. I'm in favor of the kolkhoznik working on the kolkhoz. That's obviously where the future lies."

Weed Inspector's Duties Provide Fringe Benefits

By AL ZABAR
Staff Reporter

It's a good job, providing of course, that you have no allergies to cause you to break out in a rash.

As weed inspector, you greet the open air daily. Your workday is not spent under artificial lights, although if it's hot, you have to suffer without air-conditioning, summer's balm.

You roam Trenton streets looking for weeds. Anywhere. North, south, east, west. If not completely, the day is nearly yours to do what you wish with. After all, the boss is back in the office, working.

The job gives you the opportunity to express your personality.

If you're a real stinker, you can write nasty letters to your neighbors telling them that they had better cut those weeds growing in the backyard. If you're a nice fella, you can overlook your neighbor's weeds, and never tell him you've done it. (Nice guys never tell others they're nice guys.)

Now that's not saying that Robert Kirchmayer, Trenton's weed inspector, does any of the things I've just mentioned. It's just that he's in the enviable position of being able to do it.

So few of us, it seems, work under conditions that afford such opportunities for personal expression, daily mobility, and the chance to take a coffee break when one wants.

We push pencils towards deadlines, always marked on our desk calendars. Yes sir, we lead a tough life.

But if you're now thinking (see how persuasive I am) about quitting your job and looking for one as a weed inspector, forget it. As Mr. Kirchmayer said this week, you can only take so much of looking at weeds.

They are, let's face it, basically unattractive. And then again, it's far from a full-time job. Come winter, weeds die, and so does your job.

All this is merely to put across one thought. We've all got problems. If you're working, consider yourself lucky. If you haven't a job, don't look at me to steer you towards weed inspecting. And don't look at me, or provincial, or federal politicians for that matter, to give you a reason you don't have one.

Picton Fair Needs Leaders

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A mini-complex for recreation and sports, Picton Fairgrounds apparently lacks a committed leadership ready to permit operation of its facilities at full potential.

A recent bid by the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society to gain control of grounds activities and regulation of buildings failed when county councillors voted down their proposed short cut through red tape. An immediate appeal for control of county council's decision has not been indicated by the directors of the fair board.

The agricultural society originally suggested the public finds it confusing when permission for use of the grounds cannot be obtained from the fairboard. Prince Edward County council's property and supply committee also must be consulted before activities proposed by the fairboard — county-owned property — can be sanctioned. Final stamp of approval comes from county council.

The agricultural society urged council to transfer control of grounds activities and regulation of buildings to Charles Culmer, chairman of the fair board's grounds committee. He would be empowered to approve or deny all applications to use the site.

Council balked after county clerk Tom Walker advised that consequences of the fairboard's proposal could be more far-reaching than was apparent in terms of county liability should persons using the grounds receive injuries.

The defeated proposal carries the legal of "little church wrong pew" in relation to operation of the fairgrounds and its buildings.

If the fairgrounds is to serve as many taxpayers as possible through recreation and sports it is important that a well-defined procedure for obtaining permission to use this property be prepared. A run-around of referrals from one board to property and supply committee to county council is an obstacle to any group petitioning for use of the site.

If more people are to benefit, issuing approvals is indicated. On the other hand, the council to transfer grounds control and regulation of buildings to the fair board in Picton's best interests. Fair wrappings is to move away from the concept of a public facility regulated through public representatives. Fair representatives are not publicly elected and usually remain in office for many years.

No one member of the agricultural society should be employed by the fair board or the fairgrounds, a county-owned site.

This implies no criticism of the man, rather it points up the flaw of a public facility operated as a private park.

Many approvals for grounds use might be a burn routine but by referring them to a committee full discussion and opportunity are promoted.

The fair board has a valid point in suggesting that there is too much confusion and delay surrounding approvals for grounds use. It's time county council considered a speedier "yes or no" for groups and individuals seeking permission for use of the property.

Possibly one of the best ways to cut through delays would be insertion of ads in the local paper advising the public of how to make applications and to whom. This way service clubs and other groups could plan to request permission in plenty of time.

Should county council decide to review its stand on grounds use, hopefully a joint committee of fair board and county will be supported in preference to a one-man-show.

It would seem more feasible to appoint at least one county council member to share decisions with a fair board member if the public voice is to continue in administration of the fairgrounds and its buildings.

Since streamlining approvals and preventing conflicts are the fair board's only stated goals, surely there could be no objection to shared responsibility.

Gardening Column

Roses Are At Critical Period

Except for the growing of vegetables and fruits, most people consider the results of a well-thought out landscape plan to be purely esthetic. Rarely do we consider softer of the more practical benefits of gardening such as — believe it or not — climate control.

But through the proper planting of deciduous and coniferous trees, hedges and vines you can literally lower summer temperatures in your home and yard by as much as 5½ degrees C. And blunt the winter elements too through snow and wind control.

For example, Boston ivy could easily be called the air conditioner ivy. It alone grows overlapping leaves provide a layer of insulation that not only prevents the scorching summer sun from touching the walls of your house, but in addition, traps an insulating layer of air that is further cooled by the moisture exuded by the leaves, which of these we term as dew.

And of course, there are many more vines and ivies that can be employed in climate control such as grape, Virginia creeper or Englemann's ivy and silver lace vine that can literally cover the walls of your home.

Roof a deck or patio with a lattice work of one of these vines and you'll be astonished at the effect.

And if you like the results, but don't like the look of window awnings, good. Neither do I. Especially when there's a far more attractive way to both screen and cool your windows with living plant material.

All you do is simply make up open framework grids of wood with lattice work, two feet apart and mount them at the top of your windows on the South side of the house, at right angles to the walls. Oftentimes these are called an "eyebrow" trellis and when covered with deciduous vines growing up the walls of the house, they shield the windows from the hot summer sun. But we lead a tough life, and by allowing the winter sun to beam in.

And the same principle is readily applied when you plant deciduous trees on the South side of your home — shade in the summer with the leaves falling to allow the sun through in winter.

And as a hands to reason that evergreen trees and shrubs should be planted on the North side. In that location they can't block off winter sunlight, but they can act as a wind break against bowling northern gales. Plant them on the north side of a driveway or anywhere winter access is desired. Because they're a living snow fence in winter, which is an asset you can readily see. The south side of an evergreen hedge or windbreak is an ideal place to plant roses. Not only do the flowers stand out in bold relief against the living wall of green, but in winter the evergreen hedge will bury them in snow, which is the best winter protection your roses could ask for.

Deciduous trees and shrubs can be planted as wind breaks that will warm as well as cool your outdoor living area. In the immediate lee of a tree or shrub, the temperature will be warmer than on the windward side. But beyond that point, the cooler air eddying over the trees or shrubs falls to the ground providing cooler air in addition to shade.

At night, the windbreak trees and shrubs cool the upper air that drifts into your bedroom windows, but allows the lower-lying air where your plants grow, to be warmed by the heat being radiated from the ground.

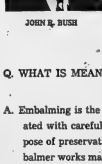
FUNERAL QUESTIONS



JOHN R. BUSH

WE ARE OFTEN ASKED

R. DOUGLAS BUSHNELL

Q. WHAT IS MEANT BY EMBALMING?

A. Embalming is the method in which all body tissues are saturated with carefully compounded fluids designed for the purpose of preservation. Our preparation room in which the embalmer works may well be compared to the operating room of a hospital. It is immaculately clean and provided with all the equipment and supplies needed for the professional embalmer. Embalming also enables family and friends to view the deceased upon paying their respects.

East and West Will Meet at Important 34-Nation Security Conference

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

While the world's press scrambles to report on terrorism in the Middle East, chaos in Portugal, the U.S.-Soviet joint space shot, a major event which will draw the world's captains, kings, presidents and prime ministers, goes almost unnoticed.

This is the 34-nation European security conference which began in Helsinki, Finland on July 3, 1973 and will end in a few days with the signing of an agreement in the same Finnish city.

The negotiations over boundaries, military establishments, common security and tariff arrangements have been conducted by all the European nations except Albania and included the United States and Canada.

Even tiny Monaco, equally small Luxembourg and the Vatican, a secular state in its own right, have been involved.

The signing event therefore, could include not only the liars of Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev and President Ford but our own Prime Minister Trudeau, His Holiness Pope Paul VI, the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg, perhaps even Princess Grace Kelsey's husband who is Monaco's ruler.

This agreement, which is not a formal treaty, nevertheless guarantees Europe's postwar boundaries.

Acceptance of such a proposal by Western European countries was a major coup for the U.S.S.R. which had been trying to obtain a European security treaty as long ago as 1954.

Regional reduction of armed forces was pushed by tough-minded Prime Minister Dom Mintoff of tiny Malta. His small island is currently beset by two huge fleets, the U.S. Sixth and the powerful Soviet Mediterranean fleet.

This would apply initially only in the Mediterranean area which is important enough, bearing in mind the near-clash of arms last year between Greece and Turkey over Cyprus.

In fact Turkey is not entirely satisfied with another clause in the multi-nation security agreement calling for notification in advance of military manoeuvres, "as a means of building confidence in relations between countries."

In exchange for all-round agreement on what Moscow has called "inviolability of frontiers," the Western European states had won Russian agreement to improve the flow, circulation and reduction of their substantial forces in Eastern Europe.

The Romanians balked, and successfully too, at the so-called "Brezhnev Doctrine" a Soviet euphemism for militarily moving into any one of their satellite states to restore "socialist order."

This last happened in August, 1968, when the former enlightened and nationalistic Dubcek Communist regime tried to go its own way within Communist Eastern Europe. It was then the Russians invaded and overthrew him.

The Romanians have had much more success in sticking to the Russian line on occasion, an advantage they did not wish to see swept away by the security conference. And it won't be.

Approval also signifies in the document to be signed, hopefully July 30, for a meeting of senior officials from all nations in 1977 to assess the results of the two-year-old conference.

The six official languages of the security conference remain as international diplomacy with many countries refusing to agree to the normal international practice of precedence, that "all texts are authentic" in all languages.

That perhaps is a minor negative result, given the possibility for much larger ones during the last two years.

Enough of Horseplay!

The kind of hospitality toward visitors from the United States that we had in mind the other day was not of the sort an American rock group experienced at a hotel bar the other day.

Slapstick comedy via pulp pies covered with whipped cream, at the expense of the entertainers, is best left to comedy routines in movies and on TV. It is not the sort of thing expected in a hotel lounge atmosphere in Belleville or anywhere else.

Yet it has happened, as other untoward incidents are bound to in what too often manifests itself as a crazy mixed-up world. There is a lack of maturity, and of responsible behavior, with consequences that are all too evident.

So here we have a group of entertainers, from another country, and whatever else should occur in the time they remain together, the city of Belleville will be remembered by them for an exhibitionism of hooliganism.

With luck perhaps time will dim the crassness of it all, and given the extremes and eccentricities of daily life in the United States, it likely will all balance out anyway.

The hotel lounge incident, the violence that so often passes for entertainment, and the sharply increased incidence of vandalism noted in police reports in the Quinte area of late, are symbolic of the malaise of our time.

Police authorities are right in enlisting assistance from the educational system in tackling this problem. How they get the message across will be up to them — but do it they must.

Lazy Days and Culture

It is part of the mystique of summer that one should be outdoors and either quietly taking it easy or relentlessly on the move.

The evidence of this crowd instinct is to be seen — as well as on the highways — in that curious North American institution, the barbecue, with its already well-fed and clearly out-of-condition attendees tending, with slow and loving ritual, yet another repast in countless backyards or at the beach.

Does art have a place in this scenario? Definitely . . . Books . . . Pen or Brush . . . Artistic Expression of various kinds?

It does to an extent, and mostly at the individual level.

At the Quinte Mall recently a young lady with a Scandinavian name — Johnsen and the initials L.A., for Lise-Anne, had on display her work as a portraitist, as well as other paintings in styles more varied than one is accustomed to in individual artiste. It was as if she were displaying different facets of her personality, ranging from a rural scene in the style of an Andrew Wyeth to the likeness of a group of young woman in one of those rumpled denim outfits of the day.

There is artistic effort too in the preparation by the Theatre August group at the Pinnacle Playhouse later this month. Four plays are being presented. Otherwise there is something of a void at the cultural level in the community in summertime, save for the furtherance of the nostalgia phenomenon at the movies, as witness Gone With The Wind at The Park theatre and, for those who missed it, an opportunity at the Belleville Drive-In to see Jesus Christ Superstar.

The Issue of Teachers' Salaries: Are They Quite That Badly Off?

Editor,

The Intelligencer:

In reply to Concerned Parent's letter in July 12 issue of The Intelligencer, allow me to say that while I have nothing against so-called professional people getting all we can afford of education will give or a complacent public will pay — or neglecting lukewarm hearing and reading about the terrible hardships of our leaders and how the country will collapse without them.

In my line of business we read, hear, and see of the night and day, handling millions of dollars of government. We work Sundays and holidays at straight time rates. We can lose our lives if we get careless; or our jobs

If we don't pass our examinations every two years. Our cost of living clause is a farce — doesn't go into effect until after the cost of living rises 10 per cent. Our union — which isn't too good for us — accepted a 15 per cent raise last January 1st. This raise is proving to be about 10 per cent short of the average. Our pension is tied in with the Canada Pension Plan (integrated). So we are getting shafted in that department.

We get no increments. And as I said before we lose our jobs if we fail our exams. Which are pretty tough and require a minimum of 80 per cent to pass — if we pass our exams we get nothing except maybe a handshake from the instructor if we get a very good mark.

So please teachers, stop crying. You've really got it very good for nine months of work.

Abuses Continue in Never-never Land of Unemployment

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs
Analyst
Thomson News Service

An unemployment rate of 7.2 per cent for 1,000,000 Canadians—and 14—pretty bad, especially when compared with the 4.8 per cent rate in the same month last year.

It means that one out of 14 people in the labor force can't find a job.

Or does it really mean that?

The latest nose-count of the unemployed has taken shape from the June 23 budget, which tightened up—slightly—unemployment fiendishness that Unemployment Insurance recipients have to bleed.

Anyone who arranges to get fired "for just cause" could qualify for benefits after three weeks. The new rule imposes a six-week wait.

And the person who reaches age 65 is no longer eligible for unemployment benefits, except for the special retirement payment of three weeks' benefits.

These changes will tend to keep the unemployment rate a little lower in the months ahead, than it might otherwise have been.

But the unlucky 7.2 per cent still include a good many people who are not really unemployed in the generally accepted sense—such as the married person who might go back to work if an interesting job came along, or the person who prefers single-supported leisure and dispensible work, or the unfortunate person who can't fit into the labor force economically because of some physical or personality defect.

The thrust of the June 23 federal budget, according to its author, the finance minister—was against unemployment.

Let's hope that its ultimate effect will be to stimulate industrial expansion and create jobs. Time will tell.

One of the direct effects of the amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act, introduced soon after the budget, however, is to make it more expensive for an employer to take on a worker.

At the moment, the boss has to pay $3.63 per worker into the unemployment fund each week—and collect another $2.50 from each employee for the same purpose—where earnings are $185 or more.

After next Jan. 1, the employer will have to increase his contribution by 54 to 81 cents, and every worker will start paying an additional 36 to 55 cents a week.

The increases follow from the government's decision to scrap the existing formula.

In the past, workers and employers had to foot the bill for unemployment insurance up to the average dollar rate of the past eight years. That "moving entrance" was $3.3 per week in 1975.

In the election campaign of 1974, the Trudeau government gave the impression that it intended to overhaul the Unemployment Insurance Act as a priority matter.

Now, after a year's delay, it has offered some minor modifications combined with substantial increases in the premiums charged to employers and workers.

That may help the federal treasury, but it won't do much to change widespread public resentment at continuing abuses of the system.

For example, with only eight weeks of insurable employment, a person can qualify for 26 weeks or even 50 weeks of unemployment benefits.

In any worthwhile reform, entitlement should be linked to the period worked—such as one week's benefits for every two weeks of insurable employment, up to a certain limit.

And the hit-and-miss "co-operation" of the Unemployment Insurance Commission and Canada Manpower Centres must be replaced with the integration of the two bureaucracies, to benefit genuine job-seekers, and to spot the fraud artists.

Any other amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act should be in the direction of simplifying it. Few claimants can understand it fully, and even some of its administrators can be tripped up in its complexities.

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Now with the long-warmed-up leadership race finally and officially off and running, the split among the Conservatives widens.

The gap between left and right — obvious in the parliamentary caucus, if not so apparent in the party-at-large — is polarizing the Honorable Members.

The hostility between the two wings is so vitriolic that there is little, if any, room for neutrality.

The party's parliamentary left — strong in voice and media influence, if not always in numbers — proudly presents itself under the blinding banner of "Red Tories."

The right calls itself the "Chateau Cabinet."

This name because the large and growing group of small-c conservatives who are hoping the party will correctly read the prevailing mood of the country and move to the right, held their organizational conferences at Ottawa's Chateau Laurier.

Their position, essentially, is that public opinion is not supported by a hearty inflow of parliamentary mail from voters across the country — urgently indicates Canadians have had enough of radical change. At least for awhile.

And that having steadily drifted left, the electorate may suspect is only a little to the right of centre New Democrats they have watched the "Red Tory" brand of conservatism frighten off traditional conservative support.

Members of the "Chateau Cabinet" have become concerned that the "Red Tories" have moved the Conservatives, under Robert Stanfield, leftward of the Trudeau Liberals.

This has been reinforced since their last election triumph only a year ago by the Liberals who, day by day, look more like conservatives than the Progressive Conservatives themselves.

But the resistance of the "Red Tories" to form a league in the drift to the left, let alone a change of party direction, is enormous.

They and their media allies for months have struggled to put down the small-c conservatives as "rednecks, mavericks, cowboys and fanatical right wing extremists."

But how "extreme" is Point Ten of the "Chateau Cabinet's" 10-point manifesto? It reads:

"Organized crime must be controlled, and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police should be given the direction and authority to eliminate it from politics and government management."

This, to listen to the "Red Tories" and their mouthpieces in the parliamentary media, reflects what they seem to regard as a "paranoia" among the small-c conservatives that the Liberal government uses the RCMP for political purposes.

It didn't foster Liberal Prime Minister Lester Pearson, scarred by scandals in his government, call in the then RCMP Commissioner George B. McLellan to order an undercover investigation of Members of Parliament.

Mr. Pearson's prime ministership had been slayed by the capers of convicted narcotics smuggler Lucien Rivard, corruption among ministerial aides, abuse of cabinet office in credit dealings, and other questionable activities in high party places.

So, smeared by scandal, he ordered the RCMP to do for dirt in hope. Conservatives decried the political ploy and it wasn't exclusive to Liberals.m.

Out of the RCMP files came the clues which broke the Gerda Munsinger "scandal" which stained the career of two members of former Prime Minister Diefenbaker's cabinet, and led, indirectly, to disintegration of the Conservative government and another long and still continuing stretch in the wilderness of opposition for the Progressive Conservative party.

The "Chateau Cabinet's" thinking on the RCMP, says Tom Cossitt, a leading Conservative parliamentarian, is to make the RCMP like the Auditor General's office, responsible not to the government but to the House of Commons.

That way it would be beyond reach of political subversion, and be more available to the government of the day for character assassination.

And what's so "paranoid" about that is the basic "Red Tory" party disruptives?

How to Cope with Bees!

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

There has been a great deal of information distributed about the bumble bee! Yesterday, it caused some unnecessary alarm.

The so-called killer bees are still in Central America, but there are plenty of native bees a-plenty also around. They are busy and although not as aggressive as the bee of Africa, they have been accidentally hybridized with African bees. They also sting and painfully at that.

The natural precautions are numerous. Information on what to do about them, which is based on the best sensible approach rather than hysteria. One point to remember is that bees are attracted by perfume because it is the way flowers in essentially there to attract bees and other pollinating insects.

Another point of interest is that bees are attracted to dark clothing especially if it is woolen. Also, if you sting the ankles through dark socks instead of stinging the bare skin about the ankle.

It's worth remembering that the bee's body is long and can be encountered on a holiday are honeybees. Most are bumble bees, wasps or hornets, all of which are likely to sting more painfully than honeybees as well as more likely to back to the field. Honeybees devote their attention entirely to the flowers unless they are defending their hive, which is usually large and conspicuous and the beekeeper is a reasonable common sense needs to go near one.

There is also an allergic reactions to bee stings and needs medical attention immediately. A great many stings at once may also require medical attention, but fortunately neither of these circumstances occurs often.

In the great majority of cases the stinger, if left in the wound, can be removed by the claws, or better, sterilized knife blade. A little wet baking soda will help, although no really available medication really "cures" a bee sting.

Some interesting, if not practical, suggestions from the ministry include the utmost keep of the hands. Fortunately bees seldom follow their victims.

In the open if one bee bothers you, don't wave your hands over your face. When driving, if a bee flies in the window, don't panic, it will try to get out and the best to do is let it.

There are few people who escape being stung by bees or wasps for one or more five thousand or so kinds of stinging insects at some point in their lives. But fortunately the consequences are usually more serious. The bees of Canada are far from being killer bees.

Consultants Suggest Churches Develop Community Service Centres

By ALAN ASBUCKLE

EDMONTON (CP) — Many churches in Canada have been in financial straits for years and many older, big-city churches have folded because they had no way to pay the bills. One development company thinks it has a solution.

A.V. Consultation Ltd. and its management service arm are suggesting that churches make use of the resources they have, often in the form of land, to develop community-service centres which house both sanctuaries and community facilities and provide income.

Stan Clarke, client consulting multi-purpose hall suitable for The loan will be repaid, less a manager, said in an interview meetings and church services, 10-per-cent forgiveness, over 50 churches have lost contact with committee rooms and a years with income from the community because they have no community hall, five floors of rooms in building, Any surplus is used to Carlson's proposal gives the be leased to the YWCA, two improve the facility or further church a chance to get back floors of apartments for rent to subsidize rents for the senior community by meeting the general public, three floors citizens.

Lively Debate Stirred By 'Hartford Heresies'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — A fresy debate is swelling among theologians about the so-called "Hartford heresies"—a list of principles that have been termed false and destructive while spread among modern church people.

The attitudes are "apparent in the whole spectrum of religious life today," says Rev. Richard Newhaus, a New York Lutheran pastor, adding that they are erroneous and debilitating to the church.

Rev. Dr. Harvey Cox, a Baptist theologian at Harvard University, terms the indicted viewpoints "radical and to the point of absurdity."

Rev. Avery Dulles, a Washington, D.C., Catholic scholar, contained the listed assumptions pervade contemporary culture and tend to erode belief. "Christian thought in seeking to modernize itself, has in some cases fallen into captivity to modern world views."

Key theme of the assailed viewpoints, drawn by a group at 18 leading Protestant and Catholic theologians at a meeting early this year at Hartford, Conn., is that asserted "loss of a sense of the transcendent" aspect of God.

The classic Judeo-Christian teaching, God is seen both as immanent—deeply present and other than the created, finite world—but also immanent or present in it, actively involved in human affairs and history.

Modern thought has tended to be one-dimensional about this, the Hartford statement says, limiting ideas of God to human efforts, in this world, to improve society by human thought, culture, struggles and capabilities.

Challenging the Hartford heresies are many "I believe officials of the interdenominational National Council of Churches, Cox said, it involves a "peculiar form of God-world dualism," separating the Creator from his Christian social concern.

"God is committed to be human struggle, but he is not to be equated with the human struggle."

Among the asserted views which the Hartford statement cited as widely held were these, but false were:

—Modern thought is superior to all past forms of understanding.

—Religious language refers to human experience and nothing else. ("We found an ist vent God, God invented us.")

—All religions are equally valid; the criterion is the character of truth but of preference or life style.

—The world must set the agenda for the church.

—An emphasis on God's transcendence may hinder

Consultants Suggest Churches Develop Community Service Centres

By ALAN ASBUCKLE

EDMONTON (CP) — Many churches in Canada have been in financial straits for years and many older, big-city churches have folded because they had no way to pay the bills. One development company thinks it has a solution.

A.V. Consultation Ltd. and its management service arm are suggesting that churches make use of the resources they have, often in the form of land, to develop community-service centres which house both sanctuaries and community facilities and provide income.

Stan Clarke, client consulting manager, said in an interview churches have lost contact with committee rooms and a years with income from the community because they have no community hall, five floors of rooms in building, Any surplus is used to Carlson's proposal gives the be leased to the YWCA, two improve the facility or further church a chance to get back floors of apartments for rent to subsidize rents for the senior community by meeting the general public, three floors citizens.

Lively Debate Stirred By 'Hartford Heresies'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — A fresy debate is swelling among theologians about the so-called "Hartford heresies"—a list of principles that have been termed false and destructive while spread among modern church people.

The attitudes are "apparent in the whole spectrum of religious life today," says Rev. Richard Newhaus, a New York Lutheran pastor, adding that they are erroneous and debilitating to the church.

Rev. Dr. Harvey Cox, a Baptist theologian at Harvard University, terms the indicted viewpoints "radical and to the point of absurdity."

Rev. Avery Dulles, a Washington, D.C., Catholic scholar, contained the listed assumptions pervade contemporary culture and tend to erode belief. "Christian thought in seeking to modernize itself, has in some cases fallen into captivity to modern world views."

Key theme of the assailed viewpoints, drawn by a group at 18 leading Protestant and Catholic theologians at a meeting early this year at Hartford, Conn., is that asserted "loss of a sense of the transcendent" aspect of God.

The classic Judeo-Christian teaching, God is seen both as immanent—deeply present and other than the created, finite world—but also immanent or present in it, actively involved in human affairs and history.

Modern thought has tended to be one-dimensional about this, the Hartford statement says, limiting ideas of God to human efforts, in this world, to improve society by human thought, culture, struggles and capabilities.

Challenging the Hartford heresies are many "I believe officials of the interdenominational National Council of Churches, Cox said, it involves a "peculiar form of God-world dualism," separating the Creator from his Christian social concern.

"God is committed to be human struggle, but he is not to be equated with the human struggle."

Among the asserted views which the Hartford statement cited as widely held were these, but false were:

—Modern thought is superior to all past forms of understanding.

—Religious language refers to human experience and nothing ba. ("We found an ist vent God, God invented us.")

—All religions are equally valid; the criterion is the character of truth but of preference or life style.

—The world must set the agenda for the church.

—An emphasis on God's transcendence may hinder

Radio Vatican Has New Image

By MICHAEL DOERS

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — Vatican Radio, once the staid voice of the Spirit of the Roman Catholic Church, is tuning into the Pop culture and news in six different languages.

The radio station, founded more than 40 years ago to that the Holy Father could speak to the faithful from on soul, has suddenly taken on a new image.

"This is Radio Vatican," a voice blares out from a penthouse flat in Rome, against a man quarter of Trastevere. A moment later, the street is filled with the sound of modern jazz in high-frequency stereo.

Called Studio A, the new program is the brainchild of a self-effacing American priest, Rev. John St. George, who is in charge of the radio's English-language programs.

Studio A is so different from Vatican Radio's normal output, once described as "interval signs followed by programs in languages no one understands," that it seems calculated to send shivers down the spines of elderly monsignori and senior members of the curia.

In his office high above the Vatican gardens and within a stone's throw of St. Peter's, Father St. George admits he had to face opposition in getting his program on the air.

"We snuck up on them," he said, meaning that one fine day last summer the radio waves suddenly vibrated to the sound of Studio A without any prior announcement.

The result has been an extremely popular music show considered by experts to be technically superior to the stereo programs put out by Italian radio.

As if Studio A were not enough, church traditionalists are also having to digest a with the profane on the show. full of news, music, tourist information, and interviews.

Aimed at the millions of foreign pilgrims who have descended on Rome for the church's jubilee Holy Year celebrations, the program is conducted in five or six languages.

The pace of the show, called Hello Pilgrim, is fast as the multilingual announcers switch effortlessly from Spanish to French to English to Italian to German. When a party of 30,000 pilgrims from Yugoslavia arrived in town, the announcers came out in Serbo-Croat. as

The sacred mixes freely with the profanes on the show. After a reading from the Gospel, the English host broke in breathlessly to tell his listeners how the South African Rand has fallen five points on international exchanges—and believe me, that's some drop."

The juxtaposition is an indication of a new philosophy creeping into Vatican Radio.

"If you really want to talk to them then you have to meet them where they are. A radio program without an audience is just an exercise in piety," Father St. George said.

New Rules For Tomato Canning

The great tomato - canning controversy rears its ugly head again.

In last summer's instalment of our story, you'll remember, a variety of opinion was offered by several different governments — home-grown and foreign — and several different canning communities on the safety of water-bath canning tomatoes.

You'll remember that vegetables — which contain little acid — along with meats must be canned by the pressure method which raises the internal temperature enough to kill nasty things like botulism. Tomatoes, on the other hand, along with fruits, have long been considered acid enough to process by simple water-bath canning.

Then last summer, the new orange-colored low-acid tomatoes appeared in the markets and were more popularly grown in home gardens than ever before.

Don't, we were warned, can them by water-bath.

Now, the Ontario government and the federal government have a new warning: If you process ordinary red tomatoes by water-bath, you must discard your old instructions, which universally call for 30 minutes processing time, and process them for 40 minutes. And you must add citric acid to be really safe.

Maria Cunningham, Ontario Food Council home economist, explains that the reason is the great variety of tomatoes available for the garden and at the supermarket.

You can get them round or oval, big or small, pink, yellow or red, meaty or juicy.

The acid level of these new varieties is generally lower than ever, and 30-year-old information — which we've all been using — just isn't any longer adequate.

Tests at Vineland Research Station and at Ottawa reveal that the pH of modern tomatoes hovers at a border line 4.6 — not really acid enough to be safe.

If you live in Thunder Bay, incidentally, you might have more acid tomatoes even if the same variety was not acid enough for safe canning in southern Ontario. Growing conditions significantly alter acid levels.

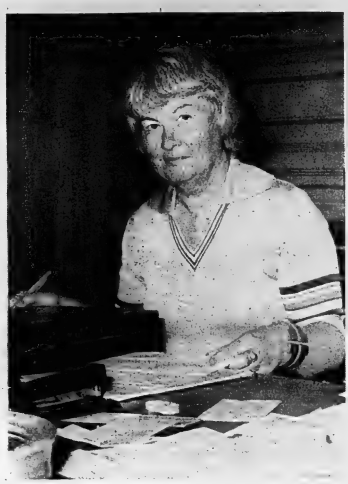
Ms. Cunningham says the various methods of canning were tested and discarded for various reasons. For example the addition of lemon juice altered the taste.

In the end, the province and the federal government have recommended raw pack canning. Tomatoes are scalded and peeled and packed raw in jars. For each quart of tomatoes, ½ teaspoon citric acid is dissolved in one tablespoon of boiling water and added to the quart which has been half filled. Fill remainder and seal. Process 40 minutes; 5 minutes for pints.

Hot pack produces too-soft pack which may not be properly penetrated by heat.

You can get citric acid at most supermarkets and drug stores.

If you want more information, write Ms. Cunningham at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Parliament Buildings, Toronto, Ont.



Kathleen Kerr

Money Management Important for Wives

Kathleen Kerr turned from housewife to business woman 18 years ago after special training at Belleville Collegiate Institute.

The courses she took in business management, finance and law, prepared her for her present career — branch accountant for the Victoria and Grey Trust Company.

She is responsible for the maintenance of daily cash balance within the Belleville branch office. The position involves both supervisory work with other employees and paper work is the making out of reports to head office, a varied job that she enjoys immensely.

Mrs. Kerr, who is "at home" with money because of her work, recognizes that many women feel insecure when dealing with family finances.

"The first thing to do, to become better at handling money, is to keep a written budget," she advises. "It should be flexible but it should be a complete record of your spending.

"A year is usually ample time to keep the cancelled cheques and receipts of your budget, so that you have them on hand for reference. By seeing where your money goes, you can get a better idea how to manage it to your advantage."

Mrs. Kerr notes that in her experience, "women are more hesitant than men to play with their money, to make it work for them.

"Banks are willing to give advice to women about investments," she says, adding that Canada Savings Bonds are a good way to invest, especially because they can be cashed at any time.

Another way that a woman can become more familiar with money is to have her own bank account.

"Joint accounts are just fine, as long as you're getting along," says Mrs. Kerr. "But it's a problem if ever there is trouble.

"It's good for a woman to have her own account, even if only for money used in running the household. Then, once she's handled that, she can branch out if she wants to."

Mrs. Kerr admits that it is still generally more difficult for married women to obtain a bank loan — her husband's signature is needed — but adds that far fewer women than men, married or single, apply for loans.

"Maybe that's another proof that women are less aware than men of what money can do for them," she says.

And how is that going to change?

The first step is earlier education about money matters. Mrs. Kerr says she's happy that secondary schools are putting more emphasis on economics in the home.

"But they should be more financial courses taught," she says. "A special course that could be taken during spare periods might be one way to reach more students."

Part Two Of Money Management for wives will appear Monday.

Kathy Kenwell, Hotel Sales Manager

An interest in the operation of a big hotel sent Kathy Kenwell to the Four Seasons Hotel four years ago in search of a part-time job. She was hired, and worked in the kitchen, restaurant and bar during her three years at Loyalist College.

Since her graduation from the Hotel and Restaurant Management course a year ago, she has been a full-time employee at the hotel. As sales manager, she is in a position with growing obligations.

"I've been lucky here," says Miss Kenwell. "If I were in a big Toronto hotel, I'd be considered too young for the kind of job."

Instead, her job has expanded since she took over work that had been done previously by both the hotel manager and his assistant manager. She organizes banquets, meetings, conventions and weekends, and recently assumed responsibility for advertising and promotion.

Miss Kenwell is the first contact with the hotel for persons who are arranging a special event. She takes their information, helps them choose various facilities, and as her words, "puts the package together."

From that point on, she's in charge of the proceedings, sendant duplicates of her information sheets to ten other departments. As much as possible, she tries to keep check on the most important aspects of any occasion.

"I also contact individuals and groups afterwards, to see whether the booking was satisfactory," she says.

"Working with people at every stage is what I enjoy most."

Her job requires that she know the hotel well, and this sends Miss Kenwell to view each new musical groups so that she can recommend entertainment to guests. She also makes it a point to eat often in the hotel, and to keep contact with all areas to better analyze sales patterns.

"It's a job with constant involvement," says Miss Kenwell. "I find as soon as I'm in the hotel, I'm conscious of what's happening all around me.

"It's not the kind of job you can turn off. Actually, I spend so much time either at the hotel or thinking about it, I might not like a more conventional job. This has really become part of my life."

Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Evans of Wallbridge, are happy to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Susan Jane, to Terry Roy Cox, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy A. Cox, RR 2, Trenton. The marriage will take place August 16th, at 3:30 p.m., at Westminster United Church.

Nuns Are Sheperds

VICTORIA (CP) — Mother Cecilia Mary once said she would sooner be excommunicated than abandon her work with homeless animals.

But fortunately for the 85-year-old nun it never came to that.

Mother Cecilia, mother superior of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, runs the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter in Mill Bay, about 25 miles north of here on Vancouver Island.

A maze of kennels, barns and wire-enclosed runways house more than 300 dogs, 100 cats, 18 old horses and assorted sheep, goats, calves, ducks, geese and chickens.

"Our surroundings are beautiful," said Mother Cecilia. "Nevertheless it's a wild country here and as a consequence has become a dumping ground for many unwanted pets.

"It's strange that man should choose a place of beauty for the most cowardly action of all—the abandonment of an animal to starvation and death."

Some animals are left in cardboard boxes and others are thrown over the fence. Mother Cecilia checks local animal auctions, rescuing animals destined for the slaughterhouse.

But she has not always been allowed to tend for her animals in peace.

Her first animal shelter was in a house in the suburbs of Victoria used by nuns of the priory, a nursing home for elderly patients operated by Mother Cecilia.

It began in 1960 when the priory heard of a starving dog and her litter of eight, of which six puppies were dying.

"I went straight to the breeder and bought the entire litter as soon as I heard about it," she said.

"Then I brought the dogs to live at a house used by the nuns of the priory. Within a year, I took in 38 other homeless dogs. Soon I found myself spending as much time with the animals as I did running the rest home."

Since her sixth term of office as mother superior was about to expire, Mother Cecilia decided to retire.

"Now that I was nominally retired, I had more time to spend with the animals. Eventually the ever-increasing number of animals made it necessary to move to larger quarters."

Mother Cecilia financed the animal shelter out of her own pocket. Her father had left her a legacy of $12,000 which she turned into $40,000 through shrewd investment in property and by selling and re-selling land.

But one day a Roman Catholic apostolic visitor arrived to demand that the shelter be closed and the sisters return to their duties at the priory rest home.

Mother Cecilia defied the order, saying "animals have souls like the rest of God's creatures."

"The number of animals here now amply proves the need for this welfare work."

"Suppose you were given the choice between the animals and excommunication—which would you choose?" asked the church representative.

"I would choose excommunication," she replied. "I will not give up the animal work now."

Mother Cecilia Mary mother superior of the Sisters of the Love of Jesus, shares a light moment with two of her favorite doves at the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter in Mill Bay, about 25 miles north of Victoria, B.C. on Vancouver Island. Beginning in 1960 when the priory took in a starving dog and her litter, the shelter now houses more than 200 dogs, 100 cats, 18 old horses and assorted sheep, goats, calves, ducks geese and chickens.

Next arrived an edict from the Vatican: "Close the shelter—or else."

She took her case to the court of world opinion and her situation led, to thousands of letters to her supporting the shelter.

But since she had retired, Mother Cecilia was no longer responsible for the operation of the priory and no attempt was made by the church to disperse her and the nuns.

But red tape and zoning regulations forced her to abandon her property in the suburbs and move to Mill Bay where she built her present shelter on 56 acres.

It costs about $5,000 a month to run the shelter, most of it coming from public contributions and the revenue from three shops the shelter runs in addition to a boarding kennel and a pet cemetery.

But despite the financial difficulties—the shelter's bank account doesn't balance—Mother Cecilia remains devoted to the animals.

"We realize that animals are truly a part of God's creation even as we are, and that they share the same life.

At the Good Shepherd Shelter, all are accorded the right to live happily, well cared for, and loved."

FESTIVAL A SUCCESS

TORONTO (CP) — The Festival of Women and the Arts conducted here was successful in demonstrating the talents of writers, visual artists, actresses and other skilled women, said Helen Lucas, a professional artist and co-ordinator of the festival. She said contacts opened the doors to many women. The art instructor will exhibit in Greece and design a record album cover for singer Rita MacNeil because of contacts established at the festival.

Ann Landers

The 'Perfect Wife' Is Kind and Loyal

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 20 for an excellent letter. I hope year old mother of four children who is sick and tired of hearing parents cop out when it comes to correcting their children.

The two most over used excuses are, "Oh, he'll grow out of it. This is just a stage he's going through" — and, "Ignore it. He's trying to get my dander up. He'll quit soon."

What are parents for, anyway? Aren't they supposed to discipline their children? Or do they think it's enough that they feed, house, clothe them and sit by with their eyes closed and mouths shut and let them "go through phases"?

When I was growing up, I knew exactly what was expected of me and how far I could go. I'm grateful for those firm guidelines. They relieved me of a lot of decision making and kept me out of trouble.

I hope every parent who reads your column will ask himself, "Who is setting the standards and drawing the perimeters for my child ?" Is it the TV, the neighborhood gang or, YOU? Values and limits should be established by Mother and Dad. — Concerned About Today's Youth.

Dear Concerned: Thank you for an excellent letter. I hope you woke up a few moribund brains.

Dear Ann: I am a 16 year old girl who has sold many things doid to door such as Girl Scout cookies, raffle tickets, and candy.

In the last two years, five men have appeared at the door completely naked. Most of the incidents were at apartments.

The latest one was last week when I was selling candy for a school fund raising project.

I have checked with two girl friends and they admitted the same thing has happened to them. You may not want to print this letter, but I'd like to know if it is against the law for a man to answer his door nude.

We don't want to make trouble for anybody, but we'd like an answer. — Wondering

Dear Wondering: There is no law that says a person cannot walk around nude in his own home. A man or woman who displays himself in the manner described in your letter, how ever, could be arrested for indecent exposure in certain jurisdictions.

Dear Ann Landers: I am frustrated and irritated and don't know what to do. So I'm doing what so many others have done before me—I'm writing to Ann Landers.

The problem is my grandchildren — 14 and 15 years of age. For years I have been sending them birthday and Christmas gifts and I have yet to receive a single acknowledgment. Their mother may casually mention, often months later, that "Debbie loved the fleece" or "Tim really appreciated the cheque," but from the children — nothing.

Should I continue to send them gifts and be satisfied with the knowledge that I have been thoughtful? Or should I stop and hope they get the message? — Puzzled

Dear P.: Sorry you didn't write to me a long time ago. I could have saved you some money. To send a gift one year after year with no acknowledgment is brainless. Too bad their mother didn't teach them some decent manners. "As the twig is bent ..."

Couple Complains About Exams

By G. C. THORTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thorteson: My wife and I would like to know what your thought is on our question.

I am 35 and she is 33. We went to a gynecologist to have an examination for my wife, but the doctor said I was not allowed in the examination room. My wife would not consider this, so she did not have the examination. For 13 years we have gone in together for examinations to our doctors, whether for me or for her.

What do you think?—Disgusted

I see nothing particularly wrong with the practice, although you must admit that it certainly is not a widely accepted one. Also, I can readily appreciate a reluctance in your wife's physician to go along with this.

I assume your wife's previous doctor has either died or has moved, or you have moved to a new location.

You say your own personal physician allows this. I suggest you ask him about it, since he agrees to the practice. He might very well be acquainted with a gynecologist colleague who allows it for his women patients.

My personal feeling is that it is rather unnecessary. Your wife can easily provide you with a firsthand account of the examination and its results.

Finally, there are always moments when a physician requires absolute privacy in discussion with his patient. This is quite understandable, and if your wife's doctor feels strongly about this matter, you should, I think, respect his feelings.

I suppose the obvious question that comes to mind is—why?

You don't go into this in your letter.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I am a woman in my mid-20s. For many years now I have been troubled with a vaginal yeast infection. I have had counterattacks, hoping this would help kill the infectious yeast permanently. But this gave only temporary relief.

Do you know any way this can be cleared up for good?—Mrs. E. F.

The use of the "pill" is a common cause of this nuisance. It would be worth your while to discontinue it temporarily to see if there is any improvement.

And women with this problem should also be checked for diabetes, since recurrent vaginitis of this sort can be an early symptom.

Yeast is a fungus, and often in chronic cases the cause is a disturbance in the membrane chemistry that allows it to flourish. Adjusting this chemistry can bring permanent relief. Antibiotics, for example, can disturb this, and treatment is with a drug called Mycostatin (Nystatin).

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I am ashamed to leave the house and meet the public. My problem is acne. I have tried everything, all types of facial cleansers, and for the last five to six weeks I have been cleaning my face two or three times a day. I have about given up on the problem. Any advice?—M. K.

An acne problem as extensive as yours seems to me should be brought to the attention of a dermatologist.

Small doses of antibiotic tetracyclines or the use of vitamin A acid may be in order for starters.

Try giving your skin a break from the lotions and creams you are using. You may just be aggravating the situation. Never lose hope. There are in many cases reasonable methods of getting at the cause of acne. But it is doubtful you are going to do this on your own or at the cosmetics counter.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I have a very special question to ask you. I am considering having plastic surgery on my nose. It is not that my nose is odd-shaped or anything like that. I do think it makes my face unattractive. Some say it is just right. I don't. I'm 17.

Can you give me some advice?—Miss K.T.

Surgery should not be undertaken for entirely frivolous reasons. Often, cosmetic surgery, while seemingly frivolous or vain, can be based on the need to overcome very real psychological problems, especially in grossly distorted features.

But from your letter I gather this is not your problem. I'd forego the surgery, and adjust to your present features, which, from your description, don't seem that bad.

It is doubtful plastic surgeon would recommend an operation under such circumstances.

Dear Dr. Thorteson: I hurt my hand and it swelled up real bad. It was suggested I soak it in hot water and epsom salts. My friend is that unless the epsom salts gets into the pores it can do nothing for the swelling. I say that hot water helps, and not the salts. What do you say?—D.L.D.

The value of heat is to relieve the discomfort by promoting circulation locally. Epsom salts or any other additive in the water is not going to have any effect on this process. Plain hot water is just as good.

Unnecessary bid necessary

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

One of the most interesting concepts in the duplicate game is that of the unnecessary bid.

Basically, this can be stated as follows: When a player can go directly to, what looks like, the proper final game contract, he can invoke a slam by making an unnecessary bid along the way.

North can bid four spades directly over his partner's two spade call. On the other hand he is just a trifle strong for that bid. At the same time he does not want to go past game if his partner has a minimum opening.

He solves this problem by bidding three clubs. He knows that South will not pass, since the new suit bid following a two over one response is an absolute force.

Ask the Jacobys

Today's question is from Arizona. Our reader asks: "What do you think of artificial one-club openings?"

Our answer is that it is possible to develop workable systems based on using one club as a forcing bid. All these systems are far too complicated for any but expert players. The club system campers claim they are simple, but actually they are far more complicated than standard American types.

has taken the trouble to bid clubs on the way.

South has considerably more than a minimum and bids five hearts to show first round control of that suit.

Six spades makes easily. In fact if North and South reached seven and South gave it the absolutely perfect play, they would make that contract.

Province Consulted On Fairgrounds Future

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A senior provincial government official is to be invited to inspect the Quinte Exhibition Grounds and give his impression of its potential.

The invitation will go to E.A. Starr, director of agricultural and food ministry's Agricultural and Horticultural Societies Branch.

It follows a meeting Friday between members of the Belleville Agricultural Society, city council and city hall staff.

The session was one of a series of ongoing informal meetings launched earlier this year to discuss the future of the exhibition grounds.

The invitation to Mr. Starr was suggested by Mayor Robin Jeffrey as a means of discerning just what are the future needs of the society at its exhibition grounds location.

"If the exhibition is going to stay and be a viable exhibition there are needs that must be met," said the mayor.

Behind the discussion is the idea that the ministry believes there should be more useage of land and facilities operated by fair boards, said Dr. Bob Burns, second vice-president of the society.

But the society, he explained in an interview, has been feeling insecure about its long-range operation for several reasons:

— Its lease — drawn in 1954 — is with the parks board, not the city. It's for 99 years. The Agricultural Societies Act stipulates no such lease should be over 21 years.

— Sidney St., reconstruction turning it into a four-lane traffic route, cuts through the Exhibition grounds. It has to be closed to traffic during Quinte Exhibition. How long this can continue is also a concern.

And the city's new official plan, Friday's meeting was told by Bert Kenny, Quinte Planning Board director, also contains a pertinent statement.

It says present use of the grounds is "uncertain" and is not a suitable long term operation in an urban setting.

Council can delete the statement from the plan, however he said.

The planning statement has contributed to the society's unsettled feeling, said Dr. Burns later.

"I think we (council) have to take a look at the statement in the official plan and have a vote on it. We really do," said Mayor Jeffery.

The issues will be threshed out at more meetings before formally meeting before city council, the mayor indicated later.

Dr. Burns said the society was concerned with the "long-range future" of the exhibition.

The fair, he said, was a "vital link" between urban-rural peoples is an agricultural area like the Quinte district.

But now the society wanted issues clarified to relieve its "insecurity" for the future.

"If we're not given the security it (the exhibition) cannot help but gradually go down. We're still very viable. We had a tremendously successful fair this year."

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, SATURDAY, JULY 19, 1975

On Your Mark . . .

Sherry Akey won this heat of the sack race event at a fund-raising carnival despite her handicap. She, competitor Kathy McDonald, and dozens of other city youngsters helped Mrs. Wilfred Short, 21 Glenarden Crescent, raise some $350 to donate to the fight against Muscular Dystrophy.

Mrs. Short's Carnival Raises $350

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

More than $350 was raised at a carnival for the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation at the home of Mrs. Wilfred Short of 21 Glenarden Crescent.

"We were only expected to raise $150, but $350 — that's wonderful," said Mrs. Short.

Mrs. Short planned the carnival as a way of earning favor for the help the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation has given to her son, Gregory who suffers from the disease.

"We had lots of donations to help us out," said Mrs. Short.

Some of the local companies whom gave to the carnival were McDonalds, equipment used at the refreshment stand, Muntz an album for one of the prizes Foxboro Cheese Factory, a block of cheese and beverages from Misener Bottlers and Coca Cola.

Many of the members' active people who donated their time and energy were Don Foster and Bill Irvine. Mr. Irvine played a clown and donated the use of some of his carnival games and a train ride. Mr. Irving also acted as a clown.

The train ride was popular with the children.

"We got $53 from the train ride alone. That's not bad when considering it was only 25 cents a ride," said Mrs. Short.

Fireman Grant Parks and Tom Nobles, chairman of the city firefighters' Muscular Dystrophy Fund also helped in the carnival.

Mr. Nobles will pass on the carnival's proceeds to the Muscular Dystrophy Foundation in Toronto, and Mr. he might have another carnival in the fall.

Trenton Man Faces Charges

NAPANEE — A Trenton man, 53-year-old Stanley Van-Meer, will face six charges in provincial court in September following a car-pedestrian accident at Adolphustown which took the life of Mrs. Millard Shumaker, 34, of Kingston.

Mrs. Schumaker died at the Glenora Ferry landing on May 12 when she was struck by a car driven by Mr. VanMeer, as she walked along the roadside. Her five-year-old son Albert also was injured in the incident.

Mr. VanMeer faces charges of criminal negligence causing death, criminal negligence with an automobile, impaired driving, driving with a blood alcohol reading of .08, refusal to take a breath test and having liquor in a place other than his residence. A preliminary hearing will be held September 4.

New Chair For Guard

MARMORA — The local branch of the Red Cross Society, meeting last Wednesday at the home of President Edith Wink, decided to pay $100, towards the cost of a wheel lifeguard chair and donate $150, in new equipment for the swimming-recreation program at Legion Park.

Mary Jane Gordrich, Red Cross representative on the Marmora Recreation Committee, reported there is lots of participation on the part of children in the program provided by the Recreation Committee, the Lions Club and students working at a DOT grant to provide a floating playground in Marmora, Madoc and Tweed.

Dancing in the Streets

Police estimated between 3,000-4,000 people browsed around during the Front Street Sidewalk Sale looking for bargains Friday evening. The Quinte Twirlers Dance Organization, performing under the direction of caller Ralph O'Hara was well received by the crowds.

Ellis Gets Appointment To Capital Commission

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox and Addington, has been named to a special joint committee to study the National Capital Region.

His appointment, along with other MPs and senators, was based on his "considerable background in municipal politics", said Progressive Conservative party leader Robert Stanfield.

Mr. Ellis is a former Belleville city councillor and was mayor of the city during 1961 and 1962.

The National Capital Region is complex and involves many conflicts of jurisdictions. It consists of 1,900 square miles centred on Ottawa with a total population exceeding 600,000.

The region straddles the boundary between Ontario and Quebec, includes two major cities — Ottawa and Hull — and a large number of small-er municipalities. Also involved are the programs and operations of the National Capital Commission (NCC).

The committee will make recommendations on the future of the region, taking into account provincial and municipal developments. It may also rationalize differences of the NCC's development concepts for the area with those of regional municipalities on both sides of the border.

The committee will hold hearings across Canada to examine reports, suggestions and recommendations from interested Canadians.

Transit Talk to Highlight Busy Council Agenda

Belleville Transit Commission's (BTC) decision to reduce night bus services — now in centre of controversy — may be aired at city council meets Monday.

On council's agenda is a reminder that petitions have been received against the cutback and that city hall has had protest phone calls.

Mayor Robin Jeffery said Friday "it's possible" that the decision to reach BTC services — approved by city council last month — "may be discussed again."

She also expected a delegation would bring a personal plea to council Monday.

The agenda notes that petitions against cutting off buses at 9:45 p.m. during July and August, two hours earlier — have come from 39 senior citizens, 25 Belleville General Hospital employees and 125 others scattered through the city.

Meanwhile, the schedule for Monday's meeting shows that summertime doesn't necessarily mean muddled business is easy.

Usually summer months council — except for special business — meets only once a month. The agenda for the meeting is one of bulkiest in recent times.

Council has 22 bylaws to consider — ranging from increasing the rates contracted for night-soil collection in the Hillcrest area to purchases for several city services.

These include a $50,000 pumper for the fire department; authorizing the transit commission to buy two new 45-passenger buses; purchase of new radio equipment for the police department. The bylaws have to get Ontario Municipal Board consent before given third reading.

Fish Sale for Charity Flounders Downtown

By RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

A charitable aspect of this week's downtown sidewalk sale has floundered.

The Fish Pond, sponsored by the Downtown Merchants Association folded Friday because of a lack of buyers.

"People are not buying the fish," said Joan Armstrong, co-ordinator of the Downtown Merchants Association.

Over 1500 goldfish were donated by the association to be sold for $1 each to raise money for a swimming pool for the Cheshire Home for handicapped youth.

The fish were beginning to die as a result of the heat, enough oxygen, and exposure to the sun and heat with no more than 100 sold.

"We tried to get an oxygen tank used by scuba divers but we couldn't," said Mrs. Armstrong.

In order to save some of the fish they were being given away to anyone who wanted them.

"We lowered the price of the fish Friday, and people didn't want them. So instead of seeing them all die, we're giving them away," said Mrs. Armstrong.

Mrs. Armstrong said it was very disappointing, especially for Jerry O'Shaughnessy president of the association, who worked "damned hard" on the project.

"It would be an extended guess to say we made $100 on the fish," said Mrs. Armstrong.

The fish were sold at cost to the association by the Woolworth store, with the cooperation of Hartz Mountain Co.

Campers Culprits In Current Rash Of Quinte Fires

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Extreme caution is being urged on outdoors travellers in the Quinte northern bush this weekend.

The warning was given Friday as aircraft continued to shuttle supplies into the tinder-dry brush where some forest firefighters have been on the job more than a week combating bushland outbreaks.

A prolonged dry spell has created an emergency situation in the forests and the fire hazard now is rated extreme, Harold Canteion, manager of the natural resources ministry's Tweed district reported.

He said the current threat is "one of the heaviest" Tweed district forestry crews to challenge in recent years.

Human carelessness is being blamed for many of the fires, said Mr. Canteion.

He named campers, fishermen and blueberry — pickers as prime culprits.

By Friday nine fires were still burning in Hastings townships across the Tweed district, ranging from Marmora-lake to north of Madoc.

All but two were under control by that time, he said.

The outbreaks to date bring to 30 the number of fires in the Tweed forestry district — close to double the same time last year, said Mr. Canteion.

So far, 1,125 acres of bush and timberland have been destroyed by the outbreaks.

The danger is compounded by sustained hot cool weather has dried out the forest floor, said the ministry manager.

This means when fire-break out they burn deep into the undergrowth, complicating firefighting attempts.

The district's two fire-fighting crews have been reinforced by township forest wardens and their teams.

About 46 men were involved in fighting the threats Friday.

The teams were being supplied by an aircraft and two helicopters flying out of Tweed or Northbrook airfield, said Mr. Canteion.

Some of the men have been in the bush for a week, he added.

The weather was being closely watched for a change. But, said Mr. Canteion, rain hasn't expected in the area until Sunday.

Meaning all burning permits — except for incinerators have been cancelled in rural districts where residents burn brush or garbage.

Even incinerator burnps have to apply directly to him for a burning permit, said Mr. Canteion.

Man Dies In Crash Near Stoco

TWEED — One man was killed and four injured in an early summer accident on Stoco Road when the car they were in skidded across the road into a rock, ½ mile east of Highway 37, Saturday.

Dead is Reginald Martin, 23, of R.R. 1, Roblin, driver of the vehicle.

Two passengers, Douglas Wallace, 17, of John Innes Dr., Downview Ont. complaining from back pains and Randall Arnold, 17, also a fractured wrist were detained at the hospital for observation.

Treated and released were Donald Huffman, 18, R.R. 1, Roblin and Roger Cook, 18, R.R. 1, Marlbank

Police said the car was westbound on Stoco Rovd when it drifted south on shoulder. The driver lost control and the car skidded to the south side of the road and struck a rock said Constable Dennis Bush, investigator officer with the Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Damage to the 1966 car was $1,000.

Bus Service Cutback Meets Public Criticism

On Monday, June 23, city council approved the reduction of hours the city buses will run in an attempt to cut operating costs. The buses new hours will end at 9:45 p.m.; two hours earlier than in the past. This move means a rearrangement of the driver's schedules, and has been termed by Mr. Kerr, chairman of Local 128, Canadian Brotherhood of General Workers, as "ridiculous".

City treasurer, Frank Morrell said a recent study has given "significant information" that the buses are "not being used in the evening."

Marylea Burtt, chairman of the commission said the commission will save approximately $2,000 over the nine-week experiment period.

In a recent survey taken in a local shopping centre, the following people gave their responses to the question: Do you favor the curtailment of the evening service?

ANNA SMITH

Anna Smith, a 16-year-old student from Moira Secondary School, said she is not in favor of the curtailment of the bus hours.

"The schedule cuts down on the time you can spend downtown." Miss Smith said.

"If you go to the show, they (the buses) should be there for your convenience. How else are you to get up there cheaply?"

"Like 9:30, that's too early," said Miss Smith.

JULIE COULSON

An 18-year-old student, also from Moira Secondary School, Julie Coulson said she does like the shorter hours.

"It's an inconvenience," said Miss Coulson.

"If the younger kids want to go to the show, the parents would have to take them."

As a result, Miss Coulson said, "more kids will be walking the streets."

"For people on the east or west side, it's a long way to drive."

ALLAN PEACOCK

Another city student said he is not in favor of the new bus schedules.

Fifteen-year-old Allan Peacock said, "It restricts visiting people around the town."

"Before it was a lot better."

An example Mr. Peacock said, "Once I went to visit my aunt, and I couldn't come home because of the new bus system."

"People won't be able to go out as much," Mr. Peacock said.

STEVE MARACLE

A 23-year-old student Steve Maracle said he likes the new system but said he feels some changes could take place.

"On some days, the new schedule is okay, but on the heavier days, like on the week-ends, it should be the regular schedule," said Mr. Maracle.

Mr. Maracle said the new system is creating a lot of inconvenience for the people who go to the late shows.

MIKE TWIGG

Mike Twigg, a 21-year-old resident, said he does not like the curtailment of the buses.

"It's not fair for people working, or going to shows after 9 p.m. who count on the bus," said Mr. Twigg.

"An example is my girlfriend who works late and how she can't count on the buses any more."

Mr. Twigg said, "They're just out of luck."

MARILYN QUICKERT

A Belleville housemaker, Marilyn Quickert said she is undecided on favor or against the new bus times.

"It's a matter of economics," said Mrs. Quickert.

"If the city can afford to carry it on. It should be carried, because the city is growing."

"It's unfair to people who can't afford to travel any other way, if it's feasible for the city to afford the system."

Perez Makes the Most Of Chance and BANG!

TONY PEREZ

MONTREAL (CP) — Tony Perez took advantage of an opportunity he says has been lacking recently as Cincinnati Reds shelled Montreal Expos 10-3 in a National League baseball game Friday night.

"The way Joe Morgan's been driving in runs this year — the last month-it's been tough for me," said Perez after boosting his RBI total to 41 with a grand slam home run and an infield out.

The five RBIs gave Perez the second highest total among the Reds, after Johnny Bench's 74. Morgan has 60.

"I've been up a few times this year with the bases loaded," said Perez, "but I haven't really been getting that many chances. I'd like to drive in runs the way Morgan has been hitting homers."

The third-inning blast into the bleachers came after loser Dennis Blair, 6-10, walked the bases loaded. It was the 14th homer by Perez this year. Morgan has 13.

That belt and another four-run splurge in the fourth gave starter and winner Gary Nolan, 9-5, an 8-1 lead but he left in the sixth after Montreal's Gary Carter socked his 11th homer and Larry Parrish slammed a two-scoring triple.

The Reds got their fourth-inning runs on a shortstop Pete Prias' error, a single by Bench, Perez's bouncer back to pitcher Chuck Taylor and George Foster's sacrifice fly.

Cesar Geronimo ended the scoring for Cincinnati with a two-run single in the sixth off Fred Scherman. Montreal had taken a 1-0 lead in the second when Blair scored Parrish from second base with a single.

Divers Healthy Again

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The Canadian diving team was back to full strength for Friday's practice sessions but there were some doubts expressed about their readiness for the competitions which open the world aquatic championships today.

Teri York of Vancouver and Bev Boys of Pointe Claire, Que., both missed two days of training because of illness and Ken Armstrong of Woodstock, Ont., missed almost three full days because of a head injury.

Armstrong has until Monday before the men's competition begins, but Miss Boys go into today's three-metre springboard competition at a distinct disadvantage.

All three divers were excused from the 50-minute parade during Friday night's opening ceremonies to allow them time to rest and recuperate more.

Armstrong said he was "just a little nervous" the first time he did a reverse dive Friday and was still a little shaky after the hour-long practice.

He hit his head on the board doing a reverse and his somersault Tuesday, suffered a mild concussion and spent a day in hospital.

"They say it does a diver good to hit the board once in a while," Armstrong said. "But this was the first time I've hit it and I hope it's the last."

The finals of the women's springboard will be held Sunday with the men's springboard preliminaries Monday and the finals Tuesday. The divers have an off-day Wednesday before the tower events running Thursday through Saturday.

World Aquatic Championships
Games Officially Opened

CALI, Colombia (CP) — The second world aquatic championships officially opened Friday night in a colorful 90-minute program watched by more than 20,000 people.

The mammoth Pascual Guerrero Stadium, site of some of Colombia's most exciting and controversial soccer matches, was generally quiet and in a subdued atmosphere as the 36 national teams entered in the week-long competitions paraded in.

About 40 of the 57 Canadian athletes, accompanied by coaches and officials, entered the stadium dressed in brilliant red and white uniforms. Bruce Robertson of Vancouver, Canada's only gold medallist in the 1973 championships, was the flag bearer.

The games were officially opened by Harold Henaine, president of the Federation Internationale de Natation Amateur (FINA), the international governing body of aquatic sports, ending a day of anxiety for the hundreds of armed uniforms on hand for the ceremonies.

The soldiers, many of them equipped with riot helmets, shotguns and some carrying semi-automatic rifles, were kept in reserve outside the stadium.

Their presence was promised by the state of siege governing Colombia for the last month and a brief incident Thursday when a striking Canada's water polo team.

The team was practising at the university pool when about 150 students surrounded the pool, began throwing rocks and shouting at the police.

The rock-throwing was only minor with no one getting hit but the verbal confrontation between students and police resulted in increased army presence and hand frisks.

The massive opening-night crowd was unusually quiet through most of the ceremony but, naturally, had a thunderous welcome for the Colombian team when it entered the stadium last.

The games begin today with the women's springboard diving preliminaries and eight water polo games. Canada plays Holland in its first game today and meets Italy and Mexico Sunday.

Canada's only hopes for diving medals are Teri York of Vancouver, Bev Boys of Pointe Claire, Que., and Ken Armstrong of Woodstock, Ont., all missed the ceremonies. They were excused from the openness of York and Boys and Armstrong's head injury that caused them to miss two valuable days of training.

York and Boys will be competing in the board diving events Tuesday, does not compete until Wednesday.

The swimming events begin Sunday with Tim Veit of United States and East German women Petra Thuemmler on the pool. And while they will win the majority of the gold medals, they will be hard-pressed in many of their victories.

Then Along Came Manny And Dodgers Were on Top

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh Pirates' long ball hitters seemed to have had things all served up Friday night until Los Angeles Dodgers' Manny Mota came along.

Mota's pinch double scored two runs in the eighth inning to give the Dodgers a 4-3 comeback victory over the Pirates in National League baseball game.

A single by Bill Buckner and a walk to Jimmy Wynn set up Mota's game-winning hit off reliever Ramon Hernandez.

Mota's double wiped out a three-run Pirates surge in the top of the inning. Al Oliver hit a two-run homer and Richie Zisk followed with a line-batting shot in the top of the eighth, giving the Pirates a 3-2 lead.

In other National League action, Cincinnati Reds beat Montreal Expos 10-3, Atlanta Braves beat New York Mets 4-3, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Houston Astros 7-4, San Diego Padres defeated Chicago Cubs 4-2 and San Francisco Giants nipped St. Louis Cardinals 2-1 in 10 innings.

Los Angeles southpaw Doug Rau had a seven-hit shutout until the eighth when the Pirates scored their runs. Manny Sanguillen doubled before Oliver hit his 10th homer of the season to tie the game. After Willie Stargell went down on strikes, Zisk hit his tie-breaking homer.

Despite the win, the Dodgers remained 13½ games behind the Reds who were led by a grand-slam homer by Tony Perez.

Montreal starter Dennis Blair, 6-10, loaded the bases in the third inning on walks to Hal Breeden, Ken Griffey and Joe Morgan and, after Johnny Bench struck out, Perez stalked to the Reds a 6-1 lead with his 14th homer of the season, a shot into the left field bleachers.

Cincinnati scored four more runs in the fourth.

Atlanta, aided by two New York errors, scored three times in the fifth inning in a rally capped by Darrell Evans' double and run-scoring single. The Mets' game was a scoreless pitching duel between Atlanta's Carl Morton, 11-8, and New York's Jon Matlack, 10-6, when the Braves exploded for three runs.

An eighth-inning sacrifice fly by Vic Correll gave the Braves their fourth and eventual winning run.

Garry Maddox tripled to lead a three-run second inning, then beat out a bunt single to help Philadelphia add another run in the seventh and beat Houston.

Gene Lockhart doubled home two tie-breaking runs in the seventh inning, leading San Diego over Chicago. After errors gave the Cubs two tying runs in the top of the seventh, the Padres rallied in their half when John Grubb and Tito Fuentes hit two-out singles off loser Milt Wilcox. Left-hander Ken Frailing relieved Wilcox and gave up the two-run double to Lockhart.

Chris Speier's 10th-inning single gave San Francisco its victory over St. Louis. Joshua led off the 10th against Greg Terlecky with a single and was bunted to second by Derrel Thomas. Reliever Mike Marshall received an intentional walk, both runners moved up on Ted Sizemore passed ball, then Willie Montanez was walked intentionally before Speier singled.

Rest Agrees with Perry, Texas Ace Blanks Yankees

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Making the baseball all-star team can make a pitcher feel good. Not making it made Gaylord Perry feel even better.

"The all-star break was the best thing that could have happened for me," Perry said after outdueling New York ace Callah Hunter Friday night, hurling a two-hit shutout for Texas Rangers and ridding Mike Cubbage's record streak in the seventh inning to a 1-0 victory over the Yankees.

In other American League action, Milt Wilcox struck out 10 California Angels 2-0, Chicago White Sox shut out Detroit Tigers 4-0, Baltimore Orioles 7-1, Minnesota Twins 9-6, Boston Red Sox defeated Kansas City Royals 9-3 and Oakland A's edged Cleveland Indians 3-2.

"After I pitched last Thursday in Boston," Perry said, "manager Billy Martin told me just to stand and go home and get my family moved to Texas then relax and forget about baseball.

"It was good to get away for a while. It was like a long two years, that first half of the season. The last time I've had four straight days off like that was a long time and I definitely think it helped.

"I felt like I had better stuff tonight than any other time this season," added Perry, who struck out four and walked two en route to improving his record to 8-14.

Hunter, 13-6, matched him with shutout innings until the seventh when Lenny Randle opened a crack and came around on Royals 9-3 and Oakland A's singles by Toby Harrah and Roy Howell.

California's Nolan Ryan, 10-8, absorbed his seventh consecutive loss against Milwaukee. His last victory was a two-hitter over the Brewers. Jim Slaton was the loser in the one. This time, for the sixth time in a row, he received a six-hitter.

Bobby Sheldon opened the fifth inning for Chicago with a bloop single and took third on a double by Carlos Lezcano. The runs scored on a wild pitch by Ryan and Bobby Tolan's grounder.

Chicago southpaw Jim Kaat pitched four-hitter against the Tigers because he was pitching a first 14-game winner and the White Sox gave him more than enough support with a four-run fourth inning, two scoring on Bucky Dent's single.

Mike Thompson (right) and Tim Hicks make final adjustments in the Alhacere sailboat they will be sailing in the North American Albacore Championships at Association Island. Thompson (18) and Hicks (15) sail out of the CFB Yacht Club in Trenton, but both live in Belleville. They leave today for the July 20-22 competitions.

Young Belleville Sailors In Championship Event

BY TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Mike Thompson is only 18 years old, yet he will be representing Belleville, and more importantly, Canada, in the North American Albacore Championships, July 20 - 22.

What is an Albacore?

Why is a 16 year old student commandeering it?

An Albacore is a type of sailing boat, about 15 feet long, with room for two sailors. Thompson is the skipper of craft in which he has qualified for the North American Albacore Championships at Association Island.

To qualify, he and crewman Tim Hicks, a 15-year-old, had to come in in the top 30 of the Ark Regatta, in Kingston. Thompson and Hicks did just that, coming in 41st.

Both gave credit to their instructors at the CFB Trenton Yacht Club, Kevin Quinn and Dave Tyerman for having taught them a lot.

The two agreed that crew work would be essential, with both working in harmony. So far the pair have been sailing together for two years.

There will be 105 entries in the race, and to qualify for the world championships the Belleville team will have to come in in the top 15.

Thompson said "We don't expect to come in that high, not in our first year, but we would like to win the trophy for Best First Time Sailor in the Championships. "That is our goal."

One thing the two sailors agreed readily upon was the fact that they would need good equipment and good wind shifts to do well in the competition.

They will be just about the youngest sailors there, which will be quite a compliment to their instructors and to them.

"It's a lot of fun" said skipper Thompson.

"We'd like to see more people in the area participating" added Hicks.

Both are students at Moira Secondary School, and are natives of Belleville, though they sail out of the CFB Yacht Club in Trenton.

If you're wondering where Association Island is, it's 80 miles south of Kingston, in the state of New York. It is one of the most beautiful and well equipped sailing centres in the region, according to reports.

The two sailors have had to come a long way just to get to the championships, and it'll be a struggle against older and wiser competitors, but, even if they come in last, which is highly unlikely, the two can claim, "we gave it a good try."

TAKES CORTISONE

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nolan Ryan has been pitching with an injured arm since June 1 and the Los Angeles Dodger player has taken the first cortisone shot of his career, the Herald Examiner reported Friday. The injury was described as a rotator cuff injury, the same type that ended the career of former Los Angeles Dodger great Don Drysdale.

Little Swinger

Jennifer Sommerstorfer, a student at St. Thomas Separate School in Waterloo, has her own special style of delivery when it comes to five-pin bowling. Centre, she appears hanging on delivery but judging from photo at right, either the ball went off target; she punched out a headpin, or perhaps she left a corner pin standing. At any rate, something went wrong. (CP Photo)

32 Countries Represented at CORK

Dress Rehearsal Attracts 360

KINGSTON, Ont. — (CP) — Some of Canada's best sailors will take on competitors from 31 other countries today, with the first official race at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK).

About 310 boats are entered in the six competing classes at this year's regatta, billed as a dress-rehearsal for next year's Summer Olympics. The sailing events of the 1976 Games are to be held in the same waters as CORK.

Hans Fogh of Toronto is probably Canada's best hope for a win this year, racing in the Flying Dutchman class.

Fogh, a naturalized Canadian, was an Olympic medalist for his native Denmark and won the world championship in 1972.

The short, stocky sailmaker is a veteran of several sailing classes and sailed in the three-man Soling class at CORK in 1974.

Among the competition in the Flying Dutchman class are England's Rodney Pattison and Yves Pagel of France.

Pattison was a gold medallist in the 1972 Olympics at Kiel, Germany, while Pagel took the silver medal there.

The Flying Dutchman is a dinghy, 19 feet, 10 inches long, with a crew of two. The race course is a triangle with a total length of 11.2 miles.

In the other classes, tough competition likely will leave other Canadian entries well down in the standings, but there are some locals who may produce surprises.

In the Tornado catamaran class, Donald Cole and Brian Patterson of Laval, Que., and Larry Woods of Winona, Ont., have shown good finishes at CORK in 1973 and 1974 although face strong opposition here.

Among the competition are Dan Jesenig of Austria, world champion in 1972 and 1974, and Rick Taylor of the United States, who won at CORK last year.

The double-hulled Tornado class is a new entry in Olympic competition, racing over a 15-mile course.

The other four classes all have heavily-favored foreign competitors.

In the 470 class, Spain's Antonio Gerenigeli, last year's champ, is sailing against Victor Potapov of the Soviet Union, a bronze medallist at Kiel.

Canada's David Miller, a silver medallist at Kiel, will not have his Soling in shape for competion here this year, leaving a relatively weak Canadian team facing tough foreign entries, including David Forbes of Australia and John Bolles of the U.S.

The Tempest class shows a series of powerful international sailors, including two-time Olympic gold medallist Valentin Mankin of the Soviet Union.

Tempest and Solings are keel-boats, while the Finns and 470s are dinghies.

Friday was spent in practice, with about two-thirds of the sailors actually on the water.

Some competitors spent the day having their vessels measured to ensure they meet class specifications, while others sunked on final checks of gear, rigging and sails.

This year, the boats are berthed and docked at the new Olympic facility. Although the workmen still are pasting the finishing touches on the Olympic building itself, the docks and launching facilities are complete.

The competitors will run a total of seven races, one a day for seven days. The scoring system awards points against the sailors in order of finish, with the lowest total winning.

Canada And U.S. Defeated

OTTAWA (CP) — The Soviet Union and Japan each won three matches Friday during the second night of a four-nation women's volleyball tournament.

Japan defeated the Canadian team 15-13-15-4, 15-3, while the Soviet Union beat the United States 15-9, 15-10, 15-6.

Thursday in Montreal, the Soviets overcame the Canadians and Japan beat the United States.

The Soviets and Japan have two wins and no losses while Canada and the United States are winless.

Japan is at the top of the international rankings after beating the Soviets in world championships in 1970 and 1974.

Monday the tournament will be played in Toronto, before shifting to Winnipeg Tuesday, Saskatoon Wednesday, Victoria July 25 and Vancouver July 28.

SANDY HAWLEY

Four More Winners

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Sandy Hawley of Toronto, the world's leading jockey, rode four winners Friday including Ho Ho Honey, a winner by 3½ lengths in the $18,000 feature at Hollywood Park.

Ho Ho Honey carried 114 pounds.

Lilda took second, 1¾ lengths ahead of Token Time.

The winner covered the mile on turf in 1:36 1-5 and returned $4.60, $2.80 and $2.20. Lilda, with Laffit Pincay aboard, returned $3 and $2.80. Token Time, ridden by Howard Grant, paid $2.40.

Hawley has 310 victories to 90 for second-placed Pincay after 272 days of the meeting.

Wins Soaring

CLAMESHOLM, Alta. (CP) — Dave Webb of Fort. Erie, Ont., has won the open class competition in the 10-day Canadian soaring championships which last four days to pour weather. Webb had 3,607 out of a possible 5,000 points to finish ahead of Dick Mannini of Calgary and Larry Biegert of Cold Lake, Alta. Jim Carpenter of Toronto won the standard class, with Hal Werneburg of Beamsville, Ont., second and Peter Timm of Vancouver third.

Jury Unable to Agree

Forbes May Face a New Trial

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Boston Bruins hockey player David Forbes appears almost certain to face a second trial on a charge of aggravated assault as the result of a deadlocked jury that ended the first trial Friday.

Forbes, 26, had been indicted after a Jan. 4 fight with Henry Boucha of Minnesota North Stars during a National Hockey League game.

The nine-day trial ended when the jury which deliberated about 12 hours over two days said it was unable to reach agreement. Jurors said the panel was deadlocked at 9-3 in favor of conviction on the lesser charge of simple assault.

Boucha, 24, was cut near the eye and suffered a fracture of a facial bone. The prosecution contended Forbes had used the butt of the hockey stick as a "dangerous weapon" in the attack, breaking the unwritten rule of hockey that says sticks and gloves are dropped before a fight.

Attorney Gary Flakne, trying his first case as prosecutor, left little doubt there will be a second trial. The lanky Jury did not remove the charge against Forbes.

"I feel he's guilty and I'm inclined at this point to say yes. I'd like a new trial," Flakne said.

Flakne, a former Republican state legislator, said he will again prosecute if there is a second trial. A hearing was set for Aug. 5 at which Flakne will either ask for a new trial date or dismiss the indictment.

Flakne had argued that "a simple assault could be punished by 90 days in jail and a $300 fine.

Forbes was disappointed and hung his head as he sat with his lawyer in the courtroom.

"I've been bewildered for two weeks and I'm still bewildered. I can't figure what the hell is going on."

Even without a verdict, Forbes said the trial is certain to have an effect on NHL play against the North Stars.

"I don't know who's the first team that comes in here next year, but whoever it is will have to think about this," Forbes said.

Walter Bush Jr., president of the North Stars, was pleased with the outcome, saying actions involving players should be handled by league rules and league officials.

Bush said Forbes' suspension by NHL President Clarence Campbell—10 days—was not as severe as it might have been, but said Campbell "has handled things over the years extremely well."

Elder's Lead Is Slim; Trevino Is One Back

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — The traumatic experience of losing the first black to play in the Masters put Lee Elder in a slump both before and after that famed spring tournament in Augusta, Ga.

But he's looking for a chance to try it again.

"I'm looking forward, after I win here, to going back again," Elder said after his eagle-putt, four-under-par 67 had given him the lead in Friday's second round of the $200,000 Pleasant Valley Golf Classic.

"I'm very happy to be in this position." the 41-year-old Elder said after compiling a two-round total of 135, seven under par for two trips over the 7,119-yard Pleasant Valley Country Club course. "Now the other guys have to catch me."

One shot behind is Lee Trevino, whose 68 was the best score of the day.

"It was a really good, solid round—the first I've had in some time," Trevino said.

The subdued Trevino is still on the mend from a lightning bolt he received in his last American start, the Western Open.

"I'm not able to do all my exercises yet," he said. "I can't skip rope 200 times. I tried it last night. I got to 45 and had to quit. But I'm just glad to be able to hop up and down. I get tired pretty easy, but other than that I'm okay."

Another stroke back, two shots behind the leader at 137, were Rod Curl, Ben Crenshaw, George Johnson and Bud Allin. Curl, the first-round leader, slipped to a 71, Allin shot a 67 and Johnson and Crenshaw each had 68.

George Knudson of Toronto shot his second consecutive, 68 and was still in strong contention at 139 along with Allin, Irwin, who shot a 68.

Elder started on the back nine and made his whole round in a string of four holes beginning with the 10th. He scored from 25 feet there, then ran in one from about 40 feet on the next hole. He made par on the third, missing a short birdie putt.

Then, on the 18th, he lifted a sand wedge third shot from 101 yards out. It hit in front and in the right of the pin, hopped left and ducked into the hole for an eagle. That put him four under par 5 for four holes and he matched par the rest of the way home.

HILL RETIRES

LONDON (AP) — Graham Hill, 1966 twice world auto racing champion announced his retirement Friday. The English driver, who has not raced since April, 1974, said he will concentrate on running the Embassy Formula 1 team. Hill won the world title in 1962 and 1968 and was runner-up in 1964.

Five Straight Losses For Fergus Thistles

FERGUS, Ont. (CP) — Six Nations Braves handed Fergus Thistles their fifth straight defeat with a 20-11 victory in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Major Series game Friday.

Fergus led 5-4 at the end of the first period but the Braves took control and led 14-9 at the end of two periods.

Larry Green and Frank Davis led Six Nations with four goals each. Ken Squires, Rob Squires, Vern Vyse and Bob Mitchell scored two goals each and Jack Hill, Gary Montour, Les Johnson and Gil Bomberry added one goal each.

Randy Fleming and Pat Ryan led Fergus with three goals each. Dave Windley, Angus McKay, John Poste, Randy Landoni and Charles Pavlinich scored one goal each.

Play resumes Sunday when Fergus Seneca travels to Virgil to meet Niagara-Brantford Warriors.

Olean Entry Is First

HENDERSON HARBOR — N.Y. (AP) — Fritz Gram of Olean, N.Y., and his crewmate Rob Hays, finished first in overall standings Friday in the North American zmpe sailing championships.

With two days of competition remaining, Gram and Hays had compiled 11 points, followed closely by John Johns and Patricia Johns of Ann Arbor, Mich., with 11.7 points.

Third were Jerry Thompson and Ron Moore of Lodi, Ohio, with 16 points.

Top Canadian finishers were Dirk Kneulman and Jim Teague of Oakville, Ont., in sixth with 29.7 points.

Thirty-seven entries competed in eight knot winds off nearby Association Island.

Other Canadians and their finishes included Rusty Bullie and John Baillie of Oakville, who finished 11th; Jim and Phil Bedford of Oakville, who were 12th and Fred Hunter and Marilyn Hunter of Kitchener, Ont., who finished 30th.

Coach Replaced

LANDOVER, Md. (CP) — Cy Coumbis has been relieved of his coaching position with Maryland Arrows, the National Lacrosse League team said Friday. Jack Gibson, general manager of the club will serve as interim coach until he finds a replacement. The decision came after the Arrows dropped a 25-10 verdict to Philadelphia Wednesday, their third consecutive loss. They have won one of their last eight games. Coumbis, 37, took the job midway through the 1974 season after appearing in 18 games, scoring 37 goals and 29 assists.

IN MEMORIAM

KING — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Clyde King who passed away July 19, 1974.
Our family chain has been broken,
A link gone from our chain,
But memories of him we hold a while,
We know he would not complain.
Some day we hope to meet you,
Some day to greet you again,
We shall meet in a better land,
Never again to part.
Sadly remembered by wife Verna and family.

ALLIN — In loving memory of our dear father and grandmother Edith Allin who passed away July 20, 1972.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more.
To see the face of mother dear,
Who's gone to heaven's golden shore.
Forever missed, lovingly cared for, Reta, Bud and family.

ALLIN — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Mrs. Edith Allin who passed away July 20, 1972.
We do not need a special day,
To bring to our mind,
The memory of one so kind,
Who lived hard to the end.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more.
To see the face of mother dear,
Who's gone to heaven's golden shore.
Forever missed, lovingly cared for, Reta, Bud and family.

ALLIN — In loving memory of a dear grandmother, Mrs. Edith Allin who passed away July 20, 1972.
Sunshine passes, shadows fall,
Love's remembrance softens all,
And though the years be many or few,
Dear ones are often remembered of you.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered, Ron and family.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Sunday, July 20

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something unexpected will cause a high point in your relationship with your mate or business partner, to please you immensely.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you feel like following a bunch, it is early in the day. Later you'll be more practical and may pass up an opportunity.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Variety is the spice of life in you. Today you'll have a ball because you'll be the centre of a swirl of activities.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) An unusual departure from your normal routine makes a most pleasant day for you and those around you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be excellent in the role of social director for the group or family today. Organize a picnic or a trip to the ball park.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Try to keep yourself clear for last minute opportunities. If you don't, you'll be sorry when you hear how much fun everybody had.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't spend too much time away from home today. A visitor may ring your doorbell and you'd miss him.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Toward evening you'll be restless and want to get out among friends. Make plans early in the day to avoid disappointment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A person you'll be exchanging pleasantries with at a gathering will turn the discussion into a topic of mutual material benefit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're a bit below par. Long started today, but by the time others run out of steam you'll still be rarin' to go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have a short interval open today. Have a tasteful exit line ready if an acquaintance tries to bend your ear with a long tale.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone you didn't know held you in such high regard will surprise you by plans out of the blue to do something nice for you.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Monday, July 21

Aries (March 21-April 19) The opportunity to call favorable attention to your work or a pet project exists today. Your best will not go unnoticed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Others won't have the same sense of urgency regarding your plans as you have. Delegate as little as possible.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Small mistakes are possible in your business transactions today. Count pennies as carefully as the dollars.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) It's important to iron out any small points in agreements you make today. They could later prove to be a thorn in the flesh.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be overly concerned that your share of the burden your co-workers carry. Just be certain you're doing your part.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Respect any confidence given you today. There's one in particular you could tell who would foul things up.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you are judicious in your conversation. Today, however, your could carelessly put a family member in a bad light.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Accept methods proven by your own experience. Someone who hasn't tried them could attempt to convince you they won't work.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be outspoken if you know an item can be purchased at a better price. Be vendor will adjust to your terms.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will be difficult to please 100 per cent someone you've teamed up with today. The difference will prove insignificant in the end.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll handle responsibilities admirably today. Surprisingly, you may have a touch of remorse about things left undone.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll have a good time socially today if you don't mind hanging around till the last dog's hung.

CP News Roundup

School Law Approved

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature gave final approval Friday to legislation regarding collective bargaining between school boards and teachers.

Opposition members lost a final attempt to kill from the legislation a section of anything prejudicial to the principals from the strike sanction.

As passed by committee of the whole house, the legislation gives Ontario teachers the right to strike if an agreement is not reached following a step-by-step negotiating procedure.

Education Minister Thomas Wells stressed that he was not attempting to give professional and vice-principals out of teaching federations by excluding them from the strike sanction.

A principal and his vice-principal, he said, on a strike, should remain in a school "to provide a place for pupils to school and the public and the teachers are not there, to provide a certain custodial function, to provide a number of functions in the public interest, which in general are essential," he explained.

Session Over

Clement Pleased

TORONTO (CP) — Roadside breath analysis tests may help reduce the carnage caused by drinking drivers on Ontario highways, Attorney General John Clement said Friday. The federal government introduced amendments to the Criminal Code Thursday to allow police to set up breath testing machines near bars and require patrons driving away to take such tests. Asked for comment, Mr. Clement said he is in full support. "It's not a game of cops and robbers anymore. It's a question of slaughter on our highways."

Spataro disappeared June 16, 1974, while on a three-day unescorted leave from the Warkworth minimum-security prison, about 30 miles west of Belleville, Ont. He was serving a 14-year sentence for arson.

He was arrested last April 2 by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Buffalo, N.Y., and held in jail until ordered extradited.

Auto Firms' Repair Programs Kept Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — The consumer affairs department is dragging its feet on measures to force auto companies to make public the secret programs they operate to repair products considered defective after the normal warranty has expired, a Montreal consumer protection group says.

Meanwhile, thousands of car owners are paying for repairs because they do not know the auto companies will make repairs free or on a part-payment basis with their dealers for specific jobs.

The Automobile Protection Association (APA) sent copies of several dealer bulletins authorizing repairs for vehicles with up to 50,000 miles to the consumer affairs department in April. The APA called them "secret extensions of the normal warranty" of 12 months-12,000 miles.

The APA requested then that the government require auto producers to file all such special adjustment bulletins with the consumer affairs department. Car owners could then be informed about repairs the companies would make after the warranty has expired.

A spokesman for the department's consumer services branch says it has just completed a study of "this awful can of worms", which he says will be a statement of department policy on the issue. The study has yet to go to Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet, and may never be made public.

Meanwhile, the department's regional offices have been advised to proceed cautiously in handling consumer complaints and inquiries about the secret programs.

In fact, a consumer services branch spokesman defends the auto industry's practice and claims the secret programs do not necessarily constitute a warranty extension. He says panies generally call these special repair plans "a goodwill program" and extend them only to customers who ask for them, or who protest loudly.

The most recent example of these secret programs was one operated by Ford Motor Co. to cover rust damage for 1969 to 1972 models that was made public last week by Ralph Nader's Washington-based Center for Automotive Safety.

Subsequently, a Ford of Canada spokesman confirmed that about 8,000 Canadian Ford owners had also received letters to pairs free or on a 75-per-cent company-paid basis. Only those car owners asked for the repair.

Air Canada Head Unaware of Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — The president of Air Canada said Friday a former senior official of the airline violated his jurisdiction in authorizing a $160,000 payment to a Montreal travel agency.

Ralph Vaughan was testifying at the inquiry into Air Canada's financial operations.

He said he was unaware of the payment, which was made in 1970 to Holiday Travel Agency Ltd. Mr. Vaughan said Yves Menard, then vice-president for marketing, should have sought the approval of his superiors before paying $100,000 to R. B. McGregor in 1974.

Mr. Menard resigned from his position in February, 1975, after the question of a possible conflict of interest was raised over his ownership of a villa in Barbados.

The money given to Mr. McGregor is described in documents submitted to the inquiry as a payment for consulting services.

However, Mr. Menard and Mr. McGregor both testified earlier the consulting services were involved. Rather, the payment was to ensure Air Canada's minority equity in a proposed national travel agency scheme being developed by Mr. McGregor.

The inquiry has been told the airline is barred by its charter from participation in such a venture, but has been trying since 1968 to have its charter broadened by the federal government.

Although payment of $100,000 was technically within Mr. Menard's jurisdiction, Mr. Vaughan said, the former vice-president had an obligation to notify superiors.

The Air Canada president said he only learned a payment had been made the day the deal was made public in the Commons.

He said he asked Mr. McGregor's lawyer, Richard Holden, for the return of the $100,000.

But Mr. Holden reaffirmed on Friday that the money rightfully belonged to his client.

Mr. Vaughan said that when the Air Canada board of directors met on April 22, one of their principal concerns was the recovery of the money.

New System Nabs Hit-run Offenders

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Niagara regional police say a new procedure for investigating hit-and-run accidents has been successful in increasing the number of arrests.

Police say the program, introduced in March, produced a 55-per-cent accident clearance rate in June, the highest ever recorded in the region.

"Two years ago the clearance rate was 19 to 25 per cent per month, and in 1971 it was as low as 10 per cent," said Supt. Ken Walsh in an interview.

The program, devised in Montgomery, Ala., and similar to one used in Brantford, Ont., calls for the investigating officer to place a small white sticker on the windshield of any vehicle damaged in an accident.

The sticker shows the date of the accident and bears a diagram of a car on which the officer marks the location of the damage.

Auto body shops have been asked to record in a book, signed by the driver, the cars which have been brought in for body repair and have no sticker.

These are then investigated for possible hit-and-run involvement.

Constables Dan Diggon and Garry Turpin, who co-ordinate the program, say the number of minor accidents reported to police has increased since the program was implemented.

In answer to a question by inquiry commissioner Mr. Justice Willard Estey, Mr. Vaughan said Yves Menard, then vice-president for marketing, should have sought the approval of his superiors before paying $100,000 to R. B. McGregor in 1974.

Mr. Menard resigned from his position in February, 1975, after the question of a possible conflict of interest was raised over his ownership of a villa in Barbados.

However, Mr. Menard and Mr. McGregor both testified earlier the consulting services were involved. Rather, the payment was to ensure Air Canada's minority equity in a proposed national travel agency scheme being developed by Mr. McGregor.

Convictions Upheld In Moncton Murders

FREDERICTON (CP) — The appeals division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court has upheld the convictions of James Lawrence Hutchison and Richard Ambrose, both sentenced to be hanged for the murder last December of two Moncton policemen.

The decision of the court was reserved today.

Hutchison and Ambrose were convicted of capital murder this spring in the deaths of Corporal Jean-Louis Bourgeois and Constable Michael O'Leary of the Moncton city police force.

The two policemen disappeared Dec. 13 while investigating a kidnapping. They were found two days later, shot through the head and buried in shallow graves a few miles outside the eastern New Brunswick city.

'Missing' Man Found In Jail

HAMILTON (CP) — Police discovered a 39-year-old man charged with murder who had been sought since since July 9 sleeping ball was in jail all the time.

Leonard Staley, 57, was released on bail June 5 and when he failed to appear in court July 9, the search began.

But it was discovered that he was being held by police in Simcoe since July 6 on a five-year-old indecent exposure charge.

Staley appeared in a Simcoe court July 7 and was remanded in custody until July 23 for trial on the Hamilton murder charges.

He was charged in Hamilton with murder, manslaughter and two counts of disposing of a dead body May 26 after police discovered the nude body of 18-year-old Mary Ann Sherry under Staley's home.

"We didn't know he was wanted for murder until we saw in the Hamilton paper that police had issued a warrant for him," Sgt. Robert Chandler of the Simcoe police explained.

Chandler said Hamilton police straight away and told them we had him."

CMHC Raises Loan Rates

OTTAWA (CP) — The Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) announced Friday it is raising mortgage rates for a variety of housing programs.

CMHC said the rate for direct loans—open to those who have been unable to get one but served by CMHC-insured lenders such as banks, trust companies, credit unions and similar institutions—is being remedied areas will be boosted to 11 per from 10 per cent.

The rate at which the corporation lends money to provincial municipalities for such programs as public housing has been raised also from one-half to 9¼ per cent, to reflect a similar company-paid deal. Which CMHC must pay to borrow long-term funds.

Postal Union Spokesmen Answer Mackasey's Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union spokesmen accused Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey Friday of trying to drive a wedge between leaders and members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers.

Mr. Mackasey said Thursday in Halifax that leaders of the 22,000-member union, now in contract negotiations with the post office, have been deceptive, irresponsible and dishonest.

Stability would only return to the beleaguered post office when the members ditched their leaders, he added.

Paul Mitchell, a union public relations official said in Ottawa Friday that Mr. Mackasey was trying to divide and conquer the union.

Darrell Tingley, Atlantic regional director of the union, said Mr. Mackasey's accusation was to "bust the solidarity of labor."

Both Mr. Davidson, the union president, and Jean-Claude Parrot, vice-president and chief negotiator, are away. Mr. Davidson is attending a funeral in Scotland and Mr. Parrot is on vacation.

Mr. Mitchell said the statements came as the union was preparing "in a cool manner" for the conciliation board stage in their dispute.

"We have legal lawyers, living Gaul for the union, and Guy Dumoulin for the post office, hafe been selected as the representatives of the parties on the three-member board.

They now will try to agree on a neutral chairman or will leave appointment of the third member to the federal public service staff relations board.

Mr. Mackasey said in an interview Friday that in the event of retaining strikes by the union, he would feel justified in closing down offices not directly affected by walkouts.

Under present federal law the government as employer has no right to lock employees out, a recent special report for Parliament has recommended the government be given that right.

But Mr. Mackasey said a shutdown of offices would not be a lockout.

Delay of Rebates Called Blackmail

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was accused of blackmail Friday for arguing that rebates on imported cars nailed until a bill authorizing the 15-cent-a-gallon levy is approved by Parliament.

Gerald Baldwin, Progressive Conservative House leader, said in the Commons the Finance Administration Act gives the government authority to make rebates payments before tax legislation is passed.

"We are being blackmailed and told that we must pass this bill promptly. . . . I contradict that."

The tax took effect when it was announced in the June 23 budget, but legislation to make it permanent is still under debate in the Commons.

Persons using vehicles for business are exempted from the tax and are entitled to apply for rebates.

Mr. Baldwin was the key Conservative speaker Friday as opposition MPs continued the filibuster they began the moment since the tax bill was introduced.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield has called for a six-month delay in implementing the bill. But the government says it has no intention of withdrawing the measure—even temporarily.

It is the main bill awaiting passage before the expected summer adjournment of the Commons next week.

Arthur Dribbon (PC—Winnipeg North) complained that the tax is inflationary and is a particularly hard blow because unemployment is high.

"Now is the time when people need assistance most. And now is the time when the federal government is starting to put on the screws and to turn those screws very hard."

Finance Minister John Turner has said the tax—expected to generate $525 million annually—is needed to continue a subsidy program by which petroleum prices in eastern Ontario and the five eastern provinces are kept down to the same level as those in the rest of the country.

The eastern region relies on high-cost imported oil while other areas use lower-priced domestic oil from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

Benno Friesen (PC—Surrey-White Rock) said the tax will strike hard at small transport businesses operating on narrow profit margins. They might not be able to bear the extra burden, even if rebates are paid regularly.

Wave Demolishes Village

CANBERRA (AFP) A village on the island of Bougainville in the Papua-New Guinea group, north of Australia, was engulfed by a tidal wave early today. The tidal wave followed an earthquake which was recorded as reaching seven on the Richter scale. Officials in Canberra said reports from the island indicated the tidal wave demolished every house in the village of Torokina, but it was not known if any persons were swept away.

Gun Controls Sought

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — The parents of a youth killed in the Centennial Secondary School shootings last May are in Ottawa today to discuss gun permits. Their son, John, 17, was shot May 28 by fellow student Michael Slobodian, who also killed a teacher before shooting himself.

Appeal Considered

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — The lawyer for two men sentenced to hang for the murder last December of two Moncton, N.B., policemen said today there "almost certainly" will be an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. An appeal in the Supreme Court of New Brunswick was dismissed in a unanimous decision Friday. Ed Bell, lawyer for James Lawrence Hutchison and Richard Ambrose, said that he wanted to check with his clients before anything definite on a possible further appeal.

The Beirut newspaper Al Anwar says Egypt and Israel have agreed to a three-year truce under which United States troops will man electronic listening posts in the Sinai Desert and Israel will pull back from key mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfield.

Official sources in Jerusalem said Israel had proposed that U.S. personnel staff four radar stations between the Israeli and Egyptian front lines, with Israel and Egypt each operating one radar base.

Meanwhile, the Israeli cabinet issued a communique saying it would "resist any change" in the status of the United Nations peacekeeping force patrolling the buffer zone in the Sinai Desert.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat has said his country will not renew the mandate of the 3,919-man force unless the UN Security Council adopts new resolutions calling for an Israeli pullback from occupied Arab lands.

Al Anwar published details of what it describes as a five-point disengagement accord conveyed to President Anwar Sadat by U.S. Ambassador Hermann Eilts, who returned Sunday night from Washington.

The paper says the proposals resulted from intensive contacts in the last few days between Washington and Jerusalem" and that "both sides have notified the United States of their approval of the accord."

There was no official confirmation from Cairo, where Sadat is scheduled to announce the Egyptian stand Tuesday in a speech to the National Congress of the Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only legitimate political organization.

Al Anwar says a highlight of the disengagement accord is Egypt's agreement to a three-year truce with Israel. It also listed these points:

—Israel will withdraw "completely" from the Mitla and Gidi mountain passes and the Abu Rudeis oilfield.

—Israel will withdraw "gradually" from the rest of the Sinai Peninsula without the need for new disengagement agreements.

—The mandate of UN forces in the Sinai will be extended annually and be renegotiated after each fresh Israeli withdrawal.

—Electronically equipped C-130 aircraft of the U.S. Air Force will oversee these surveillance and reconnaissance flights over Egyptian-Israeli front lines.

—Several electronic listening stations, each manned by three U.S. soldiers, will be established in the Mitla and Gidi passes "to monitor military moves on both sides of the truce lines."

An informed source in Cairo said Sunday that Egypt would withdraw its opposition to the continued presence of the UN force in Sinai if it found clarification from Israel on a new disengagement agreement acceptable. The current mandate for UN troops expires Thursday.

Interviewed on the ABC-TV program Issues and Answers, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim said extension of the peacekeeping mandate is extremely important for future efforts to negotiate a settlement between Egypt and Israel.

Battling The Blaze

Firefighters pour water to burning buildings on Napanee's main street Saturday night in blaze that gutted stores of Gibbard Furniture. Cause of the blaze — which fire official estimates could cost as high as $2 million — was under investigation today.

$2 Million Loss

Gibbard Stores, Warehouse Destroyed in Napanee Fire

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — Cause of the fire that may have caused about $2 million damage as it swept through a downtown business block here Saturday night, was under investigation today.

Fire Chief F.W. (Pat) Patton said Sunday he was contacting the Ontario Fire Marshall's office to send an official to inspect the site.

The blaze gutted a warehouse and three stores used as display area for the retail section of Gibbard Furniture. Also lost was an adjacent, privately-owned barn. Two adjoining stores — a gun shop and the town's provincial liquor outlet — were damaged.

Combined with smoke damage to other homes in the area, the total cost of the blaze "will be close to a couple of million," said the fire chief.

The fire broke out in a shed at the rear of the Gibbard store and storage area and was first spotted about 6.15 p.m. Flames spread rapidly through the furniture-stocked areas and a call was sent for reinforcements from neighboring municipal firefighting units.

As the flames spread, ammunition supplies stocked Ramsey sports store against the burning Gibbard property were hastily removed and taken by provincial police to the safekeeping.

Firefighters arrived from Newburgh, Desoronto and Enersleown to join the battle. Smoke-inhalation safety equipment was despatched from fire units at the Ontario Hydro thermo generating station and Millhaven Fibres.

At the peak of the blaze there were 50 firefighters in action, said Chief Patton.

It took more than four hours before the fire was considered checked, he said.

But firemen remained on the scene during the night and Sunday hosing down the smouldering rubble.

Two town firemen were treated for smoke inhalation but later released from hospital. A Newburgh fireman needed several stitches to close a hand injury sustained fighting the fire.

Khmer Fugitives Walk Into Ambush

ARANYAPRATHET, THAILAND (AP) — Khmer Rouge soldiers ambushed three groups of Cambodians fleeing toward the Thai border last week and killed nearly 300 men, women and children without warning, witnessed say.

About 12 survivors told The Associated Press during the weekend the ambushes occurred about 50 miles from the Thai border near the provincial capital of Battambang in northwest Cambodia. There was no official confirmation of their account.

"The killing was horrible," one survivor said, "I saw blood streaming from their bodies which were riddled with bullet holes.

"I heard them screaming for help as I ran from the scene. I nearly killed myself when I saw my friends gunned down."

The witness said he and his two children were among 200 Cambodians who had slipped out of a forced labor camp but fell into a Khmer Rouge ambush about 20 miles northwest of Battambang City. Only about 30 of their group made it to Thailand, he said.

Roadblocks Removed

VANCOUVER (CP) — RCMP, acting under orders from the provincial attorney-general's department, cleared two roadblocks Friday and Saturday and charged 19 Indians with obstructing a public road.

The first group was a Penticton, just north of here, where about 50 RCMP officers moved in Friday evening and arrested 53 Indians, most of whom belong to the Mount Currie band.

Early Saturday morning on Vancouver Island, about 20 RCMP officers cut the second batch of arrests when they cleared a blockade across a logging road which leads to a pulp mill and a government wharf near Gold River.

Judge Anthony Sarich of Campbell River released the 16 men and four women on condition that they not return to the site of the blockade and that they appear in court. No date was announced for court appearance.

Those arrested on the mainland will appear in Penticton provincial court July 23.

A spokesman for the Mount Currie band, Verna Stager, said a band meeting is scheduled for Wednesday night.

Soyuz Spacemen Are Safely Home

HOUSTON (AP) — The Soyuz spacemen are in the first international space mission, arrived safely back on earth today, parachuting their capsule to a dusty landing on a flat wheat field in the Soviet Union.

Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov rode their bell-shaped spaceship to a touchdown at 8:31 a.m. EDT, it was the first time a Soviet landing was televised around the globe.

Eight feet from the ground, Soyuz fired braking rockets to cushion the landing, stirring up a massive cloud of dust. The spacecraft then tipped over on its side.

Two minutes later, the cosmonauts stepped from their spaceship. Both gave beamings to the recovery workers and waving cameramen.

Apollo astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton radioed congratulations to the Soviet cosmonauts with whom they had worked for five days while their ships flew in tandem. The Americans are to remain in space for three more days of exploration and return to earth Thursday.

Television cameras aboard recovery helicopters picked up the Soviet craft as it descended through partly cloudy skies, dangling beneath a single red and white parachute.

The touchdown, 6 miles from the target, was near the town of Acholie in the Kazakhastan steppes. The site is about 300 miles east of the Baikonur Cosmodrome where the cosmonauts were launched last Thursday.

A helicopter landed within 30 seconds and a team of doctors, technicians, militarymen and reporters crowded around the capsule.

The hatch was removed quickly and Leonov and Kubasov, wearing their bulky white spacesuits, emerged smiling and waving.

Doctors pronounced them in "very good condition."

Kingston MP Urges Nuclear Controls

By HARRY MULHALL
NADOC — Canadians must realize the fast they have a moral responsibility to face over nuclear proliferation, Flora MacDonald warned here Saturday.

They must call for a halt to export of Canadian nuclear technology and materials until proper, world controls can be instituted, said the MP for Kingston and the Islands who is seen as one of the contenders for leadership of her Progressive Conservative party.

Miss MacDonald reminded the crowd attending the annual peace festival service here that India became a nuclear power with the aid of a reactor sold by Canada.

But Canadian government now is considering selling reactors to Pakistan, Argentina, South Korea and Taiwan, she said.

Such sales could give countries around the world the means of joining the military nuclear club.

Canada if self has chosen not to use its nuclear development for military purposes.

"But we have not adequate control over what happens when we export our technology abroad," she said.

Meantime, there are also discussions about selling enriched uranium to France — a country which is still exploding nuclear test bombs and will not agree to a non-proliferation pact.

As far back as 1965 then Prime Minister Lester Pearson refused to sell natural uranium to France because it wouldn't sign international agreements curbing the spread of nuclear technology.

Now Canada has no guarantee what military purposes France would use the uranium for — or whether it would resell it to other countries.

Some developing countries are seeking to achieve nuclear capability while the more advanced nations are in "an arms race" to supply them.

The situations also poses the threat of nuclear supplies falling into the hands of terrorists.

"Then what?" she asked.

"Shrewdly as Canadians we should look to allow ourselves to be in that position where we add to the dangers of nuclear war," she said.

"We as Canadians, in the cause of peace should be saying to our government to our elected representatives "It's not a moratorium on all this ..."

Such a halt should be called until there are sufficient safeguards and inspection systems to guard against military use of nuclear technology and supplies.

"It's time we spoke out very strongly that we don't want to see Canada adding to the world's potential for danger," she said.

Her Keynote speech was given at the Madoc Kiwanis centre where hand weather cancelled original plans to hold the ninth annual festival at the Lester B. Pearson Peace Park on Highway 7.

World Record Robbery Foiled at Last Minute

MONTREAL (CP) — Six unidentified men almost broke a world record Sunday when they tried to rob an estimated $10 to $20 million from a Wells Fargo Armored Express Ltd. warehouse in nearby Longueuil.

A police spokesman said the men were alerted by a lookout and got away empty-handed seconds before police arrived.

Police said the men had been in the warehouse for "at least a few hours" early Sunday morning before tripping off an alarm system in the company's safe in the early morning.

"It was virtually out of Mission impossible," said Sgt. Det. Pierre Dubuc of Longueuil police reference to about $10,000 in equipment the men left behind.

They left pneumatic drills, cutters, nitroglycerine, dynamite, gas masks, radios, ammunition—even a panel truck", he said.

A Wells Fargo official said the would-be thieves had pierced the first alarm system by jumping it electronically from a telephone pole.

"But in drilling a hole into the top of the safe, the second, sheet alarm system went off.

"They were three minutes away from getting $10 to $12 million," the official said.

"They were so cool, they stopped and had a coke from our machine—even paid for it. I guess they thought they had all day."

The Guinness Book of Records says the greatest robbery on record was that of the Reichsbank's reserves in Bavaria on June 7, 1945 in which more than $2 million in U.S. dollars and gold bars were stolen.

Sgt. Det. Dubuc said police have no suspects.

The Unexplained

by Allen Spraggett

The Teen-age Psychic

A new psychic star is rising to rival the reigning one, Uri Geller.

Before you remember, is the 16-year-old former Israeli paratrooper who's been going around the world bending forks and spoons with his eyes and setting scientists agape.

Now a young Englishman that's only 19 named Matthew Manning is getting into the act. And he may steal the show from Geller.

He may not be quite as handsome as Geller (whom women swoon over), though that's a matter of debate, but many have pointed out how much alike his long hair and beard, Matthew Manning resembles pictures of the young Jesus.

What has the psychic buffs so excited is that Matthew not only bends spoons and lifts as Geller does, but he gets messages from the dead. Or at least, the messages are purported to come from the dead.

Also, scientists have booked him on to their infernal machines in the lab and decided that he's the age psychic dids have something about his brain that's different from other people's.

When I met Matthew not long ago, he was surrounded by scientists like a proud impressing tone of whom, objects would disappear and then just as mysteriously reappear. All the chairs in a room would suddenly be found piled up on a table where a few minutes before they had been normally arranged. Other kitchen utensils took to vanishing and being found under beds in the back of an unused cupboard, or other such places.

Pranks, you say?

Well, Matthew's parents wondered. They sought the help of Dr. George Owen, a psychical researcher and professor of mathematics at Cambridge University. After his investigation, Dr. Owen concluded: "The strange happenings are genuine and not caused by trickery. The events were psychokinetic (mind over matter) caused by a member of the household, most likely Matthew".

Later, Dr. Owen became fully convinced that Matthew and not some other member of the family, was the unwilling medium.

Besides the movement of objects, other strange things happened in the Manning household.

What might be called psychic grafiti began to appear on the walls of rooms throughout the house. Most of the unexplained writing took the form of names and dates, scrawled in an erratic-looking style of handwriting.

Then Matthew developed "automatic writing" which is production of long letters written with his parents and a young brother and sister in Cambridge, England. What scientists call a "poltergeist" broke out.

As unseen force apparently began throwing things around. Repeatedly, the dining room furniture would shake that total disarray though it had been perfectly in order the night before.

The psychiatrist said that at times the teenage psychic's brainwaves formed a pattern which was different from any he had seen before. He called it "a ramp function", and speculated that maybe it is linked to ESP. (Since then, another person showing psychic gifts also has been found to have the same brain wave quirk.)

Matthew Manning's full story is told in his auto-biography to be published in the United States this summer — The Link.

No doubt (there will be controversy about the young psychic. Thus far nobody publicly has accused him of fraud but privately such allegations have been made.

Whether Matthew Mannings powers are real or mental remains for time and science and further investigation to tell . . .

New Act Regulates Ontario Travel Agents

PICTON — The Travel Industry Act, effective July 15, 1971, is designed to provide consumer protection to the travelling public, says James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward — Lennox.

In a news release Saturday, Mr. Taylor noted, "Summer-time means vacations and trips to Europe or through North America. From previous experience some travellers were left to find that they had been victims of a travel agency's bankruptcy."

He adds that the new act "drastically changes this situation".

Mr. Taylor says all travel industry agents now must post a $3,000 bond, be registered with the consumer and commercial relations ministry and contribute to a $1 million compensation fund, even more administered by a board of trustees composed of members of the public and the travel industry.

"This compensation fund is to protect travellers in bankruptcy cases or for services not rendered or for out in a travel contract," he says.

Mr. Taylor stresses, "Make sure you are dealing with a registered Ontario travel agent. Otherwise, you are left unprotected should your vacation be disrupted because of bankruptcy."

The MPP notes, "I believe Ontario is only the second province in Canada to bring action in this vital area of consumer protection."

Police reported a break and enter at 221 Ann St, with nothing stolen.

Two Hurt In Crash

MADOC — A 21-year-old Tweed man was reported in fair condition in Belleville General Hospital with neck injuries suffered in a two-car crash just east of here on Highway 7, Saturday.

Police say the car driven by Christopher Robinson, 21, of McCracken St., Tweed, was in collision with an automobile driven on Highway 7 by Mrs. Carolyn Buchan, 33, of Ottawa. Scene of the mishap was the highway bypass, a half-mile east of here.

Mrs. Buchan, who had her two sons, James, 9, and Sean, 8, in the car, was released after treatment for neck injuries at Belleville General Hospital.

Police have charged Mr. Robinson with failing to yield to traffic at a through highway.

Total damage was estimated at $2,200.

Van Hits Parked Car

MARMORA — Police estimated total damage at $1,100 after a car parked on the shoulder of Highway 7 three miles west of here Sunday, was hit by a van.

The car was owned by Robert Rodine, 86, Cameron St., Marmora.

The driver of the van, Terry G. Allen, 16, of Ajax, was released after treatment for minor injuries at Belleville General Hospital. Police have charged him with improper passing.

Bodies Identified

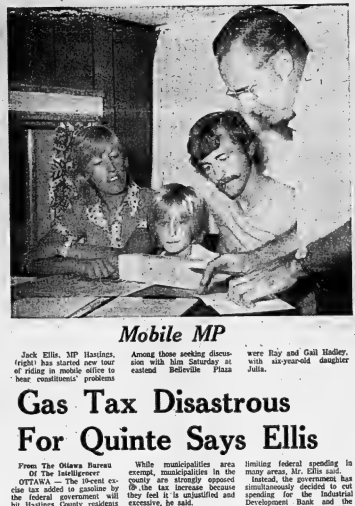
MARMORA — Provincial police at Madoc have released the identities of the two men who drowned in Crowe Lake here July 18.

They are Leo Insam, and Christopher James Peaks, both 27, and both working in Toronto.

Their names were withheld while police sought to notify their families.

Mr. Insam's family is in Italy and Mr. Peaks' in Peacock, New Jersey.

The men drowned while in a canoe on the lake. Mr. Peaks, body was discovered floating on the surface two days later and Mr. Insam was found July 19.



Mobile MP

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, (right) has started new tour of riding in mobile office to hear constituents' problems

Among those seeking discussion with him Saturday at eastend Belleville Plaza were Ray and Gail Hadley, with six-year-old daughter Julia.

Gas Tax Disastrous For Quinte Says Ellis

From The Ottawa Bureau Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — The 15-cent excise tax added to gasoline by the federal government will hit Hastings County residents particularly hard, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

He told the Commons he already has received a letter of protest from Madoc village and anticipates a flood of letters from municipalities in the county asking for removal of the tax.

The tax is "iniquitous, demoralizing, disgraceful and shameful he said.

Many people in Hastings have to drive to work—if they can find it since lack of government protection forced closure of Ideal Vendors plant at Deseronto, he charged.

The Highlands of Hastings tourist area will suffer because fewer American tourists are likely to be attracted, he said.

While municipalities area exempt, municipalities in the county are strongly opposed to the tax increase because they feel it is unjustified and excessive, he said.

The tax will raise an additional $500 million — but this could have been obtained by limiting federal spending in many areas, Mr. Ellis said.

Instead, the government has simultaneously decided to cut spending for the Industrial Development Bank and the Farm Credit Corporation. This showed a poor conception of the nation's need, he said.

Handicapped Show No Interest in Program

The pilot recreation program for the mentally handicapped at William R. Kirk School is recruiting Trenton's ARC Industry for participants, after receiving no response from Belleville's unaffiliated retarded young adults, says David Joyce, co-ordinator.

Current y the program with its $5,000 grant from the recreation department and the provincial ministry of social services, serves Belleville's ARC industry whenever its members are free from previous work agreements and can attend.

The original plan called for a canvassing of Belleville's mentally handicapped who were not members of ARC but the survey undertaken by the provincial ministry has produced no one interested enough to apply for information, said Mr. Joyce.

He said Trenton's ARC Industry will provide 15-20 young adults for the program, a similar number to the Belleville contingent.

"Perhaps we have received little response because the program is so sw and many parents have taken a wait and see attitude," he said, "but we have many services to offer and it is a shame to sit around and do nothing."

Special Service August 10

SOUTH MARYSBURG — The Annual Prince Edward County Mariners' Service will be held Sunday, August 10 at South Bay church, adjacent to the Mariners' Park.

A spokesman for the Prince Edward marine historical society Philip Dodds, says invitation will be forwarded to all owners of yachts and cruisers in the Quinte area.

Then the Rain Came

Young Bellevillians staged car wash at eastend Belleville Plaza Saturday to raise funds for recreation program for retarded. Business was brisk — until rain washed out the project. However, they plan staging a repeat of the project next Saturday.

Ellis Backs Stiffer Measures For Drivers Found Impaired

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Jack Ellis, Conservative MP for Hastings, is in agreement with recent proposed Criminal Code amendments that stiffen penalties for drunk drivers.

In May, Mr. Ellis introduced a private members bill calling for tougher measures against intoxicated drivers.

The package of amendments introduced by Justice Minister Otto Lang in the Commons last Thursday, differs from the Ellis proposals.

"It's not exactly what I had prepared in my bill," said Mr. Ellis during the weekend. "But the principle is being followed and acknowledges the problem."

Private bills die at the end of each session.

But, as a result of last week's omnibus amendments, Mr. Ellis said he will not now push his own bill since "I think I have achieved the basic principles."

A main difference is that Mr. Ellis bill specifically proposed stiffer penalties where death or injury was involved in impaired driving cases.

The government bill does not stipulate separate penalties for death or injury. But it proposes even stiffer maximum measures than the Ellis bill for impaired driving, failure to provide a breath sample and .08 blood alcohol level.

These are: First offence — $50-$2,000 or six months or both; second offence — 14 days minimum imprisonment, one year maximum; each subsequent offence — three months minimum, two years maximum.

Mr. Ellis also agreed with an amendment which will allow police to administer roadside breathalyzer tests.

Late Summer Recess Hampering Local MP

The House of Commons may recess for the summer this coming Friday, says Jack Ellis, MP Hastings.

If so, it will mean some of the travelling pressure off his present work schedule.

At present, he's touring the riding with his mobile office, by the day. At night, he says he will probably be flying himself back to Ottawa in time for evening parliamentary sessions.

What happened was that because his current riding tour six weeks ago. At that time, he believed parliament would be in recess.

So did other MPs, he said — including the New Democratic Party who recently held their leadership convention.

His schedule was circulated to constituents who wished to personally talk problems over their MP.

But Mr. Ellis says he decided against cancelling his travel schedule in the riding because of the response.

He now finds people visiting the arrival of his mobile office in their communities, he says.

"Although numbers vary with location, he sometimes has counted up to 50 calls in a session — asking help or information on everything from pensions to voting rights.

"I decided I have to continue the schedule because of the number of people that are coming in to see me now," says the MP.

His schedule for the rest of the month: July 22 — Eldorado cheese factory, 9 a.m.; Madoc store 10.30-11130 a.m.; Tweed 12-1 p.m.; Marmora, 2-5 p.m.; July 23 — Stanhope Trinity Church hall, 9-10 a.m.; Marysville, 10.30-11 a.m.; Tyendinaga Mohawk Community Centre, 1-3 p.m.; Deseronto main street, 3-5 pm. July 24 — Bloomfield 9-10 a.m.; Marlbank, 10.30-11.30 a.m.; Stoco, 12-1 pm; Tweed 2-5 p.m.; July 25 — Gilmour, 9-10 a.m.; St. Ola, 10.30-11.30 am; Zoe Hill fire hall, 12-2 pm; Bancroft main street, 3-5 pm. July 25 — Quinte Mall 9-12 noon.

Visiting Greek Priest Dons Traditional Robes

In Canada, priests of the Greek Orthodox Church dress like other Christian clerics these days.

Gone are the distinctive robes, hair, beards and long hair of the church in older lands.

That's why Sunday's service held a pleasant surprise for older members of the Quinte Greek community.

Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox in westend Belleville had it's services conducted by a visiting priest from Toronto. This week he was on summer holidays, — unable to be in Belleville.

Casting around for a substitute the Kitsonma church members found that a Pictou man, Themakos Vretiakos, was being visited by his father from Greece.

Father Peter Vretiakos also a Greek Orthodox priest on holidays, readily agreed to conduct the Sunday service at Holy Trinity — a centre of worship for some 75 families in the Belleville — Picton — Trenton area.

Since he's from the old country, father Vretiakos wears the traditional dress of the church.

For many, it was the first time in years they had seen one of their priests so attired — complete with the kalimafkion, the rounded hat and the pbelonion, the long black robe, said Peter Zegouras, president of the Greek community.

Rain Hampers Car Wash

A car wash in a good cause found itself washed out Saturday.

The event was organized by a group of young people who are running special recreation programs for retarded adults in the city this summer.

The program co-ordinated by David Joyce, of Belleville won $5,000 in grants from the youth and recreation branch of Ontario's community and social services ministry, and the city recreation department.

The program centres on William R. Kirk public school for the retarded, in westend Belleville.

But extra funds are needed for special events, including trips away for a spell.

That was the idea of Saturday's $1 car wash at the Belleville Plaza — to raise money for a trip to Toronto.

Customers came on strong for two hours — then it rained.

But, in that time, said Mr. Joyce, his group of young student helpers had managed to raise $40.

The group returns next week to the plaza to stage a re-run of the car wash from 10 a.m. to 5.30 p.m.

FEVER KILLS

A scarlet fever epidemic in England in 1862 took 30,000 lives.

Downtown Stores May Expand Scope of Sale

Plans will be inaugurated for next year's downtown promotion to be a multicultural event, involving various ethnic groups from Belleville, says Gerry O'Shaughnessy president of the merchants association.

In the wake of this years "tremendously successful" three-day program, directed at bringing back the magic to the downtown core, Mr. O'Shaughnessy said there is no time to waste in co-ordinating next years project.

"It is one of the contributions merchants can make towards putting cultural content into the core," he said in an interview.

He said he envisioned the project will parallel Toronto's popular Caravan program.

"We are aiming for a more colorful event with cultural content," he said, "where various groups would establish displays throughout the downtown core. If people travelling between and exploring all the sites."

He said many possible place might be used for the showcasing of the different ethnic groups, including the arena, armory and nearby churches.

"In the past the sidewalk sale has been a chance for the merchants to let down their hair and joke with the customers on the street," he said, "but now it's time to make it more than just a promotion."

"Most merchants who put fourth any effort were satisfied with the results," said Mr. O'Shaughnessy," and now it's time to push for more community involvement."

Driver Charged

MADOC — Eric Clifford Bailey, 19, RR3, Madoc, escaped with a bump on his head after he went out of control on a curve, crashed in a ditch and tore out five guideposts north of here early Sunday.

Provincial police said Mr. Bailey lost control of his car on a curve on County Road 12, five miles north of Highway 7. Damage to the car was $2,000.

Mr. Bailey was charged with careless driving.

Old Tradition

Members of Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox church celebrated Sunday service with priest in traditional dress of their religion. Father Peter Vretiakos, on holidays from Greece and visiting his son in Picton, agreed to conduct the service during absence of regular priest.

Portugese Soldiery Brought African Revolutionary Fervor to Homeland

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

While there is clearly much of Marxism in the Armed Forces Movement slowly assuming full control of Portugal, there is also much of the revolutionary ideas of Frelimo, the black liberation movement which now rules in Mozambique.

This makes the ongoing political crisis in Portugal, unique in modern European history because its roots, though related to traditional Marxism, are also based on African concepts of populism and liberation.

Napoleon once said his soldiers carried the ideas of the French Revolution in their knapsacks. The ideas of African revolution have been carried back to Portugal by her returning colonial troops in just the same manner.

And from Angola, Portugal's other huge former African colony due for independence at the end of the year similar ideas of revolutionary change, closer relations between a "liberated" colonial power and its former colonies, are at work in Portugal today.

What makes events in Portugal almost unique in modern Europe is that "liberation" there has come with a strong African flavor, imported by the junior army officers forced a few years ago to fight Africans, but who won over instead by their ideas and causes.

The historians have told us Portugal was always closer to Africa in any caste than any other European power including Spain with her language, filled with Arabic words and phrases as a major proof.

It was from the lip of Portugal thanks to the navigational innovations of Prince Henry the Navigator, that European ships and men sailed and were technologically superior to reaching African societies by sea.

And now by sea, courtesy of the returning soldiers and young officers who gave their support to the coup which overthrew 50 years of rightwing rule in April, 1974, Africa enters into Portuguese life in a dynamic way.

How little we knew about the true political nature of a Portuguese army presumably devoted single-mindedly to policing the empire is now apparent.

Army generals and a navy admiral who fought in Africa, but who at the same time maintained long clandestine contacts with the country's exiled Communist and socialist parties, now scramble for power in the dominant Armed Forces Movement.

With events moving as quickly as they are in this once docile nation, it is the Soviet-style Communist element in the armed forces which could win out over the elements relying on the liberation concepts learned and used in Africa.

The major difference between the two groups will emerge soon enough if the Communists win out. If the "Africanists" in the Armed Forces Movement survive, those who see a new kind of Portuguese-speaking Third World force between Europe and Africa, then we will take a different course indeed.

Whatever group ultimately rules, a choice must happen soon. The country devoid of most of its revenue from African colonies also undergoing internal political chaos and inept dollars at home, faces economic stagnation. Unemployment is creeping towards 20 per cent.

And the approximately 200,000 whites, many of them Africans because they were born in Mozambique or Angola want to come home and are being shipped there a few at a time.

They are not enamored of either African or home-made socialism and will remain an opposition force to what has been going on.

Trial and Tribulation

Losing your way — in the bush or anywhere else is no fun. When there is a happy ending though there are feelings of relief, as well as time to reflect on how it happened. A sense of renewal too, and closer bonds between those involved at having come through a trial, and survived.

Harold Prest of Corbyville, his sister Theima Goodfellow and two of her children, Cathie 13, and Roy 10, had such an experience of late. It was of short enough duration, but overnight in mosquito-infested bush in Madoc township could well have seemed like an eternity.

There has been comment of late in the media — especially with regard to air searches — at the cost of rescue efforts involved. And true, the provincial police were called out in this case, which is only to be expected. But it would not be human nature if all adventurous undertakings, however small, were suddenly to cease. Nor would it be in the spirit of concern for others, or of duty, if others, the authorities included, were to take no action when someone goes missing. A compass would have been useful in such circumstances, but as it was, the Quinte area family did well to keep their heads and make their way to safety.

Speaking of those air searches, and the rescues that do occur, the classic one that comes to mind was the finding of pilot Ralph Flores and passenger Helen Klaben amid the snows of the British, Columbia-Yukon border a few days after their small plane went down on a flight south. That was about 15 years ago. More recently there was the rescue of a German-born pilot, sole survivor of a group that had included an English nurse, an Eskimo woman and a teenage boy, after their plane went down in the Arctic.

The circumstances of being lost and found, in human terms, take on poignant dimensions when man is pitted against the elements, with life itself the ultimate prize, and death all too often the conqueror.

STRETCH MARKS

Fish and 'Weaker' Sex

The city of Brockville has had some "shocks" of late. A week ago, for instance, an earth tremor centered at Maniwaki, Que. felt in the city and northern New York, as well as in the Ottawa-Hull area, had some startling effects.

See what it did to marine life in the St. Lawrence. A large number of what were described as "huge" fish appeared on the surface of the river after the tremor.

A woman witness said one fish had a dorsal fin about a foot high, and there were several eight to 12 inches broad across the back. A visitor from the west coast described them as "water monsters."

The other shock was of a different hue, being female and athletic in the person of Bev Cameron of Ottawa who defeated two male rivals in the 2,000 metres race in the Eastern Rowing Association championships. Miss Cameron, who usually competes on 1,000 metre courses, has been in training for the Olympics and had entered the senior men's singles race for the experience, along with her sister Trish.

It was an experience alright, Bev beating Brockville's Jeff Earle by a boat length, Ottawa's Rylus Goudzinis finishing third and Trice Cameron a distant fourth.

There just isn't stopping the women in this International Women's Year. At least, the men down Brockville way may be able to console themselves with some good flag stories, although as far it was a woman who was doing all the big talking there on the effects of the quake!

Highway Problems

Bad as it was in terms of damage and interruption of traffic, the two-truck collision on Highway 37 recently could have been worse.

The highway for long has been accident-prone. Or should it be said that drivers do bumpy, twisting and narrow surfaces such as this are more likely to come to grief than would be the case on straighter, smoother roads.

Hop efully, reconstruction under way on the highway will make for safer travelling.

Meanwhile there has been a tragic accident on Highway 401 in which a Belleville nurse lost her life. Scarcely a day passes without some news of traffic mishaps. If anything the incidence of it appears to be on the increase.

Ottawa Accedes to MP's Pitch Relative to Post Office Design

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — MPs are finding nothing with the public works department to get new post offices built in small communities, so officials must have been jolted when Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) turned one down.

The Hants County village of Maitland, in his riding, needs a new post office and Mr. McCleave was all in favor of the project. But when he saw the designs—"standard brick building" the works department erects in small towns—he took no part of it.

Maitland is a historic community with distinctive colonial architecture, "and I wasn't going to be a party to ruining the main street," says the MP.

So he fought against the post office and began campaigning for more flexible design policies. And he appears to have won the battle.

Works Minister C. M. Drury has told Mr. McCleave that a new Maitland post office will be built designed by local architects to blend with the village's traditions.

Mr. Drury was really very good about it," says the Conservative MP, "I guess the department didn't have to think much about it before because we're all so anxious to get new post offices we tend to accept any design."

Even the construction workers at 24 Sussex Drive are getting a new home. Consolidated (PC—Leeds) has fought tooth and nail against the prime minister's new, donated, swimming pool. On one of the marker stakes for the new lawn around the pool are the words "Cossitt was here."

One of the more persistent rumors around Ottawa is that Jack Austin, the prime minister's principal secretary, will become president of Petro-Canada, the new national petroleum corporation. Mr. Austin is a former deputy minister of energy.

The same rumor mill has Mr. Austin being replaced by James Coutts, a Toronto consultant who travelled with Mr. Trudeau as a policy adviser in the last general election campaign. Mr. Coutts was appointments secretary for former prime minister Lester Pearson.

One of the most enthusiastic MPs in Ottawa is Victor Railton (L—Welland). He first entered the Commons in 1972 at the age of 66, after being a busy surgeon since the 1930s.

"I never had the time to pursue these other interests," he says. "But now I am really enjoying digging into things like energy and transportation problems.

"It's a second career and it's just great."

Unlike many medical men, Dr. Railton retired completely when elected to the Commons.

"Politics takes all my time and, anyway, surgery is not something you can practice on weekends."

Irish Settler Influx: Peterborough Looks Back

Peterborough Examiner

The first homecoming in Peterborough occurred 150 years ago, when hundreds of Irish settlers arrived in their new homeland, leaving behind the landlessness and want of Southern Ireland.

Their new homes cost $10 each, the going price to have escort-assemen knock together a 10-by-12-foot log cabin. The Irish families were given tools, a cow, seed, and enough salt pork and flour to last for 18 months. After that it was up to them. But in one year the settlers showed they could work hard, in one year of living in the wild new land, they multiplied "their supply of food and animals many times over, and cleared away hundreds of acres of forest.

In 1827, the 20-odd buildings were dubbed Peterborough, in place of the first name, Scotts Plains. Most of the harried 2,034 people who left Cork harbor in May 1825, in a soggy fleet of nine wooden ships, were here settled and flourishing in and around Peterborough. So it began.

The second homecoming begins today. A month-long string of re-enactments of the settlers' arrival, city, town, and township Homecoming activities, sporting events, and other activities will mark the anniversary.

The most avid Peterborians will be expected to turn the Homecoming song, "Land of Shining Water," as they go about spending the special Homecoming coins that are local tender in the city until August 31. Forty-four city residents went away out of their way to mark the city's 150th year — all the way back to Ireland, where they trooped through their ancestors' stamping grounds.

LETTERS

Salaries of Teachers

Editor
The Intelligencer:

The word greed used by Mr. W. J. Gordon in his recent letter discussing his impression of a teacher's demands at an Economic Policy Committee meeting was an appropriate one.

Irrespective of the reliability and discreditable are also adjectives applicable to many teachers.

We are alarmed and sometimes think some teachers better do something about striking postal and factory workers. What and who? Well we are not surprised. Possibly we do not expect those parts of the profession to be in possession of excellent judgement. We do expect other groups, educated largely by the country, upon whom children are number, to provide us with an example of careful, balanced thought, hopefully learned in those extra years at school.

It is amazing that teachers give evidence of such weakness.

Most of us do not trust teachers now and send children to school while we are filled with doubt and misgivings about their instructors. Teachers are in a position of ultimate responsibility and trust and do not appear to care. The Communists deal before to carry appeal for those who never considered it before.

Teachers are highly paid enough. It is not wise in an educational field to overpower their wages with someone who has not the strong union blindly pressuring for more money, and strapped in built up benefits through greed combined with ignorance.

Teachers add some union meetings "we believe our salaries and extra benefits are sufficient for an adequate life and we care about the economy and the country therefore we will at this moment decline further increase." we would be astounded but very impressed.

A FELLOW CANADIAN

Commercialization of Art

Editor
The Intelligencer:

I wish to compliment your editorial writer on his 'tongue in cheek' remarks in Monday's Ottawa Journal. He has managed quite well to point out the existing confusion regarding our acceptance of nudity.

The confusion, or even, the degradation of nudity, begins when it is used for rank commercialism. Hence the behind the license of expressional freedom, the publication in newsstands clearly indicate for whom the freedom tells tall. In this sense we can talk of a pseudo-sexual rip-off.

The portrayal of nude human body in fine arts dates back to the beginnings of civilization. That we can accept it today, with honesty and without a critical camouflage is a credit to our Christian culture and its maturity.

However, this does not give licence to the commercial of nudity' at will and at any place. With honesty as used in the name of art, the situation also imposes certain limits, unwritten laws established by the traditions of art. If we abandon these conditions we enter the problematic grounds of perversity.

I have seen many photographed models outdoors because this is where the body 'au naturelle' really belongs. I do not mind the occasional observer popping-in on the shooting session at a private or semi-private property. In that case they would be my guests and would have to accept me on my terms. And sure as hell I would be flattered if somebody suggested I was doing something improper.

Conversely, I would not impose my activities on a public place. A public park or city hall is equally open to those who understand the meaning of art, as well as to those, who don't, and it is only prudent to equip it by respect for both.

From this point of view the incident on Parliament Hill was an impossible on the general public. It also included a criminal offence — the desecration of our national flag.

The proper use of our flag is prescribed by law and as a result it has become a symbol of our country clearly deserved the intervention of the Mounties — in charge of maintaining law and order on Parliament Hill.

Nothing so they have been turned into participants of a really-named event.

To suggest that the job would have been better done by representatives from the crop of lady-mounties probably belongs-well in from some other assignments, while the rcmp-made, file bedecked mounties stand on the Parliament Hill, smacks a little of male chauvinism in reverse.

Pope Clement XIII decreed abolition of the Jesuit order 202 years ago—in 1773—after years of pressure from political leaders of France, Spain and Portugal. Historians now think the campaign against the order was a crisis conservatives who hoped suppressing Jesuits would suppress all new religious reform. Russia refused to put down the order and the next Pope, Pius VI, reacknowledged it in 1783. Formally re-established in 1814 as a scholarly missionary body, the order is often thought of as the "shock troops" of the Roman Catholic Church's hierarchy.

Marine Museum Attracts Visitors from Around World

SOUTH MARYSBURG — Opened as part of a centennial project in 1967, the Mariners' Park Museum at South Bay this summer, is attracting tourists from Switzerland, Japan, China and England.

Of course, the marine museum still draws large numbers of Canadian vacationers and many Quinte area families on weekend outings. This year approximately 750 visitors have signed the guest book, says Rose Marie Metcalfe, the museum's first curator who was hired this spring.

When the marine park first opened displays were confined to outdoor exhibits, such as life boats, anchors and the upper part of an old light house.

In later years, marine society members recognized the need for a small building in the park to house marine artifacts of a smaller nature.

The indoor museum was opened in 1974 and is filled with sailors' memorabilia. One wall features a giant map of Prince Edward County with all shipwrecks recorded in county waters marked.

The wheel from an unknown vessel, discovered by the Quinte Aqua Divers, is on display as well as a roomful of photographs, records and books.

One of the most interesting exhibits is a series of old newspaper clippings that trace the history of the annual Mariners' Services once held in Prince Edward County each spring before sailors and fishermen returned to the lakes.

In the Toronto Evening Telegraph in April, 1942, associate editor C. H. J. Snider observed the services were springing up spontaneously in Prince Edward County and Georgian Bay ports as well as in Toronto, Colborne and Welland "from the sailors themselves".

Mr. Snider, author of numerous books on schooner days, attended most of the mariners' services held at Cherry Valley.

These springtime salutes to Prince Edward's old sailors lasted for a number of years before being revived by Philip Dodds, a member of the Marine Historical Society.

A summer service now is held each year at South Bay church, adjacent to the Mariner's Park Museum. Instead of a 'bon voyage' for sailors heading to the lakes for another season it is a salute to those who have reached "the last port" and a tribute to Prince Edward's marine history.

Special decorations are used in readying the church for this annual service and traditional hymns are sung.

Balloon Theft a Bust

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A Picton realtors "fly by night" advertising campaign turned to chaos Saturday night as town police pursued a giant yellow balloon down Bowery St.

Real estate broker Gary Rorabeck last Friday evening introduced Picton's first floating ad — a large balloon filled with helium and valued at approximately $500. His business was advertised in large letters on the huge globe.

After he had displayed the balloon, rising from a rope about 100 feet long, Mr. Rorabeck tethered it to his office at 91 Main St.

Saturday night he reported the balloon had been stolen. Constable Donald Camp of the Picton police department said an off-duty provincial police officer provided a clue in the case.

The unidentified officer was watching television in his home not far from the offices of Rorabeck Realty Ltd. when he thought he saw a huge yellow balloon pass his window.

Town police spotted the balloon and apprehended the man carrying it.

Allan Cole, 20 of 146 Main St., Bloomfield has been charged with theft and possession of stolen goods.

Although the balloon was recovered the old adage of "all's well that ends well" did not apply.

Efforts had been made to deflate the helium-filled globe and a large hole was torn in the balloon.

Auction Nets $563

CHERRY VALLEY — A community auction sponsored by the Athol recreation committee raised $563 Saturday to assist in the cost of improvements to the township hall.

Sale items donated by Athol residents were sold by "auctioneers" Sam Gentile and Clifford Fennell.

The money raised will be used toward paying for the installation of washrooms at the hall.

Nine Trenton Scouts Leave for Jamboree

TRENTON — Saturday, nine youths representing the Trenton District Council for Scouting set off on a month-long tour of Europe with a 10-day stopover to participate in the world jamboree at Lillehammer, Norway July 29 through to August 7.

The one-in-a-lifetime experience was made possible by numerous fund-raising council-sponsored projects that netted the cost of fares and incidental expenses — $9,000.

On the tour that takes them to Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Finland and their capital cities are scout Philip Aubin, scout Thomas Robinson, venturer Mike Gray, scouter-in-training Lyle David, scout Chris Avery, venturer George Mouse, scout Robert Goyette, scout George Crouch and venturer Arthur Maw all of Trenton.

While abroad the Trenton representatives will also attend pre-jamboree conference at Copenhagen Denmark, they will be the guests of parents of scouts in homes in Sweden.

They will return home to Canada around the middle of August.

Project Aids Pensioners

BRIGHTON — Many old age pensioners here are reaping the rewards of a Paint for Pensioner's project funded for the second year by an Opportunity For Youth grant.

Four local youths under the leadership of Debbie Meaghlin, 18, provide a summer service for the elderly which includes house painting, house cleaning lawn maintainance and gardening. Helping Miss McLaughlin are two other Trent University student Rob and Denny Wiens and East Northumberland high school Grade 12 student Tina Schneider.

Awarded $3,900 to carry out tasks for aged citizens, the students make themselves available to pensioners for days a week. They take off Saturdays and Sundays to catch up on their own chores.

Busy with undertaking for pensioners since June they still found time to organize a strawberry social with the 200 senior citizens in the village invited without charge.

Later this year they plan to take a group of the village's elderly on a bustrip to Toronto to visit one of the outstanding points of interest located in the provincial capital.

Last year they took a similar group to Toronto's new zoo.

When an antique car show was held at Vieee's Farmers' Market last weekend a flea market also was sponsored. Here club members staff a booth where auto parts were sold and traded among hobbyists.

Cyclist Injured

TRENTON — Michael A. Stephens, 28, of Spring St., Trenton suffered multiple cuts and bruises as the result of a motorcycle accident here Friday night.

He was treated at Trenton Memorial hospital and later released.

Police said the youth, riding alone, was thrown from his machine when he lost control and it crashed into the curb in front of 35 Bay St.

Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $250.

Car Burns

PICTON — Picton firefighters Friday afternoon were called to the corner of Main and Johnson to extinguish a car fire in a vehicle owned by Glenn Shorpe, an RR 5 Demorestville resident. Damage was reported as minor.

At 1:30 am today firemen responded to a false alarm at Adam's Furniture store on Main Street, a prankster apparently turned in the alarm.

Can halt baldness Finnish scientists say

LONDON (Reuter)—Two Finnish scientists said they have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are patenting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The claim, however, was greeted with initial reservation by some medical experts.

The product contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hairs and other dirt clogging the follicles—the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

Egg Producers Lose

NAPANEE — A former director of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board and a partner in three Quinte area egg farms says the five cent a dozen price increase will still mean egg producers are selling their product below cost.

Eric Kaiser, of Napanee, co-owner of farms in Belleville, Picton and Napanee, said the average consumer spends only about $17, a year on eggs and he can't understand why the additional 75 cents seems like such a disaster.

Don't stop there—
pour yourself one, too.

Yes, you need milk too—every day. It is a food so important to health that nobody ever outgrows the need for it.

You pour it daily.
Why don't you drink it daily?

Every week of your life, you pour dozens of glasses of milk. For other people to drink.

But during the course of that same week, how many get drunk by you?

Only about two or three?

Well, two or three glasses of milk a week is not enough for any normal adult.

Milk is a food that is fundamental to good nutrition in people of all ages. No other food approaches it as a balanced source of the nutrients needed to maintain good health.

And yet, you've let yourself slip out of the habit of drinking it daily.

Well, now it is time to start again.

Do yourself a favour. Every day.

Luckily, it's not difficult to make a daily place in your life for milk. Just pour a glass and drink it, and you've done it.

But, like any habit, it takes a little getting into (especially if you've spent some years getting OUT of the habit of drinking a glass or two each day).

So here are a few suggestions.

Number one, take a hint from the picture. When you're pouring out your children's daily glasses of milk, pour out one for yourself, too.

It will give you a minute to sit down and talk to your kids, too. Another thing it's good to make time for!

Number two idea, replace one coffee break each day with a milk break. Three, have a glass with breakfast every morning. (This is a good way to increase your morning protein intake—which, in its turn, helps increase your staying-power right through until lunchtime.)

None of the above ideas takes more than a few seconds of your time. But since they help you set a regular habit of drinking milk, they also help you get the most benefit from it.

And those benefits, you will remember, are well worth having; no other food matches milk as a balanced source of nutrients needed for general health.

Now, we've said a lot about milk. In a day when so many things are changing, and not usually for the better, milk remains what it always has been: a good food made by Nature, not by man.

Such a good food; in fact, that milk has quite truthfully been called "Nature's most nearly perfect food".

Five essential nutrients in milk. You need them all.

Calcium. You know milk is needed to help build young growing bones. But do you know that your bones need it too? The work of repair and maintenance goes on through all your life. Milk is an excellent source of calcium; and an easily obtainable one, too.

Protein...well, everybody knows how important protein is. Unfortunately, for many people, "protein" means only "meat". But right under our noses is another excellent source of it: milk!

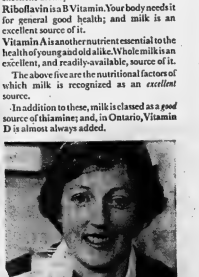
Phosphorus teams up with calcium to keep adult bones going strong. Milk is also an excellent dietary source of this mineral.

Riboflavin is a B Vitamin. Your body needs it for general good health; and milk is an excellent source of it.

Vitamin A is another nutrient essential to the health of young and old alike. Whole milk is an excellent, and readily-available, source of it.

The above five are the nutritional factors of which milk is recognized as an excellent source.

In addition to these, milk is classed as a good source of thiamine; and, in Ontario, Vitamin D is almost always added.



Milk, in short, delivers you more nutrient value per calorie than any other food you buy. And balanced nutrient value, at that: in proportions suited to your body's needs.

Yes, YOUR body's needs.

You, who pour glass after glass for your children to drink...yet too rarely pour one for yourself.

Money Management for Wives

The Art of Using Your Money Wisely

There is a real art to using your money for the sort of life you want, says Kathleen Kerr. No one can do it for you — you must figure out yourself what your priorities are and what kind of saving and spending plan will best suit your needs.

Unfortunately, she says, too many women are still ignorant of many common financial practices affecting their lives. Too many abandon whatever business ability they might have had when they marry, and within a short time lack the skill and confidence to take over family finances.

Widows and divorcees pay dearly for their relative ignitude when their lives change, when once again they must take care of themselves.

Many wives, whose husbands are not good money managers, suffer needless anxiety because they cannot help with paying of bills, planning of investments, or making budget and savings systems.

Mrs. Kerr has simple-to-follow advice for married women to help them avoid the nightmare of being tangled in financial complexities they don't understand.

Start off by knowing exactly what your assets are, she says. No matter what a couple's means, every wife should be sure that her husband has a will, and know where it is kept. She must know what provisions he has made for her and what his last wishes are.

Just as important, says Mrs. Kerr, a wife should have her own will, whether or not she has financial assets. Her possessions and her share of family property, should be designated by her for division after death.

Every married couple should sit down and discuss these things frankly, and should decide upon an executor to carry out the terms of their wills. The wife must know what investments and liabilities her husband has, where the safety deposit boxes are, and the type of retirement, pension or insurance schemes he carries.

All important documents should be in a safety deposit box, with photo copies kept at home for reference. Some cash should be accessible in case of sudden death.

Bank accounts are frozen when a person dies and cannot be touched until the estate is settled; except for an amount of $1,500 which can be turned over to heirs immediately. However, it should not take a death to shock a woman into learning how the economy

Mrs. Kerr also stresses that careful management of spending money is an ability that should be developed by women, especially in the area of credit buying. Only common sense protects you once you start using credit cards, she says.

Buying on credit makes good sense in some instances, but consumers should keep the following in mind: Be sure that the total amount of installment payments for any month does not exceed the amount of money available each month — the total should not be greater than 36 per cent of annual income.

Savings are essential for family security, says Mrs. Kerr, a fact that every woman knows, whether she works in the home or outside. It is recommended that 10 per cent of after-tax income be put into a savings account.

When you get a raise, increase the fixed amount you save rather than the amount you spend, and when you have saved a few hundred dollars, think about investing it.

Women tend to be especially in the dark when it comes to investment — but help is available from trust companies, banks and brokers.

Women should make it their business to seek advice in this area.

Buying a house is probably the most expensive investment most families make. A good principle for house-purchasing is to make as large a down payment as possible from your savings, and then borrow the rest from a bank or mortgage lender. Borrow as little as possible and pay it off as quickly as possible.

How to Guard Yourself and Your Money

The clever consumer can guard against being cheated. Here are some of Kathleen Kerr's suggestions for thoughtful trouble - free buying.

* * *

Some ways to guard against being cheated when buying:

Never buy in haste. Always compare prices, guarantees, warranties and special features before buying.

Be suspicious of fast-talking salesmen who offer special deals just for you. The deals are probably worthless.

* * *

Do not sign any contract until you read and understand it. Often the fine print in a contract binds you to big, seemingly endless payments, or worse. Never sign a contract with blank spaces or unlicensed charges.

* * *

Demand to see the advertised sale merchandise that brought you into a store. Do not be talked into something more expensive with the argument that the advertised merchandise is inferior. Chances are that the advertised merchandise does not exist and the more expensive product has an inflated price tag.

* * *

Avoid pressure to buy something you neither need nor want just because the price has been reduced.

* * *

Deal only with reputable merchants who have been in business for at least several years. Fly-by-night operators often disappear without fulfilling obligations or contracts.

* * *

Check door-to-door salesman's credentials by calling the company he represents before buying anything from him, or call your local Chamber of Commerce.

Never pay a door-to-door salesman in cash. Pay by cheque or money-order made out to the company the salesman represents.

* * *

Do not permit an appliance to be taken from your home for repair or work started on your car, without first getting a written estimate of the costs. Get written assurance that no additional charges will be made without your consent. Too often, unauthorized costly repairs are made once the appliance or car is in a repair shop and the consumer has no alternative but to pay the bill if he wants the property returned.

* * *

Never sign a completion certificate or make full payment for repair work until the job is actually completed. Once a repairman has your money, he may vanish before finishing a job.

* * *

Reject the bait dangled to lure you into expensive home improvements with the prospect that you can earn back the cost by showing your home to others. The improvements are charged at an inflated price, and the salesman has no intention of showing your home to a'ther

* * *

Never fall for wo.d.at home plans that require you send money before you can get the work.

Edgar —Althouse

In an afternoon service held Saturday, June 24, Wendy Lynn Althouse and Charles Duane Edgar exchanged wedding vows, at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Norwood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Althouse Norwood; and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edgar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore empire waist gown of silk organza with attached tulle train. The long sleeves and neckline were made of tulle embossed with pearls and daisies. The bride also a wore a floral headpiece with a shoulder length veil. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and daisies.

The maid of honor, Brenda Gollober wore a silk jersey gown of mint green, with a lace yoke and butterfly sleeves and matching hat. She carried a wicker basket of daisies and coral sweetheart roses.

The bride's attendants were Adele Kendall, cousin of the bride, Deanna and Jennifer Althouse, sisters of the bride. Mrs. Kendall wore a gown of mint green color while Deanna and Jennifer wore matching gowns of an orange color. The dresses and accessories were the same of the maid of honor.

The best man was Dale Thompson, and Perry Gibson, Barry Davidson and Russ Davidson served as ushers.

Dinner was served in the church parlor followed by a dance in the town hall.

After a trip to Quebec, the couple will reside at 58 Downes Ave. Apt. 10, Picton.

Conservationist Barbara Froom shows little fear as she twines black rat snake around her hands. Miss Froom, one of 19 Canadian women scientists honored in a special exhibit at the National Museum of Natural Sciences, is trying to change people's attitudes towards snakes, many of which are now endangered species.

"People say to me: 'Why save snakes? If they're becoming extinct that's all part of nature.' All I can say to that is: 'Why save whooping cranes or leopards? We've got to save these endangered species so future generations will have them.'"

She said large snakes, like the black rat snake she was holding, are especially hard hit because people tend to kill large snakes on sight, although they will ignore smaller snakes.

The black rat snake, which grows up to eight feet in length, is native to Ontario and found mainly in the Rideau Lakes area of the western shores of Lake Erie.

"It's really a beneficial snake because it keeps the mouse and rat population down," she explained.

The North American distaste for snakes is not shared by the rest of the world, Miss Froom said.

"In Japan it is extremely lucky to see a snake, and many older cultures used to worship them."

The small, dark-haired woman keeps snakes and amphibians in her North Toronto home and says she has never had any trouble with either the reptiles or her neighbors.

"Snakes make good pets if they are taken care of properly, but most people tend to understood them. I feed my garter snakes, Puddle and Puddle, every other day."

She feels, however, that people should not take large snakes from the wild for pets because they have a hard time adjusting to being caged, often die, and this further reduces the dwindling number of snakes in Canada.

"People bring puppies home, why not baby snakes, which have a better chance of making the adjustment to captivity?"

She says snakes and reptiles are time-consuming because many have to be hand fed. "My garter snakes will eat dew worms, chicken hearts or fish strips and they're learned to come to me to my hand, but snakes don't compare with most house pets' intelligence-wise."

Ann Landers
Parents Should Set Standards

Dear Ann Landers: I read a wire story recently that said the students at the University of Colorado at Austin (according to Texas) adopted a resolution requiring coeds to wear a bra if they flunked the "Ann Landers Peroxide Test."

I guess, according to the "Oracle of the Midwest" (that's you, Babe), any woman who can support a pencil under her breast should wear a bra.

Well, I've got a real problem. I tried the pencil test on myself and the pencil stays very nicely under my left breast, but no way will it stay under my right one. What should I do about this cockeyed dilemma?—Keeping Abreast Of The Times.

Dear Keeping: You should wear a bra for at least one very obvious reason. And may I suggest a little padding on the right side to help balance the budget?

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please rerun that wonderful column in which the difference between Love and Infatuation is explained so beautifully? My Mummy Uno and I would appreciate it very much.—A Big Fan.

Dear Fan: Here it is—with pleasure.

LOVE OR INFATUATION?

Infatuation grows into bloom. Love usually takes root slowly and grows with time.

Infatuation is accompanied by a sense of uncertainty. You are stimulated and thrilled but not really happy. You are miserable when he is absent. You can't wait until you see him again.

Love begins with a feeling of security. You are warm with a sense of his nearness, even when he is away. Miles do not separate you. You want him near. But near or far, you know he's yours and you can wait.

Infatuation says, "We must get married right away. I can't live without him."

Love says, "Don't rush into anything. You are sure of one another. You can plan your future with confidence..."

Infatuation has an element of sexual excitement. If you are honest, you will discover it is difficult to enjoy one another unless you know it will end in intimacy.

Love is the maturest of friendships. You can be friends before you can be lovers.

Infatuation lacks confidence. When he's away you wonder if he's with another girl. Sometimes you even check.

Love means trust. You may fall into infatuation, but you never fall in love. Infatuation might lead you to do things for which you might be sorry, but love never will.

Love leads you up. It makes you look up. It makes you think up. It makes you a better person than you were before.

CONFIDENTIAL to Hungry For Friendship And Dying Of Starvation: Your problem is that you think so poorly of yourself you can't imagine anyone wanting to be your friend. Get some counseling and become acquainted with yourself. When you discover you are worthy of friendship you'll be able to extend your hand to others and they will reach out and accept what you have to offer.

Wine Advice for LCBO Customers

TORONTO (CP) — The love affair Anne Hartley, 38, has had with wine was formalized by the Ontario Liquor Board of Ontario (LCBO) when she was appointed the first woman wine consultant.

There are 38 LCBO wine consultants advising customers on more than 900 wines available in Ontario.

"Wine is a sensual delight," said Mrs. Hartley. "The pleasure is in looking at it, tasting or smelling it, and then drinking it."

She was trained for the $8,220 a year job at liquor stores by head supervisor who hired Mrs. Hartley. He said Mrs. Hartley was the best qualified applicant he had interviewed.

The new consultant's knowledge of wines arises from years of a happy interest in wine and wine-making, manager of a wine-making supply store and serving it to her family in their suburban home.

At first bee husband, an administrative assistant, to the minister nominally in charge of the LCBO, was not anxious for his wife to apply for fear of possible conflict of interest. But Mr. Rollo and the minister did not know the connection and Mrs. Hartley was hired.

Although Mrs. Hartley is a professional mere—"an agreeable female occupation" when a girl was growing up—she prefers a wine-tasting career.

"Wine is a living thing. Every wine is different. Each one has its own life span. It is young, it grows up, and it dies."

The LCBO expects some wines to "rest" while others can be used immediately. The wines that don't travel well, called "truck-sick" wines by consultants, must rest and recuperate.

Wine classifications are made by color—red, white or rose; sweetness—dry to sweet; body and thickness, taste and smell and from the region where grapes are grown, said Mrs. Hartley.

Mrs. Hartley said that each client should drink the wine he prefers, rather than heed the experts. She said wine connoisseurs advise but do not promote particular brands.

Personal preferences are more important than arbitrary rules, she said.

"If you like red wine with trout, then by all means have it," although she said white wine is recommended with fish because it brings out the more delicate flavor.

One of the ways Mrs. Hartley is learning the consultant job is by periodic wine tasting, getting to know more and more wines by personal experience.

"I have an awful lot to learn," she said.

Centre For Unwed Moms

EDMONTON (CP) — An average of two girls a day, referred by parents, school counsellors and doctors, come to the Terra Centre in southeast Edmonton.

They have one thing in common.

They're pregnant and they don't know what to do," says Betty-Lou Wyness, a social worker who co-ordinates Terra Services.

Besides providing counselling, the centre runs a school in which pregnant girls and unwed mothers can complete their high school studies; a nursery for the girls' children; and a mothers'-day-out project funded by a Local Initiatives Program grant.

Since last September, almost 100 girls have attended the school. The provincial government pays the salaries of Miss Wyness, a case worker, and two teachers who co-ordinate the school program.

She 'Understands' Snakes

OTTAWA (CP) — Snakes have had a raw deal public-ity-wise, according to conservationist Barbara Froom, casually twining a black rat snake around her hands.

"I guess it's because we've all been raised to love furry things with paws and find it hard to relate to something we can't attribute human characteristics to."

Miss Froom, one of 19 Canadian scientists honored in a special exhibit at the National Museum of Natural Sciences, was in Ottawa trying to change people's attitudes towards snakes, many of which now are endangered species.

"People say to me: 'Why save snakes? If they're becoming extinct that's all part of nature.' All I can say to that is: 'Why save whooping cranes or leopards? We've got to save these endangered species so future generations will have them.'"

She said large snakes, like the black rat snake she was holding, are especially hard hit because people tend to kill large snakes on sight, although they will ignore smaller snakes.

The black rat snake, which grows up to eight feet in length, is native to Ontario and found mainly in the Rideau Lakes area of the western shores of Lake Erie.

"It's really a beneficial snake because it keeps the mouse and rat population down," she explained.

The North American distaste for snakes is not shared by the rest of the world, Miss Froom said.

"In Japan it is extremely lucky to see a snake, and many older cultures used to worship them."

The small, dark-haired woman keeps snakes and amphibians in her North Toronto home and says she has never had any trouble with either the reptiles or her neighbors.

"Snakes make good pets if they are taken care of properly, but most people tend to understood them. I feed my garter snakes, Puddle and Puddle, every other day."

She feels, however, that people should not take large snakes from the wild for pets because they have a hard time adjusting to being caged, often die, and this further reduces the dwindling number of snakes in Canada.

"People bring puppies home, why not baby snakes, which have a better chance of making the adjustment to captivity?"

She says snakes and reptiles are time-consuming because many have to be hand fed. "My garter snakes will eat dew worms, chicken hearts or fish strips and they've learned to come to me to my hand, but snakes don't compare with most house pets' intelligence-wise."

Experimental Program Integrates Retarded

VANCOUVER (CP) — The retarded child has been regarded by society with either fear or ridicule, avoided or packed off to an institution where he spends his days with others so handicapped. But an experimental program in three Vancouver elementary schools may be changing these attitudes, helping the mentally retarded child to become accepted by other children and society in general.

Classrooms of trainable mentally retarded children are operating in the same school as regular classes with the goal of establishing a broader understanding of these children within the community.

Changes in attitudes are more easily accomplished at an early age. The retarded children are being accepted among many of their age peers, an indication that the socialization program has been successful. Adults are involved in the program change, too.

At the child level, "open affection radiates now from the children closely involved in helping their retarded friends," said Hal Lafavor, principal of one of the schools involved.

"The learning is going two ways," he said. "We are all slow, learning the value of each individual. Fortunately, the affection is catching."

Statistics Canada 1971 recorded a retarded population of more than 65,000 in B.C., three per cent of the population. Of these, one per cent are profoundly retarded and require institutional care. Four per cent are severely retarded, but trainable.

The trainable mentally retarded person is handicapped by sub-normal intelligence but can be expected to learn basic self care, to adjust to home and neighborhood, and to learn some economic usefulness in his home, a sheltered workshop or institution.

It now is believed that a retarded child should, wherever possible, be integrated into a regular school system in his own community. Some children are capable of reaching a more interactive place and should be encouraged and educated to do so.

Some common characteristics of a retarded child create difficulties in a teaching situation. The children tend to be slow and dependent in many ways. People form low expectations of them and tend to wait on them unnecessarily. Their attention span is short. Constant repetition using concrete and tangible objects is necessary to drill even the simplest concepts into their minds. Some are hyper active and over imaginative while others show no imagination and are lethargic.

Each teacher involved in the integration program has the opportunity to return to more appropriate facilities the children who cannot fit in with the new demands.

Four-game Sweep for Napanee Peewees

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

A very poised team from Napanee swept by all of its competition to win the "A" title of the McDonald's Peewee Tournament here on Saturday.

The club had just about everything one would look for in a winning ball club, most importantly enthusiasm.

Napanee defeated Covertite Park in their first game, 15-4, to move into the "A" side of the tournament.

The team won its next game 26-3 over Cobourg with Benny Kelly playing an all-round fine game.

Napanee's closest game came against Picton, as they won 4-1 on the pitching of John Tripp, the ace of their staff.

In the "A" Championship game, it was no question, as they won 15-2 in the downpour.

Mack McGarvey got into early trouble, but was bailed out by Tripp and some awesome hitting by his teammates.

Dave Loose went three for four and the Bell boys' bats were singles. He also did well in the field, as he played an errorless game at first base.

Other offensive pitchers, Larry Gingrah and Mike McMartin couldn't seem to stop the Napanee attack as the latter registered by the winners.

The Championship contest was a little closer, as Picton fell 9-6 to Bancroft after 9-6 in the seven-inning contest.

Picton Acadec picked up the win, going the distance. Tom Dunn proved himself at bat with a homer, two triples and two singles in the game.

Doug Douglas also added a homer for the losers.

The fine defence in the tournament showed good sportsmanship, and the play was on a good level.

Peter Hunt, Don Smith and Napanee's Jim Lawrence starred in the tourney. Umpiring was on a par, pitched by Mack Brown, Vern Whalen, Bert Whalen, Bob Hamilton, Don McCrystal and Al Erue among those who gave of their time.

Dave Loose accepts the "A" division Most Valuable Player trophy from Belleville Minor Softball Association President Don Smith. Loose was chosen MVP in the McDonald's Peewee Tournament for his fine all round play at first base for Napanee, the "A"Champions. Loose hit well over .500 and was superb defensively.

Most Valuable Players Selected

As one of the Tournament directors said at the Belleville McDonald's Peewee Tournament, the "A" Division Most Valuable Player award could have gone to any one of three players on the Napanee squad.

The winner was well deserving of the trophy. He is the team's first baseman, Dave Loose.

Loose not only played well on the defensive end of the game, but he did his share at the plate also, batting .500 in tournament play. Others on the club were also in the running were pitcher John Tripp, who won two games, and team captain Benny Kelly, who batted .500 in the four games.

In the "B" side it was an easier decision, as Tom Dunn, the pitcher-first baseman for the Corvette Park squad was the winner.

All he did was go 14 for 18 in tournament action to win pitching a win The four games work gave him an .800 batting average, as he crashed three homers for his club.

His only competition in the tournament might have been a young pitcher, Mark Bando, from Eringate, the latter was twice for his squad and was impressive throughout the tourney.

Met Slugger Upset by Miscue

Dave Kingman

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave Kingman of New York Mets isn't an easy man to please.

The tall slugger hit two home runs and drove in six runs, including the winner but he was upset over being charged with an error Sunday in a 10-9 New York win over Houston Astros in a National League baseball game.

"Hey, who gave me that error? Kingman bellowed an angry Kingman. "That should have been an error on the shortstop."

Kingman was charged with his error in the third inning when he dropped a throw from shortstop Jack Heidemann, who had fielded a ground ball.

"The throw was bad," said Kingman. "It should have been Heidemann's error."

Kingman hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning, then hit a two-run homer in the eighth to overcome a 9-8 Houston lead. It was his 12th game-winning hit of the season.

In Sunday's other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies clubbed Cincinnati Reds 11-4, Los Angeles Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs 5-3, Atlanta Braves edged Montreal Expos 3-2 in the completion of a suspended game before the Expos won the regular game 8-3, San Francisco Giants beat Pittsburgh Pirates 3-1, then lost 7-1 in the second game and the doubleheader and St. Louis Cardinals topped San Diego Padres 3-2 and 16-2.

On Saturday, New York and Atlanta 7-4, Philadelphia blanked Houston 1-0, Pittsburgh topped Los Angeles 5-3, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 4-3, San Francisco beat St. Louis 5-0 and San Diego slipped Chicago 3-1.

A pair of two-run singles by Bob Watson and behind the Astros to a 9-6 lead, but doubles by Jesus Alou and Felix Millan and a pinch-hit two-run single by the Houston lead to 9-8 before Kingman hit his homer.

"I was thinking home run all the way," said Kingman. "I was looking for an inside pitch and got a breaking ball to outside.

Kingman has been playing regularly recently and has raised his batting average to .242. His 18 homers top the club, but he has struck out 68 times in 79 games.

Maltbie Hungry For More Success

SUTTON, Mass. (AP) — There was doubt in rookie Roger Maltbie's mind that he won a golf tournament last week.

"When you win your first tournament you wonder if maybe it was an accident. If you'll ever win again."

That doubt has vanished.

"When you win your second you figure it's not a fluke," said Maltbie, 24, after winning the $200,000 Sutton Classic tournament Sunday.

"You've proved something to yourself . . . that you can win again.

"I don't want to sound cocky, but now that I've proved I can win again, I want to win as many more as I can."

Maltbie said he wasn't surprised at his comeback-from-behind victory Sunday. Mac McLendon was a stroke back and Ben Crenshaw, Buddy Allin, Arnold Palmer and Jim Simmons were two strokes back.

George Knudson of Toronto, who started the tournament with a par 70 on the 6,800-yard Lee Trevino at 280 and won $4,150. Knudson had a 75 Sunday and a 76 Sunday.

Bob Lunn, 26, Lee, California, had won the Quad Cities Open the week before and now Miller, Hale Irwin and Tom Weiskopf are the only multiple winners this season.

Irwin, who began with a 68 on consecutive rounds of 71-69-72-68 for 280 and a shot victory, finishing comfortably ahead of Weiskopf, who had eight, nine and blazing home with a 31 on the back nine. He won by a single stroke with a last round 66, five-under-par 279 total.

He got the lead with birdies on the 15th and 17th holes—the last after a beautiful six iron shot to within 4 feet, clinging rough to within 15 feet of the pin—and got the par he needed on the last hole, r-

Sandra Palmer

Very Poor Start, Excellent Finish

NORTHFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Sandra Palmer shot a final-round par 72 for a 295 total to win the $25,000 Women's Open golf championship Sunday by four strokes, despite the second straight poor start for the tournament's history.

The 36-year-old Miss Palmer, leading money winner on the women's pro tour this year with $58,888, added Sunday's $6,000 Open pot to her earnings as she whipped out of the rough but a numbling wind that whistled across the Seaview Country Club City Country Club course.

Miss Palmer also had a poor first round, then charged back with a two-over-par 74 to trail by one stroke after the first round, and a one-under 71 to give her a share of a three-way tie for the lead after 54 holes.

The only Open champion ever to win the event after a start was Susie Maxwell Berning, who trailed with a 79 in 1968.

Miss Palmer took the lead for the first time with a birdie at the 395-yard ninth hole and held on to beat Sandra Post, former Oakville, Ont., resident now living in Florida, 18-year-old amateur Nancy Lopez of Roswell, N.M., and JoAnne Carner who had a 75 Sunday to finish at 299.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan Que., shot a final-round 76 for a four-round total of 304 and the fifth place money. She won $1,744 with scores of 77-76-75 for her first three rounds.

Michigan Events To Foyt, Ryan

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — A. J. Foyt took a 3½-second victory in the Indianapolis-style half of twin 500-mile races of Michigan International Speedway, and Terry Ryan was declared the winner of the stock car portion after Butch Hartman was disqualified.

Foyt dropped out of the Indianapolis Auto Club stock car race after challenging for the lead through 50 laps. He then rushed off to his Houston home, where his daughter Terry Lynn is critically ill.

Hartman, seen in a fist fight after the decision, was disqualified when USAC officials found the fuel tank on his Dodge two gallons over the limit.

Officials found it hard to believe that Hartman was able to run more than the last half of the race without a fuel stop, while others gassed up at least three times. Hartman said he counted across the finish line out of fuel.

Ryan had finished 22.8 seconds behind Hartman and Bobby Alfano was declared third.

After the race, the top three cars were checked and Ryan's Chevrolet held 21.6 gallons of fuel. Alfano's Maxwell could take on 21.4 gallons.

Hartman's Dodge took 24.5 gallons.

Foyt's almost unbeatable Coyote averaged 158.807 miles an hour over the two-mile, high-banked oval.

Catcher Benched

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indian manager Frank Robinson has benched catcher John Ellis.

The two men argued during Friday night's game with Oakland A's after the manager removed Ellis from the game for a pinch-hitter.

Saturday, Robinson said Ellis and he settled the issue and accept authority. Ellis, the Indians' starting catcher, has been benched since the incident.

"He will never become the regular catcher as long as I make the decision," said Robinson after Sunday's game, when asked what would happen if Ellis apologized.

"It's a mutual agreement. He says he can't play for me and I agree.

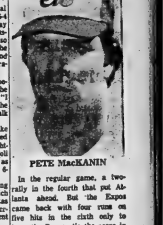
Takes Anger Out on Braves



PETE MacKANIN

MONTREAL (CP) — Pete Mackanin was not a happy man when he stepped up to the plate Sunday in Atlanta Atlanta Braves pitcher Tom House.

Mackanin and his montreal Expos team-mates had lost 5-4 to the Braves earlier in the day in completion of a game suspended May 15. They had also blown two-run leads in the regularly-scheduled contest and then were locked in an extra-inning battle.

"I wanted to win this one because we came so close in the first game," Mackanin said. "I was mad when I came up in the 11th. I thought they might walk me, but they pitched to me."

After fetting one strike against him, Mackanin smashed a House screwball into right-centre field to score Tim Foli with the game-winning run as the Expos skipped the Braves 6-5.

Mackanin, acquired during the off-season in a trade which sent Willie Davis to Texas Rangers, has been a steady performer for Montreal in recent weeks.

At times early in the season, Montreal manager Gene Mauch was alternating him at second with Larry Lintz, but that platooning has ceased for the most part.

"You have to play every day at this game," Mackanin said. "It's the only way I can excel at this game and do my job on defence and at the plate."

Mackanin was in on six of Montreal's double plays and figured Sunday and finished the day with five hits in six times at bats. Thus far, Mackanin has had 10 hits in 19 times at bat during a five-game home stand.

He slapped a run-scoring single during the double startled the Expos' two-run rally in the seventh inning in the completion of the suspended game.

But the lynx fell short as Max Leon got Larry Parrish to ground out with the bases loaded.

Two-run homers by Darrel Evans and Jerry Royster and a run-scoring single by Clio Gastonguay gave the Braves the win. Montreal scored twice in the fourth.

The run single by Ray Sadecki highlighted a three-run

Mistake Costs Wood Shutout

Dave Kingman

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The moment Wilbur Wood let go of the ball, he figured he'd done something wrong.

Wood pitched his third straight complete game victory Sunday in Chicago White Sox' 2 2 rout of Milwaukee, the opening game of an American League baseball doubleheader.

He would have had his third straight shutout had it not been for a mistake that Gorman Thomas himself drove in the first field line for a two-run homer.

In the second game, Bill Sieling jumped on a Pete Broberg mistake and sent it over the wall for the first grand slam home run of his career, the big shot in a 10-5 victory that gave the White Sox a sweep of doubleheader.

In other American League games Sunday, New York- Yankees swept a pair from Minnesota Twins, 14-2 and 5-4, Texas Rangers trounced Boston Red Sox 10-5, then lost 3-2, Detroit Tigers defeated Kansas City Royals 7-5, Cleveland Indians belted California Angels, 10-4 and Oakland A's shaded Baltimore Orioles 5-2.

On Saturday, Chicago trounced Milwaukee 4-2, New York edged Minnesota 8 in the first game of a doubleheader, then lost the second 2-1, Boston blanked Texas 8-0, Detroit topped Kansas City 10-6, California downed Cleveland 8-0 and 3-2 and Baltimore defeated Oakland 5-2 and 3-1.

"It was a knuckleball, up," Wood said of Thomas' seventh inning homer in the opener. "He's a big strong kid and if you make a mistake he can hurt you.

"It was fair when it started out. Then it looked hooking and I started saying, 'Go foul. Go foul.' But it hit the screen."

It was about the only thing Wood did wrong all day. He finished with a four-hitter and six strikeouts.

The Brewers were behind from the opening inning, when Chicago scored four runs. Ken Henderson gave Wood all the offence he needed with three run-scoring singles.

In the second game it was the Brewers who scored four times in the first inning, but the lead didn't last too long. Stein had a run-scoring single in Chicago's two-run second, then hit his grand slam in the fourth.

Th Yanks lambasted Ray Corbin and four relievers for 17 hits in the opener, including two-run homers by Thurman Munson and Bobby Bonds and a solo homer by Roy White.

In the ninth inning of the second game, Munson tripled, Rick Dempsey singled him home and Ed Herrmann delivered a game-winning double to left-centre as the Yankees overcame a 4-3 deficit.

Tom Grieve and Lenny Randle drove in three runs each as exas snapped the Red Sox' nine-game winning streak in the opener. In the second game, Cecil Cooper doubled and Rick Burleson singled him home with the deciding run in the top of the seventh.

Leon Roberts hit a two-run, go-breaking homer for the Tigers in the sixth inning, Jack Pierce later homered off the third-deck facing in right field at Tiger Stadium and Ben Oglivie hit a two-run homer.

Homers by Rich Manning, Buddy Bell and Rico Carty carried Cleveland past the Angels.

Chadwell Wellington hit a tie-breaking double in the seventh inning for Oakland and Reggie Jackson followed with a two-run double to reap the Orials' four-game winning streak.

Victory at Nashville Yarborough's Second

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Cale Yarborough won his second straight Nashville 420 Grand National race Sunday while Richard Petty finished second and pulled to within $4,-400 of $2 million in career earnings.

Yarborough took and held the lead on lap 19 when Darrell Waltrip's car was forced out of the race with transmission trouble. Yarborough, who started from the pole position in his Chevrolet, won $6,085.

The victory over Petty was roughly 20 seconds in the five-eighths mile Nashville Speedway.

Petty's second-place finish earned him $3,435 to raise his career earnings to an unofficial $1,995,000. Only one other active driver, A.J. Foyt, has won more—$2.5 million.

On lap 308, Yarborough narrowly missed colliding with a car driven by David Sisco of Nashville, who had spun out on the fourth turn. Yarborough spun out, but hit nothing, and continued without losing his lead.

Dave Marcis was third in a Dodge and Benny Parsons, the pole sitter, was fourth in his Chevrolet.

World Aquatic Championships

Competition Tough Admits Diver

By JOHN SOROBANIK

CALI, Colombia (CP) — Teri York wiped the water from her face and dismissed her seventh-place finish in the world springboard diving championship Sunday as just one of those things.

"Like I said . . . after the preliminaries, it's no fun here," the 19-year-old Canadian champion from Vancouver said. "The competition is just so close."

"I wasn't happy with my dive [ing or my points but I was not dissatisfied with my placing. I not when I look at the girls ahead of me."

Two girls from the Soviet Union, Irina Kalinina and Yolyanina Tatiana finished one-two with Christine Loock of the United States third.

They were the first medal-winners of the championships that began Saturday. The only other action Sunday was in water polo.

Canada gave up two early goals, fought back twice to tie but then surrendered a penalty-shot goal with one second remaining as they dropped a 6-4 decision to Italy.

George Gross, Cliff Barry, Pat Pugliese and Gaetand Turcotte scored for the Canadians but the only second match in a row. They lost 9-4 Saturday to the Netherlands. Today Canada meets Mexico.

The men take over the springboard today for preliminaries and synchronized swimming begins with solo competition.

Sylvia Fortier of Quebec City will have a difficult time wresting a gold or silver medal away from Gail Buzonas of the U.S., a double gold medallist at the 1973 world championships, and Tatiana Ustinova of Japan.

The swimming competition begins Tuesday.

Both Soviet girls missed at least one of the last two dives in final but their programs were [illegible] Fortier even a mine earned them points in excess of what some girls received for "A" dives.

"I knew that with my relatively easy program I had no [illegible] to theirs that I would [illegible] with a good [illegible]," Miss York said. "But I had a choice of two dives. One difficult dives for either the lower or the springboard. I like lower more so I decided change my program there."

Defending springboard world champion Kristin Krause of East Germany missed her final two dives, dropping her from third place to sixth.

Ulrika Knape of Sweden, the silver medallist in 1973, finished fifth despite executing all dives extremely well. On only one dive did she receive a judge's mark of less than ninemed in the total.

A perfect mark is nine—Kalinina received three—and the highest Canadian received a mark is not counted in the total.

BRIAN SPENCER

Settled Out Of Court .

BUFFALO (AP) — An assault charge against hockey player Brian Spencer of Buffalo Sabres was dropped in an out-of-court compromise settlement of a $75,000 civil suit against him.

West Seneca Town Justice Robert F. Kiener said in a brief statement Monday that the parties have reached an out-of-court disposition and a friendly resolution regarding their differences."

A pending court matters have been withdrawn by consent, he added.

Patrick and Pamela Booker of East Aurora, N.Y., had brought the suit against the National Hockey League player following a minor traffic accident last November.

Booker claimed Spencer's auto struck his in the rear in West Seneca and that the hockey player then assaulted him in a subsequent confrontation.

Booker filed a third-degree assault charge against Spencer, then initiated the civil suit. The amount of the compromise settlement was not known.

Romania's Ace Sharp But It's Not Enough

By REUTER

Despite a brilliant victory by Romania's Ilie Nastase over Manuel Orantes, Spain defeated Romania 3-2 Sunday to win the European one Group A semi-final in Barcelona.

Nastase, 29 Saturday, was in devastating form as he crushed Orantes 6-2, 6-2, 6-4 in the first of the reverse singles matches. That tied the series 2-2, but Jose Higueras outlasted Tomas Orvid 6-2, 3-6, 6-1, 5-7, 6-3 in the final match for the winning edge.

Spain's opponents in the zone final will be Sweden, which took an expected victory over the Soviet Union in Yarmulsa, Latvia.

Bjorn Borg clinched the win by beating Anatoly Volkov 8-6, 6-1, 6-0 after Alexander Metreveli, the Soviet No. 1 player, beat Hans Jurgen Birger Andersson 8-5, 7-7, 6-2, 6-3.

In the other European zone semi-finals, Romania will take place in the B final by-beating Hungary 4-1.

Hungary's only victory came when Balazs Taroczy defeated Jiri Hrebec 6-4, 6-1, 6-2 before Jan Kodes finished the series with a four-bout 8-6, 4-6, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4 triumph over Sandpiro Dzrasyi.

Czechoslovakia will meet France in the zone final beginning in Prague next Friday. The winner will play Australia in the other inter-zone final.

Spain and Sweden will also play their zone final next weekend with the winner to meet Chile, which eliminated defending champion South Africa in the best-of-five American zone final Saturday.

The Chilean pair of Jaime Fillol and Patricio Cornejo won up a winning 3-0 lead at Santiago by taking the doubles in straight sets from Ray Moore and Frew McMillan.

Chile won two more matches Sunday to take the series 5-0.

The South Africans won the Davis Cup last year by default when India refused to meet them in the final in protest against the South African government's policy of apartheid.

The South Africans qualified for the zone final this year when Mexico boycotted the series.

Foreign Entries Dominate In All the CORK Events

KINGSTON (CP) — High winds forced cancellation of one class race Sunday at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK), although the other five classes finished their courses.

The big, three-man Soling, racing farthest out in Lake Ontario, finally had their race cancelled after a restart. Choppy seas and rain hampered sailors in late afternoon.

At one point, there was a danger of capsize, but from all other strong wind, but they did not materialize.

Foreign entries continued to dominate, winning all five classes.

Top Canadians were well down in the standings, but no spectacular places were impossible to determine, because first results handed out were incomplete and the final corrected printed list not available for several hours after the race.

In the Tornpest class, Glossop Milmer of Italy was first, ahead of Uwe Mares of Germany and Felix Gancedo of Spain.

Mares, last year's world champion, was third in Saturday's first race.

The top Canadian in the Tempest class, finished sixth, was Claude Lamothe of Montreal.

In the Forsado class, Cappy Sheehey of the United States finished first, after he blew Britain third.

Donald Cole, of Laval, Que., was second, with Reg Wilke of Britain third.

The racing continues through the week, with the final race for five classes scheduled Friday. The Solings will run a makeup race Saturday.

Harrison and Fleming Among Veterans Chopped

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two-time Grey Cup quarterback Ron Lancaster and Dave Fleming led the list of veterans cut by the all-star Canadian Football League teams Monday as Toronto Argonauts let the 35-player regular-season limit.

Harrison, a Canadian offensive tackle, was one of seven players cut Monday by Edmonton Blue Bombers of the Western Football Conference.

Fleming, 31, had played wide receiver, running back, defensive safety and cornerback with Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who let him go. He scored 300 points in 10 CFL seasons.

Other experienced CFL players to be cut loose included linebacker Dick Adams of Hamilton, placekicker Ivan MacMillan of British Columbia Lions, tight end Tom Pullen of Ottawa Rough Riders, running back Pete Walton of Saskatchewan Roughriders and defensive back Bayne Norrie of Edmonton Eskimos.

CFL clubs made liberal use of their 21-day injury reserve list and traded to trim their rosters.

At least 33 players are on injury lists, including defensive tackle Jim Stillwagon of Toronto, safety Ted Provost of Saskatchewan, linebacker Dan Dever of British Columbia, offensive tackle Bruce Smith of Ottawa and safety Dave Enler and offensive tackle Bill Danyluk of Hamilton.

Guard Chuck Liebrock of Winnipeg and linebacker Steve Ensser of Saskatchewan are on their club's suspended lists.

In late trades, Edmonton traded Ron Forwick, an 11-year defensive lineman, to Hamilton for a first-round draft choice, sent cornerback Morris Noble to Hamilton in payment for defensive end Ron Estay, swapped defensive lineman Bubba Bridges in Ottawa for a second-round draft pick and gave up running back Bob McGregor to Saskatchewan on waivers.

Montreal assigned lineman John Trainor to Calgary to complete a deal which brought Jeff Hewitt to the Alouettes earlier this year.

Calgary also obtained linebacker Rick Koospha from Toronto, Randy Rader from B.C. and offensive guard Tunfull Upshaw from Winnipeg for future considerations.

But Problems Remain — Devine

Professionals Are Okayed For World Championships

GSTAAD, Switzerland (CP) — The International Ice Hockey Federation agreed during the weekend to let professionals compete in the world championships, previously a tournament for so-called amateurs.

The move, backed by federation president J. F. (Hunky) Ahearne, will enable Canada to rejoin the tournament, which has been dominated by the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia. Canada boycotted the championships since 1969 because it was not allowed to send professionals.

Jack Devine of Belleville, Ont., a former president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA), said several problems remained to be settled before Canada decides to return.

"If they continue to take place at the same time of year as now, it would be very difficult for Canada to field all-professional team because it would clash with pro playoffs," he said.

Devine said the Canadians would be discussing the timing of the world championships at the other 34 countries at the federation congress this week.

"If we then get agreement, then you could say we would be happy," he said.

The congress authorized a change Saturday in regulations which would allow members of the professional National Hockey League and World Hockey Association to join the federation through the CAHA and take part in the championship.

Combined with Sunday's congress decision, it abolishes the distinction between amateur and pro players, this cleared the way for Canada.

Good News, Best Nudes Are Wed

BELMONT, Ont. (CP) — Organizers of The Miss Nude Ontario contest this year added a new wrinkle to the competition:

The winner of the annual contest, 36-year-old Ernest Mulder of Brantford, watched Sunday as her husband, Bill, 26, was crowned Mr. Nude Summerset by five nude women judges.

The male nude contest was held as a tribute to International Women's Year, contest officials said. Mr. and Mrs. Mulder were chosen by coincidence, they added.

About 50 families living in the Summerset Park nudist camp, one of three in Ontario.

Supercrisis Coming

SANDS POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Thomas Fingar, chairman of the Municipal Assistance Corp. (Big MAC), said Monday that New York City is heading into a supercrisis if it is not solved by midweek, time will have run out for the city.

"I am not exhibiting brinkmanship; this is absolutely real," he said in an interview warning that if Big MAC cannot sell bonds to help New York over the crisis the city cannot raise money on its own, it is certain that will happen will be default on the city's obligations.

"There will be laws govern bankruptcy for a city like New York, so it is difficult to talk about that."

KENORA (CP) — Guy Hunter, 37, has been charged with non-capital murder in connection with the death of a woman whose body was discovered in the bottom of his boat Friday by Ontario Provincial Police.

The partially-decomposed body was identified as Bertha McDonald, 31, of the Islington Reserve near Kenora. Const. Hunter also lived on the reserve.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but OPP said an autopsy will be held.

Miss Universe Named

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Anne Poblamo of Finland said Sunday she was very happy to cry" after being named Miss Universe 1975.

The tall blonde fashion model from Helsinki said she first thought she would break down after thinking about her new role. But a telephone call to her mother in Finland changed all that.

"She was so happy," said the 19-year-old beauty. "I thought she would take it differently than she did. But she didn't cry, and I didn't either."

One of her prizes is a $10,000 personal appearance contract, which will keep her busy traveling for a year.

Smuggled Art Taken

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Authorities raided three homes in the Milan area Sunday and confiscated unregistered private art collections worth an estimated 56 million.

The 3,000 art objects were found on display in the homes and were better maintained than in most museums, the authorities said. Names of the owners were not released.

Authorities said the items included a large silver coffin, vessels, cups and statues dating back to the 4th century BC.

Police reported months of investigation preceding the raids had uncovered a large smuggling operation of relics from underground excavations in southern and central Italy.

Under Italian law, anyone possessing an art object from archeological digs must notify the department of antiquities which then has an option to buy it at one-fourth of its market value.

Women Priests Perform

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Two women Episcopal church priests ordained in a controversial five years ago celebrated communion at both services Sunday at a Woods Hole church whose pastor said it was the first such celebration in Massachusetts.

The pastor, Rev. Charles Hoffman, said the two were Rev. Carter Heyward and Rev. Suzanne Hiatt.

He said his congregation twice gave overwhelming approval earlier this year to inviting the women as guest pastors at the church and to celebrate the Eucharist.

5,000 Attend Rally

Party Head Says He'll Back Premier

LISBON (AP) — The head of Portugal's biggest party says he will take the Socialists back into the government if pro-Communist Vasco Goncalves is replaced as premier.

Mario Soares announced his terms for ending Portugal's governmental crisis at a rally in Lisbon Sunday attended by more than 50,000 Socialists.

The rally followed a weekend of clashes between Socialists and Communists in which two persons died and more than 30 were hurt.

The Socialists and Popular Democrats, who together polled two-thirds of the votes in April's constitutional assembly elections, pulled out of the government because of growing Communist influence in the administration and the decline of press freedoms.

Lisbon's only Sunday newspaper says President Francisco da Costa Gomes might install another military officer as premier unless Goncalves agrees to join with another government.

The president issued a statement saying a new government would be formed soon and its principal political task would be to take part in the military-dominated coalition. He did not mention Goncalves by name, strengthening the impression that the premier might be on his way out.

Support for Goncalves came from the Communist-dominated political and propaganda arm of the armed forces general staff known as the 5th Division. It said only the powerful Armed Forces Movement (AFM) which 15 months ago overthrew the old rightist regime—could decide who should be president. The 5th Division called on the AFM to "censure and repudiate" Soares, claiming he had insulted and defamed Goncalves, Costa Gomes, the Portuguese people and the AFM.

Abduction Warrant Issued

TORONTO (CP) — Police said Sunday a warrant has been issued for the arrest of a Ross Dilworth, 29, of Toronto, charged with abducting two young boys from their Toronto home.

Police said a man took the children, Jacob, 1, and Joel, 2, away from their home.

A court order had granted sole custody of the children to Dilworth's 25-year-old wife. The couple were separated six months ago.

78 Charged in Weekend Riot Ends In Court

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP) — All 78 persons arrested during riot-hour confrontation with police early Sunday were to appear in court today on charges ranging from negligence to assault on a police officer.

An RCMP spokesman said most of the accused were to be charged with unlawful assembly after the near-riot which ended early Sunday when police equipped with riot sticks moved into the crowd of about 300 assembled in the downtown of this east Vancouver Island city.

Insp. Dan Webster of the RCMP said the confrontation began when the crowd celebrating the annual 30-mile bathtub race across the Georgia Strait to Vancouver became unruly.

Riot-equipped RCMP officers tried to disperse a crowed in front of the main liquor store. The store's glass windows and doors were smashed and an undetermined amount of liquor was stolen.

A police spokesman said earlier reports that a camera store had been looted proved to be incorrect. The owner had removed the cameras from the store at the close of business Saturday.

In a three-block section of downtown, every second store front window was smashed. The police spokesman said no estimate had been made of the damage.

During the disturbance, a car was driven at high speed through police lines, almost hitting Mayor Frank Ney and two RCMP officers.

In the ensuing pursuit by police, the car crashed and the police car and rolled. The driver was taken to hospital.

Colin Kelly, 22, of Nanaimo was charged with criminal negligence in connection with the incident.

Constable Jim Peerer, attacked by one of the crowd, was treated for leg injuries and released from hospital. Julius Lamb, 17, has been charged with assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest.

Chopper Crash Kills Two

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Two men died Sunday when the helicopter they were in nearly building crashed and burned during its first flight, on a private airstrip in nearby Middlesex Township.

Provincial police said Norman Arnold, 55, of London, and his son Kenneth, 22, of Port Stanley, were dead when they reached the scene.

Brian Dobson, owner of the airstrip, said he watched the helicopter "climb unsteadily" about 100 or 200 feet.

"It didn't really hover up," he said. "It just climbed up in a very unstable manner."

It crashed into a wheat field a quarter mile from the takeoff and burst into flames.

Mr. Dobson said Mr. Arnold asked him a month ago "if it was all right to take the helicopter up here."

"I told him he could . . . and they just brought it out here to day, took it off the trailer and took it up," he said.

Neighbors of the Arnold's said the man and his son had worked on the helicopter for the last two years, building it from the parts of two other machines.

Commons Business Complete Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Barring unexpected delays, the Commons will complete remaining business demanded by the government and adjourn this week for its long-awaited summer recess.

Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp is insisting on passage of three bills still on the agenda, one the contentious 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline tax.

The recess, which will last until Oct. 16, will not start until the tax bill completes third reading in the Commons and grants final approval to amendments in the Canadians Investigation Act and the Public Service Staff Relations Act.

"The government is sticking to its position," said one spokesman. "We'll be here until these bills are finished."

The gasoline tax, which took effect when it was announced in the June 23 budget, still is awaiting second reading, approval in principle. The other bills need only final reading to pass.

But all three are expected to be processed by week's end, despite shouts expressed in some quarters. Privately, MPs in all parties say they want to go home.

Many already have delayed vacation plans and by government, will have only about one week left before their children go back to school.

The heat is another factor. Ottawa has suffered through a heat wave for much of July, sapping the endurance of government and opposition MPs alike.

Publicly, all three opposition parties say they will join in an end to prevent passage of the gasoline tax, but in private express their rhetoric to change the government's mind.

Guaranteed Income Possible

OTTAWA (CP) — A basic guaranteed annual income plan would cost the federal government about $1 billion annually and could be in operation in three years, Health Minister Marc Lalonde says.

It would not be "a Cadillac type" of program but would do something for the working poor," he said in a program taped for CTV's Question Period.

Legislation will be introduced early next year to reform cost-sharing with the provinces for social services and if the economy improves, the income plan could be in operation within two or three years."

Mr. Lalonde said that it would not be "a tremendously expensive operation." The government pours $4 billion a year into old age security.

Programs such as unemployment insurance and the Canada Pension Plan will have to be harmonized with the income plan, he said.

Mr. Lalonde also said that limits on federal contributions to medicare care, announced in the June 23 budget, would not any reduction in the quality of services.

He said the federal government announced it was giving the required five years' notice that it would renegotiate the hospital insurance contributions to get "a more flexible financing formula which will allow it to share in the cost of less-costly services than acute-care hospitals."

Murder Charge Laid

KENORA (CP) — Guy Hunter, 37, has been charged with non-capital murder in connection with the death of a woman whose body was discovered in the bottom of his boat Friday by Ontario Provincial Police.

The partially-decomposed body was identified as Bertha McDonald, 31, of the Islington Reserve near Kenora. Const. Hunter also lived on the reserve.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but OPP said an autopsy will be held.

Miss Universe Named

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Anne Poblamo of Finland said Sunday she was very happy to cry" after being named Miss Universe 1975.

The tall blonde fashion model from Helsinki said she first thought she would break down after thinking about her new role. But a telephone call to her mother in Finland changed all that.

"She was so happy," said the 19-year-old beauty. "I thought she would take it differently than she did. But she didn't cry, and I didn't either."

One of her prizes is a $10,000 personal appearance contract, which will keep her busy traveling for a year.

Smuggled Art Taken

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Authorities raided three homes in the Milan area Sunday and confiscated unregistered private art collections worth an estimated 56 million.

The 3,000 art objects were found on display in the homes and were better maintained than in most museums, the authorities said. Names of the owners were not released.

Authorities said the items included a large silver coffin, vessels, cups and statues dating back to the 4th century BC.

Police reported months of investigation preceding the raids had uncovered a large smuggling operation of relics from underground excavations in southern and central Italy.

Under Italian law, anyone possessing an art object from archeological digs must notify the department of antiquities which then has an option to buy it at one-fourth of its market value.

Women Priests Perform

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — Two women Episcopal church priests ordained in a controversial five years ago celebrated communion at both services Sunday at a Woods Hole church whose pastor said it was the first such celebration in Massachusetts.

The pastor, Rev. Charles Hoffman, said the two were Rev. Carter Heyward and Rev. Suzanne Hiatt.

He said his congregation twice gave overwhelming approval earlier this year to inviting the women as guest pastors at the church and to celebrate the Eucharist.

WESTERFELT — In loving memory of our dear brother Donald Earl, who passed away May 22nd, 1971.
You came here the old days best,
Now his memory ever dear,
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory runs back every year.
—Remembered always by sister Shirley and her husband Brian, grandson Don and Darren and brother Ken and wife Heather.

WESTERFELT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Donald Earl, who passed away July 21, 1974.
We have known sorrow since then,
Only those who lose can know
The pain we bear in silence.
For the one we loved so well.
—Missed and lovingly remembered by his wife Catherine, son Donald and daughter Melissa and Melinda.

TANNER — In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather Earl Tanner, who passed away one year ago today.
Our family's memory album has been touched by time and sad
Many pages have been filled with memories we've had
But there's one thing we've learned
Are memories we recall.
Not the happy times we spent with you
We are treasured to us all.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Tuesday, July 32

Aries (March 21-April 19) It's not to your advantage to throw your weight around today. The net result could be problems you can ill afford.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If your sales pitch falls on deaf ears the first time around, look for more fertile soil. Don't bother the point.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Be even more careful in business dealings than you were yesterday. Mistakes made today won't be insignificant.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You won't be an independent today as you'd like. Others will play a major role in shaping your decisions.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You've a tendency today to start more things than you can possibly finish. Chances are you'll leave many loose ends.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a mistake today to look too heavily on Lady Luck. You'll find her a very fickle lady.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There could be considerable turmoil around home today. When the smoke clears, you'll realize you're the major cause of unrest.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Take care challenging positions others take today. They feel strongly about their views. They'll tell you so—emphatically!

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're a trifle too careless about possessions today. Be on the lookout, or you'll break or lose something you prize.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you hope to serve your self-interests today, consider what's in it for the other guy. Otherwise, you'll get no co-operation.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're apt to do things against your better judgment, though you know in your heart you're wrong.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Before you move into any new projects now, make sure you have a clear-cut understanding of all cost factors.

Pills Gone Mask Remains

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Several years ago I took birth control pills for about 14 months. I have not used them in over two years, but I continue to have "pregnancy mask" on my face. It consists of unsightly brown spots above my eyebrows, on my upper cheeks, around my nose and under my eyes. These spots are dark enough to be noticeable to others, and they are embarrassing. Can you tell me how to get rid of them?—Mrs. F. L.

This is the so-called mask of pregnancy, known medically as melasma or chloasma. It is a matter about which we know rather little except that it is somehow related to hormonal changes that accompany pregnancy. Since the pill does, in effect, act by stimulating conditions of pregnancy, thus discouraging ovulation, it is not surprising that such skin appearance with its use. A woman who has experienced this discoloration during pregnancy should not use the "pill."

Melasma that occurs in pregnancy will usually disappear after the birth takes place, but some reason yet unknown, skin changes with use of the pill are more persistent, lasting often for years, in by far most cases.

There is not much, really, to be done about it, although a cream of two-per-cent hydroquinone has been tried with some success in lessening the darkness of the discoloration.

The body's hormonal changes seem to account for much of the skin discoloration women encounter during their lives. A severe girl may experience a rash pigmentation change at the time of her first menstrual period. As women enter menopause a different hormonal imbalance can produce similar symptoms. The same factors seem to be at work in the expected darkening of a woman's nipples during pregnancy. This, too, disappears within a couple of months after birth.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Over my last 30 working years I have put myself into the habit of going to the water cooler for a drink, and then automatically to the bathroom to relieve myself. This happens about every two hours.

I operate a machine and this is my break time. I have been told that I have a slightly enlarged prostate. Is this serious? It's OK.

If I had my urine too long it is not as strong in force and power, and is slower.—T. W.

This could be a habit developed from urine periods every two hour? work breaks. But other possibilities should be considered, diabetes mellitus (sugar diabetes) and diabetes insipidus. Both of these are characterized by thirst and frequency. Your samal checkup should reveal any of the inor type, particularly if the blood sugar test is taken two hours after a meal. Diabetes insipidus, 'a rarer disorder, can cause you to drink five quarts or more of fluid a day. Diagnosis would be made by special tests that would not be part of your regular annual checkup. This is why you should mention your habitual urination to your doctor.

If there is a family history of diabetes, or if you are overweight, the likelihood of diabetes playing a role is increased.

Your slightly enlarged prostate could also be a cause of a slowing down in your urine stream, but it would not be a factor in your thirst.

All of the possible factors I've mentioned are ruled out by examination. I would tend to attribute your drinking-urination pattern to simple habit. We all develop little conditioned reactions such as yours in our day-to-day lives. We are all creatures of habit in this respect.

NOTE TO MRS. J. M.: Adenomyosis is a complication of endometriosis in which glands of the endometrium (the inner lining of the uterus) invade the muscular portion of the uterus. It is a cause of uterine bleeding. Hysterectomy is usually indicated.

School Moves To New Site

HALIFAX (CP) — There were attendance rolls dating back to the early 1800s, desks used in the last century and alumnae from all over Canada and the United States.

Even Mary Egan from the district of 1900 came for the nostalgia and to say goodbye to the old schoolhouse on Gration Street in downtown Halifax.

At the same time, St. Mary's school for boys and girls graduated a class of 40, the last to be taught in the old buildings. The school now moves to another location in the south end of the city.

The first St. Mary's school was built in 1902 when it became legal under English Law for Roman Catholics to get a separate education in British North America. Later in the 19th century the school became two-one for girls and one for boys. Co-education returned only four years ago.

When students moved into the existing buildings at the beginning of the century they were the largest and most modern facilities in Halifax.

Included in the memorabilia on display are the classes that spring were old registers, photographs dating back to 1895 and the boxing gloves of Richard (Kid) Hayward, who gained fame as Canadian lightweight boxing champion after leaving school.

Population movement away from the inner city finally caused the old school to close its doors.

Principal Jack Thomas said architectures began to consider moving out of the school more than five years ago.

He noted a general population move to the suburbs and a comparable decline in student numbers.

3.4 MILLION SLAUGHTERED

Last year, 3.4 million head of cattle were slaughtered in Canada, yielding close to two billion pounds of beef.

East held all four trumps nothing could be done but that there was a way to handle four trumps in West hand."

Oswald: "That way would be for South to play his queens on trumps at trick two. West could do no better than take his ace. Later on South would finesse twice against the ten-nine and make his slam."

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Jim: "On many occasions we have discussed the slight extra chance that the real expert gives himself when it is there."

Oswald: "In the ordinary bridge game South takes little or no time in finding a way to misplay the trump suit. He wins the club lead and promptly leads a low trump toward dummy. West follows with the seven and the deuce or jack is played. East shows out and some ten minutes later South has lost his two trump tricks."

Jim: "The 10 minutes elapsed at the end is typical. He starts to think when the time for thinking is long past."

Oswald: "A little thought before leading to trick two would show South that his slam would be cold against anything but a singleton heart. Further thought would show him that if

Ask the Jacobys

"Why do they still score 100 or 150 points for honors in rubber and party bridge?" asks a Wyoming reader.

It is a matter of tradition. In what, the great grandfather of contract, honors were really important. In bridge and auction bridge, they also made a material difference in the score. They mean little in contract, but the public are used to them and they add a little spice to rubber bridge. On the other hand, they really have no places in duplicate and have been eliminated for some time.

Downtown Destroyed

SPRINGHILL, N.S. (CP) — A fire destroyed the downtown business district of this former coal mining town Sunday but its residents, who have sprung back from four previous catastrophies, say they will not let the town die.

The blaze, whipped by winds of up to 40 miles an hour, began in a restaurant at the bottom of the steeply-sloped Main Street and moved uphill, destroying 18 buildings in its path.

Among them were the town hall, the police station, the former fire hall, the weekly newspaper building, the town's only theatre, two mail order stores, a furniture store, the Knights of Pythias Hall, a paint store, a candy-making shop and four apartments. A widow's home also had to be bulldozed into the ground to break the fire be re the flames reached it and others beyond.

The pall of smoke hanging over the town Sunday was different only by its eye-stinging acridity from the frequent blue haze from an underground coal fire which has been burning for 17 years, a memorial of the underground explosion which killed 75 miners in 1958 and all but ended the coal mining era in this town.

Town officials were to meet today with those affected by the fire. Premier Gerald Regan called a special session of the cabinet for Tuesday morning to receive reports on the situation here. Environment Minister Glen Bagnell, who toured the area Sunday in his capacity as minister responsible for Emergency Measures Act.

It was uncertain how many businesses would be rebuilt, but townspeople indicated most — mostly—the town will go on.

Deputy Mayor Ralph Porter said the loss of the businesses will be hard on the town's tax base, but he does not believe any residents will leave.

He said the town was able to save most of its records and will carry on business next week at the new fire hall.

No accurate estimates of loss was available, but Fire Chief Norman Kavalak said it would be more than $2 million, most of it covered by insurance.

Charles Albon, publisher of the Springhill Record, had put out the last edition Thursday and he and his staff had been enjoying a three-week vacation.

He was able to save the weekly newspaper's books and subscription file, but everything else was lost.

Cowsills Bankrupt

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The manager of the family singing group called The Cowsills has filed for bankruptcy in federal court, detailing debts of $445,239.01 and assets of $4,872.

William Cowsill managed his wife, daughter and five sons to the top of the pop music charts in the late 1960s.

Most of the debts were incurred in the course of managing the singing group, and are owed to dozens of hotels, recording studios, credit card companies, insurance companies, lawyers, agents, airlines and banks around the country.

The financial status of the other family members was not known, and Cowsill's lawyer, Paul Bertoni, said he had no idea where any of the young Cowsills were.

The Cowsills started in Newport, playing at local clubs, and by 1967 their records were selling in the millions and they appeared on television across the United States dozens of times.

Strike Settled

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Striking construction workers plan to go back to work today following a labor agreement reached Saturday between Local 493, International Union and the Sudbury Construction Association.

Harold Martin, chairman of the association's labor relations committee, said Saturday the agreement includes a $2.35-an-hour wage increase over two years, bringing hourly wages and benefits to $8.89. Other details were not released.

Mr. Martin said the 1,200 men ratification of the agreement by the contractors Monday night.

Potter Won't Run When Election Held

Ron Hauser

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ontario Correctional Services Minister Richard Potter won't seek re - election to the Legislature.

Dr. Potter confirmed his decision this morning ending weeks of speculation about his political intentions.

His announcement came after a meeting Monday night with Progressive Conservative party executives in Quinte riding — the Belleville — Trenton area constituency he has represented to the legislature as backbencher or cabinet minister since 1967.

Dr. Potter said that for some months he has been discussing quitting politics with Premier William Davis, who "asked me to reconsider my decision and give it some more thought . . .

"But I finally felt, in fairness to all of us, it was time for me to resign from politics and let someone else have the opportunity to see what they can do."

Meanwhile, Gerry Brennan, president of the Conservative riding association, said a nominating convention will be called sometime between Aug. 11 - 14 in Trenton to name a candidate for the next provincial election.

For months there has been a current of rumors rippling through the riding that Dr. Potter would not run again.

He finally made the formal announcement at a press conference called at his Trenton home.

He said that after eight years in politics, he wanted to spend more time in his home area.

But the 61-year-old physician — who made his political reputation as an outspoken minister of health — said he would not be returning to full - time medical practice.

He said his particular concerns when he entered politics were social and health policies.

"Since I have been there . . . I do feel I made a contribution," he said.

Many programs he hoped for are now taking shape, he added.

He said he also had enjoyed his tenure as correctional services minister, a portfolio he was "leaving" with a great deal of regret.

He won't be retiring immediately. He has commitments to his portfolio and Premier Davis "has asked me to carry on for the present time . . . Quite frankly I don't know exactly what I'll be carrying on. But it could be . . . until the election."

However, he said it was the premier's prerogative to decide whether or not to replace him as a cabinet minister before the election.

Dr. Potter said the premier is free to consider his views when the election will be called and "I'm not telling."

". . . I feel I've had eight years in politics. My family is now grown up. I think it's time my wife Enid and I did some travelling, do things I'd always planned I'd like to do . . ." said Dr. Potter.

The Belleville physician and former mayor of his native city went into provincial politics with a particular job to do, he said. In the late 1960s the province's medicare program was in its formative stages.

The blunt-talking Dr. Potter became a backbench skirmisher on occasion, taking pot shots at his own reigning Conservative party. But, he moved into the cabinet — first as minister without portfolio then to the post closest to his earlier avowed ambitions — guiding the restructuring of Ontario's health program. He became health minister in 1972.

His appointment came at a time when new policies — and their administration — had to be hammered out for delivery of health care.

Change brews controversy and for the next two years Dr. Potter seemed to be holding the biggest nettle in provincial affairs.

His main drive was toward developing alternate means of delivering health care. These included a major goal — extending hospital insurance coverage to nursing homes.

In February last year he was appointed correspondence and minister.

Potter Calls It Quits

Dr. Richard Potter, Correctional Services Minister in the Ontario Government, today announced his intention to leave politics. At a press conference at his house, Dr. Potter confirmed the rumors of his decision not to seek re-election. On the right, above, is Harry Mulhall, staff reporter for The Intelligencer.

United Nations diplomats were hopeful today that an appeal sent by the Security Council would prompt Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to agree to continuation of the UN Emergency Force in Sinai.

Some expressed belief that he would reply by nightfall, perhaps in a scheduled Cairo speech, and that the council could go to work to renew the mandate of the buffer force, which expires Thursday.

Sadat also is expected to announce in the speech whether the U.S.-led efforts to agree on a second withdrawal from Sinai have succeeded.

The UN appeal, adopted 13 to 0 Monday night, was that Sadat "reconsider the attitude of Egypt" on extension of the mandate on ground- it would help create "an atmosphere conducive to progress toward agreement on a just and lasting peace."

Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmy had notified the UN a week ago that Egypt did not consent to an extension because Israel was misusing the 1,930-man force to perpetuate the occupation of Arab lands and the state of "no war, no peace."

However, Egypt's ambassador at the UN, Komal Abdel Meguid, said of the latest resolution:

U.S. Postmen Get Big Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the letter carriers union predicts postal workers will ratify a three-year contract that is reported to call for raises totalling $1,500, continued cost-of-living increases and a no-layoff clause.

James Rademacher, head of the 193,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, said he expects the workers to approve the agreement.

Alligator Found In Hamilton Creek

HAMILTON (CP) — Two families here were startled by a twofoot South American alligator while playing beside a creek near their homes during the weekend.

Bobby Medelko, 8, said he saw what he thought was a turtle lying in the water with only its head and eyes showing. When he tried to pick it up, the reptile snapped its jaws, hissed and thrashed its tail.

He and his friend, Italo Cosmini, 9, managed to get the alligator into a box and took it to a nearby pet shop.

Bob Patterson, owner of the shop, said he could hardly believe his eyes when he saw what the boys were carrying.

"I don't know how anyone could be so irresponsible as to let something like that loose in a creek," he said.

Mr. Patterson said the reptile could take a child's fingers off. If the alligator had managed to survive to maturity, it would have been between 15 and 18 feet long, making it "big enough to kill an adult."

He said the reptile likely was a pet placed either in the creek or the sewer system by its owner.

It probably could not have survived the winter because young alligators are susceptible to pneumonia.

Canada Requests UN Postpone Crime Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim is expected to come under strong pressure from Arab states this week to move the UN conference on crime from Toronto.

The pressure is expected to come as the result of a Canadian request that the conference, scheduled for September, be postponed to another year when conditions might be better.

The request was announced the Commons Monday by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen, climaxing weeks of pressure from opposition, Ontario government, Jewish leaders and others to keep the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) from the conference. The Canadian Arab Federation insisted the PLO should attend.

Mr. MacEachen said the secretary-general will respond to the request later this week after considering legal aspects of the situation.

He said he told Waldheim during a surprise visit to the UN Friday that he does not think the conference can be held successfully in Canada or another country this year.

He said at any rate it cannot be held in Canada this year.

Canada wanted to remain host to the conference, which would be held when tensions were lowered and when ground rules were established to keep politics out of such purely technical conferences.

Middle East tensions and intrusions of international politics into technical conferences were given as the major reasons for the request for the postponement, although it was widely assumed here the real reason was the domestic controversy over admission of the PLO to the Toronto conference.

Because the PLO was granted observer status by the UN General Assembly last year, it was invited to attend the Toronto meeting and Mr. MacEachen said it was assumed that it would send a delegation. The offer to hold the conference was made in 1973 in Tokyo.

External affairs experts last week warned of dire consequences that might follow rejecting an organization accepted by the General Assembly. Not the least of these would be a boycott by PLO friends of the Montreal Olympic Games and loss of prestige and influence at the UN.

The government postponed making a decision on the matter three times before Mr. MacEachen visited the UN Friday.

An indication of Arab feeling and future action came almost immediately after Mr. MacEachen spoke Monday, when the Egyptian ambassador went before television cameras to express surprise.

D. Whitley First PC In Field

Cooperational Services Minister Richard Potter's announcement any candidate as his successor as Progressive Conservative candidate in Quinte riding.

"I don't think it's incumbent on me or anybody else to say who is the successor or choose because that isn't democracy," he said after announcing his retirement from politics today.

His announcement switched the speculation spotlight to possible successors.

One holder has confirmed intentions.

Donald Whitley, head of a Trenton insurance agency, and a leading area Conservative organizer, said he would seek the party nomination for the next provincial election.

But he'd prefer not to elaborate until after our riding executive meeting Wednesday, he said.

Mr. Whitley added it was never his job to say who the party had a representative from the Trenton area — although the candidate required should not have "a parochial view" of the riding.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey has also been widely rumoured as a possible contender. But she was not available for comment this morning.

Frank Deacon, Belleville Conservative Association president, said it was not "appropriate to comment today." "It's Dick Potter's day. If I've got something to announce I'll announce it in the future.

Genuine Relaxation of Tension Said Proven by Space Venture

HOUSTON (AP) — While the Soyuz cosmonauts celebrate their safe return to earth, the Apollo astronauts conduct experiments today and look ahead to their Monday splash parties after their homecoming Thursday.

The Soviets returned to earth Monday after six days in orbit, two-of which were flown in tandem with the United States craft.

Astronauts Thomas Stafford, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton are staying up an extra three days to help scientists get their ship's longer orbit capability to obtain scientific data.

Cosmonauts Alexei Leonov and Valeri Kubasov came home tired but in excellent physical condition.

Soyuz landed in the barren steppes of Soviet Kazakhstan, stirring up a giant cloud of dust in its braking rockets ignited just before touchdown.

The landing and swift recovery were shrivelled live around the world, another first for the Soviets, who removed much of the secrecy from their space program for this mission.

The cosmonauts were flown to the nearby Baikonur Cosmodrome their launching base, Soviet officials said. No word of injury was given.

Leonov said: "It is very fortunate to be sent into space, but it is more fortunate to return home, to earth."

More conferences are planned by both crews—the astronauts from orbit Wednesday and the cosmonauts Thursday in Moscow.

Following the Soyuz return, Soviet officials hailed the adventure in detente and the news agency Tass called it proof of "genuine relaxation of world tensions."

Moscow mission control said the partnership of the Soviet and U.S. spacemen "will serve as a good basis for development in the future of joint international manned space flight and for joint exploration of space."

Ford Vetoes Bill Cutting New Oil Price

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford fired another salvo Monday in his battle with Congress over energy policy, vetoing a measure that would have cut the price of new United States oil and maintained the current price for old oil.

The president urged Congress to approve his plan for gradual removal of all price controls on domestic oil production, warning that failure to approve his plan would lead to skyrocketing prices in the U.S.

OMB to Hear Protest on Hospital Parking Lot

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville General Hospital's long-discussed new parking project now will go to an Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) hearing next month, city council learned Monday night.

The OMB hearing follows a protest by a hot-shelter on First St. The residential strip adjacent to the hospital where Bill has bought property to create a new 230-car lot.

Earlier this year, Roly Erlanger charged that the hospital was engaged in "piecemeal" rezoning on his property - purchasing thus ever-more homes in the area.

The OMB hearing is scheduled for Aug. 28, city manager Wilbur Purcell told council.

He made the announcement as council approved a new developer's agreement with the hospital by bylaw, covering the rezoning requests.

The document is actually an amendment to a development which called for a parking garage and less rezoning.

Since then the hospital has decided to build only a parking lot and added a new land parcel.

Passage of the agreement is actually "vital" to the OMB hearing, Mr. Purcell explained to council.

Its existence shows the OMB hearing's acceptance. The hospital is prepared to give the city.

In most decisions in life, there is often a choice available. A home improvement project is no exception. If the question is how to best use your improvement dollar, keep in mind the long term benefits of your home. The average length of home eventual resale of your home. The average length of home ownership is five years. It's what a buyer sees, not what you tell him, that makes the difference.
Which do you think would add most to the visual value of a home — new insulation or a new kitchen? Unless the insulation is really on its last legs, a new kitchen is a better investment. A buyer can see a new kitchen or remodeled bathroom, an exterior paint job, but will he see the insulation behind the walls and in the attic?
Of course, it's always nice to do both, but if you have a choice spend your money where it will be seen the most. It will make your house more attractive and more salable when the time comes.

Fishermen Apply for Welfare To Protest Net Size Regulation

BRIGHTON — Ten Lake Ontario commercial fishermen and up to 25 employees will apply for welfare to protest provincial government fishing regulations they say will end fishing for perch as their livelihood.

Ken Hutton, spokesman for Brighton area fishermen, said Monday at issue, is the mesh size of nets used to catch yellow perch, primarily in Prince Edward Bay.

He said 30-year-old regulations requiring 3¾-inch mesh have not been enforced until this year when natural resources ministry inspectors began warning fishermen using smaller-meshed nets.

With the larger nets, fishermen claim, the catch is smaller and as a result, so is the monetary return.

Licenced Lake Ontario fisherman Stanley Cooper said Monday he will apply for welfare to protest ministry regulations.

Mr. Cooper, who now uses a 2-three-sixteenth-inch mesh, says the larger-meshed net "just won't catch fish."

The protest, said Mr. Hutton, is part of an "involved issue" in which fishermen are asking the government to subsidize their livelihood, now hurt by the expected enforcement.

A fisheries management officer in Napanee, Francis Taylor said Monday the regulations have yet to be enforced. Warnings have been issued to fishermen, but no court cases have yet resulted.

He said if the men do not conform to the rules they will "fish themselves out of business." Nets now being used, he says, are cropping fish that have not spawned twice, the number needed to keep stocks of yellow perch up.

"They're not leaving enough spawning stock," he said.

To aid compliance, Mr. Taylor said the ministry has taken an unusual step by granting permits to fish for carp in Weller's Bay, and American eels and channel catfish in the Trenton River. Permits are geared to get the men "over the hump" that would exist financially from smaller catches using bigger meshed nets.

However, said Mr. Hutton, the special permits, although concessions on the part of the ministry, are laden with conditions making them difficult to live by.

He said that on the Trent River gill nets are licenced to fish. However, they must fish in pairs and without the help of needed employees.

To fish and still get a good return when fish are sold is difficult without hired help, he said.

Permits to fish for carp on Weller's Bay have meshes economically when the bottom fell out of the market, from 36-cents to 13-cents a pound, he said.

Mr. Hutton said the fishermen do not want a "welfare handout; they're bloody proud" but they must put food on the table.

He estimated about 125 people are affected by the net-size regulations. One man stands to loss a major part of his income. In 1974, of a gross income of $5,200, perch accounted for all but $200.

He said the men had been given a "verbal understanding" that they could take perch this year with smaller nets and face no court action if they agreed to use the larger meshed nets for the 1975 season.

New Water Main Will Assure Trenton Supply

TRENTON — Workmen are now in the third week of laying a new 30-inch water main under the Trent River that is expected to improve the efficiency and reliability of Trenton's water system.

Trenton Utilities Commission manager Douglas Manlow, who made the announcement said Monday, once installed, the main will directly link the Chester Rd. water filtration plant and the Mt. Pelion tank, the prime sources of immediately useable water in Trenton.

Link-up will give the commission the ability to supply either side of the river without using mains of various ages and diameters.

Mr. Manlow said that if, for whatever reason, the Murray well field becomes inoperable and cannot maintain levels in the Mt. Pelion tank, water from the filtration plant can be directly pumped to the tank.

A reliable supply of water, for firefighting for example, could then be maintained.

He said the new main will replace two 13-inch mains now on the river bottom. Only one is being used since the second leaks.

The new line, being installed at a cost of approximately $750,000 should be complete within two months. Cost of the river crossing alone is an approximate $180,000.

Reward Now at $300

TRENTON — A third Trenton merchant has thrown $100 into the kitty, now grown to $300 for the arrest and conviction of vandals in Trenton.

Norman Albert, owner of the Fashion Shoppe and Normindy Shoppe, confirmed Monday that he has added $100 to a standing reward to be paid to anyone who supplies information that will convict a vandal.

Mr. Albert said the reward will apply to all properties in Trenton.

His action follows announcements last week by two downtown businessmen that each will supply a $100 reward. The move was sparked by insurance agent Doug Whitley after a plate-glass door in a downtown property he owns was broken.

Mr. Albert, in confirming his offer of a reward, said he hopes other merchants will follow suit.

Picton Police Reach Contract Agreement

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Chairman of the Picton Police Commission, Jesse Mason has announced a contract settlement with town police following approximately seven months of negotiations that ended last week in early hatlion.

Mr. Mason said that the agreement was reached "in a very amiable way" and a two year contract appoved recently when Sgt. Scott Hale and Constable Harry Sisty, representatives of the Picton Police Association and Picton Police Commissioners met with conciliation officer de G. Lavazzer of Toronto.

Mr. Mason noted that there were basically two discussion areas centred on retirement age and salary increase.

It was agreed that police officers now will be eligible for retirement at 60 years-of-age. Those who wish to remain on their jobs onto age 65, will be permitted to continue.

Salary increases in the new contest were provided through a three-tier structure spanning a two-year period.

The new contract is retroactive to January 1, 1975, and will expire January 1, 1976.

An additional 10 percent increase will be paid from April 1, 1976 to December 31, 1976 when the contract expires.

A first class constable with the Picton Police Department, now receives $12,000 a year and a sargent $12,500 a year. Picton police force has three first class constables two sargents and two probationary officers.

No salary has yet been settled for Picton Police Chief Charles Fetcher.

Agriculture Minister Has a Tough Opponent in Review Board's Plumptre

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Something is happening to the Trudeau government's great farm vote people, the Honorable Eugene Whelan, Minister of Agriculture.

It last July's election, big hunk Gene harvested so many rural votes, he robbed Conservative Leader Stanfield of Ontario, and just possibly wiseover slim chance the Tories might have had of winning.

Eugene is an honest to goodness farmer himself. Raises tomatoes, tobacco, and some grain on his farm Amherstburg across in Ontario's sunny Essex County.

But more than that, Eugene is the consummate actor. A born ham. Plays what is supposed to be the hayseed.

Dresses outlandishly. Uses atrocious grammar. Just one of the folks down home.

But Gene is smart and so are the folks, and he knows it and they know it is all a caricature he is playing. He gets away for empathy.

He comes on as a real nice guy. A sort of jolly green giant from down on the farm.

"Work my ass off," as he has been heard to chuckle, for he farmers.

And it's true. He does.

Dreaming and scheming, striving and conniving "to get the farmer a better buck."

Then he collided with Food Prices Review Board Chairman Harry Plumptre, who is every bit as formidable a character as he is — and then some.

What a pair they are!

First she plastered him with 30 million rotten eggs.

He has called her a busybody and told her to butt out of his agribusiness.

He should have known better.

Beryl has nailed his hide to the barn door.

A nice guy hamming it up no longer. Instead, a big bully twisting arms.

Happened this way.

Beryl got mad that when Gene got all the provincial parts of his troubled Canadian Egg Marketing Agency working, up six cents a dozen went the price, heading even higher later.

Because, among other reasons, genial Gene stopped import quotas on less expensive eggs from the U.S.

But Beryl had got all the provinces — willing or not — into his Egg Marketing Agency.

And Beryl says he used threats and "coercion" to force two of them, Alberta and New Brunswick, into his egg control club.

She says he clubbed them into compliance with threats to:

1. Control their shipment of eggs to other provinces.

2. Flood the two provinces with eggs from the other eight.

3. Restrict the import of American eggs into the provinces, saturating their markets.

4. Remove federal authority for indirect taxation by the two provincial egg boards.

Neither New Brunswick nor Alberta could stand the kind of pressure and caved in.

Now load as Eugene may howl his denials to the vaulted painted linen ceiling of the Commons, Beryl has got him cold.

Her scalp — perhaps in Alberta or New Brunswick, or for that matter, in any other of the provinces — laid at their hands on his index message to the provinces.

It was coded confidential which means "for the provincial ministers of agriculture eyes only."

What does Eugene's message say?

Just what Beryl said; get into line or else.

Or to quote from the Whelan telex:

". . . a way must be found to control not only the eight provinces but the other two as well.

"A number of avenues could be considered:

"Control of movement from the two to the eight movement from the eight into movement from the two . . .

movement from outside Canada into the two . . .

removal of instrument authority for indirect taxation by the two boards . . . some of these appeals to me, and the acceptance by the federal cabinet make consideration of such avenues unnecessary."

They "accepted."

Australia's eastern seaboard is sugar cane country. Cane is seen here being loaded into trucks near Murwillumbah, the New South Wales-Queensland border south of Brisbane. In the background is a local landmark, Mount Warning. A big export crop, an annual harvest of some 20,000,000 tons of cane yields about three million tons of raw sugar.

Cult of Leadership

President Ford is a straightforward sort of man. He is one who gives an impression of humility combined with firmness of character, resolute in action if need be.

There is little pomp or ceremony in the Ford way of doing things, just no nonsense and getting on with it.

A characteristic of his predecessor, Richard Nixon, for which he likely received little praise let alone acknowledgement, was empathy with people in extremity. Ordinary citizens at that. He would contact citizens such as a mother who had children who were dying of some mysterious ailment. Another example, brought to light only recently: a Vietnam veteran who lost most of his face when an enemy rocket exploded in his tent, and whom the Veterans' Organization in the United States was refusing assistance toward necessary plastic surgery. Nixon called the Veterans people and told them to "get that man into hospital." He even invited the soldier to the White House but it was 1973 and before it could be arranged Nixon had resigned.

It was something, was it not, to extend such an act of compassion, in the midst of his own manifest troubles?

These thoughts occurred while reading an article in The Christian Science Monitor on the value of simplicity in leadership as regards personality and conduct.

Writer August Heckscher was saying of a visit to the home of Franklin D. Roosevelt at Hyde Park that it had a "relaxed and somewhat run-down atmosphere. "There were no grandiose trappings or show of opulence, although he points out that while F. D. R. might not have lived in the grand style he of course knew all "the arts of public leadership."

Heckscher concludes with a statement that has singular relevance to the Canadian scene: to the expense of the Prime Minister's office and the bureaucracy and government generally in this country. It's a statement that might be studied with profit in Ottawa, and it goes like this:

"The modern leader is not a man on horseback; he is a man in an airplane, surrounded by fleets of planes, with armies of servitors at his beck and call. He embodies the kind of power which invites retribution — like the kind of pride that has gone traditionally before a fall.

"Let a public leader walk in simplicity among us — he will even invincible, and his power will endure into distant times and generations. . ."

Army Believed Behind The Monarchy in Spain

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Western Europe's least-known man is guilty of the latest and potential power is the Spanish army.

Even the Americans who have supplied it with modern weapons since the first Hispano-American agreement on military bases and economic assistance in 1953, can make only uncertain judgments as to politics and future.

This area is a vital element in Europe's future, given the political role of the Portuguese army next door, now trying to raise Portugal through its unwanted military dictatorship.

In Spanish terms, it's also vital, given the increasing age and physical debility of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, to whom it is considered to be completely loyal.

If he steps down or after he is gone, what role will Spain's large (about 600,000) army attempt to play?

A direct comparison with the army is impractical, since its junior officer corps as well as many of its senior officers were indoctrinated with revolutionary views from their years in Africa.

The Spanish army has had no such experience in half a century. As far as we know, its soldiers itself "non-political."

They are drawn from influential generals in the army over the years known for their support of the Falangist political party and for both their support and opposition to the once-powerful Opus Dei movement of Roman Catholic laymen who once dominated General Franco's cabinet.

In any case, both these forces are politically of the right and supportive of General Franco's long regime.

Last year General Franco fired Lt.-Gen. Manuel Diez Alegria, the army chief of staff, for alleged political activity while on a visit to Communist Bucharest.

Gen. Diez Alegria, an urbane liberally-minded "non-career" in the army and touted as a post-Franco prime minister, was alleged to have met the Spanish Communist leader in Bucharest.

He is, of course, in exile and has been since the Civil War and is a bitter enemy of General Franco. Francos and the regime. Gen. Diez Alegria, still in retirement, denied he made such a contact.

The best bet is that the Spanish army, with a conservative officer corps at both senior and junior levels, will continue to maintain a non-left and centrist political status quo in Spain after Franco.

This means it will probably support the post-Franco formula of Juan Carlos as king of Spain, since army officers who have expressed opinions privately to foreign friends lean to the monarchy as Spain's political system after Franco.

The Spanish army maintains it is not a political force per se, not even when its generals are remanded of their traditional loyalty to Franco.

Those officers who served with him in the Civil War are mainly dead or aged like himself and in retirement.

Nevertheless, the ranks of Spanish generals are filled with officers who had junior staff and command positions in that long-ago and devastating war and have been promoted by the now-departed earlier Francoist generals.

Unlike the church in Spain, which is moving away from the Franco regime, with outspoken statements against it by cardinals and bishops, the Spanish army is making no such moves.

It will wait on events rather than try to create them.

Changing Fashions

A Montreal women's editor once pondered the question of whether women — younger ones in particular — would ever get out of jeans and into 'clothes.'

Jeans of course, and those popular cut-away shorts along with creations of varying degrees of elegance, have long since become respectable, so that whatever becomes of what once were accepted as "clothes" per se, the jeans-denim cult is likely to be around indefinitely.

In any event, whether they are wearing blue jeans, shorts, below-the-knee denim skirts, or "clothes," including miniskirts or dresses (yes, they are still around), and the new, long skirts, this is great viewing weather for contemporary fashions.

Harking farther into the past when good-looking clothes line at the "Pig and Whistle" night at Tamworth arena recently. Six lovely ladies in Great Gatsby era outfits and calling themselves, naturally, the Tamworth Flappers, were among those in a show raising funds for Sheffield-Camden minor hockey association.

And if you want to go back beyond that — to the fashions of '98, then nip out to Edmonton where the city's gold rush celebrations are under way. A lass from Chicago of all places, Cathy Emma, is this year's Klondike Kate and the folks out there are thinking back to the way it was in those rousing times.

We can't say we're enjoying this one either, since it is far from pleasant to watch the surroundings practically burning up for lack of water. But it emphasizes that in this part of the world anyway you can depend on anything happening so far as the weather is concerned.

U.S. Educational Book Wins Favor

Brockville Recorder and Times

There is much public discussion about a new educational system because of complaints that many students are entering university who are not able to read beyond the grade four level, cannot spell and do not know simple arithmetic. If this is the case, and there seems to be documented evidence that it is, then time for new methods is going on is overdue.

There's a new book on the market that relates to a similar problem in the United States and because there are legislative gripes there, as well as here, the book is of interest. Most Media at Milford have released a thoroughly documented book detailing what's wrong with the U.S. public education system. It isn't a book to say where it's headed. It is entitled "why Johnny Can't Learn" Opal Moore, a parent, presents an understanding of why children may graduate from high school not being able to read beyond the fourth grade level and why the country is spending billions of dollars every year researching the book and there is no doubt the book will be the property of the public education people.

In a prologue to her book, Author Moore says it is slanted to help five groups: (1) parents, providing them with the knowledge to help in helping their school-age children; (2) teachers, who have withstood the adverse pressures to become a part of the "new educational equipment" (3) the citizen committee, dedicated to protecting religious faith of their children; (4) school board members, whose decisions affect the lives of millions of children annually; and (5) legislators, who need to iron out the loud clamor of education lobbies loud enough to investigate the root problem in public education.

There are interesting chapters including "quack-psychologists in the classroom." "In the new math a big mistake;" "Let's analyze reading programs not children." "The equality myth," and "Are your children being taught right?" While many may not agree with her, the authors feel the most obtainable education today is in private or Christian schools. She does not suggest that public schools can be salvaged and offers a constructive plan of action.

What's With the Petroleum Industry? Ontario Probe Seeks Some Answers

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

A royal commission study of the murky market in petroleum products just announced by the Ontario government could be a most interesting investigation.

It would be even more useful and informative if it were being carried out on a national scale, under the auspices of the federal government.

But the provincial study is probably the next best thing, since the Ontario market is Canada's largest by far. Whatever is discovered by Claude Isbister, Ontario's one-man royal commission, will probably apply in principle to most of the other provinces.

The Ontario government regulates wholesale and retail prices of petroleum products through its Public Utilities Board, but it has never performed of the reasons for price increases. Premier Davis has also getting into the act?.

In the past couple of years, motorists have seen the price at the gasoline pump rise by more than 100 per cent. And until midter's home-heating bill, too, will be more than twice what it was just two or three years ago.

While prices have been escalating a four-way shooting match has been going on among the oil-producing provinces, the oil-consuming provinces, the federal government and the oil industry.

The public interest, meanwhile, has been ill-served.

In the two months that Mr. Isbister has been sitting, the Ontario government for his investigation, let's hope that he can get the oil industry to explain a few things, such as:

—Why, despite the mammoth increases in the industry's selling prices and profits, have discoveries of new oil and gas reserves been so few? The industry's case for higher prices has been based largely on the need to finance exploration and development.

—What is the real cost to consumers of the curious relationships that some major Canadian oil companies have with oil of foreign-based parents) have entered into with other subsidiaries in third countries? By exporting crude oil to their off-shore cousins, are they paying the lowest tax rates possible thus trimming their taxable earnings?

—Is there a valid reason for the wide variation in retail gasoline prices? In a monopoly situation, at a service station on a controlled-access highway, is the per-gallon price can be as much as 14 cents higher than at an off-freeway station.

On the other side of the picture, the Isbister royal commission may be able to throw some light on the excessive financial demands which the governments make on people who use petroleum-based fuels.

According to the calculations of one top Toronto-based investment house, Alberta skims a royalty of 16.5 per cent of the new 82 price of a barrel of crude oil, and federal tax 5 another $2.61.

After the oil companies meet their operating expenses and pay for capital costs, the money left to them is taxed to the extent of $1.39 to the federal government and 28 cents by the Alberta government.

That's at the production level.

Earnings

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

These comments are addressed to those who believe that teachers who hold out for fair and just salaries are being "unreasonable". Those critics who point the finger of guilt at teacher groups usually single out secondary teachers as the most guilty of mounting a militant campaign to overthrow government for selfish reasons.

Such a view of teachers is narrow and ignorant, based on some truth. Secondary teachers tend to be better educated, better organized, and much more willing to spend large amounts of money on both overt and covert activities designed to "influence" large and significant portions of society.

The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation membership is a highly-intelligent, well-motivated, and increasingly militant sector of the Ontario Teachers' Federation (OTF).

However, their political militancy is derived from the economic position that teachers presently find themselves in. The very consideration of wage controls was enough to bring about the downfall of the Conservatives at the federal level, but teachers have been living under such controls since the Ceilings on Educational Spending in the 1960's.

It is fair to say that teachers' salaries have not kept far behind inflation that most fall by the end of the next agreement's term) positions offer less purchasing than equivalent positions did in 1969.

When the public cares a deaf ear to the plight of the teachers and hardens its attitude to their valid efforts for a place of stability in the economic structure of society, then the public is asking for a fight.

At retail, the consuming provinces of Central and Eastern Canada levy a road tax of from 10 to 25 cents a gallon, and the federal government takes 8½ cents in sales and excise taxes.

If the purposes of excessive taxation were to discourage consumption of a potentially dangerous luxury, as with alcohol our government might be on the right track.

But energy from oil is a necessity, not a luxury, in a country of vast distances and cold climates.

The oil companies, by their tactics, may be inviting more regulation. But the job is to regulate the greedy regulators!

Creek Cleanup Pleases Stirling

STIRLING — If this community appears that much neater this summer there's good reason for it.

Six good reasons, in fact.

That's the total of a young work crew which has busied itself on a cleanup project centred around Rawdon Creek and the town's picturesque mill pond.

Funded by a federal Opportunities for Youth grant, the sextet is engaged in chores they believe will enhance their community.

The projects are those for which "normally the municipality itself wouldn't be able to afford a work crew this size," says 18-year-old Tom Grant, initiator of the theme.

Deputy Reeve Fred Brandt calls their work a "real asset" to the community. A check with the municipality's work foreman revealed the team was doing a "fine job," he added.

Tom Brunn got the inspiration earlier this year and drew five other students who attend Centennial Secondary School with him into the project.

Their proposal won them a $5,875 grant from OFY.

So far "we really think we've accomplished quite a bit — although it may be hard to see," says Tom.

They started in late June and their accomplishments to date include:

Tree-trimming, painting roadside guideposts and the park bleachers and erecting swings in the park area.

But their main work-drive has centred on the creek which runs through the village and the mill pond.

From the creek alone they've hauled about 800 pounds of scrap metal, dumped in the water years ago. They've collected about 30 pounds of broken glass from the street and its banks.

They've built a stonewall in the creek with rocks retrieved from its bottom and extended a patio into the stream which they hope can become a picnic site.

Scuba-diving for junk, they've "hauled some of the weirdest things" from the millpond, says Tom.

These include television rotor aerial, a highway sign and a rocking horse.

The community — both local government and businessmen — have readily responded to the project, says Tom.

Village council has loaned tools and use of the village's former fireball as a work centre. Through the local businessmen's association, a merchant has donated enough soft-drinks to keep the students cool during their work in what has turned out to be a scorching summer.

A priority is to cleanup the mill pond where beds of weeds now are clotting on the water as the warm weather lowers water levels.

The OFY team hopes to dam the pond at the creek and raise the level enough to flush out the area.

"If that doesn't work we're going to have to get in there with rake," says Tom.

Resort Owners Blame Gas Hike For Slump in Tourist Trade

By NAN WHITLAW
Staff Correspondent

BANCROFT — For many North Hastings resort owners and businessmen, the tourist season of 1975 will be remembered as one of the worst yet for tourist trade.

Although the weather has co-operated with people in the tourist industry by being hot and dry, there has been an appreciable decline in the number of travellers in the area.

According to local campground owners Ted Wallis and Arnold Warden the decline in campers this summer is anywhere from 15 to 25 per cent.

"There aren't nearly as many people around," said Mr. Wallis of Sonny Beach. "Americans and Canadians but particularly Americans just aren't here. I really think that it's the increased price of gasoline.

"Our campers are away down," said Arnold Warden of Birchcliff Lodge. "People just aren't travelling because of the gas price."

According to Mr. Warden, "The parks that are near large urban areas are full with local trade. However, we now have campers who might have only stayed two or three nights last year now stay for a week or two."

Even the area provincial parks are feeling the pinch of the reduced trade.

"We really feel that the tourist trade is down," said Dan McLennan, supervisor of parks for the local office of the ministry of natural resources." It was up for the first two weeks of the summer, but it seems to have dropped now."

At Lake St. Peter provincial park, 20 miles north of Bancroft, 485 campsite permits had been sold up to July 6 of this year.

The superintendent at the parks, Ron Hovey said there are not as many Americans around as in past years.

Local businessman Jerry Howarth of the Bancroft IGA also said the numbers of tourists around this year is lower than before.

"I really feel that it is down," said Mr. Howarth." We're not handling as much American money as before and there are some familiar faces that just aren't back this year."

At the Bancroft and District Chamber of Commerce information centre, inquiries for assistance are down also.

However the numbers of Americans seeking help still make up about 25 per cent of the inquiries.

Things are not that bad all over however, at Bancroft Sports Centre where fishing licenses are sold. John Strulz indicates that the sale of non-resident licenses are up about seven per cent.

Bancroft Gemboree Gets Boost with New Program

BANCROFT — The yearly invasion of the North Hastings area by professional and amateur rock collectors is well under way.

"Rockbounds" who come in all shapes and sizes as well as in all manner of vehicles from all sorts of places come to Bancroft and North Hastings to collect unique mineral specimens and to visit the annual Bancroft Rockbound Gemboree.

This year the Gemboree will be held from July 31 to August 4 and will feature the usual activities of field trips, swap-meet tables, midway for the kids and various mineral and Lapidary displays.

The Bancroft Gemboree is operated by the local mineral society and it is attended by more than 30,000 people from all parts of North America and Europe.

In addition to the mineralogical attractions at the Gemboree various handicrafts and commercial displays add to the spirit as well as nightly Country music grandstand shows and gospel sings and plant corn roasts.

Good news has been released recently for rock collectors in the Bancroft area.

A three-year program has been instituted by the provincial ministry of natural resources to freshen and develop classic mineral sites in the Bancroft area.

According to regional geologist for the ministry, Jim Trusale, "the program has not been finalized yet, however my job will be to screen locations for possible use."

Police Get EMO Radio

City police will take over the Quinte Emergency Measures Organization (QEMO) base radio station equipment.

It's one of two such installations — the second is in Bancroft — which have linked QEMO communications in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

QEMO closes out operation Aug. 1, due to lack of funds from all levels of government But it still has equipment on hand — including its radio hookup, the report. QEMO co-ordinator Angus Duffy told city council Monday night.

QEMO radios will be assigned municipalities that now have them — for contact in emergencies.

If no use is found for the other base station it will be sold, reported Mr. Duffy.

Other assets are to be disposed of at the co-ordinator's discretion — or stored if there's an indication that government interest in emergency measures groups is revived.

Rape Suspect Remanded

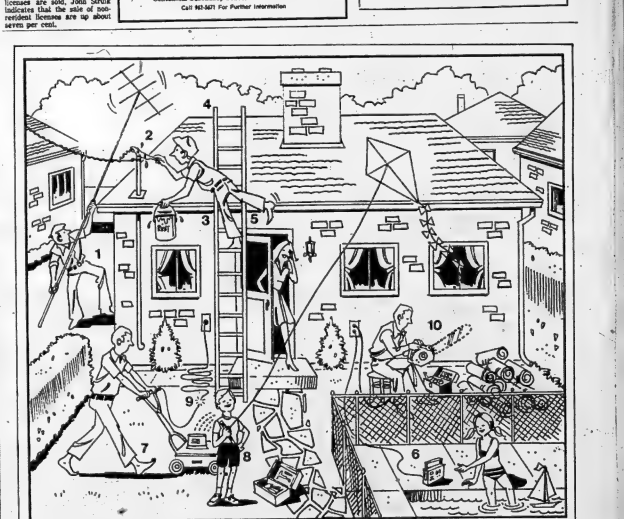
A 21-year-old Belleville man charged with rape was remanded for the second time in provincial court Monday.

A city police spokesman said Lynn William Parker of 236A West Moira St. will appear in court again next Monday at which time a trial date will be set.

He said Parker was in Picton Monday for a ball review.

Parker has been charged with one count of rape in connection with an incident July 19 involving a 22-year-old Chatham woman.

The incident occurred near a hydro path in a wooded area between Treacy St. and Bell Blvd.



These people are making 10 serious safety mistakes. How many can you identify?

No one should attempt to install, repair, or remove a TV antenna alone. This man needs help—to make sure the mast doesn't touch hydro wires.

2. Touching live wires with anything (note the paint brush) is asking for trouble.
3. Reaching out too far on a ladder can make it slip. The man should move his ladder—and hook his paint can to one of the rungs.
4. If this ladder slips, it could fall against hydro lines. Ladders must be secured to prevent this.
5. When using a ladder in front of a doorway, the door should be locked.
6. Electrical power cords or appliances near a pool are hazardous.
7. Operating a power mower while barefoot can cost you some toes.
8. Kites and model airplanes should be flown in open fields—never near hydro lines.
9. Worn or frayed power cords should be discarded.
10. Always disconnect electric tools or appliances before adjusting or cleaning them.

Keep safety in the picture this summer.

More Women in Graduate School

By JUDITH RUSKIN
The Associated Press

Education officials say the enrolment of women graduate students increased in the United States last year in all professional fields, especially medicine, law, dentistry, engineering and business administration.

An Associated Press survey shows the percentage of women in graduate business school programs up five to 14 per cent between the 1973-74 and the 1974-75 school years. Increases in women's enrolment in other graduate programs were between four and four per cent.

National figures show the percentage of women medical students jumped from 15 per cent in 1973 to 18 per cent in 1974, when 9,661 women were enrolled.

The Association of American Law Schools reports the percentage of women in U.S. lawschool s climbed from 9 per cent in 1973 to 19 per cent last year when a total 21,758 women enrolled.

"Women are deciding they want to be lawyers . . . They are more interested in careers," said Thomas Holland of the association.

The increases were a result of pressures on universities and colleges through federal affirmative action programs and changes in women's attitudes about new career opportunities, education experts say.

The women's rights movement, along with affirmative action programs in industry and commerce, have opened up thousands of jobs that years all but closed to women in the past, experts said.

Women are looking at the law school, according to a dean at one major law school, because they are "feeling they want to take power into their own hands, and the law is a very powerful tool."

University admission officers say more women than ever are looking beyond traditional nursing and education careers toward the long-male-dominated professions.

"Women are thinking what they want to do, they can do," said Eunice Burns, chairman of the University of Michigan's commission for women. "They aren't doing one thing different, not the same old stereotypical thing."

Federal officials cited several guidelines aimed at eliminating sex discrimination with helping boost enrolment. Schools were not forced to comply with the guidelines until they were approved by Congress in May . Many schools began to increase their enrolment of women when tentative standards were drawn in 1972.

"Now that final regulations have been issued we expect an even more significant increase in the admission of women," said Peter Holmes, director of the office of civil rights, department of health , education and welfare.

Many educationists say women will have no more trouble in the job market than men. If anything, they will find the going easier.

"There are many places looking for qualified women," Mrs. Burns said. "Women and minorities have a slightly better chance than the run of the mill graduate because there are placed looking for them."

There are jobs in engineering, and graduate schools doubled female enrolment last year, from two per cent to four per cent.

One student, studying electrical engineering, said she has not encountered many problems being a woman in a male-dominated field.

"I detected a lack of confidence on my mother's part to invest money for me to become an engineer,"she said.

Many of the old job stereotypes are breaking down as women explore new career opportunities.

Reaction of readers to a slow, learner appearing in Today's Child has tended to be: "What a nice child!" And sometimes that reaction has ended with the child joining the family.

Two retarded boys and one retarded girl have found parents through the column this year.

Six children with Downs Syndrome (mongolism) have been adopted in the last 18 months. The youngest was four months, the oldest six years.

Parents who perhaps had never thought of adopting, or if they had automatically thought of a baby, suddenly found themselves looking at a smiling face or a wistful face and then reading about a health problem. The couples that did not seem too great a problem to be associated with a loveable-looking child.

A blind baby girl was adopted, for instance. So were two toddlers, both of whom may lose their sight.

A small beauty with cerebral palsy who may or may not eventually be able to walk is now the subject of adopting family.

A baby with cystic fibrosis found adopting parents — the 10th CF child to be adopted by Today's Child readers.

When Today's Child began it was on the theory that somewhere there are parents for every child who needs them. The column will continue in the fall to attempt to find some of those children to some of those parents.

Today's Child

by Helen Allen

As Today's Child takes a holiday until September, would be to know what has happened to the children whom you have seen here since last fall?

Three hundred and four children appeared on 255 publishing days. Of these, 202 are now in their adoptive homes. More will be settling in during the summer.

That is not all. Letters to Today's Child totalled 2,900. Records of the Ministry of Community and Social Services show that even if people who write do not adopt the child who first attracted them, about one third adopt some child. That means that this year more than 750 children have found love and security with Today's Child readers.

The all-time Today's Child number of adoptions, since the column began 12 years ago is now more than 8,000.

Highlights this year have come in five.

Three families of five were introduced to readers.

One was adopted some months ago. The four sisters and their brother have been in their new family, their new community, their new school, long enough to feel they really belong there.

Another five-some had double reason to celebrate on July 1. Canada's birthday was the day they moved to their adoption home. This family of three brothers and two small sisters came from a rocky, forest area in Northern Ontario to a fruit farm in the southern part of the province. The children had wanted to live on a farm and are delighted with their new surroundings.

The third five-some, all boys, have met their proposed adoptive parents. During the next month they will have frequent prolonged visits. The visits will increase in length and if things go well the boys will move in at midsummer.

In all cases, six months must elapse before the adoption can become final.)

Very recently a family of six was seen in the column. The four girls and their two brothers range in age from two to nine. It is much too soon for any decisions to have been made about them, but in the few times since they appeared, five hopeful requests have come from people anxious to be their parents. I have no doubt that before long these six will be bringing joy to an adopting mother and father while being joyous themselves at staying together. They will be the fifth family of six adopted by Today's Child readers.

But six is not the largest ever.

In the earlier years, four families, each with seven children, have been adopted by people who read about them and saw their appealing faces printed in the paper.

Quartettes also found parents and brought delight to adoption homes this season.

Four families of four appeared in Today's Child and four of them have been adopted. Two had three boys and one girl, the third three girls and one boy. The fourth family is still in the adoption process with promising prospects.

It is fascinating and wonderful to hear of the adoption of a big family. All sorts of speculation is set off about what kind of parents could undertake such a big responsibility of a family. But these family adoptions are the unusual ones. Most adoptions are of one child at a time.

Since 1970 when babies for adoption were in much fewer and fewer, attention has increased tremendously on older children who need homes. Except for children with some handicap or in family groups, almost all youngsters in Today's Child are of school age.

Years ago it seemed the majority of people wanting to adopt were asking for blonde, blue - eyed baby girls. Now many people know their chances of getting a baby are limited, but the partiality for girls is still evident. Almost every girl who appears here attracts a big response. One 16-year-old had 130 sets of parents eager to adopt her before she left the agency.

Boys do not attract as great — unless they are brothers — but the above average in intelligence. One handsome, bright nine-year-old boy brought inquiries about adoption from 178 families. A cute little fellow of 11 months had had families waiting to adopt him despite his complicated medical problem.

Only a few years ago there was almost no possibility of a slow learner being adopted and for a retarded child there was no chance at all. Now there is increasing response to the need for adoption for children with limited ability and increasing awareness that such children can bring happiness to an adopting family.

BOOTS AND SADDLES by Elizabeth B. CUSTER

The honeymoon of Elizabeth Bacon and George Armstrong Custer was interrupted in 1864 by his call to duty with the army of the Potomac. Elizabeth begged to be allowed to go along, and from that time ge she accompanied General Custer on all his major assignments — the only woman who always rode with the regiment. Her courage was tested many times for although she had great spirit, nothing in her background had prepared her for such an arduous life.

Her book, subtitled "Life in Dakota with General Custer", covers the years when they were posted to the Dakota Territory and ends with his death at the Battle of Little Big Horn. It paints a picture living portrait of General Custer. The author's devotion to her husband is revealed in her account.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

FABRIC FURNISHINGS

By Margaret Lee Butler and Beryl S. Greves

This is an English publication, so the terminology is occasionally different from that familiar to North Americans. However, the many drawings illustrate exactly the authors' meaning. This is a "how-to" book with step-by-step directions and illustrations of how to sew and construct many simple articles listed in the term "soft furnishings."

There are eight chapters on curtain making, for instance. They cover every problem from the various fabrics and textiles and their uses to a preparation for making and the making of curtains and how to hang them. From simple cushions to bedspreads to lampshades, this book is a very complete guide.

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

They'll appear with more than 300 others in the cookbook. All of the recipes are being judged in a contest conducted by The Intelligencer and adjudicated by three local experts.

Child of Divorce Not 'Victimized'

Dear Ann Landers: Why is it peculiar after having seen some that because a child has di- of those children who parents vorced parents he is referred to stayed together "for the as a "victim", for the rest of his sake." Thanks for writing. life?

Would it have been better if my parents had stayed together under false pretenses? Many of my friends' parents constantly cheat on each other. Many lives to "protect the children" right out in the open and live them."

Why not let them be happy "victims" instead of neurotic children who cringe at the sound of the yelling? If handled properly, a divorce need not be a trauma to children. It's over and done with quickly. Those daily hassles and "Daddy's three-week business trips" do a lot of damage. They last a long time in a child's mind.

I'm the victim of a plastic, narrow-minded society. My home was never broken. My life was never shattered. I don't hate mom. I'm just more alert to the pitfalls and the seriousness of marriage.—Better Fee

Dear Better: I believe it—e-

Dear Ann Landers: Five years ago my husband took an oath that he would quit smoking. I smell smoke on his breath every night after supper when he returns from "a walk." There are always bits of tobacco in his pockets.

I find butts floating in the john. Ashes appear on the rugs. When I hint that I smell smoke he says, "You've imagining things."

This man has actually bragged in my presence that he has "kicked the habit" and feels so much better. Then he has the nerve to say, "If I can quit, so can you!" He often turns to me and asks me to verify his statements. I feel like the south end of a horse going north.

All the while I've played along, thinking he would smoke less if he had to sneak, but it's beginning to get to me. What would YOU do, Ann?—Fibber in Fahrenville

Dear P.: I'd do exactly what you've been doing—let the fool go on kidding himself. Unsmoking him would serve no useful purpose.

'Fascinating Womanhood' Course Puts Down Strength, Ability Stresses Frailty, Childishness

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — What is the opposite of women's liberation? It might very well be Fascinating Womanhood.

"Remember," said instructor Rose Douglas in a Fascinating Womanhood meeting in her London home, "your husband is the leader, protector and provider. Make him feel he's the boss."

The Fascinating Womanhood movement, based on a book of the same name by Helen Andelin , a California doctor's wife, teaches women to use wiles and not 600,000 copies.

This book along with another anti-libber one, The Total Woman, has sold more than 40,000 copies.

In her book, used as the text for the 200,000 women who have taken the course, Mrs. Andelin figures wives to "show a stylish trust in him, don't appear to know more than he does."

Women are advised to stop doing manly tasks like fixing furnaces or lifting the groceries so their men will feel chivalrous and needed .

"In acquiring femininity, you must first dispense with an air of strength and ability, of competence and fearlessness, and acquire instead an attitude of frail dependency upon men to take care of you," suggests Mrs. Andelin in her book.

The woman is encouraged to become "the domestic goddess," skilled in the feminine arts of cooking, sewing, cleaning, organizing, managing a household, caring for children, handling money wisely and a few other things."

In a chapter that some students balk at, it is suggested that wives should learn to show childlike anger. Next time you are angry with your husband, some childlike mannerisms stamp your foot, lift your chin high and square your shoulders.

"Or you can put both hands on your hips and open your eyes wide. Or beat your fists on your husband's chest. Men love this!" she claimed.

Mrs. Douglas said she never asks her students to use phoney rages in the winter, a garden hose-pulls in the summer. The 13-by-25-foot building was built at a cost of $450. About one-third of the space is used for clear-age, the other two-thirds for polite conversing lounge chairs and windows which face the couple's garden.

China Hires 'Pill' Reminders

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — "Have you taken your pill" is a question heard every day in China, where nearly a quarter of the earth's citizens live, a billion population lives.

Reporting this, Han Suyin, Peking-born novelist and surgeon, says birth control and taking of the pill in China are community responsibilities rather than the private affair of the bedroom.

"In the fields and communes they have a system whereby one woman is responsible every day for calling out to the others, 'Have you taken your pill?'" she said in an interview circulated by the United Nations Educational, Social and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

The responsible woman "carries supplies with her and if somebody has forgotten, they get their pill," said Dr. Han. "This is solidarity. You can't do it by order, but only when the population is pulling together."

Dr. Han is author of Love Is a Many Splendored Thing and other novels with Chinese settings.

By contrast, only one in four women in France use contraceptives.

Dr. Han, 54, now lives in Lausanne, Switzerland. In the past she made numerous visits to China for research.

UNESCO distributed her insights on birth control and the status of women in China in an International Women's Year project.

Family planning started in 1956 in Chinese cities but only three or four years ago in the communes, "where 80 per cent of the people live," Dr. Han said.

Equal Job Treatment Bill's Aim

OTTAWA (CP) — A long-promised bill to establish a federal human rights commission to crack down on discrimination by federally-controlled employers was introduced in the Commons Monday by Justice Minister Otto Lang.

Recommended five years ago by the royal commission on the status of women, the commission would have authority to investigate and halt discriminatory practices by institutions such as chartered banks, airlines and railways.

The proposal, not scheduled for debate until the fall session of Parliament, would prohibit discrimination on grounds of race, sex, marital status, color, religion, age and ethnic or national origin.

Riot in Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Police say eight officers were injured and at least six blacks were arrested in a disturbance touched off by rumors that a 19-year-old boy arrested by police had been beaten.

Police said most of the injuries and arrests came as 120 officers, including riot-equipped state troopers with dogs, moved in with tear gas to disperse crowds that gathered after the youth's arrest.

Falls to Death

WASHINGTON (AP) — A son of Dr. Frank Olson, who plunged to his death after being given LSD by the Central Intelligence Agency, says the family may not file suit against the CIA because of President Ford's personal apology to them.

"You can't conceive of how moving it was to hear him say he was outraged at this travesty of American history," Nils Olson said in a telephone interview Monday night from his Frederick, Md., home following a White House visit with Ford.

Package Explodes

NEW YORK (AP) — Police are trying to determine who sent a package which exploded at a mid-Manhattan United Parcel Service building, injuring 17 persons.

No one was killed in the blast but William Mulholland, 19, stripped naked by the explosion and hurled 30 feet against a wall, was in critical condition.

Liquor Board Rebuked

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Mayer Lerner of Divisional Court said Monday that employees of the Liquor Licence Board of Ontario (LLBO) used extraordinary powers they do not possess by interjecting their personal views and affecting the employment of nightclub comedians Blair Joseph MacLean and David Gary MacLean.

The brothers are from Glace Bay, N.S.

The court granted the MacLean brothers an interlocutory injunction restraining chairman James Mackey of the LLBO and the LLBO itself from suspending, cancelling, of threatening to suspend or cancel liquor licences of taverns in which the MacLeans performed on the grounds that the board found the performance objectionable.

Many Fires

TORONTO (CP) — This summer is shaping up as possibly the worst on record for the number of forest fires in Ontario, provincial government spokesmen say.

But damage in numbers of acres lost is not expected to reach last year's severe losses, John Goodman, supervisor of the province's fire control branch, said Monday.

Air Canada President Calls Payment Stupid

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada chairman Yves Pratte Monday described as "stupid" an airline payment of $10,000 to Montreal travel agent R. Y. McGregor in return for "consulting services".

"I don't know of a deal as stupid as this one was." Mr. Pratte told a federal inquiry into the airline's financial affairs.

"I don't know to this day why people in their right minds proceeded as they did."

Earlier testimony, at the inquiry, headed by Mr. Justice Willard Estey, showed the payment served as a vehicle through which airline officials hoped to acquire stock options in a proposed nationwide travel agency Mr. McGregor was to form with a Vancouver firm.

Mr. Pratte said acquisition of a travel agency is not on the airline's priorities list and should not have been pursued. He also said he was unaware of the payment until March 7.

The payment was authorized by Yves Menard, Air Canada's former marketing vice-president.

Mr. Menard resigned in February, 1975, after the possibility of a conflict of interest arose involving his ownership of a villa in Barbados arose.

Earlier witnesses at the inquiry testified that Mr. Menard purchased the villa in the Sunset Crest development in Barbados in the fall of 1973.

A few months later, he authorized an agreement by which an Air Canada affiliate leased apartments in the same development.

Mr. Pratte said he first learned of Mr. Menard's villa in January, 1974, but he did not think at that time that anything was improper.

"I assumed he had either bought the property for cash or had taken a mortgage."

Mr. Pratte testified it was only during the week of Feb. 22, 1975, that he discovered Mr. Menard had yet to make payments towards his villa.

Asked by Mr. Justice Estey to summarize his opinion of Mr. Menard's actions, Mr. Pratte said: "It was an error in judgment for somebody in his place to place himself in the position where, rightly or wrongfully, he could be accused of benefitting from his position."

Earlier Monday, Mr. Pratte told the inquiry he has been campaigning since 1968 for legislation to help the government-owned airline compete with other firms.

"If we are being asked to compete with other carriers we have to have corporate powers similar to other airlines."

These powers, he said, would permit the airline to control hotels, car rentals and advance-booking charter tours.

Air Canada's charter now forbids it from engaging in such activity.

200-mile Limit Said Essential

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition to federal fisheries policy spread to the Liberal benches Monday as government MP Dave Rooney joined Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores and other Progressive Conservatives in attacking the federal government's handling of the foreign fishing limit.

Mr. Rooney (Bonavista-Trinity-Conception) announced that he is reconsidering his position as a member of the federal Liberal caucus and might not attend weekly caucus meetings in the fall.

Earlier, a 100,000-signature petition, calling for a unilateral declaration of Canadian control of fishing over the continental shelf, was presented in the Commons. It was brought forward by Conservatives Walter Carter (St. John's West) and Jack Marshall (Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe).

Mr. Moores, in Ottawa to see the petition presented, called on the federal government to "get off its butt" and to act on the issue.

He said the government appears nervous "about pulling other noses out of joint," but wants immediate action to be taken to declare the shelf Canadian territory there soon may be no East Coast fishery.

Foreign fishing vessels now can fish to within 12 miles of the coast, Fishermen want a 200-mile limit to keep foreigners off the valuable fishing banks.

In a telephone interview from his eastern Newfoundland constituency Monday night, Mr. Rooney denied suggestions he might sit as a Progressive Conservative and said he does not want to become an independent Liberal.

"I want to remain a Liberal," he said, adding that he may continue on the government benches but not attend weekly caucus meetings.

The 27-year-old MP expressed disappointment with a series of federal fisheries policies.

"There is a lack of concern in the government, especially in the external affairs department, he said. He feels that the seven Newfoundland MPs cannot get their voices heard in the Commons.

Canada has been negotiating for a 200-mile limit, plus sovereignty over the continental shelves off its coasts, areas that would enlarge the country's jurisdiction by 45 per cent.

Expert Urges Local Governments to Reappraise Their Role

After more than a century in operation it's time for local governments to reappraise their effectiveness, Belleville city council was told Monday night.

The suggestion came from an expert in municipal affairs, Dr. C.R. Tindal, of Queen's University, now engaged in a restructuring study of Lennox and Addington County.

In business, it wouldn't sound unreasonable for private enterprise to re-examine itself after more than 100 years.

Yet such studies of local government in Ontario are viewed with suspicion or apprehension, he said.

"I think it's high time local government examined themselves to see how they can carry out their responsibilities more effectively," he said.

Dr. Tindal's study — commissioned earlier this year and scheduled for completion in early 1977 — deals primarily with Lennox and Addington, however, his terms of reference include all "adjacent areas" also, hence his presence at city council seeking wider response, he said.

Such reasoning might best be timed for next spring when he produces the first phase of his findings, suggested Dr. Tindal.

The expert's presence sparked curiosity among councillors about initiation of such studies.

The reason: Belleville and Trenton — whose urbanization has flowed over into Sidney and Thurlow Townships — have no far been unsuccessful in getting Hasting County to agree to such an undertaking. Joint studies are 50 per cent financed by the provincial government.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey queried if a separated city could institute its own study.

Frank Nicholson provincial study liasion officer who accompanied Dr. Findall, doubted if the province would support a study that did not scrutinize an entire area.

However, this didnot rule out city making a case for a separate initiative, he said.

Where there are municipal inter-relationships there might be merit in seeking a separate study, said Dr. Findall. But he couldn't say what kind of support the province might give it.

But even a study initiated by the city would have to consider the surrounding county area anyway to be effective, he added.

Transit Commission Resumes Night Service

City Council Monday night, bowing to citizen protests, asked the Belleville Transit commission to reinstitute late-night bus runs as soon as possible.

City hall's decision came after delegation spokesmen disputed the trial cancellation of services at 9:45 p.m. during July and August in a BTC attempt to reduce its operating losses.

Lena MacMillan, an elderly city resident speaking for senior citizens, called the move "one of the cheapest things that Belleville has done yet."

"Summer is when older people like to get out," she told council.

Eligene Cooperman former United Community Services director, chided council — which last month approved the BTC request — for not considering the inconvenience caused to people which should have been your major concern."

In such a move, affecting the lives of people, there should have been a public forum for "concerned citizens" to express their views," he said.

With Mr. Cooperman was James Briand, who collected 125 signatures on a petition against the cut in services.

The protests came as no suprise to council. Besides Mr. Briand's petition, city hall alre had received slipped protests from senior citizens and workers at Belleville General Hospital.

BTC bus drivers also have made known they were upset by the move.

And councillors also have been getting calls about the decision.

In fact, Ald. George Zegouras said he'd never "had so many calls on anything as on this transit situation."

A similar report came from Ald. Joe Cox, who made the move to re-open the issue with the BTC.

He said the BTC deserved congratulations for trying to save its deficit.

"But I do feel on reconsideration it — I for one would change my mind — I know it was on a trial basis but I don't feel we gave enough consideration to it," he told his council colleagues.

Ald. Jack Ireland said he agreed with the delegations but the real issue was the BTC deficit.

"— They're trying to do a job. If they've made a mistake I'm sure they'll change. — But they have a tremendous problem."

Frank Morrell, city treasurer reported that as of June 30, the BTC defect has "dropped $100,000 already."

Operating deficits are subsidized 50 per cent by provincial government, noted Ald. Ben Corke.

Policeman Pleads Guilty To Assault

A 49-year-old city police officer was sentenced to two days in jail in provincial court Monday after he pleaded guilty July 10 to a charge of common assault.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today an appeal has been launched against the sentence imposed on Sgt. Thomas H. Davidson.

He said a departmental hearing will also be held into the case but no date has been set. The incident from which the charge arose occured May 28 at the police station and Davidson was suspended from the force on May 30.

Sgt. Davidson is alleged to have grabbed Gary Holleman of 8 Dunnett Blvd. around the neck after Holleman went into the station to file a complaint following a previous occurance outside the station between the two men.

Buses to Resume Night Service Monday

Night bus service will resume in Belleville next Monday, following a meeting of the city's transit commission early today.

In a written release, commission chairman Mary Lee Burtt said the experiment to reduce night service had been financially successful but that it had also been the subject of numerous petitions.

She said "we are disappointed that two delegations and a few citizens have forced council to reverse its decision on night service. Today, June 30 the commission received service between 10 p.m. - midnight in an attempt the service operating deficit.

Mrs. Burt, in commenting on the union's protests to the commission Monday, today, "I don't like to see their concern at this time of year. They didn't have that much concern about service in the restaurant when they went on strike in April".

"I hope they'll be concerned in January when their contract runs out," said Mrs. Burtt.

Commission spokesman said the net saving in the cutback is one driver cut from the payroll. A driver will have to be hired now that the expertinent is being curtailed.

First Day on the Job

More than 100 area workers hired by Procter & Gamble got their first glimpse at production equipment Monday. A spokesman for the firm said 100 more employees will be hired and applicants are "actively being sought."

City Begins Home Improvement Loans

The first loans to Belleville householders under the Ontario Home Renewal Program (OHRP) have been processed by city council.

Meantime, council has applied for further OHRP funds for the current fiscal year. The funds are aimed at upgrading housing.

Monday, council approved five low-interest loans suggested by the city manager's office. The loans total $29,500 — of which $10,673 may be forgiven under terms of the OHRP, interest rates range from nil to eight per cent.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said there have been nine applications to date for home renewal loans, funded by the province and administered by city hall. Two requests were deemed ineligible — one because of higher income, the other because a rental section of a duplex was involved. Two other application are still being investigated.

Earlier this year, council received $26,000 from the province before the 1976-76 allocations were closed off.

Council also passed a resolution asking for a full-year allocation of $105,375 in OHRP loans for the 1975-76 fiscal year.

"We're hoping in the weeks ahead there will be more applications from the citizens of the community — said Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Persons receiving the OHRP loans were chosen according to provincial regulations — which sets a $12,500 income limit for recipients.

Cat Burglar Foiled

A would-be thief who attempted to break into a city apartment through a window at a height of 65 feet found his efforts for naught early today when he apparently failed to rouse the occupant was asleep.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today David Taylor, 3-14 Front St., was in bed but not asleep when he heard a window screen being removed in an adjoining room.

He said Taylor went in to the room and saw a man with his head and shoulders through the window. The startled intruder quickly fled when he noticed Taylor.

Armed Bandits Grab $170 from Attendant

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville are seeking two men who robbed the service station at the Wayfare Restaurant of about $170 in cash at gunpoint early today, assaulted the attendant and then released him, offering him $20 to remain silent.

A police spokesman said the men drove into the station located at the intersection of Highways 401 and 37, at about 4:45 a.m.

He said one man got out of the car with a gun in hand and demanded the money from the till. The man then drove the attendant for a short distance west on Highway 401 and dropped him off at the Sidney 37 overpass where they offered him the money to keep his silence, the spokesman added.

The attendant was identified as Bob Myers of Cannifton. He was not harmed.

First Employees at Procter and Gamble

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Before you get a job at Procter and Gamble, rest assured the company will know your potential as an employee, your likelihood of staying with the firm and the chances of you fitting into the company pattern.

About 100 area workers reported for their first day at work at the plant Monday with 100 more employees still being "actively sought" by the firm.

A company spokesman said about 2,000 workers have applied for positions at the plant and are at various stages in the screening process.

Dave Miller, public relations officer for the Belleville firm said during an interview Monday "Before we make a decision to employ someone, we want to make sure the applicant has an interest in the job and can succeed."

The firm is not expected to begin production of Pampers diapers until later this fall. In the meatime, employees will learn most of what there is to know about the firm and everything there is to know about handling the equipment.

"The interview process is one of the most sophisticated and selective screening procedures in the city, requiring the applicant to make three trips to the plant. Some applicants are consumed in interviews which "does not determine whether a person is good or bad but whether he will succeed in our company," said Mr. Miller.

A prime consideration is the employee's interest and ability to "do more than one job," said Mr. Miller. In the company system, groups of employees called teams operate each of the production lines. Ideally, each team member will be able to learn at least some of the other jobs on the line, he said.

"We are still looking for applicants to fill the remaining 100 positions," said Mr. Miller.

The company intends opening a satellite employment office in the Tweed Legion Hall Thursday to make it more convenient for centre Hastings residents to contact the firm. That office will be open from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Talking Government

Dr. C. R. Tindal talks local government with city council Monday night. The expert on municipal affairs now in Commissioner of Lennox and Addington County government study — a project which includes getting input from adjacent areas he says.

Subdivision Clears Another Hurdle

A draft agreement, crucial to development of a big, new subdivision on Belleville's western limits was approved in principle from city council Monday night.

But the document was amended and now goes back to whence it came — Sidney Township Council.

The city must enter the agreement with Sidney on water and sewer services before the more than 70 homes in the planned Kennington Gardens subdivision can be built east of Harder Dr., — just outside city limits in the township.

The development — by Belleville builder Reg Breault — needs city water and sewer services for approval by Ontario's housing ministry.

The revisions call for all sewers, roadways, curbs, gutters, house numbers and street signs to conform to city subdivision requirements.

Final approval for all services must come from the city engineer.

Three Hurt In Crash

Three city residents were treated and released from Belleville General Hospital Monday for cuts and bruises suffered in a one-car accident in front of 10 Emily St. at about 4:55 p.m.

City Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today the three people were occupants in a car which collided with a utility pole.

They are identified as the driver, Thomas W. Bacon, 25, of 191 Ann St., and passengers Richard McCoy, 22, of 22 Crest St., James St., and Russel Fralick, 20 of 280½ Front St.

Damage was estimated at $300 to the car and $100 to the pole.

Driver Fined

Donald F. Mitts, 20, of RR3, Frankford, was fined $200 in provincial court Monday after he pleaded guilty last week to a charge of dangerous driving.

Mitts was charged June 28 by Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville following a high-speed chase in the early morning hours in the Frankford area.

Car, Truck Collide

Monday's rain caused at least one accident in the city Monday, city police report.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said today a car driven by Frank J. Strelecki, 34, of Trenton, was westbound on West Dundas St. at about 4:30 p.m. braked and skidded on the wet pavement and collided with the side of a tractor-trailer.

He said the trailer portion is a house-moving device and was not damaged, while there was $600 damage to the car. The tractor-trailer had been leaving a private driveway at 68 West Dundas St. at the time.

Council Briefs

Special Weeks Approved

There'll be at least two civic proclamations for special weeks in September. City council Monday approved a request from the city's Jaycees that Sept. 14-20 be declared Jaycee Week. Council also concurred with a request from the Quinte and District Labor Council, that Sept. 1-8 be Union Label Week.

Road Work This Fall

A start on the first phase of widening the remainder of East Dundas St. is expected this fall. That's when work on sewer installation should get underway, ending in spring.

Joe Angelo city engineer told city council Monday night.

The second phase — work on the road — should then begin.

New Equipment Endorsed

City police will get $30,000 in new radio equipment — if provincial authorities approve.

City council Monday night gave two readings to a bylaw authorizing debenturing for the purchases. It now goes to the Ontario Minicipal Board.

The debenture issue covers a communications console, a radio-telephone recording system, portable and mobile radio units.

Pumper Passes

City council Monday night approved purchase of a $50,000 pumper for the fire department.

A bylaw to issue debentures covering the cost was given two reading and sent to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval.

Two Buses Coming

Belleville Transit Commission (BTC) got council approval Monday to buy two new 53-passenger buses.

Estimated cost of the vehicles is $97,200 — on which the provincial transportation and communication ministry pays a $73,125 subsidy.

This leaves only $27,500 for the city to raise by debenture to cover all costs.

Hydro Hike Opposed

Belleville has officially joined in the protest against the proposed big hike in Ontario Hydro rates.

City council Monday night concurred with a resolution from the Association of Municipalities of Ontario against the feared "excessive" increases.

Hydro is proposing increases amounting to 39 per cent for residential consumers in 1976; a 25 per cent hike in 1977 and another 29 per cent boost in 1978.

Sidewalk Policy Changed

Property acquisition costs for sidewalks built as local improvements will no longer be paid for out of the city's general rate.

City council formalized the move with a resolution Monday night — a sequel to a recent dispute between city hall and Sidney St. residents.

Plan Still in Limbo

Provincial government economists in Belleville's official plan can be expected in about two months time, city council was told Monday.

But approval of the plan — submitted to the Ontario Housing Ministry in February — is "indeterminate" reported city manager Wilbur Purcell.

The housing ministry is awaiting views of the natural resources ministry before forwarding its own conclusions to council.

Petition Filed

A petition from residents on an east-end suburban street for a finished street with curbs was filed for the 1976 capital work budget by city council Monday.

The request came from Bradley Cresc., but noted Mayor Robin Jeffrey, the petition had to be deferred because there is no money budgetted for such a project this year.

Councillors Sweat It Out

A move to permit less formality on official occasions during summer was lost in city council Monday night.

Last month Ald. Stu Meeks had served notice he would move to have council declare the August Sport Shirt Month.

Sport shirts were to be acceptable dress at meetings during the month.

The motion never even came up for debate.

Ald. Meeks was not present to present his resolution. It was declared lost.

Tenders Passed

City council Monday night approved a series of tender prices for various projects and purchases.

They included: A sidewalk snowplow ($12,286); an asphalt roller ($4,186); a dump truck and van truck ($13,381); two sidewalk sand spreaders ($2,209); supply and installation of chain link fence on North Park — Reynolds Cres. walkway ($5,253); vinyl tile, Dick Ellis Rink auditorium, office ($1,823); painting rink auditorium — office ($1,049).

Four DPs League Record

He Could Do Without It

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

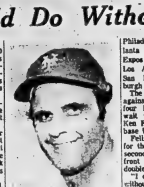
Joe Torre is a lifetime .300 hitter. He's driven in 100 runs or more in five different seasons. He's won the most valuable player award. But he's never gotten into baseball's record book.

Monday night he made it. Future generations will find Torre under "Most double plays hit into—four."

Torre became the third major leaguer in history, and the first in the National League, to hit into four double plays in one game when he turned the trick during New York Mets' 6-3 loss to Houston Astros.

He did it in the first, third, sixth and eighth innings, smashing bases-loading rallies each time, to tie Lou Gehrig of the old Detroit Tigers and Mike Kreevich of the 1939 Chicago White Sox in the record book.

"When I retire I'm gonna buy a shortstop and put him in my den," said Torre. "At night, when I'm seen, I'm gonna go down there and hit grounders to him."



JOE TORRE

In Monday's other National League games, St. Louis Cards nab blanked San Diego Padres 4-0, Cincinnati Reds rocked Philadelphia Phillies 10-4, Atlanta Braves beat Montreal Expos 4-1, Chicago Cubs shaded Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0 and San Francisco dumped Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2.

The Astros built up a 6-1 lead against loser George Stone after four innings and then lay in wait for Torre's ground balls. Ken Forsch, 4-7, earned the win, base hits but went the distance.

Felix Millan got four singles for the Mets but never reached second, getting caught in the front end of all of Torre's double plays.

"I couldn't have set a record without Millan," said Torre. "He ought to get an assist. Or Was he thinking double plays when he went to bat with runners on first and second and none out in the eighth?

"I didn't go up to the plate with a negative approach," said Torre. "I wasn't thinking about not hitting into a double play. "I wasn't excited. I wasn't anxious. I made up my mind to be aggressive..."

Rangers Win for Lucchesi

Martin Replaced in Texas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Lucchesi was worried about how Texas Rangers' fans would treat him as their team's new manager.

It took only a few minutes for the Rangers to put his mind at ease, for the moment, anyway.

"I was, of course, concerned about the fan reaction," Lucchesi said after he took over as the Rangers' head man Monday night, only a few hours after Billy Martin was released as manager of the American League team.

"But that four-run first inning sure helped. Tonight's game meant a lot."

Rookie Dave Moates hit his first major league home run to start the outburst that took the beat off Lucchesi and enabled the Rangers to breeze past Boston Red Sox 6-0 behind Fergus Jenkins' five-hitter.

In other American League games, Baltimore Orioles beat Oakland A's 6-2, Minnesota Twins blanked New York Yankees 3-0, Kansas City Royals edged Detroit Tigers 3-2, Milwaukee Brewers defeated Chicago White Sox 7-4 and Cleveland Indians defeated California Angels 2-1 in 11 innings.

Lucchesi, who had been Martin's third base coach before the axe fell, acknowledged that once he doesn't make a season and that he could still feel the fans' wrath at Martin, he must show a marked improvement on their 45-51 record that has them buried in fourthplace in the West Division, 19½ games out of first.

"I respectful the man who was here," Lucchesi said of Martin. And Manager Billy is like a fellow following Al Jolson in his prime in show business."

After Monday's baseball homer off Luis Tiant, Texas got three more runners on bases by Dave Randle and Burroughs, Mike Hargrove's single, a walk and two infield outs.

Canadians Show Plenty of Promise at Cali

CALI, Colombia (CP)—Monday was a non-medal day for Canada at the world aquatic championships but one that held plenty of promise for two Canadian athletes.

Sylvie Fortier, 18, of Quebec City, presented a dazzling 15 minutes of swimming to finish top one-half point out of first place in the synchronized swimming preliminary routine.

"It was just a super performance," coach Mary Ann Reeves said later.

But it means nothing. The marks are thrown away and the swimmers start over today with compulsory figures. Friday they reswim the routine that will count.

"Sylvie is very good at figures and will be right near the top," Reeves said. "But Friday she will have to swim an even better routine."

Fortier finished with 45.5 points out of a possible 50. Gail Bunenas of the United States was first with 46 points.

Rick Priesen of Vancouver failed to qualify today's final of the men's three-metre springboard diving competition but both he and coach Irene MacDonald were overjoyed with his performance.

"That's the best I've ever seen Rick dive," MacDonald shouted "He has never done his twist dives better."

Priesen finished 11th with 486.19 points, entering the class rating under Sport Canada's guidelines and providing him with badly-needed financial help.

Priesen said that while he was happy to step up to Diving," I'm more pleased because I dived as well."

That is the object of this game, to keep improving."

Defending champion Phil Boggs of the U.S. led the eight finalists with 557.46 points in the 11 dives. Klaus Dibiasi of Italy finished second with 575.67 points and countryman Franco Cagnotto was third with 543.93 points.

Cautious Reaction to Inclusion of Pros

No Rush to Get Back into IIHF

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian professionals became eligible to play in International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) tournaments over the weekend, but the change in their status may be academic.

Douglas Fisher, chairman of the board of Hockey Canada, said Monday there are no immediate plans or intentions to return to IIHF play.

And Jack Devine, immediate past president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell and Alan Eagleson, executive director of the National Players' Association, were cautious in their reaction to the news.

Devine, of Belleville, Ont., said several problems remained to be settled before Canada decides to return.

Campbell said in Montreal his league will "simply wait and see what the pitch is."

In Toronto, Eagleson said the players would discuss the IIHF decision at an Aug. 12-13 meeting in Chicago.

They were commenting on a decision made at the IIHF in meetings at Garmisch, Switzerland, Canada has boycotted the IIHF's world championship tournaments since 1960 because it was not allowed to use professionals.

The decision, backed by federation president J.F. (Bunny) Ahearn, will allow the NHL and World Hockey Association and their players' associations to join the federation through the CHA.

Fisher said the IIHF is in the process of completely rearranging its constitution but that Canada can't understand where the problems lie.

Chief obstacles to Canada's return to tournament play are a championship held in early fall or late spring to avoid conflict with NHL and World Hockey Association playoffs.

The tournaments usually are held in May or June.

Canada would be unable to get professionals to play unless IIHF financing arrangements were changed to allow participating countries a bigger share of gate receipts, he said. Current arrangements give the host country most of the proceeds.

Fisher said Canada would like to see the world championship held every two years instead of annually. Soccer's World Cup is played every four years.

Campbell said the NHL had no intention of becoming a "sanctuary league" of the CAHA and has already rejected the CAHA bargaining agent for the league in international hockey.

"We decided long ago we are not going to participate in anything where we do not bargain for ourselves and represent ourselves."

Eagleson said he could see no immediate advantage to the players' association joining the IIHF and added he would have to study the proposal with association officials before making further comment.

Japan Sharp In Tournament

TORONTO (CP) — Japan continued its domination of the women's volleyball tournament with a 3-0 win over the Soviet Union at Maple Leaf Gardens on Monday.

Japan, still to lose a match in the tournament, won 15-4, 15-1, 15-6 over the Soviets.

Canada was defeated 3-1 by the United States.

The tournament continues in Winnipeg today.

Baker's One Trip to Plate Just Too Much for Expos

MONTREAL (CP) — Dusty Baker's 2-run appearances at Jarry Park were limited during this National League season, but as far as Montreal pitcher Dan Warthen is concerned, Baker made one appearance too many for Atlanta Braves.

Baker, who missed the two games played Sunday with a sore hamstring, cracked a pinch-hit single in the eighth inning Monday night to drive in Vic Correll with the game-winning run and Atlanta Braves went on to defeat Montreal 4-1.

Baker pulled the hamstring in a game against the Expos in July 13 and did not play in the Braves brief visit to New York after the all-star break.

"The leg's still sore," he said. "I still can't run. It's depressing."

After he stroked his game-winning hit, Baker quickly replaced on the basepaths by Mike Lum.

The Expos carried a 1-0 lead into the eighth inning behind a three-hit pitching effort by Warthen. But Pat Montreal left-hander walked Clarence Gaston to lead off the eighth and after pinch running Larvell Blanks for his eighth strikeout of the game, Warthen bounced to second double of the game to score Gaston with the tying run.

Warthen, now 4-3, was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth and the Braves added two more runs in the ninth on baseball veteran Earl Williams' deposited a Don DeMola fastball into the left-field bleachers with a runner on.

"I felt great, this is a good one to win," Baker said. "We've had a game out of fourth and we're not that far out of third. We're in a good position to make a move. You never tell what's going to happen."

Meanwhile the Expos continued to slide further into the NL's East Division cellar as they dropped their 31st game of the year against 38 wins.

As has been the case, several times during the 1975 season, Montreal failed to get key hits when they needed them Monday night, thus wasting a good effort by Warthen.

On three occasions, the Expos had a runner on with one out, after they had scored one run, but the timely hit just never came.

In the bottom of the seventh, the Expos had two runners on with two out but catcher Barry Foote, who hit into a pair of double plays in his first two at bats, flied out to end the inning.

After the Braves got the lead, Montreal went down quietly in the eighth and ninth innings against Elias Sosa, who recorded his second save of the year.

Left-hander Mike Beard, who gave up two hits in two innings of relief, gained credit for his third victory in as many decisions.

Orr Another Dionne?

TORONTO (CP) — Boston Bruins will have to make Bobby Orr a more "realistic" offer if they want to keep the superstar defenceman, says Orr's lawyer Alan Eagleson.

The Bruins have offered Orr a new long-term National Hockey League contract which would pay him between $400,000 and $500,000 a season.

Orr's current five-year contract, which was upgraded two years ago to $200,000 a season, expires June 1, 1976.

Orr has a $3-million offer from Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association—a signing bonus of $1.5 million and an annual salary of $1 million for five years.

Harry Sinden (Bruins manager-director) will have to be more realistic in his offer if he wants to retain Bobby," said Eagleson.

"I think the Bruins will get serious soon. For one thing, the owners of the team (Storer Broadcasting) would like to sell the franchise. The asking price is in the $15 million range, but I honestly would that drop if Bobby Orr wasn't part of the deal."

Eagleson said the WHA isn't the only alternative if the Bruins don't make an adequate offer.

"He'll be a free agent next June, free to make his own deal with any other team. And I believe me, there are several teams that can him and we'd love to have him. If anyone thinks that isn't possible, just remember Marcel Dionne."

Dionne, the third-highest scorer in the NHL last season, refused to sign a contract with Los Angeles Kings. Detroit relinquished defenceman Terry Harper, winner Dan Maloney and a draft choice for compensation.

Argos Won't Be There Sorry About That, Jim

Jim isn't going to like this. He's still on the Argonaut bandwagon.

No, he hasn't been dyed double blue for as long as I was. But he certainly is a loyal supporter of the Boatmen.

Haven't heard one good reason why from him yet.

At any rate, when I deserted the stadium July a season or two ago sagl switched my allegiance to the No. 2 Canadian Football League squad of 9 or so years, Edmonton Eskimos, Jim stayed with the Argos.

Now he's making his annual trip around the bullshiz, collecting everyone's prognostication as to how the teams will finish the regular season.

Well, Jim, you wanted mine yesterday.

Here they are, better late than never.

In the east, it will be Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton and Toronto.

The west?

Sorry, Eric but I see it this way.

Your Jolly Green Giants won't finish any better than third behind Eskimos and B.C. Lions.

That's Edmonton, B.C., Saskatchewan, Winnipeg and Calgary.

No explaining necessary.

It's the way Dr. Lamb, RGR sees it.

And I see no reason to quarrel with him. He's been keeping some rail out these predictions for years now.

Picked Philadelphia Flyers to repeat, didn't he?

What all this palaver, is meant for, is for you loons from the beach or the cottage and remind you the CFL gets things started for another year on Wednesday, with Montreal at Hamilton and Calgary visiting Saskatchewan.

Thursday night Jim will suffer it out with Runs Jones and the Argos who are at home to Ottawa Rough Riders. The same night, B.C. is at Winnipeg.

SLICES — Thanks to Belleville Olympiad Kevin Kirby, we've been able to jack up the coverage of the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association. At least, we've had scores from the last few games. And that's a step in the right direction.

How about bowling?

That community has taken both A championships in the squirt and peewee softball tournaments held here the past two weekends.

It's a bantam action on tap this Saturday when the minor tournaments wind up for another season.

Don't get the idea peoole responsible for forwarding results from minor baseball and softball associations are slipping up. I'm trying to pry loose loose today to bring these two groups up to date.

Junior Championships at Bay of Quinte

Busy Schedule Doesn't Bother Stacey West

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Competition seems to agree with Stacey West. The 16-year-old Toronto golf whiz has been on the tournament move for the last month and one half and is the favorite going into the final 36 holes of the Ontario Junior Girl's Golf Championship at Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club.

Only four of 48 starters are left, in the running.

"I've never played in this many tournaments in such a short time," she said. "This is the fourth major event in six weeks."

Included in West's recent action is the Ontario Women's Amateur at which she lost the title by one stroke. Had she won, she would have been the youngest champion in history.

The competition here is not only decide an Ontario titleholder, but also the Ontario junior inter-provincial squad. Though four golfers are in the running for the three-man team, West has already accumulated enough points in the last three days to secure a spot.

A dozen girls from across Ontario qualified for a spot at the inter-provincial team and Saturday, at Dalewood in Port Hope, West fired a six-over-par 78 and acquired 19 of a possible 25 points to take the lead in the inter-provincial squad race. Sunday at the Bay of Quinte Club, here, she added 21 points with a four-over-par 77 and Monday, came right back with a 78 for 20 more points and a three round 69-point total.

Only four of the starters are left, in the running.

"I've never played in this many tournaments in such a short time," she said. "This is the fourth major event in six weeks."

West's 78 Monday morning not only added 20 points to her total, but was the best score of the day in individual play. It qualified her, to compete in match play with seven others Monday afternoon for the Ontario junior championship.

In that action, West eliminated Karin Mundinger, of Toronto; Quebec's Michele Chouinard defeated Sandra Able of Hamilton on an extra hole; Kitchener's Judy Ellis was defeated by defending Ontario champion Pam Johns, of Toronto, and Lia Ruttan, another Toronto golfer, eliminated Nancy Crysler, of Collingwood.

This morning West met Chouinard, the Quebec junior provincial champion, while Johns took on Ruttan. This afternoon, the two winners meet in the final.

The Ontario champion is awarded 25 points toward her qualifying total for the inter-provincial squad while the runner-up receives 10 points. While West leads the points race with 66, Ruttan is next with 48, and Ellis, though eliminated Monday holds down third place with 40 points. Close in one point back with 44, West, Ruttan and Johns comprised last year's squad, but unless Johns makes it to today's final she faces elimination from that team. Chouinard and Ruttan have again qualified.

The team will represent Ontario in the Canadian championship being held August 12, 13, and 14 in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Bunny Ahearne Resigns!

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — John (Bunny) Ahearne, for the last 21 years president of the International Hockey Federation, announced his resignation Monday night in a surprise reversal of a previous decision to run for one more term.

Ahearne's announcement made Fred Schweers, a wealthy semi-retired businessman and president of the dutch federation, the leading favorite in the election scheduled Thursday at the IHF congress here.

Ahearne, 74, appealed to delegate vote for Schweers if they wanted "to show appreciation for my work."

Another candidate is Dr. Gunnar Sabetzki of West Germany.

"If I had wished, I could have carried on," Ahearne told a reporter, adding that he counted on getting four votes more than the 27 needed for election. "But, I suppose I cannot go on forever."

Dwight Rathwell
Waiting Game
By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff
Dwight Rathwell was covering second base, like a good shortstop should, when Dwayne Dontaine of the Ellis Juniors attempted to steal that base, in a recent Quinte Fastball League game.
The results were less than pleasant for Rathwell. Dontaine was out, but so was Rathwell, for the rest of the season.
What happened was the Howard and Robert infielder put his foot between young Dontaine and that bag. Dontaine had no option but to slide, and his knee crashed into Rathwell's leg.
The final outcome was that "Ratsy" as his teammates call him, ended up with torn ligaments and tendons.
He will be in a cast for five weeks.
Actually, he was given an option by his doctors. Have an operation on the leg, now, or wait it out and see if the cast will do the trick.
Rathwell has decided to wait it out. He will be playing a waiting game for five weeks.
If the leg is not well at the end of the waiting time he will definitely have surgery, and will be in a cast for another five weeks.
Through all of this "Ratsy" has kept a cheerful attitude, and his philosophy seems to be "It could have been worse."
Maybe so, but as it looks now, Dwight will miss the rest of the QFL season and part of the hockey season as well.
Rathwell plays in the Commercial Minor League during the winter months, for Stinson's Construction.
What he really looks forward to is softball for fastball though, and he has been a mainstay of the Howard and Robert infield for quite a while.
Rathwell's injury shook up the H and R team, partly because Rathwell is one of the most well-liked and most enthusiastic members of the team.
Right now all Rathwell is looking forward to is next year, and another shot at the QFL.

Three Belleville Golfers Make Mark in Tournament

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

Everytime you look around, Belleville is cropping up in sports pages around Ontario.

This time it was in Windsor, where the Ontario Junior Golf Championships were completed on Friday.

Three Belleville golfers were in the thick of things at the Championships, Peter Serafimoff and Steven Jones in the Junior Division and Paul Hipkin in the Juvenile grouping.

Serafimoff did particularly well, as he came in second in the Junior Golf Championship, losing the title in a playoff round.

Serafimoff, who plays out of the Bay of Quinte Country club, was one of seven who could have won it all on the last day.

He just beat his cool and went into a playoff round with eventual winner Gary Sicki of St. Catharines.

Serafimoff came out happy, as he did better than any Belleville golfer has ever done before in the Juniors. He qualified to play on the Ontario team, which will play in the Inter-Provincial Championship in Vancouver.

Jones, also of Belleville was no slouch either, as he came in, in the top half at the end of the Championship.

Hipkin, the Belleville representative in the Juvenile Championships, finished a strong fifth, and will be a member of the Ontario Team which will play Quebec in a Provincial Championship.

All three golfers were sponsored in part by the Bay of Quinte Country Club.

"This is the best any golfers have done from Belleville, to my knowledge," said director of junior activities at the Bay of Quinte, Fred Newman.

The boys had to qualify at Kingston, and it was their own idea to go on to Windsor," said club president Paul Henderson.

All three represented Belleville well, as Serafimoff was just one hole from a championship, and Hipkin, just a relative newcomer to tournament golf, finished well. Jones also pleased Country club officials with his fine play.

"These are the best youngsters we've had since Gary Bowerman," said Newman.

Rejects DH Proposals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The National League rejected proposals for designated hitter and designated runner rules, league president Charles Feeney said Thursday. The American League instituted the designated hitter rule last year. Roy Kroc, owner of San Diego Padres, had proposed the designated hitter rule. The designated runner rule was suggested by Bing Devine, general manager of St. Louis Cardinals.

Opening lead — Q ♣

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Total good play would start with South holding off until the third spade lead and then knocking out the ace of clubs. East takes the last spade, exits with a club and discards a diamond on the fourth club.

Meanwhile declarer has discarded a heart on the last spade and two diamonds from dummy. This will leave a five-card ending with South holding king-jack-seven of hearts and king-jack of diamonds. As a matter of percentage play, South will cash two high diamonds to see if the queen will drop. It does and he has his ninth trick.

So much for normal good play. Now let us see how one nasty operative over in the East seat. Our nasty friend will cover his partner's 10 of spades at trick three and will not bother to cash his last spade when he gets in with the ace of clubs.

He will still chalk a diamond on the fourth club, but meanwhile our unsuspecting South will hang on to all dummy's diamonds. He will take a diamond finesse against West and wind up a surprised loser when East takes his queen of diamonds and proceeds to cash that small spade that he wasn't supposed to have.

Ask the Jacobys

"What is the Herbert convention?" asks a reader from New Orleans.

The Herbert convention is a method of responding to strong two-bids in which the next suit is used as the negative response rather than the traditional two notrump.

Thus, with:

♠ 3 2 ♥ K 8 7 6 5 4 ♦ 9 5 2 2 ♣

you respond two spades to your partner's strong two heart opening bid. This makes it possible for the strong hand to play in notrump whereas the negative two notrump response automatically gets notrump play in the wrong hand.

Rackets Flourish In Ulster

BELFAST (Reuter) — As Irish mob of racketeers and extortionists is cashing in on the Northern Ireland troubles.

Spawned by the violence of the gunmen and bombers of the Protestant Loyalist and the Roman Catholic Republican factions, protection rackets are flourishing in Belfast and other towns in the province.

Criminal elements within or loosely to the rival paramilitary organizations are building up lucrative incomes out of "protection" money extracted from businessmen and shopkeepers, frequently the owners of both sides.

No city in the world can approach Belfast's record of bombed bars. And no city of similar size has so many illegal weapons in the hands of its citizens.

Against the ever-stretched police, trying to cope with recurrent outbreaks of sectarian killings and woundings and bloody feuding among the guerrilla groups, know that some of the bombings of stores, shops and offices have nothing to do with the religious or political conflict.

One owner had simply refused to pay the contributions demanded by the gangsters. Non-payment can also lead to arson and robbery.

In most cases the victims are usually too scared to help the police, fearing death or maiming as an odious informer.

Many began as community contributions to "the cause" and normal cash payments to vigilante groups guarding business premises at the height of the guerrilla bombing campaign several years ago now has blossomed into what a prominent politician describes as "a full scale Mafia-type operation with rival gangs battling it out for the spoils."

The racketeering was pioneered by Vincent McMorrow of the mainly Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party who said a vast amount of money was pouring into the rival para-military orgnizations from protection schemes and illegal drinking dens.

There is also evidence that they have taken over legitimate businesses as fronts for their fund-raising operations.

Chronic Illness Form Of Rheumatism

To Your Good Health

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I was wondering what myositis is. I have it, and don't know much about the details. Does it have anything to do with the kidneys?—J.M.

Nothing to do with the kidneys.

This falls into the category of arthritis-like conditions which include tendinitis, bursitis and fibrositis, which are, respectively, inflammations of the tendons, the bursas and the fibrous tissues.

Myositis, another of these common ailments, involves inflammation of the muscles. All of these conditions are often referred to as "nonarticular rheumatism," since the joint structures themselves are usually not involved.

The pain is a result of the inflammation, and treatment is usually rest for the affected area, and aspirin.

This group of nonarticular conditions accounts for most of the aches and pains which afflict us all as we grow older. However, any one of them can result from injuries, as well as from a sudden infection, so you may occur at any age.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had an external vaginal burning over the past two years. I have had prescriptions for creams and soaps, etc. Nothing has helped so far. I have had a complete examination. What else can I use to stop the burning?—Mrs. C.K.

From your description, it would appear that your problem is in something you are coming into contact with regularly. This could be anything from the fabric of underwear, panties and pajamas, douching powders, or feminine hygiene sprays.

It might be caused by the soap you are using to launder your underclothing. A reader recently reported that a change in her detergent at fault in her vaginal itching.

If there is no discharge, and if examination has ruled out other possible internal causes, my best advice for you to do some detective work along this line.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Please write something about cirrhosis of the liver. Is this a terminal illness? What is the life expectancy? Are you suffering if this if the liver is very enlarged?—T.H.

It is difficult to be certain about this. While the liver is an organ vital to life it has some remarkable recuperative powers of its own. The body cannot survive without it. By the same token any impairment of its function, as in cirrhosis, will diminish life expectancy and affect general health. It is well stated that fully 85 per cent of body metabolism is dependent upon its functioning.

In cirrhosis, there is a scarring between cells of the liver, thought to be caused by nutritional deficiency, mainly of protein and vitamins. Thus, cirrhosis a common among chronic alcoholics, who tend to deprive their bodies of nutrition in favor of the non-nutritious alcohol.

Toxic factors often enter the picture, as in alcoholism in this, carbohydrate metabolism is impaired, causing the liver to produce and store excess fat cells as an alternative energy source for the body. Enlargement results.

The outlook for the cirrhosis patient is rather good if he gives the organ a chance to recover from the abuse. Weight reduction for the obese and abstinence from alcohol can work wonders in a relatively short time.

Cirrhosis is not always a result of bad living. It can occur in such diseases as hepatitis or in toxicity from inhaled fumes. Whatever the nature of the underlying cause will alleviate the problem.

It's estimated that approximately 10 per cent of all alcoholics suffer from cirrhosis.

Chequing The Dollars

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians write 1.5 billion cheques a year and the Canadian Bankers' Association says this will likely be over 6 billion by the end of the decade.

George, Ron Lead Assault on CFL Records

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian Football League records will take a battering when the 1975 season begins Wednesday night in Hamilton, where the Grey Cup champion of Montreal, Alouettes play the Tiger-Cats, and in Regina, where Calgary Stampeders meet Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The records will fall mainly because the George and Ronnie Show will be heading into the 13th season with Saskatchewan.

Every time George Reed runs for a touchdown he rewrites five CFL career records. Every time Ron Lancaster throws a touchdown pass he revises 10 marks.

A lot of record-breaking potential retired when Larry Robinson, the veteran Stampeder, packed it in after 14 seasons. He held career scoring records of most points (1,030), most field goals (171) and most converts (103).

But the one Robinson record that may never be approached is the mark of 224 consecutive games in which he was in uniform. That his rookie year in 1961 he never failed to be dressed for action over a 14-year career.

Many familiar names are still hunting for places in the record book. Such players as Gene Gaines, Terry Evanshen, Alan Ford, Gerry Organ, Dave Cutler, Zenon Andrusyshyn and Dick Dupuis start 1975 in position to take over records or move up the lists.

Edmonton's Dupuis is third in the all-time punt-return yardage list but needs only five yards to move past Ed Learn's total of 2,061. Career leader is Gene Washington with 3,235.

Cutler has 146 field goals to his credit and needs 36 to exceed Robinson's 171. The Edmonton kicker has averaged 20 field goals a year over the last three years.

Ottawa's Organ, who has averaged 23 over the last three years, needs only 23 to become the seventh kicker in CFL history to hit the century mark in three-pointers.

Toronto's Andrusyshyn goes into the season with a record of having kicked at least one field goal in 22 consecutive games and Hamilton's Ian Sunter has a string of 20.

Gaines is in a ninth-place tie for most interceptions with 41, but no one has intercepted at least one pass for 14 consecutive years as the Montreal player-coach has done.

Evanshen, who did most of his pass-receiving with Calgary and some with Montreal, should leave his mark on the record pages while wearing a Hamilton uniform.

He needs only two TD receptions to move past Hal Patterson as the CFL's most productive scorer on passes. Patterson retired with 84. Evanshen is tied at 83 with Coffey, who retired after the 1973 season. Six-man TDs will make him the top native-born producer over Normie Kwong, who finished with 78.

Evanshen needs 27 catches for 185 yards or more to oust Bobby Taylor for second place in career receiving and third place in yardage. Taylor leads him 521-405 in catches, but trailing Dave Mann's 1,201-yard lead by 476 yards.

Ford, the Saskatchewan veteran, has punted 1,004 times, only the third man to pass the 1,000 mark, and his 72nd punt this year will move him ahead of Joe Zuger's 1,075 but leave him trailing Dave Mann's 1,201. Ford, with 40,466 yards punting, is in position to pass Cam Preston's 44,287 and take over third place behind Zuger and Mann for lifetime yardage.

Among the CFL career passing records held by Lancaster, are: most passes thrown (4,430), most pass completions (2,593), most passing yardage (37,272), most touchdowns passing (254), most interceptions (297), most games throwing passes (217), most games throwing completions (216), most games throwing TD passes (146) and most games throwing interceptions (142).

The durable quarterback has played more games than any other CFL player, 208, since joining Ottawa Rough Riders in 1960. That is his 19th record.

Records held by Reed include: most rushes (2,209), most yards rushing (14,663), most touchdowns touchdowns (90). Four of these are all-pro records. For the fifth he is tied with former Cleveland Browns star Jimmy Brown at 126 touchdowns.

When Reed plays his 13th game this season, it will be his 200th in the CFL, a figure that Hamilton veteran Garney Henley reached on the final game of 1974. Others in the 200 club are Lancaster, with his 228, and quarterback Jerry Keeling of Ottawa with 213. Robinson at 204, Moe Racine of Ottawa at 215 and Danny Nykoluk of Toronto at 204 are retired members of the club. Gaines could join the group. He starts the season with 185 games.

Swede Has Day at CORK

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — It was beautiful weather for sailing at the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston (CORK) and John Albrechtson made the most o f it, steering his Tempest to his second win in the first three races of the competition.

The wiry, bearded Swede now is in second place in the overall Tempest standings behind Uwe Mares of Germany, Monday's second-place finisher.

Giuseppe Milone of Italy is in third spot over-all, as European sailors continue to dominate four of the six racing classes.

Albrechtson and his bulking six-foot-six-inch crewman, Ingvar Hanson now have two wins, but were caught on a bad tack in Sunday's race and finished 16th.

The Swedes said they have enjoyed the stiff breezes that have made CORK a challenging course for the 360 entries in the regatta.

They and fellow foreign entries have shown their wakes to Canadians in the first races. The best Canadian Tempest is in 19th position.

Yves Pajot of France also took his second win of the regatta Monday, leading the Flying Dutchman class home. Pajot leads the class over-all, with Jorg Bench of Germany second and Ilj Wolff of East Germany third.

Hans Fogh of Toronto finished in 13th place Monday, putting him in ninth position over-all.

Carlo Croce of Italy turned in a third-place finish in the third race, but is well down in the standings after failing to finish in the stormy first race Saturday.

Francois Fontaine of France was third in the 470 class Mo on top in the over-all standings. Steve Cucchiaro of the U.S. turned in a surprise win to move into second place, with Marc Bouet of France third over-all.

Paul Clifford of Toronto, 24th over-all was the top Canadian in the Sweden's Kent Carlson maintained his lead in the single-handed Finn class Monday, finishing fifth.

Magnus Olin, also of Sweden, was second over-all with John Bertrand of Australia third.

Carl Buchan of the U.S. actually won the race but poor showings earlier left him in sixth spot in the standings.

Toronto's Peter Higgins was top Canadian, in 20th position over-all.

D. J. Forbes of Australia finished second in the Soling class to take first place over-all, with Stig Wennerstrom of Sweden second. Bill Buchan of the U.S. turned in a win to move to third place.

The Solings have sailed only two races. Their second race was cancelled because of bad weather Sunday.

Glen Dexter of Halifax was Canada's top Soling helmsman, in eighth position over-all after a fifth-place finish.

American sailors continued to dominate the Tornado class, although the Europeans are pressing them hard.

Paul Allen is in first place over-all, with Jorg Spengler of Germany second, Keith notary, a 15-year-old from Florida in third over-all.

Brian Fairfreman of Beloeil, Que. was 14th over-all after finishing a disappointing 18th.

Slain Boy's Parents Believe Gun Controls Really Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — The parents of John Slinger, 17, who was shot to death at his school in Brampton, Ont., May 28, came here Monday to find out if the government is serious about gun controls.

"It is," Berwick Slinger of Brampton told reporters after a 20-minute meeting with Solicitor-General Warren Allmand.

Mr. Slinger's wife Pat, son Robert, a student at Royal Military College, and daughter Jayne, 13, also were present.

But they urged Canadians to write their members of Parliament in support of gun controls "because there will be others who will speak against it."

A committee in Mr. Allmand's department is working this week on proposals for control of rifles and shotguns. It's recommendations will form the basis of a gun control bill that may be introduced in Parliament this fall.

The committee is considering a number of options, a member said Monday, including depositories for all rifles and shotguns in urban areas; licences to buy ammunition; and competency and other checks on gun buyers.

A committee check of police chiefs in eight major cities showed the use of guns in robberies was up as much as 300 per cent in eastern cities in the first quarter of 1975.

The Slingers presented Mr. Allmand with some facts concerning gun incidents in Ontario schools. Their son John was shot by fellow student Michael Sobodian, who also killed a teacher before killing himself. The Sobodian boy, a competent hunter, had given no indication of mental illness.

Upturn Likely

PARIS (Reuter) — Canada's national output should start growing again during the next few months, reversing its recent falls, a report released Monday by the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) says.

But the upturn in business activity is unlikely to reduce the margin of unused production and labor resources and unemployment will probably reach eight per cent by the end of the year, it says in its review of the economic outlook for Western nations.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and greatly relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Pain Free Birth

LITTLEBOROUGH, England (CP) — Mrs. Gillian Berry's infant son Christopher was born in what she termed a "pain free" birth after acupuncturist Robert Butterworth, 74, inserted needles in her legs before the birth took place. Game Plentiful in Quinte Area

There has been a growing concern in recent months of the use of fire-arms, although hunting of wild game still continues to grow, in the Quinte area.

Mr. George Cooper, employee at Kelly's Sport Shop, said he feels the onus should be on instruction more than on regulations.

"If the government was more strict on hunting licences, and made sure the men knew how to use the gun, a lot of problems could be solved."

In the Quinte area, there are a number of gun clubs which teach the proper method of handling guns.

Not only are instructions available, but competitions are held in skeet and trap shooting.

In the fall, the hunting of game birds such as partridge, duck and pheasant, is popular. Depending on the region where one is hunting, there are certain laws protecting wildlife. These regulations can be obtained through the department of natural resources.

Hunting Around

As the hunting season approaches, avid hunters are getting ready looking for new guns and buying shells. Cecil Story of Selby, north of Napanee, checks out a Browning superposed shotgun. Mr. Storey said hunting in this area is good especially for game birds such as duck and partridge.

Racquet Sports Popular

The court sports tennis, badminton, and squash, are popular in the Quinte area.

To provide the needs to the serious and begining player, Woodley Racquet Sports, on Front St. (above Woodley Furriers) has the only speciality shop in the Quinte area for the court games.

Judy Woodley, owner and operator of Racquet Sport, said, "we can provide complete attaire for each of the different sports."

For instance, completely white clothes must be worn when playing squash. The reason for this is the ball which is black can be easily lost if one of the players wears colored clothing.

Open for just over 18 months, Raquet Sport can provide a racquet to suit the individuals.

"We know what we're talking about," said Mrs. Woodley, "We're selling knowledge and service."

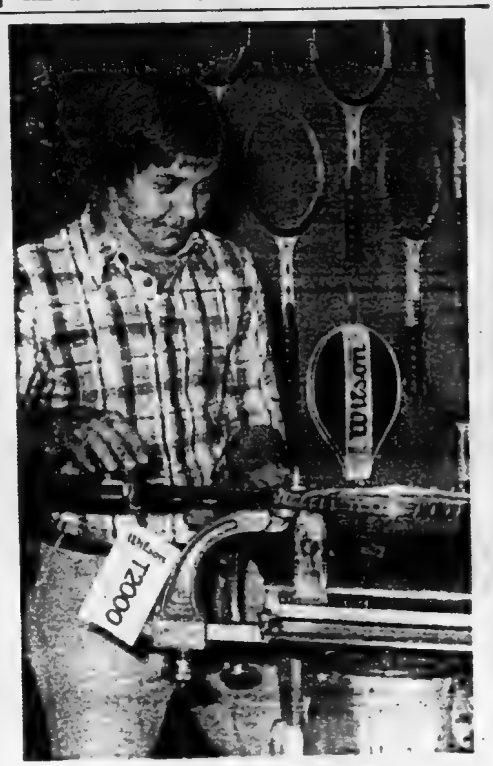
In racquets there are many grip sizes and weights which can make the difference in the outcome of a game.

Another service for the court player available at Racquet Sport is the re-stringing of racquets.

It normally takes about 15 to 30 minutes to re-string a racquet with about 25 to 30 feet of string.

With the advent of the different clubs for the court sports, Mrs. Woodley said she feels the Racquet Sport fulfills a vital need for the specialist.

"We're the only speciality store of this kind between Kingston and Oshawa, who can give complete service."



Racquet Stringing

The stringing of new and old racquets are just part of the service provided by Belleville's only speciality racquet store, Racquet Sports. Store employee Rob Woodley said he is able to string a racquet in about 30 minutes. The owner, Judy Woodley said," we sell knowledge and service, not only, racquets for tennis, badminton, and squash."

Crops 'Recycle' The Air

CHICAGO (AP) — City people can thank farmers not only for their food, but also for the air they breathe, says Prairie Farmer, a leading rural magazine. "It's not just idle talk that farms offer a good, clean atmosphere," it says. "Farm air is fresh and clean. This is because plants help purify or recycle the air."

Safety Tips May Save Your Life

One of Canada's fastest growing leisure activities is boating. In crafts of all sizes, from dinghys and canoes to large power boats, Canadians are making increased use of their easy access to recreational water resources.

The Canadian Red Cross Society reminds water enthusiasts that hand in hand with the increase in boating activity there has been a proportionate increase in tragic accidents.

Many of these could have been prevented had the people who set out to enjoy a pleasant day on the water only known and practised a few basic safety rule

The Red Cross water safety service has developed instruction courses in the proper handling of small craft, including canoes, rowboats and power boats. After completing a course, participants are awarded crests and certificates in recognition of their achievements.

Here are a few safety reminders to help boaters avoid accident:

— obtain copies of the Boating Safety Guide, published by Transport Canada, Marine, from the Red Cross, Information Canada outlets and marine supply stores. Read them carefully.

— check your boat thoroughly before launching and make the necessary rep

— check your [illegible] (life jackets are now called personal flotation devices). Use only the type approved by the federal ministry of transport. Make sure they are in good condition, and try them out in the water. It is particularly important that children's PFD's fit properly.

— never go out in open water if a storm is threatening. When a storm strikes unexpectedly head for the nearest safe anchorage or landing and avoid the temptation to ride out the storm.

— do not stand up or change seats in a small boat, particularly when the boat is fully loaded. If it is necessary to change positions, crouch low and keep the weight on the boat's centreline. Hold on to both gunwales.

— all boats must be equipped with a plate stating maximum safety capacity including motor and fuel. Never exceed that capacity. Overloading a boat is one of the major causes of accidents.

Remember that boating is potentially more dangerous than the operation of your automobile. Protect yourself with the necessary knowledge and skills to ensure the safety of you and your passengers. Enrol in a Red Cross small craft safety course. Let Red Cross help you to stay afloat and enjoy a safe summer.

Parks Ideal Place for Fun in the Sun

There are a vast array of campsites available in the Quinte area.

"Camping is a state of mind, and what you make of it depends on you," states the ministry of industry and tourism booklet, adventures.

The province of Ontario is a vast area, extending from a parallel latitude of northern California to Hudson's Bay. The area is larger than the states of Texas, New Mexico, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and New Jersey combined.

Around the Quinte area, there are a number of provinical parks which can fulfil the needs of almost every camper.

One of these parks, is Bon Echo with 15,500 acres, approximately 20 miles north of Kaladar on Highway 41. It provides 400 tent and trailer sites, toilets, beaches, a picnic area firewood and boat ramps.

One of the more striking points of the camp is the Red Ochre paintings of the Algonquin Indians. They are visible along the granite cliff but only at canoe level.

The province has preserved a scenic 1,210-acre park in Prince Edward County, the Sandbanks.

After many years, the sandbanks was built up from silt which the current of Lake Ontario deposited to form five miles of beaches.

The province is still developing the area but over 125 camp sites are available.

Outlet Beach is a 675-acre park with 462 tent and trailer sites.

Located 11 miles southwest of Picton, Outlet provides toilets, a beach, picnic areas, firewood and parking areas.

To the north of Belleville about 110 miles there is one of the largest provincial parks, Algonquin Park.

Established in 1893, Algonquin park was created to serve as a wildlife sanctuary. Its 2,910 square miles of lakes, rivers and forests, provides an excellent opportunity to camp in one of the province's most natural environments.

Just south of Algonquin Park, Lake St. Peter offers a recreational area of 2,080 acres.

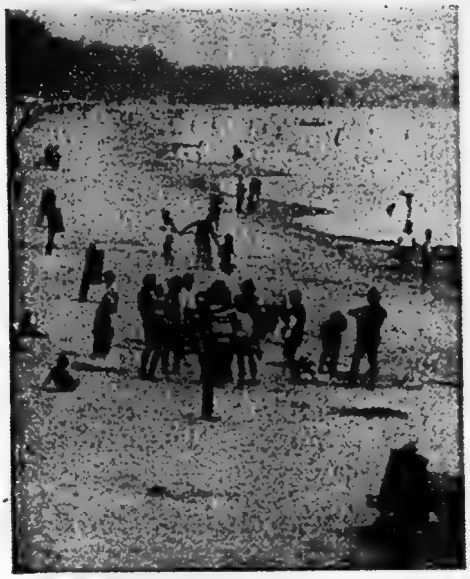
About 60 tent and trailer sites are available each with a picnic table, fireplace, and parking space.

Camping supplies can be obtained near the park, and hotels tourist lodges and private campgrounds are within walking distance of the park.

Two miles south of Brighton, Presqu'ile juts out into Lake Ontario to form a 2,000 acre preserve for education and recreational use.

Eight-hundred tent and trailer sites are located along the beaches, hiking trails, and special areas of interest to naturalists.

The provincial camping areas can provide that special touch with nature without having to travel too far from the Quinte area.



Popular Beach

On a hot weekend, the Quinte area beaches are invaded by thousands of visitors trying to escape the city pavement. At the Outlet Provincial Park, Carol McNeil of the beach patrol, said that on a hot Sunday, it is not unusual for 10,000 to 12,000 people to come to the beach and enjoy the water and sun. The Outlet Park also provides campsites for people who want to stay over-night.

Easter Isle Tablets Said of Spanish Origin

SYDNEY (Reuter) — An Australian author argues that the mysteriously-inscribed tablets of Easter Island in the Pacific owe their origin to the writing system of a party of Spaniards cast away in the Pacific in 1526.

He says in a book just published here that the so-called fleet long thought to have carried the Maoris to New Zealand from the central Pacific was in fact the Spanish castaways trying to get home.

The book, The Lost Caravel, by Robert Langdon, published by Pacific Publications of Sydney, concerns the crew of an 80-ton Spanish caravel—a light sailing vessel—named the San Lesmes, which became separated in a storm in the Pacific from other Spanish ships in June, 1526, while on a voyage to the East Indies. The caravel probably had 50 to 60 men on board.

Langdon, an expert on the South Pacific islands, puts forward the theory that the San Lesmes ran aground on Amanu Atoll, 300 miles east of Tahiti, that the crew survived and intermarried with Polynesian women, and that over the next 250 years they and their descendants spread to many Polynesian islands.

The basis of the theory is that in 1929, four ancient cannons were found embedded in the coral reef on the eastern side of Amanu. Two of them were taken to Tahiti about five years ago and have since been identified as of a type that went out of manufacture about 1560.

According to Langdon's reconstruction, the San Lesmes' crew pushed the four cannon overboard to free their vessel from the reef, then sailed to nearby Hao Atoll to inspect the hull and make repairs.

Subsequently, he believes, they went on to Anaa Atoll, about 250 miles east of Tahiti, where the Spaniards made a second sojourn and some decided to stay.

After that, he thinks they sailed to Raiatea west of Tahiti, where they apparently stayed for several years. But having built a new ship, many of them pushed on in a southwesterly direction apparently hoping to round the Cape of Good Hope and so return to Spain.

This course, Langdon says, took them eventually to New Zealand, where they were apparently mystified by the existence of land well below the latitude of the southern tip of South Africa. As a result they gave up their attempt to return home and settled among the Maoris.

Meanwhile, their compatriots on Anaa and Raiatea thrived, established chiefly dynasties, and eventually provided colonists for other islands, including Tahiti and Easter Island.

Langdon's reconstruction is based on such facts as the skin, eye and hair color of the Pacific islanders since Captain Cook's time, their blood groups, the type of dogs they had, their traditions, religious beliefs and apparent cultural borrowings.

He believes that the San Lesmes castaways grafted many elements of Iberian culture on to the existing Polynesian one, and that much that has previously been attributed to the genius of the Polynesians was, in fact, derived from Europe.

He contends, for example, that the castaways strongly influenced canoe-building and navigational techniques in Polynesia and that some of the elaborate Polynesian chants were adapted from the Bible.

Langdon, a former assistant editor of Pacific Islands Monthly, is executive officer of the Pacific manuscripts bureau at Australian National University in Canberra.

He is also author of a history of Tahiti. His research for the lost caravel extended over almost seven years.

Handicapped To Get Chance To Enjoy Games

HUDSON, N.Y. (CP) — A $4,000 cheque was given to the Olympic fund of the Inter-Service Clubs Council of Montreal by Frontier Town, bringing the total amount set aside for bringing handicapped and poor children to the 1976 Olympic Games to $10,000.

Frontier Town is a western-style amusement operation.

The council, headed by Julius Briskin of Quebec City, set up a fund in 1972 following the success of a 1967 drive to bring 100,000 children from elsewhere in Canada, the United States and Europe to Expo.

About $6,000 of the total will be returned in tickets to the children and the rest will be used for expenses to bring the children and lodge them in Montreal, Briskin said.

The council is also involved in finding lodging for 1,200 teenagers from around the world who will visit the Olympics through the Olympic Youth Camp project, set up by the organizing committee for the Olympics.

Frontier Town, about 150 miles south of Montreal, plans to give another $5,000 to the fund next year. During June it organized a promotional event for a Red Cross Blood Donor Clinic which yielded 268 pints of blood.

The Inter-Service Clubs Council groups nine major service clubs in Montreal.

Sensational Bargain

DISLEY, England (CP) — "What do I have to do to get it free?" asked middle-aged Reuben Lee after ordering $160 worth of meat. "A striptease," replied the butcher, and Lee jumped on a table and started stripping. "He had a lovely, sun-tanned body," said one of three housewives who stayed for the "show", and "he was in very good shape for his age."

Boom in Sailing Keeps Keeble Busy

One of the more popular summer pastimes is sailing on the waters surrounding the Quinte area.

To supply the needs of the serious and amateur sailor, Charles Keeble operates a business making and repairing sails and other marine supplies.

Beginning more than 35 years ago, Mr. Keeble has become one of Canada's leading sailmakers.

Mr. Keeble not only makes about 400 new sails each year, he repairs over 100 during the season.

"We also manufacture sail boat covers, awnings, tents and rigging," he said.

Mr. Keeble added they have the largest supply of marine equipment between Toronto and Montreal.

Eighty per cent of his business he said, is from outside the Quinte area.

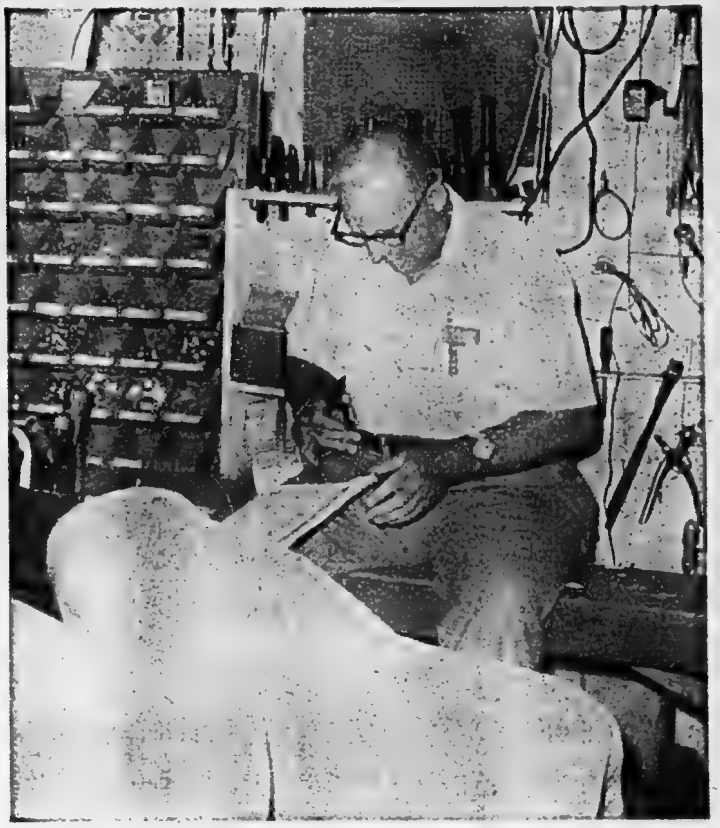
"We just filled an order for a boat to go to the Bahamas, and we have orders going to the U.S.; out west; the prairies and all over central Ontario."

Some of the more famous boats, Mr. Keeble has worked on, is the brigantines St. Lawrence II from Kingston, Pathfinder in Toronto, and the Trident also from Toronto. These vessels are used in the summer to train sea cadets.

Mr. Keeble was the subject of a recent television show 'Regional Contact' on CTV Channel 6.

"They came down and taped the making of a boat to it finally sailing off on the bay."

Mr. Keeble said he mainly uses Dacron as the material for the manufacturing of sails.



Sailmaker at Work

The manufacturing of sails is an art which Charles Keeble has been working at for over 20 years. Mr. Keeble said he makes over 400 sails each year and repairs at least 200 a year. The sailmaker is kept busy going to different regattas. Recently Mr. Keeble was at the CORK Races (Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston) to do the servicing on the boats.

Goose Power Used In Farm Weeding

HALIFAX (CP). — Canadian farmers, faced with rising costs in almost every sector of their operations, have been forced to develop innovations to offset the bind they've been forced into.

In Nova Scotia a unique form of power has been developed—it's called goose power.

"For complete details of how to use geese as weeders, contact your local office of the department of agriculture," advises a farm bulletin published by the province.

In fact, 165 goslings are expected this month in Cumberland County to work on three farms owned by Seymour Dickinson, Laurie Hanna and Ralston Ripley.

The geese, unlike human farm laborers, work continuously.

They are described by agriculture department spokesman as excellent in strawberry fields. They go down the rows, nipping off grass and weeds as new growth appears. The biggest plus?—They don't eat the strawberries!

"Geese also remove grass next to the plants which is impossible to remove by hoeing and cultivation, without damage to plant roots," the Farm News advises. "This is especially true during wet seasons when field conditions prevent usual cultivation, and grass and weed growth results."

It's also said that the geese keep ditches and fence-rows clear and add fertility to growing plants.

Under average conditions two to four geese per acre will do the job in plantings. Low fences are all that is required as geese seldom fly.

There are several reports of electric fencing being used successfully. A single wire eight or nine inches above the ground not only keeps the geese in but also discourages dogs and other animals from disturbing the geese.

The "proper care and control" instructions from the agriculture department suggest that the farmer place housing and food at one end of the field for the geese and water at the other end. It also suggests that the shelter provided for the geese be sufficient to protect them from dogs and foxes and that the program begin early before grass and weeds become serious problems.

WATER SAF

HOW TO PLAY SAFELY NEAR THE WATER

ELEVEN WATER SAFETY RULES FOR PARENTS

1. Watch your children whenever they are near the water . . . and prevent a dreadful tragedy.
2. Children are poor swimmers or non-swimmers . . . they must wear life jackets. You know — young children move quickly . . . watch them carefully.
3. Watch children playing with plastic toys. They are fun on the beach — HAZARDOUS in the water. The slightest breeze will carry them out of reach into deep water.
4. Don't use inner tubes, water wings, etc., if you can't swim. The false confidence they build may cost your life.
5. Even after small children learn to swim, VIGILANT SUPERVISION must be continued.
6. Do not permit swimming in unknown waters. Have a responsible adult check a new area for drop-offs, currents, water purity — and for safe, firm bottoms.
7. Do not swim alone under any circumstances. Child and adult alike may panic when no help is near.
8. Don't swim in the dark . . . it's dangerous.
9. Know and teach "reaching assists" . . . how to help a swimmer in difficulty by lying flat and extending an arm, a pole or paddle, or towel or clothing . . . how to throw a line or a ring buoy . . . KNOWLEDGE SAVES LIVES.
10. Prevent boat accidents - WEAR YOUR LIFE JACKET!
11. DON'T OVERLOAD A BOAT . . . it's dangerous and stupid. If boat does capsize — HANG ON! Wait for help to come to you.

SAFETY HINTS AROUND THE HOME

Because children love to play in water, they must be watched constantly if there are creeks, rivers or ponds, no matter how small, near the home. A ditch, flooded after a storm, can be a death trap.

Cover open wells. Attention to this constant danger will prevent tragedy.

Make sure deep excavations in your neighborhood are fenced, and small children supervised at play.

Anticipate and prevent that one fatal slip.

Garden ponds and plastic wading pools should be supervised while children are at play — and closed off when supervision is absent. Remember! Children have drowned in as little as two or three inches of water.

Around the home, teach your children to avoid these dangers.

SAFETY TIPS FOR BOAT

YOU MUST: Carry filled fire extinguishers, lights, signal apparatus and ground tackle according to the law.

YOU MUST: Keep to the right when meeting another boat and give the right-of-way to vessels approaching on the starboard (right) side — the boat on your right always has the right-of-way.

YOU MUST: Always be courteous, careful and competent. Keep away from large vessels, which are not as manoeuverable as small craft. Keep away from sailboats — small ones may be swamped by the wash from a powerboat. Keep away from swimming areas.

Timber Firms' Fight Conservationist View

SYDNEY (Reuter) — Australia's timber industry has formed an organization solely devoted to counteracting conservationist claims that the country's forests are doomed.

The conservationists believe that current forestry production techniques will mean the end of Australia's hardwood forests. They fear that big areas of forest lands in eastern Australia will be denuded of eucalyptus trees by the year 2,000.

According to conservationists, the establishment of a wood-chip industry will result in the cutting of trees previously spared because they are considered unsuitable for timber.

Now, the Forest View, an organization formed by all sectors of the timber industry, is going to great lengths to try to allay such fears.

Forest View insists that far from endangering the country's forests, present timber production techniques actually assure better growth, and that the saw-millers to make it titer use of logs.

As the first step in its campaign to reassure conservationists, the Forest View assembled some of Australia's best-known tree experts and took a large Australian press party over the twofold Bay-Eden wood-chip licence area in southern New South Wales.

The area covers about 490,000 acres of mainly eucalyptus forests. Disastrous bushfires in 1952 and 1972 killed thousands of trees in the forest and slowed down the growth of others, making them unsuitable for commercial use.

Six years ago, the Australian government allowed a joint Australian - Japanese company to establish a wood-chip factory on the shores of Twofold Bay and today 40 sawmills in the area supply the factory there.

Conservationists believe that forestry techniques pose hazards to wildlife and will encourage soil erosion on cleared areas.

Dr. J. M. Gilbert, who is regarded as Australia's greatest authority on eucalyptus forests, disagrees with the critics. Trees that were unsuitable for timber or pulpwood were left to encourage regrowth and evidence had shown that within five years logging scars healed and new, stronger trees resulted, he said.

Dr. Gilbert said most soil erosion took place after forest fires, but improved roads in the forests would enable better control of future fires.

'Other Worlds' Collection of Odd Tales

Other Worlds, Other Universes, subtitled Playing the Reality Game, might equally well be subtitled The Importance of Knowing What the Hell Goes on Around Here.

According to the editors of this collection of far-out essays and one piece of fiction, the object of life is to know reality, to understand ourselves and the cosmos as fully as possible. The rules of the game "may be confusing, extremely flexible, and difficult to define, but play you must—for it is the only game in the universe."

Certain clues can help the would-be cosmic citizen to obtain a clearer picture of his true role in the whole scheme of things, a role that is decidedly different from what common sense tells him it is.

The collection includes such authors as Timothy Leary, high priest of the psychedelic drug cult, who concludes life on this planet is of extra-terrestrial origin and destination; Arthur Ford, the trance medium, and a quartet of Unidentified Flying Object (UFO) specialists, Trevor James Constable, Jacques Vallee, Barry Downing and David Spangler.

The idea here seems to be that UFOs probably come from other dimensions rather than other planets, and may never be satisfactorily explained.

A more homey touch is added to the dimension area with the story of Lauchie, a Scotsman who was pursued by a fairy-woman. Seeking to escape her he emigrated to Cape Breton, landing at Pictou (spelled Pictu in the book), N.S. But alas for Lauchie, when he got to the brave new world, the fairy-woman continued to haunt him there.

The editors include a warning that "Playing the Reality Game can be hazardous to your health. . . . in going from . . . common-sense reality, everyday mind to . . . beyond consensual reality to a new state of consciousness, you pass through paranoia (a necessary stage of derangement and rearrangement of your mental structures)."

Canoe Care Vital

Canoeing is becoming more popular every year. This is not surprising as a canoe provides the means of escaping the noise, rush and smog of urban living to a greater extent than many other recreational means.

The Ontario Safety League points out to the canoeists that unless they have sufficient knowledge of the craft they are handling and the situations into which it can take them, they can be in even more deadly peril than in city or highway traffic.

This fact is proven by the number of paddlers who have drowned already this year in Ontario. In almost every instance, it was lack of knowledge and experience in handling a canoe which caused the fatality.

There are a few basic principles of canoeing which everyone should know before attempting a canoe trip without experienced assistance. The only safe position in a canoe is kneeling, or sitting on the bottom of the craft.

This keeps the centre of gravity low and minimizes the danger of capsizing. It also helps the canoeist to keep his balance which prevents falling overboard, the usual cause of canoeing accidents.

Always stay with the canoe if you should fall out or capsize, even in cold water, and kick the canoe ashore using it as a life raft.

The league emphasizes the advisability of learning to swim before attempting to paddle a canoe and in hazardous situations always wear a suitable flotation jacket.

No Fish Tale

When one is planning a fishing trip to the many parks and lakes in the Quinte area, like Guy Wood, right, he wants to have the best variety of lures for the different types of fish. Guy is receiving advice from the owner of Bob's Sport, Bob Blaind. Bob says there are a lot of good fishing areas around and one of the better ones is the government docks.

Fishing Not Costly

There are probably as many fish stories as there are fish in the waters surrounding the Quinte area.

Trout, pickeral, bass, and even some co'o salmon are the majority of fish caught in these waters.

Bob Blaind, owner of Bob's Sports on Front St. S., said he finds more people buying fishing equipment just for the fun of the sport.

"The Bay of Quinte is just as good as any place," said Mr. Blaind.

"Other good places are West and East Lake, Consecon Lake, and there are a lot of places just north of the city."

Mr. Blaind is expecting a banner year for coho salmon this fall because the water is clearing up.

There are several styles of fishing. There are spin, fly troll, casting and mud-cat fishing.

There is also a variety of bait. The most popular bait is worms; with the use of minnows, cray-fish and frogs as the next best bets.

Artificial bait is also in great demand.

An avid fisherman, George Cooper, an employee with Kelly's Sport Shop, said "fishing, in the last ten years has increased by leaps and bounds."

Mr. Cooper, who said he started fishing with a bent pin as a hook and a piece of string, said "there's just nothing you can't catch a fish with."

For the various types of fishing, casting has to be learned by trial and error; while the art of fly fishing should be taught by an instructor.

Mr. Cooper recommends kids be supervised when they are fishing.

The initial costs for a complete outfit starts about $15 to $20 upwards.

Tool-lending Service Beats Food Costs

DEEP RIVER, Ont. (CP) — Residents of this Ottawa Valley town have beaten the high cost of gardening by joining the local horticultural society.

For $1.50 a year they can use more than 71 big garden tools such as fence-stretchers, soil-lifters or aerators, and never have to worry about cost, maintenance or storage.

More than 300 families know a good thing when they see one and have joined the Deep River Horticultural Society. This gives the society $1,200 in dues and $500 in provincial grants.

The $150 to $250 a year necessary to keep the tool-loan service operating does not put any strain on the society's budget.

All the tools are stored by members, whose 47 names, addresses and telephone numbers are listed in the society's annual yearbook. They are strategically located throughout the area, evening out the chore of transportation.

Squash

One of the newest recreational activities to come to the Quinte area, is the game of squash. The Belleville Squash Club members Wilfred Minninga and Syd Haider have a hard and fast game but it still is a friendly one. The club's facilities include a sauna, shower, and a whirlpool.

Squash Finds New Fans Among City Residents

A new sport has come to the Belleville area. The Belleville Squash Club, on Station St., has been open since May of last year.

Squash was originally started in England and has slowly spread through the rest of the world.

With 135 members, the Belleville Squash Club is the only club of this kind between Toronto and Montreal.

The club is open seven days a week from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m.

Ray Scott, part-time manager of the club, said the courts are really busy during the winter months, but in the summer a lot of people are out travelling so use declines

"We offered a four-month membership for the summer costing $50 to try and boost membership," said Mr. Scott.

Twenty-three people have joined under this plan, he said.

Squash is like a combination of tennis, badminton and handball.

There is a server and a receiver, and the playing area consists of the floor and the surrounding walls.

A different variation of the game has been developed in the U.S.

There they play with a different ball, harder than the English ball) and the court is marked out giving more area for play.

International coverage of the game has just started. Television coverage has been hampered by the court size, but installing clear plastic walls, viewing of the action can be easily observed.

Visitors are welcomed to see the club, and try out the game.

Guest fees of $3 are possible with the sponsorship of one of the members.

Usually five or six games can be played in the 40 minutes of playing time, allotted to each court.

After the game, a shower and a whirlpool bath is available.

"It's an excellent conditioning game which can be played at one's own level," said Mr. Scott.

Mr. Scott said the popularity of the sport is not just in Canada, but world wide. In Japan, it is estimated that 3,000 courts will be built within the next ten years.

The cost of equipment is about $40 which includes a pair of shoes.

The membership fee to the Belleville Squash Club is a $100 a year, for men, (plus an initiation fee of $300); and $120 for women a year.

Amherst Outdoorsman Combines Art, Nature

AMHERST, N.S. (CP) — Hunters, fishermen and everyone who loves the outdoors experiences some of the artist's communion with nature.

Fred Nicholas of Amherst has long combined vocation and avocation, being both an artist and an outdoorsman.

Mr. Nicholas, who likes to describe himself as in his "early 80s," says of his painting: "I am most concerned with painting directly from nature, eliminating as much detail as possible, but endeavoring to capture the mood, time of day, season. . . . "

Born in Birmingham, England, his first schoolmaster was an artist. He went to work as a page in Oxfordshire for a brief period before coming to Canada in 1913.

On the ship to Canada he met his future wife whom he married two years later.

Working in the Amherst area he painted for a hobby, capturing the rugged shoreline of southern New Brunswick while vacationirg on Grand Manan Island and later the Nova Scotia shore.

"It's beautiful country here in the Maritimes," he said.

He works extensively with water colors on rice paper creating a tenuous, fragile effect.

Mr. Nicholas has hunted and fished throughout most of surrounding Cumberland County over the years and still goes fishing.

"You get to know nature so well; it's amazing what you can see," he says. "You can sit and the birds light around you. Moose have often passed quite close to me when I've been out painting. It's as though nature accepts you."

But he has little time for fishing now that he has started to acquire a reputation through his work.

Buyers from Amherst to Vancouver and parts of the United States have purchased his works.

Recently the Canadian government acquired one of his paintings for a presentation in London.

A young Canadian woman at the presentation recognized the work and exclaimed: "I know that artist. It's Fred Nicholas from Nova Scotia."

Mr. Nicholas said when the story reached him it did wonders for his ego.

In recent years his works have been displayed in the Toronto Public Library, the Brantford, Ont., Public Library, the Beaverbrook Art Gallery in Fredericton and the annual Maritime Art Show.

Park Values Are Promoted

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — A lot of visitors never learn to appreciate Banff National Park on its own terms, says Rose Dobson, chief naturalist at the park.

"They wander up and down Banff Avenue and don't realize they're in a national park.

"The natural values and park values are unknown to them."

As head of the interpretative services in Canada's oldest national park, Mr. Dobson hopes to change that.

He and his staff of 13 naturalists, who see themselves as "translators of nature," canoe, bike and hike with visitors to help acquaint them with the park.

It's a Tent?

With the advent of the hiking trails and the increase of the camping sites, more people are venturing out to explore the out-of-doors. Owner of Stephen Licence, Jerry Bongard shows one of the new light and portable two-man tents to Bob Hinton. Mr. Bongard says camping supplies are in great demand by people who want to get away from the city life.

Recreation Vehicles Come in All Sizes

In recent years, the travel trailer has grown in popularity mainly because of the convenience they can provide.

There are basically three different types of trailers, the regular travel trailer, the mobile home and one of the newest the Fifth Wheel trailer.

The prices for each of the different types vary depending on the size of the unit you want.

The travel trailer which can be bought in sizes of 17 to 27 feet, on the average, is usually in the price range of $3,000 to $10,000.

The larger models are complete with kitchens, bathrooms, eating and sleeping quarters.

Another popular form of recreational vehicle is the mobile home.

Larger than its contemporaries, the mobile home offers a range of facilities far extending the smaller trailers.

The over-all concept, of the mobile home take into account the needs of a family. Not only are they completely insulated with the option of electric or oil heating, they have connections for washers and dryers. Prices range from $13,000 to $17,000.

Another self-contained unit, with the same facilities as the larger units and the travel trailers is the Fifth Wheel.

An advantage of the Fifth Wheel is it's cabover, or the area of the trailer that is on top of the pick-up bed. In many models this space serves as a bedroom.

The main reason why this extra space is over the pick-up bed is that it does not add to the lenght of the trailer.

In other words, a 23 foot length Fifth Wheel has the same space as a 28-foot length trailer.

The point of connection with the truck and trailer is another advantage because it provides stability and towability. The connection is directly over the rear axle of the truck.

Because they are so closely engaged the amount of sway is greatly reduced.

Their prices start around $8,500.

Basic Equipment Makes Camping Fun

The main point to remember when thinking about camping is to plan what supplies you may require on your trip.

If you are just going on an overnight outing at one of the provincial parks, it may be only necessary to take along a small tent with such basic items such as extra clothes, a sleeping bag, cooking utensils, and a first-aid kit.

Many retail stores have the basic items but if you wish to go hiking or bicycling you will have to plan your needs differently.

A pair of hiking boots may be bought or else just a good pair of comfortable walking shoes.

A light-weight tent; a portable stove (some weigh less than three pounds); a tire repair kit; and probably most important, insect repellant should be used by the adventurous spirit.

Bigger Boats Popular

With the summer sun good weather fully upon us, many people enjoy relaxing around the water's edge. Some swim, some stroll, and some just sit and watch.

The water is a major source of relaxation and pleasure.

Cruising the waterways of the Quinte area can lead to many enjoying moments. The Bay of Quinte leads to the Trent Canal, up through the Kawartha area to Lake Ontario, via the Murray Canal, westward to the metropolitan cities and to the nation's capital, Ottawa, through the Rideau Canal.

Sterling Shandraw, general manager of Vaughen's Marina who also sell power boats, said "more people are buying the overnight craft than the smaller runabouts."

Mr. Shandraws reasons people want to go someqhere without the upkeep of a cottage.

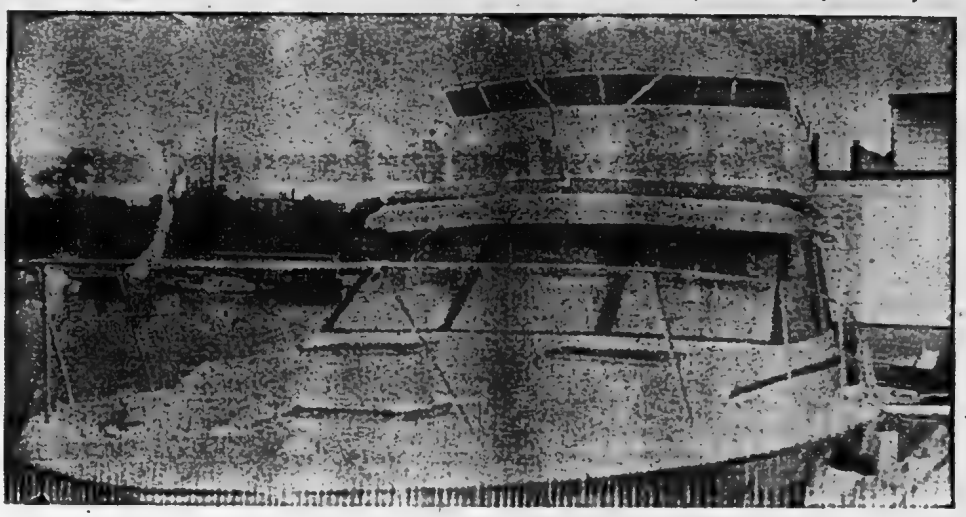
In reference to the proposed changes in the waterfront that might include a yacht basin east of the city; and docks surrounding the mouth of the Moira River; Mr. Shandraw said it would be beneficial to the entire city for recreation and for the local businesses.

To service the area are docking facilities in Belleville Trenton; eastward at Deseronto, Picton and in Kingston.

Most of these docks can provide gas, food, a pump house and usually a mechanic for repairs if needed.

"We have some small sail boats but we strictly sell stern drive boats," said Mr. Shandraw.

The initial cost for a runabout with a 50 horsepower engine, complete with a trailer would be approximately $2,500, said Mr. Shandraw.



Boating Popular

Boating the waters of the Bay of Quinte to Lake Ontario and beyond through the canal systems is a growing pastime for many more people through-out the area. Bill Vaughan of Vaughan's Marina, says more people throughout the larger boats because it is just as cheap as buying a cottage and with less upkeep.

Mayor Reserves Options

Jeffrey Bids For PC Post

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Mayor Robin Jeffrey says she will make no decision about stepping down as mayor of Belleville until after a PProgressive Conservative nomination meeting chooses a successor for Quinte MPP Dr. R.T. Potter.

She said she would have to "wait and see what happens at the convention" before making any decision on her civic office.

"I don't intend to do anything about that until my position becomes more clear," she said.

The mayor — in a telephone interview from Toronto Tuesday night — confirmed what has been a topic of mounting speculation in local politics in recent weeks: she would bid for the nomination if Correctional Services Minister Richard Potter decided not to seek re-election.

Dr. Potter, who has represented the Belleville—Trenton area as a city councillor in 1967. In 1971 she was elected to her first term as mayor.

Her announcement now sets off another round of speculation in city politics. This centres on her city hall successor should she win the nomination and later the election expected this fall.

Under Ontario municipal law council could fill the vacancy this year either by appointing one of its own members or calling an election.

In a statement on her political intentions Mayor Jeffrey emphasized her years of experience in municipal government affairs, "not only involving Belleville but in the Quinte area."

She has been a member of the provincial milk commission for the past six years.

She said she felt this "background of experience" would be "an asset to the people of the Quinte area for any person they select to represent them at Queen's Park."

Mayor Jeffrey will have a clearer evaluation of her choice before city council is due to meet again in early session.

Gerry Brennan, Conservative riding association president, has said the party will hold a nomination meeting around August 11-14.

City council's next regular meeting isn't due until the following week.

Three Want Mayoralty

Half of Aldermen For Appointment

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Five of 10 city aldermen favor council appointing a mayor rather than holding a byelection, in a telephone poll by this paper today.

Aldermen Bo Meeks, Jean Smith, Wally Dever and Paul Russell were unavailable for comment.

The only council member who did not commit himself on replacement procedure was Ald. Joe Orr, who said it is premature to talk about it and that "all ramifications" of appointment and election would have to be considered carefully before I will be able to make up my mind."

Al d., Keegan said he "deserves" the mayor's chair and that because he will not seek re-election next year, "I will not have an unfair advantage over mayoralty candidates at that time."

Ald. Jack Ireland said "appointment is the only way to go and that an election would be pretty disastrous." He said he isn't interested but I haven't got the time for the mayor's office."

Israeli Army Hunts Terrorists in Lebanon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israeli soldiers crossed into Lebanon early today hunting for terrorists and battled Arab gunmen.

The Israeli command said seven Israeli soldiers were wounded and seven Arabs were captured in a raid on one village.

The Lebanese defence ministry said the Israelis struck at villages, touching off a two-hour artillery duel in which one Lebanese woman and a child were wounded. It said six Arabs were taken prisoner.

The Israeli command said its soldiers crossed into the village of Kalah in the northern Israeli panhandle and Arab gunners fired on them from two houses.

It said the Israelis blew up the houses.

The Lebanese defence ministry confirmed two houses were blown up but said the Israelis also hit the village of Houra, more than a mile from the Israeli frontier.

Israel usually accused the Arabs of firing mortar shells across the border at the Israeli panhandle settlement. There were no Israeli casualties or damage and the Israeli command said.

It was the first Israeli raid into Lebanon since July 7, when ships, planes and troops moved through two Palestinian camps, attacking suspected guerrilla targets.

Eight Charged With Cashing Stolen Cheques

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — Eight Toronto persons, five of them women, have been charged with uttering forged documents involving the cashing of nearly 200 government cheques between May and August of last year, police say.

Police say the cheques, including family allowance returns, family allowance and old-age pension cheques, were almost all stolen from mail boxes in Toronto apartment buildings.

Total amount of money involved is about $250,000, police say, and seven other persons will be charged.

Health Department OK for Trent Waterfront Cottages Urged

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Cy Macdonald, chairman of the Lower Trent River Conservation Authority water control board, has received approval of a move to ask municipalities in the watershed to get a health department stamp of approval on building permits before they are issued to waterfront cottages.

Mr. Macdonald said Tuesday the building of individual sewage disposal systems could be one cause of reported sighting of raw sewage in the Trent River.

Authority executive members agreed Tuesday to send letters requesting health department involvement.

Mr. Macdonald said the problem of cottage additions is centred on the Trent River.

In some cases, an addition is erected and the cottage owner rents it to a recreational occupant. The resultant increase in effluent overloads the sewage system.

His comments Tuesday, he said, are based on well-founded suspicions.

He said not all municipalities keep as watchful an eye on additions to cottages and some do not seek health department approval of such construction.

The problem has arisen since the release of the Canada-Ontario Lower Trent-Severn committee report that indicates COTTS in future will become involved with providing access to waterfront properties to the public.

In anticipation of such a move, says Mr. Macdonald, owners are adding to cottages on land that is inadequate for a complete cottage.

Sadat Sends His Answer On UN Force

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Egypt today delivered its reply to the Security Council appeal that the United Nation's emergency force be allowed to remain in the Sinai beyond Thursday's expiration of the mandate.

Egyptian Ambassador Esmat Abdel Meguid handed the message to the council president, Italian Ambassador Eugenio Plaja.

The contents were not immediately disclosed.

Earlier, council members expressed confidence that Egyptian President Anwar Sadat would heed the appeal sent to him Monday night, although he failed Tuesday to announce his assent in a major speech.

"There is no crisis atmosphere," a western diplomat said today. "Everyone seems to feel that something will be worked out."

Meanwhile, Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced that the third round of the Cyprus peace talks, due to open Thursday in Vienna, had been postponed until July 31.

He said the Greek and Turkish Cypriot representatives had been consulted and agreed to the postponement.

Oil Not Checked

MIAMI (AP) — The United States Coast Guard says floating booms have failed to keep thousands of gallons of spilled oil from washing ashore, most of it on a 25-mile stretch of Florida Keys beach east of Key West.

"We tried to deflect it to uninhabited beaches so we could clean it up easier, but it just didn't work," coast guard Lieut. Henry Przelomski said Tuesday.

Coastal Quotas Exceeded

Atlantic Ports Closed To Russian Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is closing East Coast ports to Soviet fishing vessels to protest alleged overfishing in Canadian coastal waters.

Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc announced the move today, saying it followed "every diplomatic attempt" to get Soviet co-operation.

"We deeply regret that it has become necessary . . ." he said. "But everything else failed and we cannot let this situation continue."

Mr. LeBlanc said some time ago that this action would be taken if all other diplomatic efforts failed.

The closure is effective July 30.

"Over the past year, the Soviet fleet has consistently overfished certain of its quotas," the minister told reporters. He said the only official response from Moscow to Canadian representations "was for them to question our evidence."

The quotas are set by the International Commission for the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries. and Mr. LeBlanc said the Soviets last year appear to have exceeded their 85,000 metric ton capelin quota by 67 to 85 per cent in one fishing zone. They also were exceeded for herring near the New Scotia coast.

"We have used every method available to bring all these matters to the attention of the Soviet authorities," said the minister. Finally, last Monday, International Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen informed Moscow of this decision.

Canada also had been unsuccessful in getting Moscow to settle outstanding claims for damage to Canadian lobster gear in 1974. Although the Soviets agreed to co-operate to settle the claims, Mr. LeBlanc said there has been no satisfactory response yet.

Pacific ports will not be affected.

The minister said the move will have "some negative impact" on port revenues.

"This is, however, far outweighed by the importance of our own fishing industry to the economy and by the need to protect the fish stocks off our coast."

Hint of War Brings Ouster

LIMA (AP) — Edith Lederer, chief of bureau of The Associated Press in Peru, was expelled from the country Tuesday night.

Peru government said she had filed stories "lacking veracity regarding the shooting exhibition of the Peruvian air force and with the deliberate purpose of damaging relations of friendship between Peru and Chile."

On Sunday, Miss Lederer covered war games by the Peruvian air force and wrote that 30 of the planes carried out more than 50 bombing runs on 14 decoy fishing boats.

She said the planes hit 10 of the boats, that the other four appeared untouched, and that none sank.

She also wrote that some observers interpreted the show as a warning to the Chileans that Peru was "ready and not afraid of a replay of the 1879-84 War of the Pacific" between the two countries.

Opposition Impatient

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen was pressured Tuesday in the Commons for a firm statement declaring a 200-mile offshore fishing limit.

A concerted attack by Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party MPs came one day after Newfoundland Premier Frank Moores presented a 100,000-signature petition calling for unilateral action to this effect.

Mr. MacEachen and Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc said the province is not as black as the opposition paints it.

Monday, a U.S. House of Representatives committee approved a bill establishing a 200-mile territorial fishing limit. Spokesmen for the subcommittee are reported to be optimistic that congressional action may be final by Christmas.

Great Things Ahead - - Spacemen

HOUSTON (AP) — Astronaut Thomas Stafford, commanding the last United States manned space mission for at least four years, said today he regrets the end of that era but predicted "great things" for the space-shuttle phase of exploration.

Stafford made his statement at a news conference that he, Vance Brand and Donald Slayton held in their orbiting Apollo on the day before they return to earth. It was the first international space mission.

Asked if he regretted the passing of an era, Stafford said:

"I've been with the program a great number of years, so there certainly is a bit of nostalgia in seeing this phase come to an end.

"But we will be opening a new era with the shuttle," he said. "I just regret it will be a few years before there will be any more manned space shots.

"With the shuttle, space is going to be more of a medium to work in where it will be a benefit for all people on earth. Great things will be accomplished and it will be much less expensive."

Stafford said he thought the Apollo-Soyuz mission was worth the $30-million cost to the United States.

"It put together a new docking mechanism for both countries and they both contributed to it equally," he said.

"And the flight showed that in spite of great political differences between countries, that if people meet environmenta, they a lot can be achieved."

Loyalist Gets Color TV

The necessity of replacements has enabled Loyalist College to realize a long-awaited goal.

Ernest Koelsel, director of Public relations said Monday students in television production in the school of communication, of which he is also director, will finally be able to work with color equipment in September.

The new equipment involves two cameras, a videoprocessor and two color encoders at a cost of about $45,00 — "really replacement capital," he said.

The color switch became possible when it was determined after the last semester that some black-and-white equipment needed replacing due to deterioration, Mr. Koelsel explained.

He noted the college has held off a color change due to costs but "there's no use now to get black-and-white equipment.

"From here on, any black-and-white replacements will be in color," he said.

Prize List Incorrect

PICTON — Regular exhibitors at Prince Edward County fair all were eager "to take the cake" after reading the 1975 prize list distributed last week.

In the County Fair Cake Competition a class for white layer cake, iced, offered a first prize of a hamper of groceries valued at $10 to be donated by the A and P store here.

Corrections are in the mail to exhibitors this week advertising that in this class first prize should have read "hamper of groceries, value $10".

The fair opens September 5 and continues through September 7.

Potter's Career Often Stormy

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Richard Potter, Ontario's minister of correctional services, once said he did not go to Queen's Park "to jump like a trained seal and ring a bell" but "to get some badly-needed changes in our health and welfare departments."

The Belleville physician, who announced Tuesday his impending retirement, said he is not seeking re-election as the Ontario NDPP because "I think I've made my contribution."

At 60, married with four children, Dr. Potter said he now wants to spend more time in his home area.

His eight-year political career spanned three cabinet posts — first as minister without portfolio in 1971 before tackling the job of minister of health.

But the independent-minded Progressive Conservative did not wait for a cabinet posting to make known his views on what he thought the government should be doing.

His unsolicited report in 1970 calling for integration of medical and hospital insurance and inclusion of nursing-home care, dental treatment and prescription drugs as insured services cost him a government appointment as chairman of the legislature's standing committee on health.

He staged a one-man campaign during the Conservative leadership race in 1971, urging delegates not to commit votes until they heard candidates' stands on important issues.

Among promises he wanted from a political government responsible for the province's unlapped resources of backbencher was to be utilized in government standing committees would be made effective and the government would take a realistic view of the "staggering" cost of social and government-assistance programs.

As minister without portfolio in the Davis government and chairman of a number of interdepartmental committees on youth, he urged establishment of a youth secretariat, which was later set up.

Of his early suggestions on altering health care, he commented: "I was put to move on one — a provincial dentlcare plan. Not all were realized during his two-year term as health minister which started in February 2, 1972.

As minister of correctional services, one of his last duties in the legislature was to defend his officials against Liberal criticism that security at Ontario's regional detention centre had eroded since the break-out of five armed prisoners.

He admitted many programs were not perfect but rejected as unnecessary a special debate on security problems in the provincial system.

Reports Boring, Says Byers

PICTON — Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers Tuesday night questioned Prince Edward County council's system for submitting committee reports and termed it out of the most boring parts of council."

Deputy-reeve Byers said the chairman of each committee simply reads his report with no background information provided for other councillors who do not sit on his particular committee.

"We can all read," observed deputy-reeve Byers.

He suggested the chairmen should explain what takes place at the committee meetings instead of delivering written reports.

Prince Edward warden Clifford Walker voiced agreement with the deputy-reeve and noted the system of receiving the reports has been discussed on other occasions.

"Unless you sit on a committee you don't know what goes on," he remarked.

The warden added that further discussion of the system of reports is likely to take place.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce observed that county council can consider the method of processing reports in future discussions.

Construction Workers Off Jobs at Cement Plant

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Construction workers belonging to Laborers International Union, Local 247, picketed the entrance of the Lake Ontario Cement Co. plant near here today seeking a wage increase of approximately $3 an hour over a two-year period.

The workers have been employed for several months on construction jobs at the cement plant where four separate projects are in progress.

Al Cochrane of Picton, union co-ordinator for this district said the union workers' contract expired in April and laborers now are in a legal position to strike.

"We decided that we would do only spot picketing," he said.

Mr. Cochrane commented that the laborers want pay increases equal to other trades and have asked for an increase of about $3 an hour over a two-year period.

A union meeting will be held tonight in Kingston and Mr. Cochrane said it is expected a complete strike will be recommended.

"We are getting nowhere with this," he explained referring to the spot picketing.

Last Thursday laborers picketed at cement plant for one day.

Mr. Cochrane said the executive of Local 247, International Union of United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers has not yet been approached to walk out in sympathy with the strikers.

"But the possibility is open," he added.

All other employees at the cement plant have been permitted to enter and leave without incident during the spot picketing.

The laborers' international union has a membership of approximately 800 workers. There were approximately eight in the picket line today. A number of the laborers were grouped on the sidelines.

Good Set This Year

Smithfield experimental farm superintendent H. Blair Heeney predicts a bumper apple crop in the Quinte area this year, if weather conditions remain normal. Blossoming and the set of fruit was good, he said, but not to the point at which growers would have to use chemical "thinners" to relieve overloaded branches. "So far, everything is ideal," Mr. Heeney said.

Apple Crop Looks Good Despite Rain

By CASS MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

SMITHFIELD — Quinte area apple growers can look forward to one of the best harvests in years if weather conditions stay normal for the balance of the growing season, says Blair Heeney, superintendent of the Smithfield federal experimental farm.

"It's as good a crop as I've ever seen in this district, at this stage," Mr. Heeney said. "The bloom was good, the set was good and we finally got rain right at the time it was needed."

This year the harvest will be 10-15 days early, Mr. Heeney said. "Quinte and other early varieties will be ready for first harvesting next week."

The farm director added that insect and disease problems this year had been minimal, largely because "the weather didn't work against us."

The only processing crop to be adversely affected by weather so far, said Mr. Heeney, was peas. "They got rain at the wrong time."

Other crops — corn, tomatoes, cucumbers and others are coming along well, Mr. Heeney said. "If the weather stays anywhere near normal, we should have a good fruit and vegetable crop year in this part of the country."

Brunelle To Open Home

PICTON — The H.J. McFarland Memorial Home for the Aged will be open ed officially by minister of social services Rene Brunelle on August 30 in a ceremony to be attended by approximately 600 persons.

Prince Edward County councillors were told Tuesday night by Warden Clifford Walker that Ontario premier William Davis will be unable to attend the opening as he has other commitments.

Instead of a reception at the Carling Club as originally planned, a luncheon will be held at the home for the aged with as many of its residents as possible participating in the day's events.

Authority Withdraws From Proctor House

FRANKFORD — High renovation costs and lack of sufficient office space prompted the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority to wash its hands of involvement in the century-old Proctor House in Brighton.

The decision for the authority executive Tuesday signals an end to talks over joint use of the building with SOHO, the Save Our Heritage Organization.

SOHO now will get exclusive use of the hill-top structure

Vacant School Now Considered

FRANKFORD — Conservation authority officials here will wait to hear the asking price for the unused Glen Miller public school before making a final decision to buy the building for its new office.

The three classroom structure is being looked upon as the new location for Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority offices, now located in the Frankford municipal building.

Paul Tripp, conservation areas board chairman, suggested Tuesday the school building to the executive as a way out of the overcrowded conditions of present office.

Once a price for the building is obtained from the Hastings County Board of Education, discussion will be routed through the executive and go on to the full authority for a final decision.

under the same lease worked out between the two groups in 1974.

Proctor House, owned by the authority, is leased to SOHO. The group has spent over $80,000 in Local Initiative Program (LIP) funds restoring the building.

Executive action came after a three-man ad hoc committee reported that the lease renovation costs could rise to $90,000 — $10,000 more than had been originally estimated. SOHO wanted the authority to pay for installation of wiring and plumbing, estimated by SOHO at $30,000.

"Much of this (increase) is due to the fact that a great percentage of what they (SOHO) have done will have to be redone," said the report.

It criticized interior restoration that it said would have to be partly removed to install necessary insulation for year-round use.

"It is most unfortunate that all of the ballyhoo regarding the $80,000 to $90,000 that was spent from LIP programs was continually brought to the attention of citizens, where in effect, perhaps less than $30,000 was well spent."

In addition to his renovation costs, ad hoc committee member Art Wartman said maintenance of the building would be "tremendous."

He said it lacked sufficient space for authority needs. Three-quarters of the 2,500 square feet would be needed more than the 50-50 arrangement suggested for joint use by SOHO

Maple Inn Sold

BLOOMFIELD — When George Chantell opened Maple Inn more than 33 years ago he kept a cow for country fresh milk and cream for sale to his customers.

The former cheesemaker originally catered only to private parties and cooked all of the main dishes and deserts himself.

Today, Maple Inn has a seating capacity of 120 people and is open daily to the general public but the personal touches that established it as one of the Quinte area's foremost eating places remain unchanged.

Mr. Channell discussed the history of his popular inn on Tuesday when he announced the sale of his business to a Toronto couple.

A native of Bloomfield village, Mr. Channell recalled his business was "forced" on him.

As a young boy he enjoyed cooking and decided when his parents went to town with their horse and buggy he would prepare a meal for their return.

He was employed as a cook by a Trenton couple in 1927 but left this job after two years to work as a cheesemaker in Bloomfield.

Mr. Channell followed this trade to Port Perry but later returned to Bloomfield where a business partner and he subvertisely set his career in motion.

She had heard of Mr. Channell's reputation as a chef and asked him to entertain her guests with a dinner party. He accepted the job and when the evening ended Mr. Channell had been asked to play host and chef for four more private parties.

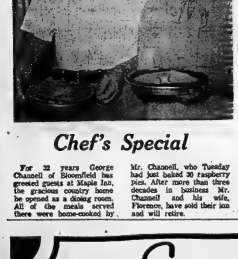
For two years he ran Maple Inn as a dining room for private parties then on an Easter Sunday about 30 years ago, he opened his two dining rooms to the general public.

"The people liked to come because of the homecooked food," said Mr. Channell discussing the success of Maple Inn.

"We've kept our prices down," he added.

The menu offers five dinners priced under $4.

On the Civic Holiday weekend in August Mr. and Mrs. Channell plan a farewell dinner special for their customers. A roast beef dinner will be served for $4, and each woman guest will receive a carnation. Reservations will be required.



Chef's Special

For 33 years George Channell of Bloomfield has greeted guests at Maple Inn, the gracious country home he opened as a dining room. All of the meals served there were home-cooked by Mr. Channell, who Tuesday had just baked 30 raspberry pies. After more than three decades in business Mr. Channell and his wife, Florence, have sold their inn and will retire.

Habit can be a bigger influence than high prices, when the typical Canadian goes shopping for groceries.

Even though food prices rose 8.3 per cent in June alone—triple the previous month's rate of grocery inflation—there's apparently little substitution of lower-priced foods for those items that most people buy routinely.

Yet it's possible to make substantial savings with no loss in nutrition, and perhaps even an improvement in diet.

That's the message of a study by the Food Prices Review Board, published last February and summarized in the August issue of Canadian Consumer, called What Price Nutrition?

The average four-person Canadian family last year spent $2,480 for food at home, and $480 for meals in restaurants—a total of $2,960.

The diet recommended by the Food Prices Review Board would have cost that family $2,080 in 1974, assuming that all meals were taken at home.

If the family shopped in accordance with the board's recommendations, it would spend an additional $155 on fruit and vegetables, $20 more on fats and oils, and an extra $15 on bread and cereals.

But it would save on other food purchases—$480 on restaurant meals, $440 on meat and their substitutes, $20 on milk and dairy products, and $130 and other foods.

Over-spending on meat is said to result from our excessive appetite for proteins and a concern to cut down carbohydrates so as to trim the calorie intake.

The $120 saving on "other" foods could largely be achieved, in the board's view, by buying [illegible] coffee and tea ("mild drugs"); [illegible]

The board makes a strong pitch for more fruit and vegetables in the family diet. Contrary to popular belief, it says, canned or frozen fruits, fruit juices and vegetables are reasonably adequate substitutes for the fresh product.

Dandelion requirements can be met, the board says, by a combination of two-per-cent [illegible] which it terms "a great food bargain."

Not all families would be willing to switch entirely to meals made from powder, even for the annual saving of $100 to $150 that is estimated by the board.

But the board also offers some more palatable pieces of advice for the food shopper, such as these:

—Check regular advertisements, and buy specials when they are available for less than regular prices.

—Buy the least expensive brand of comparable quality of any particular product.

—Substitute lower-cost products of the same nutrient value wherever possible.

—If feasible, buy in bulk if that will lead to savings in unit costs without creating wastage that offsets the benefit.

Among its other recommendations (chiefly to governments), the Food Prices Review Board urges food companies to accept the responsibility for producing food of the maximum nutritional value.

It asks the industry to divert more of its advertising expenditures to consumer-oriented information about nutrition.

Fishing the Seas Clean

Fish . . . they are in the news a lot these days — how it is, we are told, the oceans are being swept virtually clean of fish, by the big trawler fleets of the Soviet Union and Japan.

Again, we read that both those countries have agreed to controls on fishing of some species.

But it has taken a while, and meanwhile the fishing has gone on. Nearly three years ago Harold Horwood wrote in Weekend magazine about an incident in which a Canadian trawler had to put full astern to avoid being hit by a Russian ship which, arrogant in the way these foreign fleets can be, "came charging out of the fog — aiming straight for our port bow."

That statement from the Canadian skipper, Captain Curt Mitchell, who noted there were 40 Russian ships on the Grand Banks that day. Twelve of them were factory ships, 10 to 15 times bigger than the 760-ton Canadian vessel.

Wrote Horwood: "They sweep the bottom like a battery of vacuum cleaners, one ship's gear overlapping the next, taking everything alive in an 8 to 10-mile radius."

Other nations joined in and since then, Horwood said there had been "scarcely an international catches followed by rapidly declining halibut, now threatened for the second time."

Today the tale is the same and the question is, how long can it go on?

Perhaps the reason why the Canadian fishing industry is a kind of Cinderella in this situation, with little in the way of government support, and offering little to those who try to make a living from it, is because Canadians are not big fish eaters.

The Food Prices Review Board have put out a publication pointing out that in 1974 Canadians consumed only 12 pounds of fish per capita, compared with 95 pounds of beef, 60 pounds of pork and 45 pounds of poultry meat.

"These problems are particularly acute in the Maritimes. The result is that measures to add some stability to both prices and incomes and to ensure the future viability of the industry are now being considered."

One wonders if any of this filters through to the Soviets and Japanese who are into the fishing business in a big way, while here at home our fishermen take what's left, and the consumer eats little of it anyway. Maybe it is just as well, for else we would have to get back what is taken from close to our own shores by way of importing it. And that would be the final irony.

The Scots Tradition

The next major event on the Highland Games calendar appears to be the Row's Corner, Brockville, gathering on August 3.

These gatherings of the clans are among the most interesting presentations of the year in Ontario and the province would be the poorer without them.

But don't go away with the impression that this is all the Scots have to offer. Far from it;

I read in the papers about a York University student who complains he's being hassled by the Immigration Department. He came here from Guyana two years ago, he's a member of the Marxist-Leninist Canadian Party of Labor, he takes part in anti-Green-Paper demonstrations, and he intends to become a teacher.

John Logie Baird for instance pioneered television, and it is a precedent of some curiosity that so little is known of him, or that this branch of the communications media itself has not produced so much as a documentary on the early days.

Again, we see that a Scots psychologist, Dr. Tom Bower, is behind the development of echo-sounding or sonar device which has enabled a Californian baby blind since birth to "see" his favorite toy, take it in his hands, and play sightless peek-a-boo with his mother, Melody Daughters, a nurse and wife of a physician.

The concept is Dr. Bower's and it was developed by a firm in Palo Alto.

The world has seen too many inventions of the devil, but not so this one which ranks with many in the electronics field as one which are providing fresh vistas and life-giving dimensions where before there was greatly reduced vision and opportunity.

Where better to spend these warm sunny days than at the beach, playing in the sand or romping in the water. This scene at Belleville's Riverside Park reflects summer at its best.

Reds Use 'McCarthyism' Label to Good Advantage

The following article by [illegible] of C.C.F. was approved recently by The Toronto Star. A C.C.F. professional, Mr. Macbeth, has had extensive experience as a foreign correspondent and as former executive assistant to Andy LaMarsh. The latter at one time was Secretary of State in the Pearson government and her mandate included responsibility for the CBC.

The power alive today, old Joe McCarthy would have, some will explainingly, to do to his Canadian neighbors.

For never, during the height of the late U.S. Senator's scare campaign to root out supposed Communists from positions of influence in American society, could he have known that the ugly phenomenon to which he gave his name — McCarthyism — would one day, prove to be such a potent formidable ally.

Yet that, in Canada at least, is precisely what has resulted from McCarthy's infamous [illegible] "Go across the border. For fear of being labelled a McCarthyite, or worse, few Canadians are today prepared to call attention publicly to inconstrovertible evidence of Marxist-Maoist subversion in this country.

Even the word "Communism" itself has taken on a new connotation. No longer does it simply imply a political philosophy, and the means and methods employed to attain its objectives; it has become, in addition, a dirty word to be shunned as a tag of alarmist irresponsibility. So, part of those who dare to use it.

As a result, Canadians are largely unaware of the corps of hard-core revolutionists who go about their assigned tasks with virtual impunity, [illegible] confident that no [illegible] "McCarthyite" will rise to challenge their activities.

That is what is meant by the "McCarthyism backlash" — in its own implications every bit as dangerous to the national interest as McCarthism itself.

The trademark of McCarthyism were smear by innuendo, guilt by association, and [illegible] of evidence.

Ironically, these are the same tactics currently being used by Canadian Communists and those who, knowingly or unknowingly, support them.

Point to Maoist-Marxist infiltration of the CBC and you are labelled a "witch-hunter." Suggest Communist manipulation of certain labour unions and you are a "John Bircher"; tell the truth about, revolutionist exploitation of any number of just and popular causes — such as the grievances of Canadian Indians, minority rights, alleged police brutality, and you are one is called "fascist."

Yet, recently, it has been informed sources, the level of penetration and [illegible] is higher now than it has ever been. And the role of Soviet and Chinese "diplomatic" and "press correspondents" in such subversive activities has been officially documented on several occasions, [illegible] "detente" notwithstanding.

Still, obsessed with the dread of the McCarthyism label, most Canadians refuse to talk about it. Their timidity is reflected, in fact, in an uncommon silence amongst large segments of the nation's news media.

Only a few weeks ago, for example, the Canadian government.

This case is well documented in [illegible] from Cassidy, MP, (PC-Leeds) demanded an official inquiry into the matter in the House, no one in Ottawa would touch it — [illegible] of [illegible] Members had access to the [illegible] only both begged off because they feared the Maoist-Stalinist backlash.

It has been established beyond any question, and as noted by more than one [illegible] responsible, that the program [illegible] was financed over the months by a strong, consistent and transparent leftwing bias. The same applies to programs [illegible] Good Morning Radio, originating on station CBU in Vancouver.

Both programs have featured a steady procession of Maoist-Marxist activists and sympathizers, careful [illegible] seldom if ever identified as to their known political and [illegible] background, rarely challenged by CBC interviewers.

The list is long and, again, well documented. CBC management is aware of the facts. Records are available. Some corporation officials have in fact told this reporter that "something ought to be done about it."

But so far, no one either in CBC or in government has called for a full investigation to determine the scope and origin of the undeniable imbalance. The RCMP, in its function as an intelligence gathering organization, has an abundance of highly revealing information. But it won't be released until someone in a position of authority demands it.

In the meantime, according to informed opinion, Canada's Marxist and Maoists are now under their attention to a new issue which they feel is obviously ripe for exploitation — Indian unrest.

Trend Seen As Kaunda Nationalizes In Zambia

South African Financial Gazette

South African businessmen and property holders with investments in Zambia look like being the big losers in Dr. Kenneth Kaunda's latest nationalization grab.

Now there's every indication that next door Botswana, also with massive South African farming and mining investment, is already going the same way.

No-one as yet knows precisely how many South Africans will lose out on Zambia's radical "social ownership" new program. It is known however that many of the 5,000 to 7,000 South Africans still working there, mainly on the Copperbelt, own their own homes while many others, already returned to South Africa, continue to hold property in Zambia.

That his new Marxist neighbor, President Samora Machel, also had a hand in events is beyond dispute. The Mozambique leader told guests at an official dinner given in his honor in Lusaka early in May that those "would not be the "final liquidation of capitalism in Zambia."

The move of course brings Zambia into line with socialist Tanzania and Marxist Mozambique, in both of which countries all land and properties do or will belong to the State. Hitherto Zambia was the odd man out.

UK Group's Work With The Elderly

The formation of a Northern Ireland branch of Age Concern is a progressive step which will help to bring the problems of old people into sharp focus. Age Concern, and its local groups throughout the Province, will complement the work of existing agencies. It will help to pinpoint the areas of greatest need, whether these are new day centres or a more streamlined policy on free transport.

Age Concern has published a forceful manifesto to remind society that old people are not a race apart. Their needs and their talents are as varied as those of any other generation. This kind of determined lobbying allied to imaginative thinking and hard work at local level, will help people to get a better deal from society. And not because of age, but because it is their right.

George Knudson Confident of Pro Golf Comeback as Back Trouble Subsides

By MEL SUFRIN .
CP Sports Editor

TORONTO (CP) — It's a mark of George Knudson's stature in professional golf that when he finishes second in the Canadian PGA championship, the cynics in the gallery look upon him as a failure.

The implied criticism may seem unfair for a guy who has just put together rounds of 68-72-68-66—276, eight under par. But it's the price the 36-year-old Winnipeg-born golfer must pay for being the most successful Canadian pro ever to try his luck on the U.S. tour.

Knudson, a three-time winner of the Canadian PGA crown, has won eight U.S. tour events since 1961 and has earned nearly $500,000.

They used to say there wasn't a pro who was more accurate from tee to green. And there were some who felt that if his putting stroke were as flawless he would have been one of the all-time greats.

But that was before a chronic back problem turned the game into constant agony.

He hasn't won a tournament since the Kaiser Open in 1973 and, for a time, he found himself relying on painkillers after he went from doctor to doctor in search of relief.

Knudson estimates he saw more than 100 doctors, chiropractors and osteopaths. Some helped but the pain always came back.

Then early this year, he finally overcame his fear of the scalpel and came home to Toronto, where he lives with his wife Shirley and their three children.

He went to see Dr. Ian MacNab, a noted orthopedic surgeon, who told him an operation wasn't necessary. Dr. MacNab put him on a drug he had developed called Naprocin. It worked.

"My back is excellent," Knudson said in an other day after finishing second to Bill Tapp of Woodbridge, Ont., in the Canadian PGA at the Toronto Bayview course.

"I'm feeling super. I have no excuses for not playing well."

Knudson has won about $28,000 this year, including $8,150 in the Pleasant Valley tournament in Massachusetts the other day. That's more than twice as much as he won all last year and, more important, almost all of his winnings have come in the last couple of months since the pain subsided. He's tired in the money winnings.

He said he is confident he will soon edge into the top 40 in earnings in 1975. That's important because it would automatically qualify him for entry into U.S. pro tournaments next year.

When Knudson dropped out of the top 40 two years ago, he was able to avoid having to qualify with the Monday-to-Friday rabble and he remains in the top 50 among all-time money winners.

But that exemption is good only for three years in a life-time and Knudson would like to save the third year.

But his hopes are higher than that. One of these days, if his swing remains unhampered by back pains, he'd like to win tournament No. 8. Maybe even match his 1969 feat of winning two in a row.

Demand for Sod Exceeds Supply

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Anyone in the Quinte area who would like to buy an instant lawn will have to order it from at least as far away as Port Hope, and, more likely, Toronto.

Sod farming in the area never was a popular enterprise, and with one exception it is defunct.

The only sod grower in the district is a landscaper who could use more than he grows himself.

Wayne Leavey, of Leavey Landscaping Centre, has the biggest lawn in this part of the province, 40 acres of rolling, brimmed turf, but he needs it all for his own customers. What hasn't been scalped already is spoken for.

Apart from his Barcovan Beach field, Mr. Leavey has an additional 30 acres growing near the English Settlement on the other side of the Bay. But, since it takes two years to mature sod to the point where it can be cut, it will be another couple of years before it can be harvested.

"We used to be mainly in the topsoil business," Mr. Leavey said. "But since we started in sod we've learned a lot about it — mainly the hard way — and now we're growing enough to keep our landscaping customers supplied."

In the Barcovan Beach field, which the Leaveys have been working for about 10 years, the procedure is to plant a mixture of Merion and Kentucky Blue, fertilize heavily, roll and mow at frequent intervals and — after two years — you have a crop. Then you work up the sandy loam and start all over again.

"We're still experimenting with grass types," Mr. Leavey said, "but Merion and Kentucky have worked out well for us."

The landscapers are in the field morning and evening. In the morning they cut and load sod for the current landscaping job. In the afternoon they lay it and in the evening they mow, roll, fertilize and generally maintain the biggest lawn for miles around.

Lawn on the Way

Wayne Leavey, at crane controls, and son Jeff load pallet of fresh-cut sod in morning to be laid that afternoon. Only sod grower in the Quinte area, Leavey Landscaping maintains two fields totalling 70 acres at Barcovan Beach and the English Settlement and can produce only enough sod to service their own landscaping customers. Other sod used in the area is usually imported from Tweed.

Foxboro Poet Publishes Work

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

FOXBORO — Art has become a big and sometimes expensive business To help get the best price for their work most artists exhibit and sell their creation with the help of gallery owners publishers or business managers.

It is rare when an artist attempts and succeeds in marketing his work with out such help, even more unique when it involves a new concept.

Charles Tupper, a Foxboro poet and railroad employee is one of those fortunate enough to combine art and hard work with business enterprise and be successful.

After a 36 year hiatus, Mr. Tupper is back n the publishing business, having just issued a limited edition of his new collection of poems little Gateway To Canada.

"The book is based on my new open-end concept," he said in a interview. It is possible to add to the content of the book by sending to the owners new poems for insertion into the folder."

"Most people think a book must be bound but I decided this doesn't have to be the case and that a book can continue to grow for as long as the artist desires."

Mr. Tupper has published two previous works, one produced by a printer prelude to song, on dithe other The Gleaming Edge by himself with his own printing press in 1947.

"I got the idea for the open-end concept while I was walking through a five and ten cents store," he said, "and I was passing the stationery section."

The open-end concept confronted Mr. Tupper with many new problems, some he has not yet solved.

"I decided to sign every page in the books to authenticate the work making it difficult for any one to add unauthorized pages," he said.

"Additionally, I have yet to decide if I will be charging for any or all of the insertions.

Mr. Tupper does not earn his entire income from his poetry.

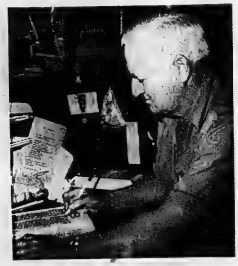
"A man could starve to death if he tried to make his living as a poet in Canada," Mr. Tupper said. "There aren't many capable of doing it."

He said he is contacting all the libraries in Ontario and Quebec as possible buyers and is receiving a good response.

"So far I have sold almost 60 of the 300 copies of the limited edition and I need another 70 to pass the break-even point."

The work, creative and financial, goes on.

"I just keep thinking about poetry whenever I can and sooner or later the muses will strike a respondent chord in my mind."



Will the Muses Come

Foxboro poet Charles Tupper works at his art whenever he can find time. A full-time railroad employee, Mr. Tupper said he writes a poem "when the muses strike a respondent chord".

How to brew tea in your refrigerator.

It's a cold fact. Tetley flavour through tea bags work so well, you don't even have to boil water. That's because Tetley teabags have holes to continually let water move in and out. This constant distribution of flavour means that you can make rich, refreshing iced tea, even in cold water. And you can make it for less than nine cents a pitcher. That's a lot less expensive than iced tea mix. And lots better.

Here's how. Use 4 Tetley teabags for every quart of cold water, (or 1 teabag for every 8 oz). After dropping the teabags in a pitcher of water, simply keep the pitcher covered inside your refrigerator overnight. What you end up with is iced tea with a flavour your whole family will appreciate. Tea this good, you just can't make in an instant.

Island Airport Backed by Council

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council is petitioning for retention of Toronto Island Airport as a vital communications link between small cities and the provincial capital.

It passed the resolution this week — a move that was a sequel to an on-the-spot demonstration last month of short-take-off-landing (STOL) aircraft.

The demonstration — including a trip from CFB Trenton to Toronto June 26 — took local government spokesmen from Hastings and Prince Edward counties on a STOL flight by De Havilland Aircraft of Downsview.

Deputy-Head officials emphasized the need for retaining the Island airport for direct access to downtown Toronto.

Later the same, the Quinte Executive Committee — made up of elected and appointed officials of the counties and Trenton and Belleville — decided to write various levels of government on the issue.

City council's resolution deems the airport "essential to the success" of any air service providing smaller communities with a direct link to downtown Toronto.

The re-election says the possible closing of the facility is viewed "with grave concern by this council."

The resolution goes to both federal and provincial transportation ministries; Premier William Davis; Toronto Mayor David Crombie; Metro Chairman Paul Godfrey; the Toronto harbor commissioners; Jack Ellis, MP Hastings and Conventional Services Minister Richard Potter, MPP Quinte.

Cutting Trees Cheaper Than Building Sidewalks

Belleville's sidewalk construction program for the year has had to be pared because tenders were above budget funds, city council learned this week.

But the cut was eased when a tender for the tree-trimming and removal program was found cheaper than anticipated.

City council went along with a suggestion of purchasing agent Douglas Wright that money saved on the tree program be applied to sidewalk costs.

This means the cut in the sidewalk program will drop from 3,000 square feet to 4,300 square feet.

The problem stemmed from discovery that the lowest tender for the sidewalk program was $77,177 — from Weldon McEachen Co. Ltd., of Milton. The city had budgeted $68,200.

The main problem area is in reconstruction — with a tendered cost of $77,816 against $49,000 in the city's budget.

Meanline, lowest tender for the tree program was $11,439 from O'Brien Tree Service of Belleville. The city budget had allowed $17,000 for the work — shared with Belleville Utilities Commission and Bell Canada.

Mr. Wright suggested another $2,500 be transferred from the tree service estimates to the sidewalk program — thus reducing the amount of work that had to be cut back.

City council accepted a reduced tender of $70,317.

Downtown Bylaw Draws Complaints

Immediate action on the proposed development control bylaw for downtown Belleville has been delayed.

A decision on the bylaw was deferred a month ago by city council to seek legal clarification on some of its stipulations.

The measure was not on city council's agenda, this week.

But Ald. Joe Cox asked that it be referred to Wednesday's meeting of the Subordinate Planning and Advisory Committee of which he is chairman.

In the interim, however, downtown merchants have protested the measure which would allow council to adjudicate development in the community's commercial core.

Monday night the Belleville Downtown Association filed a letter with council. Among its complaints: The ordinance was not sufficiently definitive or all-encompassing.

It also requested that the city's Economic Development Commission be relieved of any responsibility in downtown redevelopment control".

The association wants its members and the management board for the Downtown Improvement Area to be consulted on requirements and control of development.

Meantime, the Chamber of Commerce has written city hall that its directors don't wish to comment on the proposed bylaw at present.

Garbage Sparks Debate

City hall may continue talks with the provincial government over garbage raids for Sir James Whitney school for the deaf. Mayor Robin Jeffrey has indicated.

Council this week learned from Correctional Services Minister Richard Potter, the provincial government would allow the city to levy $50 a student for the service.

This totals $18,900.

But, said Frank Morrell, city treasurer, the city has asked for $186,000 in lieu of taxes not paid on senior government facilities.

Dr. Potter wrote that the province is committed to move towards full payments in lieu of taxation on its institutions. But this reform won't be realized until completion of rentassessment throughout Ontario — and as finances become available.

Petitions Bring No Change On Street Extension

Two opposing neighborhood petitions involving a street opening in the city's east end have had no impact on city council.

The issues involved extending Edgehill Rd. to Victoria Ave. — coinciding with construction of a new subdivision.

Edgehill residents petitioned against the street opening because they feared it would create an increased traffic hazard to children on a street where there are no sidewalks.

Householders on adjacent Bradley Cresc., however, said the street opening would ease the amount of traffic using their street as a turn-around.

City manager Wilbur Purcell this week suggested the petitions be received — and no change be made in plans for the Edgehill extension.

City council concurred.

Eggs to Rise Dime a Dozen

OTTAWA (CP) — Figures released Tuesday by Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan indicate that the retail price of Grade A large eggs in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba might shortly rise by up to 10 cents a dozen.

He told a news conference that the price now paid Ontario producers is about 67 cents a dozen, three to four cents below what he considered the breakeven point. So, he never expects producers should be getting 80 or 85 cents a dozen.

Coupled with the nine or 10 per cent Mr. Whelan is a fair return to the producer, this means the price to the producer is to between 84.3 and 88 cents a dozen, an increase of between 8.3 and 10 cents over today's prices.

The current average retail price in Ontario for Grade A large eggs is 78.3 cents a dozen.

Add to this the projected increase and the retail price jumps to between 87.5 and 88.5 cents a dozen.

Applying the same formula, the producer price of a dozen Grade A large eggs in Quebec would jump by 7.1 cents, the retail price to 80.35. The respective jumps in Manitoba could be to 82.35 and 86.35 cents a dozen.

Current producer prices for a dozen Grade A large eggs in other provinces, with the average retail price in each in brackets, are: Newfoundland 77 ($1.01), Nova Scotia 79 ($1), New Brunswick 73 ($3.3), Prince Edward Island 72 ($1), Quebec 77 (78.35), Manitoba 83.5 ($1), Saskatchewan 81 ($0), Alberta 87 ($0.3) and British Columbia 73.5 ($1.5).

Petro-Canada May Seek Labrador Gas

OTTAWA (CP) — Once in operation, Petro-Canada would consider investment in off-shore drilling for natural gas off the eastern shore of Labrador, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday.

Development of a natural gas supply on the Labrador shelf would be "very attractive" in terms of supplying Eastern Canada, Mr. Macdonald said in an unscheduled appearance before the Senate banking committee.

The committee later passed legislation establishing the national petroleum corporation. After final Senate approval, it needs only royal assent to become law.

Mr. Macdonald emphasized that companies operating on the Labrador shelf would not be forced to accept Petro-Canada participation, but if they approached the Crown corporation for financial assistance to develop natural gas finds, "Petro-Canada management would take a hard look at it."

A number of companies have been drilling in the area, including BP Exploration Canada Ltd. and a consortium of seven companies headed by Exxtaco Explorations Ltd. Potentially significant natural gas finds have been reported but it is not yet known whether they will be commercially viable.

If feasible, development of the off-shore gas would be expensive and Mr. Macdonald said the companies might welcome Petro-Canada investment.

The corporation is being formed to explore and develop new reserves of oil and natural gas. The bill provides for government investment of up to $500 million in the corporation as well as additional loans of $1 billion.

Mr. Macdonald said the corporation will administer the government's participation in the Syncrude oil sands project in Alberta and the government's 45-per-cent share of Panarctic Oils Ltd.

Petro-Canada was alloted only $15 million in operating revenues in the current fiscal year but Mr. Macdonald said this will not be a hinderance.

A number of industry executives already have shown interest in joining Petro-Canada, he said, but management costs will be high.

The minister said in an interview he will seek $30 million to $100 million funding for Petro-Canada in he next fiscal year, which begins April 1.

Women Deceived – Dief

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker said Tuesday the government's human rights bill is another deception of women.

The bill, introduced Monday in the Commons by Justice Minister Otto Lang, aims at ending discrimination against those employed in areas under federal jurisdiction.

Mr. Diefenbaker said in an interview the clauses on women's rights are so full of loopholes they are unlikely to be effective.

No Delay from Debate

Gas Tax Rebate Forms Not Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Even if Parliament gave final approval today to the 10-cents-a-gallon gasoline excise tax, heavy gasoline users eligible for refunds could not get their money back until sometime in September, Revenue Minister Ron Basford said Tuesday.

He said in the Commons that his department "is ready to proceed with administration of the refund program." But application forms will not be available until shortly after Sept. 1.

He also told the House that refunds cannot be paid until Parliament gives final approval to the bill authorizing the tax, which came into effect June 25.

Roch LaSalle (PC—Joliette) criticized Mr. Basford for "haste in his gall to accuse the Opposition of delaying the rebates," if the legislation has not imposed this tax before Parliament passed this bill, we would not have this problem with delays."

Mr. LaSalle said his party will continue to block the bill unless it is amended to provide rebates to persons who need their vehicles to travel to and from work.

Paul Dick (PC—Lanark-Renfrew-Carleton) said the government has been pressing for quick passage of the bill, which was introduced July 4, but it is not prepared to go ahead with administration.

Mr. Basford said "all persons who use gasoline in the course of their business or commercial activities for the purpose of earning income will be entitled to claim a refund."

However, all refunds will be considered taxable income.

Mr. Basford said an estimated one million persons will be eligible for rebates and refunds will be made on a monthly basis for large commercial gasoline users.

"My department will accept claims of $200 or more once a month," he said. Claims of less than $200 a month would be dealt with twice a year.

Hearty Main Dish Salads for Summer Meals

A salad makes a refreshing supper, even if it's warm like our dilled potato salad with wurst.

Pork, fish, leftover cooked meats and convenience foods are all used in this variety of recipes.

Dilled Potato Salad with Wurst four large general-purpose potatoes three cups boiling water four slices bacon, cut-up

½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped dill pickles
one pound knackwurst or frankfurters
¾ cup dill pickle liquid (drained from dill pickles)
1¼ tbsp sugar
½ tsp caraway seed
½ tsp dry mustard
½ tsp salt
one tbsp chopped parsley for garnish

Cook unpeeled potatoes in boiling water until partially tender, about 10 to 15 minutes. Peel potatoes and cut into thick slices.

In large skillet over medium heat, cook bacon until partially cooked. Add onion, celery and pickles and cook, stirring occasionally, until onion and celery are tender, about three to five minutes. Stir in potatoes, knackwurst, pickle liquid, sugar, caraway seed, dry mustard and salt. Cover and cook over low heat, turning potatoes occasionally with pancake turner, until potatoes are tender and knackwurst is heated through, about 10 minutes. To serve, spoon potato mixture into a bowl, top with knackwurst. Garnish with parsley. Serves four.

Note: Knackwurst may be cooked separately in skillet, broiler or over charcoal grill, if desired.

Perfect Pasta Salad

two cans (7 ozs. each) solid-packed tuna, drained one cup creamed cottage cheese
one cup sour cream

Pour any remaining lemon juice into the flaked salmon. Stir all remaining ingredients. Fill avocado centres with salmon mixture and serve on crisp lettuce leaves. Serves two.

Combine beans, onion and green pepper. Thoroughly mix oil, vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper. Add to vegetable and bacon curls. Serves Eight. mixture and toss lightly. Chill overnight.

Lift out mixture with a slotted spoon and pile in individual lettuce cups. Garnish with hard-cooked egg wedges

For a sharper flavored salad, increase vinegar to ½ cup.

Stuffed Green Pepper Salad

two packages (3 oz. each) cream cheese, softened one tbsp mayonnaise
one tbsp finely chopped onion
¼ cup well-drained sweet pickle relish
one large green pepper
Crisp salad greens
two ripe tomatoes, cut in wedges

Combine cream cheese, mayonnaise, onion and relish in a bowl. Remove stem, seeds and membrane from green pepper; stuff with cream cheese mixture. Chill at least three hours or until filling is firm.

At serving time, slice green pepper into about one-third inch slices; place on salad greens on serving platter. Surround with tomato wedges.

Chop Suey Salad

two cups cooked beef, cut in strips ½ cup chopped celery
two tbsp finely chopped onion two hard-cooked eggs, chopped
one-third cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
½ tsp Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp salt
one cup chow mein (Chinese noodles)

Combine all ingredients except noodles. Toss. Chill thoroughly. Just before serving, mix in the noodles. Serves four.

Turkey or Chicken Mushroom Salad

2¼ cups cubed, cooked turkey or chicken
1 ¼ cups sliced fresh mushrooms.
one cup chopped celery
two tbsp stuffed green olives, sliced
one-third cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
one tbsp lemon juice
one tsp finely chopped onion
½ tsp salt

Toss together turkey, mushrooms, celery and olives. Blend mayonnaise with remaining ingredients. Add to turkey mixture; mix lightly. Chill. To serve, line a salad bowl with romaine or other lettuce leaves. Spoon in salad. Makes four cups.

Tuna A La Salad

one can (10¾ ozs) condensed cream of mushroom soup one package (3 oz) cream cheese (softened) one can (about 7 ozs) tuna, drained and flaked one-third cup chopped green pepper one-third cup milk
two tbsp chopped onion
two tbsp chopped pimiento
one tsp lemon juice
Generous dash Tabasco

Gradually blend soup into cream cheese. Stir in remaining ingredients. Chill. Recipe makes about 3 cups.

This is wonderful served over a salad of lettuce, sliced tomatoes and sliced hard-cooked eggs. The cream of mushroom soup and the tuna flavors make it an interesting flower combination.

Lima Egg Cheese Salad

two cups cooked lima beans (fresh, canned or frozen) three hard-cooked eggs one tbsp finely grated onion
one cup marble-inch cubes Cheddar cheese ½ cup (approx.) salad dressing or mayonnaise salt and pepper to taste
½ cup sliced celery

Toss well-drained beans with chopped eggs, onion, cheese and celery. Season to taste and lightly toss with salad dressing, adding a little at a time. Do not have salad too moist. Chill and serve on lettuce with additional salad dressing. Serves six.

Note: If canned beans are used there will be only one and two-thirds to one and three-quarter cups drained as extra egg and or celery may be added.

This salad may be made several hours ahead and refrigerated. The flavors blend on standing.

If preferred, egg in salad may be reduced to one and extra cup hard-cooked to provide one per salad serving to cut in quarters or slices and use as a garnish. Sprinkle eggs with paprika for a touch of extra color.

Sour Cherries are Cheaper

There's a bumper crop of pie cherries in Michigan right now and that's the reason you can buy pails of sweetened pitted cherries cheaper in Prince Edward County this year.

Last year pails containing 20 pounds of cherries and two pounds of sugar retailed for $12; 11 pound pails were $6.

This year you'll be more likely to pay $10 and $5.50.

Keith Van Dusen, operator of Pat-O- Dice Farms near Bloomfield, explains that the large crop in Michigan has depressed Ontario prices.

"We don't import any cherries but the buyers use the lower price as a guideline," he said.

Last year, too, Mr. Van Dusen explains, sugar prices were on the upswing just as cherries were being processed.

"But this year wages are higher and plastic pail prices are up, too, so we should have been at last year's price. But supply and demand always has an effect on the price."

The Ontario Tender Fruit Growers' Marketing Board is expected to announce it will purchase pails of frozen processed cherries that have not been sold by growers by the end of August.

"That will tend to stabilize the market," Mr. Van Dusen said. The current price for processing cherries is 15 cents a pound according to the marketing board, down six cents from last year.

Frank Rutter of Rutter Orchards concurs that the lower price of sugar — less than half last year's price — is the "only bright spot" for cherry processors this year.

While the lower price is bad news for growers, consumers are advised by the tender Fruit Growers' Marketing Board to stock up right now on pails which can be frozen or canned in smaller quantities.

"This provides a wonderful opportunity to put together a year's store of dessert supplies," says Sam Piott, marketing board chairman.

Calgary Schools Emphasize Fitness

CALGARY (CP) — The most exercise that many children get these days is flicking the channel button on their television sets.

This fall, separate schools in Calgary plan a physical education program that will give these television-watching, apartment-dwelling children a lot more exercise than they get walking over to the refrigerator during commercial breaks.

The program will be the first in Canada to offer daily physical education co-ordinated from kindergarten through Grade 12 and integrated with other subjects.

Instead of aiming to turn out athletes, the program will try to teach students a positive attitude towards fitness, stressing daily activity and the development of life-long skills.

The department of education only requires elementary students to spend a minimum of one hour a week on physical education—including the time spent on health and guidance. At the junior high level, the required minimum is 75 minutes a week.

"That's not enough," said Leroy Pelletier, supervisor of physical education for the Roman Catholic system. He said that recent studies in France show that children exposed to daily physical education have better academic performance, are less susceptible to stress, and mature more quickly.

He said that most kids now aren't given a chance to become activity-oriented.

"The s's no place for apartment children to do vigorous things. They play in the halls. They have no chance to explore body movement," he said.

"Where can a kid learn what it feels like to hang in an upside down position? Kids used to be able to play in trees and swings in the back yard and jump over fences."

Work began on the program three years ago when teachers began noticing deficiencies in basic physical skills, particularly among younger pupils.

"In the past physical education has been directed to the development of sports skills only, and that should come later," Mr. Pelletier said.

"It's useless going to a tennis court until you can hit the ball."

Students will learn basic movements and play modified, lead-up games practising these movements. Gradually they will advance to the folkdale games as they are known as adult.

A basic curriculum will include such leadership skills, personal motor skills, games and dance with emphasis on the last three in the younger grades.

Physical education will be linked with such subjects as reading (moving the body to illustrate new words or letter), arithmetic (sorting or dividing into groups to convey the idea of fraction), and art (things which include sketching).

Ann Landers

Hubby Can't Sign Own Name

Dear Ann Landers: After reading the letter from the man with the sinful kidney who couldn't urinate in the presence of another person and the letter from the teen-age girl who couldn't eat a bite of food in front of her boyfriend, I summoned the courage to write about a similar problem. It's my husband—to whom I've been married for 18 years. He cannot write his name legibly enough to sign a check.

I've had to sign for the house, the car, bank deposits and withdrawals—just about everything you can think of, including charge slips in department stores.

It all started 15 years ago. Before that—no problem. What can be done about such a strange handicap?—Baffled X.

Dear X: So far as I know, your husband's hang-up is unique. You've got one of a kind there, lady.

The only solution would be intensive therapy to learn what scared him 15 years ago. On the other hand—maybe you'd better leave well enough alone. Many wives would love to be in your spot—especially the ones with charge account crazy husbands.

Dear Ann Landers: After being divorced for two years, I became involved with my supervisor. I'm 45 and know how to get what I want. Art was having problems with his noisy wife and four mixed-up kids. He said I was the one bright spot in his life so I didn't feel guilty.

Last week I nearly collapsed when Art announced he had filed for divorce. I don't want to marry him. He won't have a dime left after his wife and her smart lawyer get through putting him through the wringer. I was looking for a fling, not a husband—who will be flat broke yet.

I need to work and want to keep my job but the rumors are flying so fast around here I might have to quit. The real crunch is that I don't know whether to tell Art to get lost and let him file me, or play along and keep the lid on until his divorce is final. It could mean several extra months of employment if I keep quiet. The answer is probably clear to you but I can't see it. Advise me, please.—It's Over Robert Redford

Ann Landers

Hubby Can't Sign Own Name

Dear Miss Great Heart: How can you see ANYTHING with that dollar sign on your eyeballs? Your crass approach turns me off so completely I can scarcely be objective about the problem.

If you have a shred of decency, you'll shag your fanny out of that office as soon as possible. Since you know how to get what you want, I urge you to get another job. Immediately.

Dear Ann Landers: I am very much in love with "Mr. D." and he's in love with me. But we have this problem. He has a wife and two children. "Mr. D." hates to marry me but he's afraid of what his parents will say.

Last week he lost his job. I make good money and have been helping him. You're smart, and can read between the lines. I'm mad about the guy. Please advise me before I wig out.—Hung The Blets.

Dear Hung: You don't have one problem—you have six. His wife, his two children, his parents and an unemployed married lover. My advice is to cool it, and the sooner the better. It's going nowhere.

Fluorescent Lamps Ruin Sex Life of Bacteria

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Something went wrong with the sex life of bacteria in the laboratory. Instead of reproducing and growing in their nutrient dishes, they were dying.

The scientist at first suspected a laboratory technician had goofed. But she hadn't. Dr. Abraham Eisenstark took a closer look.

He found the killing was being done by certain wavelengths of light coming from fluorescent lamps, like those in homes, offices and factories. The lethal rays were short wavelengths of ultraviolet light escaping from the tubes.

The light was turning out component of protein material into a poison that interfered with normal cell reproduction.

And, as Eisenstark looked even closer, his research pointed to clues toward preventing skin cancer and eye cataracts. The same ultraviolet rays contained in ordinary sunlight could be lessening up the machinery of skin cells to produce cancer, or cells in the lens of the eye to produce cataracts.

Special ointments might block the ultraviolet rays from affecting the skin, for example. Special goggles might protect the eyes.

It all began with the dead spots of bacteria in Petri dishes. There had to be a reason. Forty years ago, Sir Alexander Fleming had such dead spots in nutrient dishes. That led to the discovery of penicillin—the drug produced by fungal spores that just happened to float in through an open laboratory window.

Four years ago, Eisenstark, a professor of biology at the University of Missouri-Columbia, was studying the mechanism by which bacteria recombine, or reproduce sexually.

In this process, chromosomes carrying genes break up into smaller pieces, then recombine, with genetic material from the "male" bacteria matching that of the "female."

It goes along quite well under ordinary light or in darkness. But it was stopping under fluorescent light. Bacteria were dying in the upper Petri dishes in a stack, but not in the lower dishes, not exposed to light.

The light was doing something chemically. But what? Each nutrient dish contained 20 amino acids, the components of proteins, plus salts and minerals and other things, about 35 constituents in all.

One after another, each was exposed to ultraviolet light and in a week a graduate student found the answer. The light was reacting with the amino acid tryptophan, and the photobiological reaction was producing chromosomes.

Eisenstark now has established the poison in apparently pure form, and the next step is to figure out its molecular configuration in order to make it in large quantity.

The poison seems to prevent short pieces of genetic material, or DNA, from forming longer pieces, he says. Either the poison binds on to the DNA or else interferes with an enzyme that hitches the pieces of DNA together.

"I could interfere in a similar way with tryptophan in skin cells or eye cells, with the photo-product leading to cancer or cataracts.

Both skin cancer and cataracts are far more common among people exposed to sunlight a great deal, such as sailors and some farmers.

Worcher office workers under fluorescent light run a higher risk of developing cataracts is a most question, Eisenstark says.

Lake Forsyglon, vice president for engineering of a firm manufacturing fluorescent lamps, Duro-Test Corp. of North Bergen, N.J., said he would be studies before drawing on the subject of fluorescent light and cataracts.

A fluorescent light is an office, he said, delivers about 100 footcandles of light, of all wavelengths including the ultraviolet. By contrast, sunlight on a sunny day delivers 10,000 footcandles. With footcandles being a measure of luminous intensity of light.

Divorce Course For Ex-Hubbies

VANCOUVER (CP) — Even per cent of when were women, when a marriage ends in divorce, a man may refuse to admit the marriage failed, says Peter Kivlico of Toronto.

Take Navigation, vice president for engineering of a firm manufacturing fluorescent lamps, Duro-Test Corp. of North Bergen, N.J., said he would be studies before drawing on the subject of fluorescent light and cataracts.

A fluorescent light is an office, he said, delivers about 100 footcandles of light, of all wavelengths including the ultraviolet. By contrast, sunlight on a sunny day delivers 10,000 footcandles. With footcandles being a measure of luminous intensity of light.

Mr. Kivlico is particularly concerned about the needs of divorced men and helping them adjust to society following a long-marriage breakup.

"They'll probably, for the longest time, that their homelife is "Men usually take either of failed," he said on a recent trip two alternatives. Either they'll to Vancouver. "They'll keep up become work-aholics, or they'll the facade, walk back into that start frequenting corner bars, empty house night after night, trying to form quick new relatrying to preserve the status tionships with younger women. being married which they think "But neither of these tactics is so important in the business is helpful on a long-term basis. world."

Burying themselves in their jobs exhausts them, and the sexual stands only stimulate's running creek-lead to more chagrin and futility.

Mr. Kivlico is program director of Kyerson Polytechnical Institute's evening division for divorce course.

"What we try to do is encourage them to take time out to think about what went wrong in their first marriages."

The Ryerson course developed after Mr. Kivlico's second marriage ended in divorce. He found himself feeling disorganized and went for counselling to Mel Krantzler, author of Creative Divorce.

The course includes advice on how to handle the initial shock which accompanies marital breakdown, anger, depression and inevitable feeling of failure. "No matter how inadequate the marriage was, very few people ever really believe that it will break up, and when it does they're stunned.

Tough Road for Opposition When Just Small Minority

EDMONTON (CP) — In legislature of 75, an opposition of six has some obvious problems and the situation is that much worse if, as some Alberta opposition MLAs think, the government chooses to be secretive.

Premier Peter Lougheed turned the tables on the Social Credit party in the March provincial election when his Progressive Conservatives won 69 seats, leaving four Social Credit members, one NDP MLA and an Independent in opposition.

In the 1967 election, Mr. Lougheed found himself leading an opposition of 10, six of whom were members of his party. He formed a government with 49 seats in 1971.

If the opposition parties felt themselves run down in the election by the "Tory Tank," they find it equally difficult managing the Conservative hordes in the legislature, complaining of arrogance and a coalitioned refusal to release what they consider public information.

"They've already become arrogant and smug and overconfident and all the things that one can apply to a government that's got too much power," says NDP Leader Grant Notley, who has been the only NDP member of the House since 1971.

"There's one example after another that one could cite of refusing to release information which the public is entitled to possess."

Specifically, Mr. Notley and Bob Clark, the Social Credit House leader, are concerned about cost data on the province's investment in the massive Syncrude oil-sands project, arrangements to purchase and operate Pacific Western Airlines, studies on petrochemical developments, the work of Alberta Energy Co. and the shape of the proposed Heritage Trust Fund.

The lack of information "may be the biggest criticism I have of the government," said Mr. Clark.

"They are very difficult about giving information out. For example, the whole petrochemical thing. They won't give us any information on the studies they've done on petrochemicals.

"They have this stupid idea that the people have made their decision in the election and so that gives the government the right to go ahead and do whatever it wants until the people make the decision again.

If a government house leader Lou Hyndman says the conservative government hasn't changed since it faced an opposition of 38 in 1971. The uniqueness of the Syncrude and PWA situations makes non-disclosure acceptable and the heritage fund is not yet formulated to the point where the government can discuss it, he says.

Ron Ghitter, the Conservative MLA for Calgary Buffalo, who has made a reputation by asking questions in the house, agrees with Mr. Hyndman. At times, he says, the opposition has been unreasonable and can't expect the government to throw open questions under negotiation and see those negotiations fail because of the ensuing political melee.

Gordon Taylor, the Independent MLA for Drumheller and former longtime Social Credit minister, takes the government line, saying he gets answers to the questions he asks.

"On some of the questions that the government has refused to answer, I've supported the government. As a matter of fact, I've backed the opposition for asking them because Mr. Clark was very definite when we were in government that such information should not be supplied—now he has changed completely around.

"When governments are negotiating, I don't think the opposition should be an obstacle in the way of successful negotiations."

Mr. Ghitter admits the government must be careful not to abuse its majority but he asks what difference it makes if there are six or 36 opposition members—surely it's the quality that counts.

He said he and some other members on the Conservative benches recognize the limits of small opposition and try to keep ministers aware of situations by asking informational questions in the house.

Mr. Notley says it is "absurd" to expect government back-benchers to act like opposition MLAs.

"You are not going to get effective opposition from government backbenchers for a very good reason. Every government back-bencher eventually hopes to be a cabinet minister . . . so as a result they tend to stay in line."

The NDP leader disagrees that numbers aren't important.

"You can't marshal much of a debate (with six) but if you have 15 or 20, even if they are saying the same thing essentially, you can put some spirit into a debate. Now all the government has to do is close their ears for an hour and by that time the opposition has shot its wad and that's it."

Mr. Notley hinted there may be areas of intimidation on the part of the opposition, facing such a huge majority and he noted the obvious about the limited time the opposition has to do its work.

Police Befriend Defrauded Youth

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — A 17-year-old boy is back with his mother in Moncton, N.B., but there are two people in this interior city he won't forget. Together they picked him up when he was down and proved to him, and a few other people around town, that people aren't all bad and that justice maybe sometimes really does work.

The two are Constable Frank Boyle of the city RCMP detachment and Keith Gagne of the John Howard Society.

The name of the boy they put back together is Conrad and this is his story.

Conrad is the middle child in a family of eight, with no father, and not too much wealth around the old house in Moncton. He decided to get out on his own and set out for Winnipeg, where he found a job and made a few dollars.

There Conrad met "the artful dodger," a boy a little older than himself, who spun a fabulous story of the wonders to be found in British Columbia. Conrad withdrew his savings and the two set off westward.

Somewhere along the road "dodger" disappeared with the finances and by the time they reached Salmon Arm, B.C., they were broke. Dodger told Conrad they would have to split up, to meet again in Kamloops in a week.

Conrad had just turned 17 so the energy of youth helped him walk the 73 miles to Kamloops without a bite to eat.

His boots had fallen apart—just laces and uppers with nothing between his feet and the asphalt.

However, Conrad still believed in his friend so he took his stand and waited.

Conrad sat for five days waiting for the friend who would never come. Nobody noticed him, just a small youth with no boots, unshaved and underweight, dirty and pale.

Then Conrad made his mistake.

For some reason his feet, not his stomach, were of greater importance. He walked to town, went into a store, put on a pair of boots and tried to walk out without paying for them.

Constable Boyle arrived.

He took Conrad in charge. What else could he do? Theft under $200, section 296 of the Criminal Code. Maximum penalty two years.

At Constable Boyle conducted his prisoner into the charge room, the offender broke down and cried.

Conrad poured out his story and Frank Boyle knew where to go from there.

Keith Gagne is the John Howard Society in Kamloops and a man of considerable experience.

Conrad was arrested on a Friday. He went into a cell at the city RCMP detachment, had a meal and a shower and slept on a mattress.

On Saturday morning Mr. Gagne walked in and Conrad repeated the story—walking, hitchhiking, the boots, the arrest. Mr. Gagne couldn't get him out of jail so Conrad had to wait until Monday, when he was called up before the judge.

The problem was a tough one. If they released Conrad in his own recognizance he might leave town and evade the process of the law. If he didn't leave town where would he go? The Christian Hostel? No, said Mr. Gagne, not a suitable atmosphere for a 17-year-old. Kiwanis Hostel? No, same problem. Keep him in jail? If only we had a remand house, everyone said.

Conrad confounded the system. He'd have to stay in jail until somewhere could be found.

Three days later Conrad came up in provincial court. A place had been found for him at the youth resources home and he was released after six days in jail.

At his last court appearance some days later, Conrad stepped into the dock wearing a new blue cotton shirt, new jeans, sneakers, and socks.

A young lawyer from Legal Aid called Mr. Gagne to give evidence. He told Judge George Lamperson how Conrad got there and what had happened. Conrad had made a mistake and had been in jail for six days. Now Conrad wanted to go home, and a rail ticket and meal money had been provided through the B.C. human resources department and the John Howard Society.

"Absolute discharge," said Judge Lamperson. "Make sure he doesn't miss the train."

Salmon Return To Great Lakes

TORONTO (CP) — A fishing miracle is occurring in the Great Lakes. The salmon are returning.

Coho, and to a lesser degree the larger chinook, now are beginning to provide anglers with moderate successes in all but one of the Great Lakes and their thousands of miles of tributary streams.

The one exception is Lake Erie. Pollution is so overwhelming in Erie that in some areas of the lake little life survives.

The introduction of coho and chinook, which are Pacific salmon transplanted from British Columbia, was the idea of the government of Ontario.

The experiment began 10 years ago with a crash program of lampricide action to diminish the lamprey eel population in the lakes. Initial treatment of tributary streams was completed in 1972 and follow-up programs still are under way.

The lamprey is a particularly nasty creature about 12 inches long which attaches itself to fish and sucks their blood.

In the upper Great Lakes, where control efforts were first concentrated, the lamprey population has been reduced by more than 90 per cent.

With lamprey in check, and pollution under control thanks to tough government legislation, the way was clear to stock the lakes with salmon.

In the period from 1966 to 1970, Ontario planted approximately nine million salmon eggs and fry in the upper lakes such as Huron and Superior.

In addition, smaller but substantial yearly plantings have also been made in Lake Ontario.

Fish ladders were also built around dams and natural obstructions so as not to hinder the migratory runs.

The outlook for both the coho and chinook appears to be hopeful in most areas of their new environment.

They now are sufficiently established in Lake Ontario to support a limited commercial fishing industry near Brighton which is within 100 miles of Toronto.

Sport fishing for salmon is rapidly becoming popular in southern Ontario.

One of the reasons for this is the fact rainbow and brown trout also inhabit the same streams as the salmon.

Another reason is the accessability of the tributary streams.

One of my favorite spots, the Ganaraska River, is 65 miles from Toronto and can be reached by expressway in a little more than an hour.

This spring I took several coho out of the Ganaraska. Their average weight was three pounds.

Fish of this size are commonly called smelts. Many experienced salmon fishermen consider them the best eating size for salmon.

A lusker coho will reach 10 pounds, but such fish still are rare in the Great Lakes. Chinook will grow to more than 30 pounds.

One of the most popular baits used is the roe sack containing either salmon or trout eggs.

Best results are achieved by letting the roe sacks be tumbled along the stream bottom by the current.

The salmon limit is five a day but so far few anglers have achieved that total. A serious fisherman must consider himself lucky if he hooks one U several outings and hooker still if he lands one.

Salmon are actually strangers to the Great Lakes, particularly Lake Ontario.

In the early years of the last century the Don River, which runs through Toronto, was alive with Atlantic salmon.

Industrial pollution drove the fish away at the start of the present century.

Life for the coho begins in the winter when the eggs from the fall spawning batch. They spend their first year in their home streams and then move gradually into the lakes where they grow quickly.

Near the end of their third year they move toward their birth streams where they spawn and die.

Fishing Comeback

Li River Voyage Exciting

A 10-year program of lampricide and government legislation on pollution made it possible for the Ontario government to stock the Great Lakes with coho and chinook salmon. The salmon are now beginning to provide anglers with moderate successes in all but one of the five Great Lakes and thousands of miles of tributary streams. Angler tries his luck for coho in a small stream near Cobourg, Ont., about 60 miles east of Toronto. (CP Photo)

PEKING (Reuter) — In the distant day when China has developed tourism industry, the boat trip down the Li River will be counted with such sights as the Grand Canyon, the Nile and Niagara Falls.

For six hours the little steamer snakes downstream through ravines and by weird, cone-shaped peaks which shoot as high as 1,000 feet from the banks of the river.

It passes mud-but villagg, waterfalls, bamboo groves and fields plowed by water buffalo a luscious Asian landscape hardly touched by the 20th century.

The only other traffic consists of occasional convoys of sampans and fishermen punting awkwardly on a few bamboo poles bound together into primitive rafts.

The 50-mile journey begins from the city of Kweilin in southwestern Kwangsi province bordering North Vietnam—an area known since ancient times as the most beautiful in all China.

It is the green hills which give the region its unique topography. They dot the skyline flat land like great Lumps, the mist swirling between them, constantly changing the light.

Nearly every hill is riddled with caves—officials point out they would make excellent air-raid shelters.

HOLBROOK, N.Y. (AP) — Electronic "scanning" may prevent some of the burglary and vandalism that has been plaguing Long Island's schools. Every car in 19 schools will be scrutinized by electronic eyes, along with lurking alive enough to bear even limited local sign. Interior areas will be guarded by invisible electronic waves that can spot any movement, no matter how slight.

Archery Season Opposed

FETON — Prince Edward County councillors have voted to oppose any proposal by the ministry of natural resources to hold an archery season for deer here this fall.

Councillors agreed during a meeting Tuesday night that if a season were held there would be trespassing on private property. Also, it was noted there has been no complaint from county residents concerning any damage done by the deer population.

Sophisticated reeve George Foster said that three years ago the natural resources ministry met with council and recommended an open season but the proposal did not gain council's support.

"I feel this year we should register our complaint before they come to us," commented reeve Foster.

Dam Now Complete

Official opening of the new Belmont Dam, built under the direction of the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority, is scheduled for Thursday, July 31 at 3 p.m.

At the opening winners of the symbol design contest will receive their prizes. They are Stephen Garbet, Bancroft; Donna Lakeford, Thomasburg and Beth Wiggins, Marmora.

The $150,000 dam project, begun less than two years ago, is designed to provide spring runoff control and flood protection. The dam will also make summer water level maintenance possible for cottage owners and public recreation on the lake. The dam sits on the Crowe River about ¼ mile downstream from Belmont Lake.

Farm Plans Open House

SMITHFIELD — Preliminary plans are being made to hold an open house early in September at the federal experimental farm here, farm superintendent H. Blair Heaney said this week.

On display for visitors will be fruit and vegetable crops on the farm's 200 acres and in its greenhouses. Main function of the operation is to study problems that concern the fruit and vegetable industry in eastern Ontario, particularly the area bordering the north shore of Lake Ontario. Major crops under study are apples, canning crops and small fruits.

St. Thomas Pares New Church Plans

St. Thomas' Anglican Church congregation voted Tuesday to approve a reduced budget of $87,000 for the restoration of the burned-out sanctuary.

Harold Carruthers, building committee chairman, said today, "We've got a pretty austere program."

He explained that to cut costs, the committee had to pare an original architect's design down to the bare essentials.

Eliminated were such items as a west-end entrance plaza, the courtyard, the ceiling baffle structure, elaborate furnishings, and adequate organ and basement meeting rooms.

Transit Tour

Louise Alain, right and Sonia Rioux, along with the rest of the visiting contingent of French-Canadian students were treated to a bus tour of the city, Tuesday. The two-hour trip arranged by the Rotary Club covered many of Belleville's points of interest including Corby Park, Zwick's Island and Albert and Loyalist Colleges.

20 Venezuelan Students To Attend Loyalist College

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

About 20 post-secondary Venezuelan students will arrive in Belleville next month to begin a nine-week study in an English as a second language course at Loyalist College.

Gail Larose, an awards officer with the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada, said Tuesday in a telephone interview with the Intelligencer from Ottawa the students are part of a group of about 100 who will study English at four Canadian institutions this year.

She said this is the second year of a five-year scholarship program started by the Venezuelan government to alleviate a trained manpower shortage in the South American Country.

Called the Gran Mariscal de Ayacucho Scholarship Program, the operation will see 50,000 high school graduates, many of whom cannot speak English, sent around the world to further their training in such fields as aeronautics, petro-chemistry, oceanography and computer science.

Mrs. Larose who's association is acting as its intermediary between Venezuela and Canadian learning institution, emphasized the program will not be limited in any way by financial or provincial taxpayers.

She said all tuition, books and other ancillary school supplies, room and board, clothes and recreational pursuits will be paid entirely by the Venezuelan government.

Currently there are 69 students in Canada — 43 at Concordia University in Montreal and 20 at the Brockville, Ont. campus of St. Lawrence College, said Mrs. Larose. On Sept. 15 another 20 will take up residence in Kingston for study at the St Lawrence College campus there.

Mrs. Larose said the four institutions were chosen for their unique language learning facilities. She noted since most of the students know little or no English, they are required to study the English course as a function of ensuring they can embark into other areas of study.

She explained the students will be billeted with Canadian families to enable them to practise their English and acquaint themselves with the different culture.

Loyalist is one of four Canadian institutions accepting the South American students this year — part of a worldwide Venezuelan scholarship program to quickly educate selected high school graduates in specialized engineering subjects to keep pace with a fast-growing modern industry which is outdistancing the country's teaching capacity.

Mr. Young said fees for the students, who will be here for about nine months, "are set at a level that will reimburse the college fully for all of its direct and indirect costs so that the college and the community will derive a net financial benefit."

The program of studies has been carefully structured and planned in accordance with the most advanced known methods of teaching English as a second language," he pointed out Tuesday.

Mr. Young explained the host homes must be "willing to accommodate the students with food and lodging and to provide an English speaking atmosphere." He emphasized there is no cost to either the host or the Ontario taxpayer — the Venezuelan government is funding everything.

"The idea of dispersing the students among local families is to immerse them completely in the English language both during school hours and afterward," he commented.

College Seeking Host Families for Students

Loyalist College is seeking "host homes" in Belleville to accommodate about 20 post-secondary Venezuelan students who will arrive here about August 20 to learn English, says Herb Young, college president.

Cyclist Injured

SMITHFIELD — Louise Ann McIlveen, 17, of RR3, Brighton, remains in Trenton Memorial Hospital in satisfactory condition today with a scalp injury after falling from a bicycle on Dundas St., just west of here Tuesday.

Police say she was rushed to hospital by ambulance after striking her head on the ground in the fall.

Survey to Examine Transit System

The entire public transit system in Belleville will be the subject of a September survey to determine what modifications are required to meet changing needs of the community, Marylea Burtt, chairman of the transit commission, said Tuesday.

Mrs. Burtt explained: "We have an adequate system — but provides good service at a low cost. What we will decide from the survey is whether we supply the service that is needed."

The survey will be done largely by interviewers riding the buses along each of the routes collecting data on driver conduct, fare and route structures and suggested changes.

Much of the information will be formulated by talking to passengers.

"Passengers are the ones who use the system and probably should have a major say in how the system works," said Mrs. Burtt.

Some structures have been made to Loyalist College inviting students to carry out the interviewing stages of the survey, said the commission chairman.

Once the survey has been completed, the data will be condensed and placed before the commission.

This material will give the commission a good, overall picture of the existing system and provide information on which to propose any changes if necessary," said Mrs. Burtt.

Bus Service Shows Sharp Deficit Increase

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Transit Commission's operating deficit to date totals $100,004 — more than double the deficit experienced by the commission for the same period last year.

The figure shows the commission has exhausted more than half of its projected 185,000 deficit before half of the year is out. The deficit for the corresponding period in 1974 was $49,451.

All transit commission deficits are subsidized by 50 per cent from the provincial government with the remainder raised through local taxation.

Marylea Burtt, chairman of the local commission said during an interview Tuesday, the sharp jump from 1974 to 1975 was largely accounted for by increased labor costs. In April, the commission signed a one-year contract with its 17 drivers giving them workers a 21-per-cent increase in salaries and benefits, retroactive to Jan. 1.

While costs went up during the period, fares were on the decrease.

Commission statistics show passenger volumes slipped four per cent during the first half to 594,400 riders, down from 618,000 in the first six months of 1974.

Mrs. Burtt said "the deficit always escalates in July and August ... traditionally poor months when most transit customers prefer to walk from place to place."

However, "we have four good months to come during the fall when we have a usual busy time," she said.

Industrial Parks May Get City Bus Service

Belleville's Transit Commission is once again considering servicing the city's industrial parks with daily bus routes.

Following requests from City Hall and an individual employed in an industrial park, the commission Tuesday decided to re-open the question of sending buses into the parks.

One year ago the commission tried a route into the park area and after two months of operation it showed an average 1.5 passengers were using each bus run.

"For the money to send buses into the park, it would have been cheaper to buy a car for the commuter," said Marylea Burtt, chairman of the commission.

In another instance of a company of 100 employees, only eight said they "might" use a bus to get back and forth to work.

Because several new industries have located in the city's industrialized north end during the last year, Mrs. Burtt said it now is time to re-assess the situation and determine if operation now would be feasible.

"A study of industrial needs will be made this fall during an overall study of the entire transit system, said Mrs. Burtt.

Roblin Lake Alive With Sounds of Music

AMELIASBURG — A corner of Roblin Lake here is alive with the sounds of music.

What the sounds signify is that the annual Salvation Army music camp here is in full swing.

And Bellevillians will have a chance tonight to hear the results of this year's week-long study of music under the instructors.

The various choral and instrumental classes that make up the one-week camp here is giving a concert at West Zwick's Island.

Some 100 students are participating in the 1975 session — a yearly event which has been running for more than 30 summers.

The students — and their instructors — come from the Army's mid-Ontario division — as far away as that reaches from Oshawa to Cannanoque with bedquarters in Belleville.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls during a 48-hour period which ended at 8 a.m. today.

Tuesday, July 22, 11:45 a.m. — A grass fire was extinguished at the site of 39 Vieux Chemin Rd. Damage minor.

7:08 p.m. — Grass fire in an empty lot opposite 224 East Moira St., The fire too about 15 minutes to extinguish, with minor damage.

Right There!

Stirling farmer Percy Craighead has been witching water as a favor to friends for many years. He'll be 80 next month. Here he exercises his talent on the province's Pancake Hill pasture farm, operated by the Hastings Farm Service Club, as a favor to Hastings agricultural representative Doug Tipper. Mr. Tipper also successfully tried his hand at water divining, using Mr. Craighead's apparatus — a bent piece of electrical wire.

Water Witching - You Have To See It to Believe It

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

The Encyclopedia Britannica definition of water witching — dividing or dowsing — concludes with this paragraph:

"Modern science approaches the problem as one concerning which the facts should be accepted and explained by natural, rather than supernatural, causes."

In other words, you believe it or you don't.

Earlier in the encyclopedia article it is stated that: "Like the 'homing instinct' of certain birds and animals, the dowser's power lies beneath the level of any conscious perception; and the function of the forked twig is to act as an index of some material or other mental disturbance within him, which otherwise he could not determine."

On a subject as strongly debated and divisive as water witching, the encyclopedia is appropriately vague. But the evidence over the years has mounted in favor of the existence of the method in locating sources of water to provide water supplies and, in many cases, their depth.

In 1961, for instance, the province of British Columbia had its official water diviner, Miss Evelyn M. Penrose. The province had the Okanagan Valley and Peace River Block now are prime farm country.

In the Quinte area, water dowsing is routinely practised. Some well diggers won't sink a hole without an indication from a dowser. Others remain skeptical.

A lot can be said on both sides of the argument. Sometimes dowsing works and sometimes it doesn't. Success seems to vary with the "power" of the dowser.

One scientific - minded local dowser explained his position this way: "I don't really believe in it, but I remember the time a dowser and I were both trying to find water. He got a strong pull at one spot and I didn't get anything. Then he put his hands over mine on the forked branch. I felt the pull, but the branch yanked so hard it pulled the skin off the palms of my hands."

Diefenbaker Musical

Handwriting-for Some an Insight into the Writer

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

One Belleville woman has a closer contact with history than most students ever obtain.

Ann Curson is a graphologist, a handwriting analyst, and she collects signatures from famous people.

The largest mass examination of handwriting analysis she has undertaken just after the Second World War was when she asked for and received from Look Magazine a sample of handwritings from most of the war leaders including Hitler, Roosevelt, Truman, King, Churchill, Eisenhower, Rommel and the Royal Family.

She still has the album in which she carefully catalogued and wrote her conclusions alongside each of the samples, she said.

"Most of the characteristics were those you would expect from people in authority," she said, "but some presented interesting examples.

"For example, I was fortunate to have two samples of Winston Churchill's handwriting, one when he was a young man just after he left military service and another when he was prime minister," she said. "And the difference is remarkable."

In his early and formative years he wrote "spindly and small indicating an adventurous refined person," she said.

"After he became prime minister his handwriting became much thicker, showing his disposition had changed and he had become very stubborn," Miss Curson said. "And certain letter patterns indicated he had become more of a deep thinker."

The more most of her samples from famous leaders are obtained by mail, a method she says may be inaccurate because she prefers to watch her subjects write it in person, one time she did get a signature she is fond of.

"It was at a Conservative garden party, in 1967, when I was introduced to John Diefenbaker and I immediately asked for a handwriting sample for my collection and he complied."

"Mr. Diefenbaker's signature indicated he is extremely kindhearted as we all know, but it also showed he has hidden musical talents he should have developed."

The only real tools you need to be a graphologist are a pen, paper and a magnifying glass.

"I used to require all my subjects to use a fountain pen because it showed the fine variations in thickness which are lost with a ball point," she said. "But many people are unfamiliar and uncomfortable with one today so I had to make an adjustment."

The most interesting person Mrs. Curson ever examined, she said, was not famous but rather notorious.

"I told him — I thought he was a confused person but it wasn't until the next day that I learned he was an admitted murderer when the police captured him.

What's in a Name

Belleville graphologist, Ann Curson, analyzes hand writing to explore their character traits she says. She also possesses a collection of famous signatures which she says gives her insight in their makeup, and how they might act in certain situations

Large Spaces Sign of Deep Thinker

Did you know Franklin Roosevelt, past president of the U.S., may have been mentally disturbed or that Adolf Hitler had a wonderful sense of humor?

Ann Curson, a Belleville handwriting analyst says these are true facts she has deduced from careful examination of the subjects penmanship and signatures.

Since she was a 15-year-old farm girl who noticed everyone writes differently, she said she has pursued the study of graphology, originally as a hobby and then after a "five year apprenticeship" practicing on friends and relatives as a professional, she said.

Since 1950 she said she has been charging a minimal fee of $3 to explore the minds and characters of anyone who came to her, handling 30-40 people weekly.

"It's really not that high a price to learn about yourself," she said in an interview, "and in addition, many people come to me with their problems and ask me to help them solve them."

There are some general things a person might look for if they want to examine their own or a friends handwriting. She said the most dangerous sign and easiest to detect is when the handwriting is more than at 45 degree angle, indicating they are going through an emotional crisis.

"Many people loop and put fancy scrawls under their signatures and this indicates an artistic person but if they loop over the name it is a sign of severe mental illness, as it was with Roosevelt's signature," she said.

If the last letter of a word goes upward it indicates the person is a daydreamer and generous.

She said people capable of closing often close their o's while those leaving lower openings between words are deep and positive thinkers.

These Visiting Gymnasts Will Have A Message

A night out with a new twist is on the agenda, Tuesday, at Bayside Secondary School.

It's a new twist for this area, at least.

There is nothing unique about athletes combining their talents at their sports with the bonus of being able to present a message with a religious flavor.

Tuesday, Olympix will be presented at the Bayside school at 8 p.m.

A press release says a team of 18 young men and women from Canadian Union College in Alberta, will perform.

The group will give a display of gymnastics and this, blended with the athletes' musical talents should provide an evening of enjoyment.

Initiated by Pastor Frank McMiller of the Belleville Seventh Day Adventist Church, the program will feature a gymnastic and musical presentation of the gospel.

He feels that a program such as this helps fill a need in the community, providing family entertainment.

The group began its tour in British Columbia in June and finishes up in Nova Scotia, late in August.

Amateur athletes are not the only ones combining religion with sports.

In the Canadian Football League alone, more than 30 players and their wives are dedicated to an organizatin known as Athletes in Action which is aimed at Christian fellowship and the teaching of Christian ethic amcng all.

Toronto Argonaut light end Peter Illman is a prime example of the professional athlete who is active in the movement.

Muller says: "I feel as though I wasted about 20 years of my life before I found

Globals Here Tonight

Athletes in Action.

"I want to share the experience of asking God to come into my life, with others.

"Athletes in Action provides a forum where the individual can share his experiences with others, especially young people. We all need spiritual guidance as well as physical coaching to be good at what we do.

"We all need some spiritual belief to help us live each day. I have found that athletes in Action fills this need and I want to encourage others."

The group from Canadian Union Colleges in Alberta no doubt has similar aims.

Tickets for Tuesday's performance at Bayside may be purchased at the Fish and Dove Book store, 38 Bridge St. E., or at the school the night of the event.

SLICES — Taking of sports happenings with a new twist, there's a dandy coming up Friday evening in Trenton.

It should prove interesting when Joe Winkle brings his Warkworth Institution Oldtimers to Bay Shore Park for an exhibition game with their Bell's Trenton and District Ladies' Softball League entry, Quaker Oats.

The action is called for a 6:30 p.m. start.

Several volunteer workers were given a pat on the back for their efforts in a report on last Saturday's Frewee Softball Tournament. Seems there was deserving of recognition for umpiring and organizing. They are Bert Trice, Gord Campbell and Jim Campbell.

More minor softball tournament action on the sports menu, Saturday when the annual Bantam event is staged.

Here, Stacey West drives her second shot to the ninth green on the 16-year-old Toronto golfer took six of the first nine holes in the Ontario Junior Girl's Golf championship at Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club Tuesday afternoon and went on to rout Liz Ruttan by just 12 holes in this match-play final.

Stacey West Leaves No Question As to Who Is Ontario's Best

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

Stacey West left no doubt in anyone's mind that she is definitely the top female junior on the Ontario golf circuit. The 16-year-old Bayview Toronto golfer eliminated Michele Chouinard from La Portage, Quebec, in match play Tuesday morning and then rolled to victory in just 12 holes in the Ontario Junior Girl's Golf Championship final.

"I wasn't satisfied with the way I played this morning," said the pretty, young blonde, "but I was more than pleased with my showing this afternoon."

West proved to the gallery and her finals opponent, Liz Ruttan, just what kind of golf she was capable of playing. She took six of the front nine, added the tenth and was well on her way to taking the 12th when Ruttan conceded. In match play competition golfers play for holes rather than strokes.

"I'm very disappointed!" said Ruttan, who earlier in the day downed defending Ontario champ Pam Johns to earn her berth against West, "this was my last chance for the Ontario Junior Championship and I wanted to win."

Ruttan, 18, had stayed out of the Ontario Women's Amateur Championship to prepare herself for the Junior competition.

"Nothing was working," added the finalist. "I was missing easy putts and they were really hurting. After playing so well against Pam this morning I felt certain I could take the title."

Ruttan and Johns squared off in the tournament class. Though match play is based on performance per hole, the two girls scored were 79-77 respectively. Ruttan never moved out in front in holes until the 16th and 18th when Johns bogeyed twice.

Two weeks ago Johns had won the Quetzec Junior Girl's championship but commented, after being ousted here, that she was beginning to feel the strain of the tournament trail. Like Stacey West, she too has been travelling steadily all summer, and following her two days of golf at the Ontario Match Tournament at St. George's Golf Club this weekend, she plans to take a rest before traveling to the Canadian Junior Championship in August.

Ruttan also feels she will take a break before going to Nova Scotia for the Canadian. However, West, the defending and now the 1975 Ontario Champion, plans to keep right on rolling. She will be at St. George's this weekend and has entered a couple of other events before her trip to the National.

Ruttan, Ellis and West will now travel to Dartmouth for the August 13th, 12th and 14th Canadian Championship. They officially comprise the Ontario Junior interprovincial squad, while Johns, and two other girls yet to be named, will form an alternate squad.

Goalies Duel

In Tyke-Novice play it is quickly becoming evident that Lees LaBelle and Randy Uens are two of the top goalies in the Belleville Minor Lacrosse Association.

The two battled it out with LaBelle allowing five goals for Quinte Hall and Uens giving up five for Y's Men.

Jim Thompson scored seven goals in a 10-4 victory for Eisso Car Wash over the Surry Queen Dear Burley scored twice for the losers.

In Midget play A and D Esso defeated Local 183 11-9 in a well-played match.

Bantam action saw Cornerstone goalie Rob McCoomsteiner shutout Bob's Sports 13-0. Steve Riddel scored six times for the winners.

Rod Gill defeated Ken-Yen-Geh 4-2, on two goals from Joe Belanger.

Police Association 7-0, Jim Dave Levinetz gain a shutout over the Ponderosa for the Police Association. 7-0, Jim Howe's scored three goals in the win.

Dairy Queen took a 10-2 win over Woodland Cleaners, Paul Hourview and Ken Donaldson led the scoring.

Teams Squeak Through In Stirling League

Springbrook came from a 5-1 deficit at one point of their Stirling and District Softball League game to defeat Stirling Merchants 7-6 on Tuesday night.

In the other league game, Stirling Merchants defeated Franklin Coach 2-1.

Three homers went in the Springbrook game, Reid Shorten, Dale Acorn and Glenn Acorn. They combined to give up eight hits and two walks while striking out six.

The loss went to Ray Wellman, who struck out six.

Jerry Reid pounded out three and two singles in the win. Paul Rollins had three singles and Dan Hay singled and doubled.

Doug Hay, Bob Donohue and Greg Dufoe singled twice for the losers.

Larry Barnard took the Stirling win over Franklin giving up three hits and striking out 11.

Norm Lockhart was the loser, giving up three hits and striking out seven.

All of the hit- for- both teams were well spread out among teammates.

Deseronto Shaded By Melrose

Melrose took a squeaker from Deseronto 3-1 in South Hastings Baseball League play on Tuesday night.

John Pepper recorded the win, giving up three hits and striking out seven batters.

Steve Kemmett was the loser, giving up six hits.

Rick Meagher tripled for the winners, while Bruce Pascoe came up with three singles and Larry Pascoe and Hugh Herman both singled in the win.

Changes Expected In Macs' Lineup

The Belleville McDonald's who take the field tonight against Toronto will be noticeably different from previous O'Keefe Fastball League games.

The team won't be so revamped that you won't recognize it but the changes will be there.

Toronto Advertising Globals have taken two wins from the Macs this year, while Belleville received their first Ontario Fastball League victory against the Globals.

The Globals, much like the Macs, don't score many runs, but keep the other team's scoring down to a minimum.

The two Global hurlers, Reg Martin and John Young are new to Toronto this year, and have done well, if not in the same light as former Toronto shucker Peter Landers.

The two big men in the batting lineup for Toronto are John Barkowski, a leading hitting first baseman and Lee Gould, a fleetfooted centerfielder who is second in the league in stolen bases.

The Macs will have a few surprises up their sleeves as they come in to the game with two new prospects, Dan Spring and Frank Kelly, from Peterborough.

The two are exact parallels of the Toronto strengths. Kelly is a power hitting first baseman like Barbowski, while Spring is quick in the outfield, much like Gould.

This is the Mac's first home game against Toronto, as the teams should be out to give Belleville fans what they've been looking for, one of their patented close games.

With the changes, the close games may become wins, and even if they don't come out victorious, Macs will have the same steady team which has given Belleville some good ball.

OASA Entries Climb

The Ontario Amateur Softball Association has once again outdone its previous year's total for entries in their annual playoffs, topping the total in 238 over last year's 202.

The total was arrived at during the pre-playoff executive meeting in Toronto on the weekend. To define the entries, and set the two-and-one-half months of ball that go with them into motion.

Included in the total are a record 45 in the Intermediate C category, as well as 94 entries from every group in Zone Four, which takes in the Bay of Quinte area.

Belleville's Devolin Motors has top billing in the selection of teams from the area, entered in the Senior B category for the third year in a row. Devolin will take on Brockville in their opening best-of-three series, with the first game to be played on or about the weekend of August 18.

Intermediate B is represented in Zone Four by Cobourg, who takes on Trenton; Picton, who meet Napanee, and Smiths Falls, who drew a bye.

Stirling will meet Norwood in their first round Intermediate C group, with Wellington playing Brighton.

The Ellis Juniors will meet Kemptville in their first round of the Junior A category, while Carlsbad will play Ottawa. The first games in each of the best-of-three sets will take place as part of the Kemptville Junior tournament, on the Civic Holiday weekend.

Moving on to the minors, Cobourg, Napanee, and Picton are all represented in the Juvenile B set up, with Napanee and Picton hooking up in the first series.

Madoc takes on Stirling in the Juvenile C category, and Campbellford meets Brighton.

For the first time in several years, Belleville has a team entered in midget competition, with the Yardmen meeting Ottawa in the first round. Peterborough is also entered in the Zone Four running.

In Midget B, Trenton Dickson's Sport and Bait, the only team entered in this area, is the one to beat champion without stepping on the field.

Midget C is a different story, however, with no less than 11 entries from this Zone, including Napanee, and Odessa, who meet in the first round.

In Bantam A, Belleville will meet Ottawa for the Zone title.

Eleven entries are once again on tap in the Bantam C category, with Brighton and Picton, Napanee and Odessa, Campbellford and Norwood all tangling in opening play.

Belleville SACO is the only entry from Zone Four in the Peewee C series, while Cobourg and Kenenhows meet in Peewee B.

Peewee C presents an new team from the Quinte area, going by the name of Bay of Quinte. Playing out of the Deseronto - Shannonville area they will take on Napanee in the opener. Picton also meets Brighton in the same category.

Belleville's lone competition in Squirt A series is Ottawa, while Napanee take on on Amherstview in Squirt B action. The lone Springbrook entry in OASA play this year is take on Sunbury (North of Kingston), in the Squirt C series.

East Race to the Wire

Post Office defeated Constellation on Tuesday night 5-4 in Belleville Industrial Softball League play. That leaves Constellation with 20 points and Black Diamond with 18, tonight against Brooke Bond, giving them a chance to pick up two points and move into a tie with Constellation for the East Division Championship.

The Division championship will go to the team with most wins.

"If both teams are still tied, it will be a matter of who has the better record in games played between the two teams," said league vice president Eric Williams.

"A sudden death game will be played if the two teams are still tied after we go through all of our other options," said Williams.

The final score was 5-4, with Norm Lockhart picking up the win, he gave up four hits and one walk, while striking out four.

The loss went to Ken Kerik, who gave up nine hits and two walks, while managing eight strikeouts.

Eastern Conference Preview

Als Team to Beat — Sazio

By MEL SUFRIN
CP Sports Editor

"Montreal has to be the team to beat and it will be a dogfight between Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton for second."

Ralph Sazio, general manager of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, was offering his estimate of the Canadian Football League's Eastern Conference race.

His view that the defending Grey Cup champion Montreal Alouettes rank as clear favorites and that the Rough Riders, Argonauts and Tiger-Cats will battle over the crumbs is one that is shared by many realists.

The main reason is that the Als, who open in Hamilton Wednesday night, have only two new faces in their lineup. And when a winner can go with a set team, it usually border on the reckless to pick it for anything but first place.

Missing from the Montreal lineup will be Marv Luster, the hard-hitting defensive back who retired, linebacker Ed George, who went to Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, and running back Larry Sherriff injured in an all-season hang-gliding accident in California.

Newcomers are Joe Petty, an Arizona State graduate, at wide receiver, and Gene Lewis at running back and punter. Lewis played for the Als several seasons back before the Bengals of the NFL.

Head coach Marv Levy elected to keep Petty rather than Hugh Oldham, an Ottawa castoff, although Petty is not as speedy.

"I liked how hard he's worked, his attitude, and I've liked his toughness."

With Sonny Wade back from a head injury and Jimmy Jones working well, the Als appear set at quarterback. Levy has also shown some good moves at slotback and he joins Peter Dalla Riva, Johnny Rodgers, Skip Ecman, Larry Smith and Steve Ferrugbelli to give Montreal a lethal pass-receiving and running attack.

The Rough Riders, who finished in a tie for second place with Hamilton last season although they got the nod because they won two of three against the Ticats, are carrying three quarterbacks veterans Jerry Keeling and rookies Tom Clements and Condredge Halloway.

Coach George Brancato says he doesn't know which one will start in the Rough Riders' opener in Toronto Thursday but he emphasizes he won't hesitate to use all three if a game necessary to get the team moving.

Brancato won't say so but there is talk that if Holloway or Clements or both show they can get the job done, Keeling might become expendable and this make room for another import.

RALPH SAZIO

Fullback John Bledsoe, halfback Art Green and slotback Jim Foley will handle most of the Ottawa running, and Brancato is looking for a stronger pass attack with Tony Gabriel, acquired from Hamilton, at wide end, Gary Kuryk at wide receiver and Rhome Nixon at flanker.

The trouble spot defensively is the interior line, weakened by the defection of Charlie Brandon and Rudy Sims. Bruce Cook has been assigned the 21-day injury list and Brancato will go at the defensive tackle spots with Bubba Bridges, acquired from Edmonton Eskimos, and sophomore Carl Taylor. But don't be surprised if there are changes after a game or two.

The Argonauts, who finished last, a point behind Ottawa and Hamilton, last season, haven't made any changes. And while some surprise has been expressed, general manager John Barrow says he is satisfied with the team he has given rookie coach Russ Jackson.

The club's average age is 23 years and Barrow says he feels experience rather than wholesale changes of a year ago, is most important in its development.

Cornerback, where the retirement of Dave Rainey and move to the NFL by Tim Anderson left some gaps, has been the focus of Barrow's recruiting. The Argos have L. J. Clayton, a converted wide receiver, and Steve Dennis at these spots.

The off-season acquisition of Garrett Humsperger, released by British Columbia Lions, has strengthened the defensive line. And when Jim Sillwagon returns from an injury suffered in a pre-season television competition, freshie Granville Liggins to move back to offence, the Argos attack should get a boost.

Mike Rae is back as No. quarterback with rookie Bill Symons backing him up although Jackson is alert for the possibility of other team's pros being placed on waivers. Doyle, Orange, Ed Shuttleworth and Eric Allen will handle the running, and Allen will join with wide receiver Chuck Herd and tight end Peter Muller in the pass-receiving corps.

Like the Argos, Hamilton will go with one lookover quarterback, Bill Ecker, and one rookie, Jim McMillen, the passing wizard from Boise State.

"It all comes down to quarterbacks," says Sazio. "McMillan, who was personally selected by coach Peter Mellor-Hama, has given us great optimism. Although Ecker is not yet back to his form of last year, we feel he and McMillan can give us good quarterbacking."

Sazio also feels the kicking game has improved with Ken Clark. "He kicks a very high ball and this will give us a chance with the new punt-return rule."

Besides McMillan, the Ticats have only two rookies—linebacker Tony Pereva and running back Ian Sinclair—they have brought such new names as defensive end Ron Pitwick and defensive half Morris Stroud, Ken Edmonton and tight end Lawrie Skolrood from Saskatchewan.

"Over all we have a relatively young team but I'm experienced from the point of view," Sazio says.

While the Alouettes have been artistic successes, they have been pretty much of a failure at attracting fans. But Bob Geary, the general manager, is feeling a little more optimistic.

He notes the team drew 28,000 fans for two home exhibition games compared with fewer than 15,000 a year ago. And season-ticket sales are almost doubled.

"We have over 11,000 season tickets sold so far. Last year at this time we had sold only about 8,000. People can identify with the Alouettes now. I've been around for a couple of years now and so has Marv and his coaching staff. We haven't made any big changes in player personnel either. That all helps. It gives the fans confidence."

In the CFL West

Jauch—a Cautious Outlook

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

The four clubs hoping to overtake Edmonton Eskimos in the race for the Western Football Conference championship got a head start this week, but Eskimo coach Ray Jauch can afford to sit back and wait.

Jauch enters the season with the most balanced club in the conference—on paper, anyway—and with the momentum that comes from two consecutive trips to the Grey Cup final.

Throughout training camp, Jauch has self-pedalled that the Eskimos are invincible. He says there are few spots on any club that can't be improved and he warns that in the season any team can produce an upset at any time.

As the Eskimos were running unbeaten through their four-game exhibition string, every other WFC club showed some weaknesses.

Calgary visits Regina to meet Saskatchewan on Wednesday in the season opener and British Columbia journeys to Winnipeg on Thursday. Edmonton's first game is at home July 29 against Winnipeg.

Based on past performance, Edmonton has the strongest attack in the West, with Tom Wilkinson, last year the Canadian Football League last season, back to direct it.

Wilkinson can throw to George McGowan, Tyrone Walker or Don Warrington and a band off to Roy Bell or Calvin Harrell. The offensive line will be intact again.

Edmonton's major changes have been on defence, where Wayne Mayberne replaces Morris Noble at cornerback and Tom Laputka has taken over the spot vacated by the retirement of John LaGrone at defensive tackle. Perhaps the biggest improvement is at middle linebacker where Sam Britt, back from a year in the World Football League, has helped settle down the defensive crew.

On the injured list and waiting to be placed on active duty are import pass receiver Jerrold Taylor and Canadian linebacker Mike Lambert, who have proved their ability to play in the CFL.

Saskatchewan made a surprise cut Saturday, dropping running back Pete Watson, who had been expected to replace Bobby Thompson. But coach John Payne is secure in the knowledge that quarterback Ron Lancaster and fullback Gharge Reed have had outstanding training sessions.

Both have said this year might be their last and they want to go out as part of a winning team.

In the defensive team, Payne might have trouble where linebacker Al Humphrey lost his job to rookie import Tom Pass and where Charlie Collins is coming off an injury. Another linebacker, Steve Smear, has been placed on the suspended list and probably will not play because of a 1974 injury.

Winnipeg coach Bud Riley says he is pleased that his team is basically settled, a vast improvement from last season when 20 roster changes were made. The key change was at quarterback, where Chuck Ealey moved in for Don Jonas.

Riley said Ealey has improved the strength of his throwing arm. Returning Jim Washington is a proven player and there are plenty of talented rookies seeking a job beside him.

Imports Ken Peeples of Clemson and Buddy Brown of Alabama have been impressive in seeking spots on Winnipeg's solid offensive line. At linebacker, rookies John Murphy, Tom Waddell, and Harry Walters stand a good chance for a job in the middle.

British Columbia coach Earle Keys says he is having difficulty finding replacements for running backs Monroe Eley and Johnny Musso. Harris is solid at the primary running spot.

Peter Liske and Don Moorhead give Keys two viable options at quarterback, but a string of retirements—guard Mike Lakusiak, tackle Lanny Boleski, defensive backs Bob Pyland, Mike Wilson and Wayne Holm and tight end Letty Hendrickson—are causing coaching job at training camp.

Also gone from last year are Bud Magrum, Garrett Hunsperger and Matheson, all involved in violence off the field last season.

At Calgary, coach Jim Wood has put together an interesting team which can counter quarterback Joe Pisarcik, the focal point of Calgary's improvement last season.

Rudy Linterman is at slotback and Willie Burden at running back. Burden had four 100-yard games in his last five starts last season and had a fine training camp. So did Bill Ziegler, a running back from Missouri.

Defensively, inexperience figures to be a problem, especially where Larry Robinson must be replaced after a lengthy career as an all-star defensive back. Veteran Howard Starks is in good shape after a series of leg injuries and Larry Cales and Oscil Collier can do the job in the secondary.

Up front, John Helton, one of the top defensive linemen in CFL history, will be doubly-incensed at usual, leaving room for his partners in the front four to do some damage.

Canadian Open

Hole in One In a Warmup

MONTREAL (CP) — Some of professional golf's top names took a look Tuesday at what they will face starting Thursday in the $300,000 Canadian Open on the 6,936-yard, par-70 Royal Montreal Golf Club layout.

Don Bies, a 36-year-old Seattle pro, found at least one hole to his liking when he registered a hole-in-one on the 350-yard fifth hole.

"It was a thrill, of course," he said of the perfect two-iron shot. "But it would have been better if it came Thursday, Friday, Saturday or Sunday.

"I feel close to my game, and some of it might be that I was off the tour for two weeks and not knowing exactly what I'm going to do once I get back."

American Buddy Allin also said he is near top form but he could not say how soon his game might fall together.

"I'm close, but for me it comes and goes. I'm usually a little fast early in the week and I've got to slow down. Why am I fast? If I had the answer, I'd slow up the tour and make a million selling it to everybody else."

If Allin finds the answer later this week he may continue to add $40,000 and the Jackson Trophy that go to the winner of the $60,000 golf.

Others in the field include defending titlist Bobby Nichols, Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Lee Trevino, Johnny Miller, Gary Player and British Open champion Tom Watson.

George Knudson of Toronto leads the Canadian contingent and said he is looking forward to a good showing.

"I'm swinging better from day to day—I'm really pleased by it and not what I'd like it to be, but it's getting close. It's a progressive thing," said Knud son.

USSR, Japan Keep Winning

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada suffered its fourth consecutive loss as the women's national volleyball team series entered the second half of its cross-country trek Tuesday at the Winnipeg Arena.

Canada lost to the Olympic champion Soviet Union team in three straight games by scores of 15-11, 15-5 and 15-8 to remain winless in the seven-city tour. The Soviet Union's record now stands at three wins against one loss.

In the other game, Japan maintained an undefeated record by trouncing the United States by scores of 15-5, 15-6 and 15-4 for its fourth straight triumph. The U.S. team has one win and three losses.

The United States is scheduled to meet the Soviet Union in Saskatoon Wednesday in the next game of the tour. Canada will play Japan in Victoria Friday before the final games of the series in Vancouver Saturday, pitting Canada against the U.S. and the Soviet Union against Japan.

Field Is Complete

MONTREAL (CP) — The final five places to complete the field of 150 for Thursday's opening round of the $200,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship were filled by Americans previous qualists during a playoff Tuesday.

Twenty-two spots were open before Monday's qualifying round. But the playoff became necessary when, after 17 places were filled by golfers shooting 70 or better, 13 wound up tied with one-under-par 71s and the Royal Montreal Golf Club course. The playoff for the final p-ces stretched into Tuesday when a thunderstorm delayed play Monday.
